AN OPENING AT LAST

The Rescuers at the Farm Hill Mine Find Pure Air.

HOPE REVIVED AT DUNBAR.

The Fate of the Entombed Men Will Probably be Known To-Day.

A Belief that Some of the Imprisoned Miners Are Alive—The Utmost Secrecy is Maintained to Prevent Relatives from Going Into the Pit—Engineer Boyd Makes a Statement.

DUNBAR, Pa., July 1.—At 11 o'clock last night the drill worked by the rescuers at the Farm Hill Mine struck through into an entry. The air came whistling through when the drill was removed. The air was tested and it was found to be pure. It will take until 4 o'clock to-day to dig away the coal so that the rescuing party can enter the Hill Farm Mine to search for the imprisoned men.

The men who have the work of rescue in charge are sure some of the imprisoned miners are alive if they were not killed by the first explosion.

The utmost secrecy is maintained for fear the relatives of the imprisoned men might learn the news and insist on going into the pit. The fate of the men may not be known until to-night.

Mr. J. D. Boyd, the engineer who mapped the Hill Farm Mine, said: "I have made a number of surveys of the mine and each survey has coincided with the other. In this way I think my work is verified. At one time I located a heading of the Ferguson side, at another a bore hole into the mine, and each survey was correct and was made from the same points that the map is made from. There is only one way to prove the survey, and that is to resurvey it. I always did my work in that mine as carefully as in any other, and no mistake that there may be is attributable to carelessness."

The inspectors still maintain that Mr. Boyd made a mistake. They also say he refused to come to their assistance when summoned. This he denies.

Female Factory Inspectors.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 1.—State Factory Inspector Connolly has made public seven of the eight appointments of deputy female factory inspectors. The seven appointees will qualify July 7. The salary is $1,000 per year and expenses. Following are the appointees: Mrs. Eliza A. Carroll, of No. 378 Herkimer street, Brooklyn; Margaret Finn, of No. 40 Marion street, New York; Mrs. Alexander Bremer, No. 194 Second avenue, New York; Julia A. Early, New York; Electa R. Lockwood, Bedford, Westchester county; Bertha L. Aschoff, Albany, and Mrs. Margaret Gibson, a widow, whose husband was killed in 1881. Every appointee is highly indorsed and a practical working woman.

Unveiling the Hendricks Monument.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 1.—This city is georgeously decked out with bunting. Governors and ex-governors are here, congressmen and ex-congressmen by the score fill the corridors of hotels, and there is a stir and bustle in the streets telling of the unveiling of the Hendricks' monument to-day. The heat is intense, and the committee of arrangements, as a precautionary measure, has the entire route lined with ice barrels, while surgeons and ambulances are provided for each division.

THE AFRICAN SETTLEMENT.

Premier Salisbury Makes a Statement in the House of Lords.

LONDON, July 1.—In the House of Lords last night Earl Roseberry asked whether the Government would assist the inhabitants of Heligoland desiring to remain British subjects to settle in other parts of Great Britain, and also whether Germany's right to fortify the island was restricted.

The session of English territory, he declared, was contrary to English usages (cries of "Hear!"), and he hoped the Government would carefully consider the wishes of the people inhabiting such territory. Parliament, he said, was still entitled to further information on the subject.

Lord Salisbury replied that he was not aware that Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was in possession of funds that could be used to settle the islanders in other parts of the Empire. He did not think such a measure would be in conformity with the wishes of the people of Heligoland. Every security had been taken to protect their interests. The Government had done its best to ascertain the wishes of the islanders, although it had not taken a plebiscite. The Government had not suggested any limit to Germany's rights to fortify the island.

Just as soon as the convention was signed the Government would deem it necessary to fully inform Parliament and explain its policy at length.

Financial Trouble at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, July 1.—By the failure of the National Bank in this city shares fell from 168 to 100, finally closing at 118. As a consequence the Bourse became panicky, and a feeling of general mistrust pervaded commercial and financial circles. The gold premium is 148.

Strangler Eyrand in Paris.

PARIS, July 1.—Michael Eyrand, the strangler, who murdered M. Gouffe, a court bailiff, and who, after having been arrested in Havana, was brought in the custody of French detectives from that city to St. Nazaire on the steamer Lafayette, arrived in Paris during the morning.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

About Two-Thirds of the Delegates in Scranton for To-Morrow's Convention.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 1.—About two-thirds of the delegates to to-morrow's State Democratic Convention have already arrived, and canvassing for the respective candidates for the gubernatorial nomination is active.

The Pattison adherents claim that their man will win on the first ballot. The Wallace men are less exuberant, but are confident that Wallace will get the prize before the balloting proceeds far. Ex-Postmaster Harrity of Philadelphia is in charge of Pattison's interests. Ex-Senator Wallace is here in person.

There are nineteen contests to come before the credentials committee. Of the contestants, seventeen are Wallace men. There will be fifty members of the committee, and its make-up is an important matter, as the admission of the seventeen Wallace men would have a marked effect in the ballots. Both sides are claiming a majority of the committee.

Ex-Governor Pattison arrived last night, with Editor Singerly and Dr. John Norris. He was escorted to his headquarters at the Westminster Hotel by a large crowd with a brass band, red fire, rockets, etc. He made a short speech from the hotel balcony. Ex-Senator Wallace came in very quietly and received a number of his friends at the Wyoming House.

ATTACKED WITH AN AX.

A Principal in a Prize Fight Assisted by His Young Brother.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 1.—A prize fight for $200 a side, with small gloves, Queensberry rules, between Elmer Grant of Beaver Falls and Fred Wise of New Brighton, was fought at a point 20 miles below Pittsburg on the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railroad.

The fight only lasted one round, Grant being knocked down once and Wise six times. The seconds of the latter claimed a foul, alleging Grant had hit Wise while the latter was down. While the men were still wrangling Will Wise, a 17-year-old brother of the principal, jumped into the ring and hit Grant on the back with the blunt end of an ax. Grant was not badly injured.

The referee declared the fight a draw. There were about 200 people present.

The Sullivan-Muldoon Row.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Sporting men are anxiously waiting to hear what Muldoon has to say to John L. Sullivan's remarks about the big wrestler. Sullivan said: "I saw a letter which Muldoon wrote to one of the prosecuting officers, offering to turn State's evidence against Donovan and myself and testify that we were implicated in getting up and carrying on a prize fight, providing he was allowed to go free. A man who would do a thing of that kind is a cur and a coward. I did say in New Orleans that I would punch the fellow, if he ever came in my way, but it would go against me to strike such a coward."

Fearful Child Mortality in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 1.—The fearful child mortality continues in this city. In the poorer quarters, where ice is a luxury almost unknown, it is impossible to keep perishable articles of food in any suitable condition for use, and milk is given to many little ones in such form as to make it little else than poison. Reports from other cities in the State show as bad a state of affairs. Many cases of prostration and several deaths are reported.

An Alleged Murderer Disappears.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 1.—John Ackerman, the farmer, who is suspected of having murdered John Meisener, whose skeleton was found on Grand Island on Thursday, has fled. Herman Meisener, brother of the dead man, came from Toronto on Saturday and satisfied himself that the remains were those of his brother. The evidence against Ackerman though circumstantial is conclusive.

The Cloakmakers Fight.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The Arbitration Board of the Cloak Manufacturers' Association and Consolidated Committee of Operators met in joint conference at noon at the Prescott House. The meeting only lasted fifteen minutes, as they were unable to come to any agreement. The situation of the locked-out cloakmakers remains unchanged, but they maintain that their prospects are still bright.

Arrest of an Old Physician.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 1.—Dr. Henry A. De Sanges, an old and well known physician of this place, was arrested upon a warrant issued by Justice Crego and sworn to by Americus Rogers, charging the doctor with malpractice upon his niece, Minnie Rogers, a beautiful young girl of 18 years. Dr. De Sanges gave bail to appear before Justice Wyckoff.

The Larkin-Murphy Fight Off.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Jimmy Larkin, the 122 pound champion of Jersey City, who was matched to fight Billy Murphy, the Australian, at the California Athletic Club on July 28th, received a telegram from President Fulda, of the club, stating that Murphy has sailed for Australia without giving notice of his intentions. The fight, therefore, is off.

Strikers Gain Their Point.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The striking suspender makers have gained a decided victory over three firms. The men employed by the firms, about 100 in number, have returned to work at an increase of twenty to twenty-five per cent on the old rates. Nine other firms have agreed to sign the contracts presented by their employes.

THE ELECTION BILL

Both Parties Getting Ready for To-Morrow's Vote.

MEMBERS REFUSING ALL PAIRS.

The Opponents of the Bill Confident that They Will Defeat It.

Speaker Reed Talks About Adjournment. The Senate's Minority Tariff Report Not Yet Prepared—Decrease in the Public Debt for June—Applications to Organize National Banks.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The opponents of the Federal Election bill are singularly confident that they will be able to defeat it in the House. They are getting their last votes here and are refusing all pairs. Mr. Kerr is the only Pennsylvania Democrat who is likely to be absent, as he is to go to the Scranton convention. He has been appealed to to be here in time to vote to-morrow. It is feared by the Republican leaders that a number of their members will dodge the vote.

It is certain that three Republicans will vote against the bill, and the capitol gossips have it that several other members of the majority party also oppose it, either by direct vote or by absenting themselves when the vote is taken.

The members who will surely vote against the bill are Messrs. Ewart, of North Carolina, Coleman, of Louisiana, and Lehlbach, of New Jersey.

It is said that seven other Republicans—three from the South, one from New England, and three from the West—will vote "no." It is known that some of these are opposed to the bill, but whether or not they will sacrifice party interests and vote against the measure is doubtful. Less than ten breaks among the Republicans in the House would defeat the bill.

CENSUS TAKING FINISHED.

Superintendent Porter Celebrates that Event and His Birthday Together.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The completion of the eleventh census caught Superintendent Porter upon his birthday. Last night he, together with forty or fifty of his assistants, celebrated the two events at the superintendent's P street residence. Mr. Porter was the recipient of many congratulatory telegrams. One from ex-Superintendent Walker is extremely cordial, and declares the census to have been the most accurate yet taken.

As heretofore telegraphed, Superintendent Porter six months ago estimated that the population of the United States would reach at least 64,500,000. To-day he expresses the opinion that it was too early to base an estimate upon the returns. Many guesses have been made by statisticians. Here are some of them: J. C. C. Kennedy, 77,266,989; Silas L. Loomis, 67,248,252; E. B. Elliot, 64,600,000; F. W. Hewis, 64,584,000; San Francisco papers, 64,000,000; Francis Bonynge, 61,946,143; Congress (estimated) 60,000,000.

Minority Report on the McKinley Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Senator Vance said to-day that the minority report on the McKinley bill had not yet been prepared. "But," he continued, "you can depend upon its being thoroughly Democratic, and where duties have been increased or where they remain stationary the demand for reduction will be made, and where they have been reduced we will demand still lower rates. As far as Secretary Blaine's views are concerned, I don't believe we will say anything about them, unless we indorse as much of them as are Democratic."

After Violators of Neutrality Laws.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The Attorney General has forwarded instructions to the United States District Attorney at Laredo, Texas, to prosecute vigorously all parties engaged in any violation of neutrality laws existing between the United States and Mexico. Ex-Mayor Isidor Salinas, of New Laredo, who is in jail at Laredo charged with being one of the leaders of the recent revolutionary forces in Mexico, denies all connection with the raid. He was captured near Lijarita, a ranch thirty miles from New Laredo.

Speaker Reed on Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Speaking on the subject of adjournment, Speaker Reed said: "The question rests entirely with the Senate. For the first time in many years, the House is ahead of the Senate with the public business. We, over on this side, could wind up the session next week, but of course we shall not be able to do so." Nearly all Senators agree in thinking that adjournment cannot take place before August, and several think the session may run into September.

Conference on the Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—There will be no conference on the silver bill until to-morrow. The delay is caused by the absence of Representative Walker of Massachusetts, one of the Republican conferees of the House. Mr. Walker was appointed whileaway and has been requested to return as soon as possible, as both sides are anxious to dispose of the measure as soon as possible.

Organizing National Banks.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—J. E. Miller, of Englewood, N. J., has made application for authority to organize the National Bank of Englewood. J. H. Miles and associates have made application to organize the Miles National Bank, of Delhi, O.

BY THE WAY.

—Skating again at the Crescent, Friday and Saturday evenings.

—Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., will meet in regular session, this evening.

—The "Star" base ball club of this city, will play with a team from Somerville, on Saturday.

—Shop windows full of rockets and firecrackers betoken the approach of the nation's birthday.

—Westfield Lodge, F. & A. M., met in regular communication last evening, and "called off" until September 1.

—Street Commissioner Meeker has been grading Richmond street, preparatory to macadamizing that thoroughfare.

—All orders for salmon and lobsters for July 4 or 5, at Rogers' Sea Food Market, must be left by July 2, 6 P. M.

—The excursion of Wetumpka Lodge, No. 3,401, K. of H., to Point View Island, today, consisted of six well filled passenger coaches.

—A regular meeting of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Union, will be held in the parochial school hall, this evening, at eight o'clock.

—The July meeting of the borough council falls on the evening of the Fourth, but the members will meet and adjourn over to a subsequent date.

—The postponed business meeting of the Women's Temperance Aid Society, will be held Thursday afternoon at four o'clock in the parlor of Reform Hall.

—Charles E. Condit, the six-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Condit of West Third street, died about four o'clock yesterday morning, after a short illness.

—The thermometer at ten o'clock this morning registered eighty-five degrees in the shade, and the day was pronounced by many as the hottest thus far this season.

—The Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a daisy festival at 134 Park avenue, this evening. Admission 10 cents.

—There will be no fireworks at the Netherwood, nor ball match at the La Grande avenue grounds Fourth of July evening, so everybody will be skating at The Crescent.

—The ball match on the Crescent League's grounds to-morrow between the Plainfield Athletic club's nine and the colored "Stars," will be an exciting and interesting one.

—Hannah Cronan, arrested Sunday on complaint of Robert Carson for using profane language in the borough, came up for a hearing yesterday, but it was postponed until to-morrow.

—The law prohibiting the killing of woodcock expired yesterday, and early this morning a large number of our local sportsmen started for the woods in search of the much coveted birds.

—A party of young people from North Plainfield, including some of the recent graduates, went on a picnic to Boynton Beach, yesterday, returning home in the bright moonlight late in the evening.

—The size of the iced cream plate has not diminished, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, but the amount of cream served on the plate is not quite as large as last year, but the price remain the same.

—At the last regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 305, Order of Tonti, held on Thursday evening last, five new members were received into the order, and three more applications for membership were received.

—Owing to the extensive increase in business and necessary additions to the staff of agents, the office of the United States Industrial Insurance company, with J. S. Jones Asst, Supt., has found it necessary to take a larger office at 28 West Front street adjoining the office of Dr. Gaston.

—There has been considerable advance made this year in the matter of doing away with some of the hedge rows, street and line fences in various parts of this city. Several of the Franklin place residents have but recently removed their front fences, thereby making a decided change in the appearance of their premises.

How Nice!

A child who has once taken HAMBURG FIGS as a cathartic will never again look on them as a medicine, but will be likely to ask for them, under the impression that they are simply preserved fruit. 25 cents. Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Helen Huntsman, of Providence, R. I., is visiting her brother, Robert F. H. Huntsman, of the Central New Jersey Times staff.

Mrs. Wm. B. Ostron has gone to Philadelphia for a few days, after which she will spend the Summer at the home of her son in Detroit.

The Bloomsbury correspondent of the Clinton Democrat says: "Miss Maggie Able of Plainfield, spent last week with her parents here."

Hattie, the two-year and seven months old twin daughter of Mrs. Stella M. Jackson, died at her home on West Fourth street this afternoon.

Jas. Middleditch, of Plainfield, N. J., says the Asbury Park Journal, one of the projectors of the electric railroad from this city to Spring Lake, is with his wife and sister at the Atlantic.

Miss Sarah Carson, of North Plainfield, will sail for Europe on the "Brittanic" to-morrow. She will accompany her brother, Brook Carson, of Jersey City, and be absent several months.

At her home in Scotch Plains, last evening, occurred the death of Mrs. Ellen McKown, aged sixty-two years. The funeral will take place from the residence of her son, Alfred, on Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Among the passengers on the S. S. Furnessia that sailed for Europe on Saturday were Mrs. James McInnes and Mrs. Alexander McInnes, both of this city, who have gone to Glasgow, Scotland, on their Summer vacation.

Miss Emma Bellemere, who has been enjoying a short visit at the home of her parents here, returned yesterday to Buffalo, where she still occupies the position of one of the assistant secretaries in the C. L. S. C. general offices.

Daniel W. Littell, of North avenue, has returned home after a three weeks trip to Denver, Colorado, where he went as one of the New York delegates to the National Association of Master Plumbers, held at Denver, recently. During his absence Mr. Littell visited many prominent points of interest, including Pike's Peak, Manitoba, Colorado Springs, and the "garden of the gods." He brought home with him many curiosities in the shape of crystals, minerals, etc., some of which were gathered from the summit of Pike's Peak.

Ex-Councilman Christopher M. Goddard, formerly of this city, but now Electrical Inspector for the New England Insurance exchange, with office at 55 Kilby street, Boston, has returned to this city for the purpose of removing his family to Boston, the latter part of this week. Mr. Goddard's territory consists of the whole of the New England States, excepting Boston, and he has already inspected his work in forty-seven towns, in the remarkably short space of twenty days. By his removal from the city, Plainfield will lose an honored and respected resident.

Organ Recital and Concert at Holy Cross.

A large gathering of people at the Church of the Holy Cross, last evening, thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed the organ recital and concert given by Prof. William Groom of Brooklyn, and Messrs Edward G. Boys and John S. Clark. If there is a fault to be found with the programme it is that there was not at least one instrumental selection complete enough in range, combination and effect to display the remarkable capabilities of the very fine organ that has recently been built in the church.

The instrumental selections rendered by Mr. Groom, included compositions by Bach, Rosini, Chopin, Weber, Liszt and Mendelssohn. He displayed much talent and technique, and showed himself a very brilliant player. The sololsts were Edward G. Boys, tenor of the St. John's Episcopal church, Jersey City, who had been vocally educated and trained as an English Cathedral boy. His voice and selections were most acceptable, as were also the voice and selections of John S. Clark, baritone, of the Tabernacle, Jersey City.

The Holy Cross organ, of which THE PRESS has had occasion to speak before, was built by Messrs Labaugh & Kemp of New York. It contains two sets of manuals with two octaves of pedals. It has twenty-two ranks of pipes numbering nearly twelve hundred, among which are four sixteen feet, eight eight feet and three four feet, together with a variety of mixture stops and oboe and bassoon reeds. It is not excelled by any other instrument of its rank in the city.

Fire Protection on the Fourth.

The Board of Fire Engineers have completed the arrangements for guarding against fire on the Fourth of July. With the exception of having a watchman on duty in the fire alarm tower, the arrangements will be about the same as last year. Beginning at midnight on July 3, all the fire department horses, engineers and tillermen will remain on duty for thirty-six consecutive hours. There will also be extra pipe men on duty during that time.

Trying to Make a Model Borough.

Justice Hardy has notified the proprietors of the shops on Grove street, opposite "Lovers' Dell," where soft drinks, raisins, etc., are sold on Sunday, that they must close their places of business on that day. Mayor Place is in earnest about enforcing the borough laws

POINT LACE AND WHITE ROSE BUDS.

The Delightful Wedding Ceremony and Reception, of Miss Taylor and Prof. Lewis.

At the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James M. Taylor, 137 Park avenue, took place last evening at six o'clock, a quiet, artistic and charming wedding. The contracting parties were Elizabeth Loxley Taylor and Edwin Herbert Lewis. The officiating clergymen were the Rev. Robert Lowry, D. D., uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. A. H. Lewis, D. D., father of the groom.

The bride's gown was rich faille heavily trimmed with old point lace. She carried a bouquet of white rose buds. She was given away by her mother. The maid of honor was Miss Pauline Fish, the nine-year-old daughter of Ferdinand Fish, of New York, and a niece of the bride. She looked a bewitching fairy in white.

The bridemaids were Miss Bessie Fish and Miss Annie Fish, who are also daughters of Ferdinand Fish. The best man was Prof. David I. Greene, of Alfred University. The ushers were: Lincoln B. Goodrich and Wm. C. Hubbard, of this city, Charles Lawrence, of Philadelphia, and Captain E. Howard Russell, of Kingston, Ontario.

Miss Utter was the pianist. The presents were many and costly, numbering gifts from the far West, and from foreign friends in many countries of Europe. The wedding supper was elegant—served by Clark of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will spend the Summer at the sea shore in Rhode Island, and then go to Alfred, New York, where Mr. Lewis has accepted the position of Professor of Latin, in the University. The bride's mother and sister will reside with them there.

The Reform Hall Meeting.

The meeting in Reform Hall on Sunday evening, although not large, was of interest to those present. George Angleman led in prayer, and Mrs. King, Miss Alice Smith and Mr. Spencer rendered acceptable music.

President Harper in opening the meeting remarked that it was not numbers, but devotion to right principles that constituted a live assemblage. He was followed by Messrs Angleman, Brown and Spencer, all of whom bore valiant testimony to the beneficent cause of temperance, and the great practical good individuals and homes had received from the influences of Reform Hall. The President announced that nothing would prevent the regular holding of meetings every Sunday and Thursday evenings, and the meeting adjourned.

Wrecked by a Loose Wheel.

A wreck occurred at the Washington street crossing in this city about five o'clock this morning, which fortunately resulted in but little damage to the rolling stock but interfered with travel for several hours.

At that time Central Engine, No. 259, attached to an East bound Philadelphia fast freight was crossing over from the third track on the South siding to the main track when a loose wheel on the tender struck the "frog" throwing the tender from the track. The engine ran for a short distance and came to a stop, but aside from blocking the third and the East bound main tracks no particular damage resulted from the accident.

A wrecking crew came up from Elizabethport, and by nine o'clock the road was opened again for travel.

Real Estate at Auction.

By order of Walter L. Hetfield, executor of the estate of the late Antoine De Baud, auctioneer J. M. C. Marsh yesterday offered for sale the hotel property at Scotch Plains known as the DeBaud Hotel, together with thirty-six building lots on Bartle and Scout avenues. There was a large number of bidders present, but the bidding was not very spirited.

The hotel property was bought by Frederick Coombs, proprietor of the Westfield Hotel, for $6,400. Mr. Coombs also bought the lot adjoining on Main street, for $752.50.

Thirty-two of the thirty-six building lots offered for sale, were disposed of in sums ranging from $60 to $125. The total sale amounted to $10,017.50.

Their Sixth Successive Game.

The "White Caps" of this city on Saturday defeated the "Merits," a nine composed of the employes of the Pond Machine Tool works, by a score of 16 to 5, this being the sixth successive game which the former club has won.

The game was well played throughout, but the "White Caps" by bunching their hits in the first four innings, secured a lead the contesting nine could not overcome.

Meeting of the Clerks.

The clerks of this city held a meeting in the rooms of the Jr. O. U. A. M., last evening, and made arrangements for a mass meeting, which is to be held in Music Hall, on Tuesday evening, July 8. The clergymen of the city have been invited to participate in the meeting, and nearly all of them have signified their willingness to attend. Music will be furnished by the Plainfield Cornet band.

To Be Paid Weekly.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have issued orders that their employees are in the future to receive their salary weekly. This decision is hailed with delight by all the attaches of the system. This new order goes into effect to-day.

Take it in Time.

Until the blood is cleansed of impurities, it is useless to attempt the cure of any disease. Rheumatism, which is traceable to an acid in the blood, has been cured, in numerous cases, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, external treatment being of no avail.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

A NOBLE PLEA FOR A NOBLE ANIMAL.

Dr. Stephenson, Official Veterinary of the Plainfield S. P. C. A., Protests Against the Use of the Kimble-Jackson Check-Rein.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your paper of June 21, I noticed a report of the action I had taken relative to the abuse of the Kimble-Jackson rein which is in commou use by most of the gentry and others in this vicinity. I beg to say that I cordially thank you for your kind endorsement of my views relative to my abhorrence of any kind of cruelty to animals. I believe that there are a great many persons in Plainfield and elsewhere who are devoid of proper feeling towards their dumb animals and are guilty of hardness and cruelty. The old adage is: "Where Ignorance is Bliss, 'tis Folly to be Wise," and really I begin to think that it is a folly on my part to make any effort to enlighten such people upon the subject of creating pain and occasioning distress to the poor horse.

I am fully persuaded that no truly considerate person having the least touch of humanity in their souls, would ever suffer infliction to be imposed upon their faithful and beautiful animals. There is no creature under Heaven that excites my sympathy and love more than that dear and valuable animal, the horse, (except my fellow beings.) Horses can be made as docile as lambs; they possess wonderful instinct, and they can be taught anything except to speak. I have been associated with these lovely creatures for seventy years. I never yet saw the horse that I could not conquer and render as gentle as I could desire. I have very great affection and a thorough commiseration for these valuable creatures. I have said in a former writing, and now reiterate, a beneficent creator gave us these good creatures for our use, but not to be abused and rendered miserable for our vain gratification.

I have recently spoken to several gentlemen and ladies respecting the barbarous use of the check-rein—but they and their coachmen (with some few exceptions), declare that they will continue the use of it. As a matter of course, they in their ignorance of the structure of the horse, or of the science of anatomy, cannot comprehend how or why the said check-rein can possibly injure the poor creature. This is how: If our heads were braced back to a belt around our loins, would we not loudly exclaim against such cruelty? And verily, we would very soon have some maniacs in consequence of such insanity. There is no gentleman who has been thoroughly educated in a first-class school of the veterinary art, but will lift up his voice with trumpet sound against this brutal treatment, and I do so likewise.

Complaint is often made because a horse is hard in the mouth, and also because of his being vicious. The creature has been rendered thus by bad and brutal training in the first place, and then by falling into the hands of savages too often, in the second place. Now, all these may be easily overcome by a kind and judicious treatment. Kindness begets kindness, and no creature in existence can more readily reciprocate your affection than the poor horse. It is the willing slave of man. It cannot speak to tell you of its complaints, sorrows, pains or weariness; therefore, our duty to the animal is to treat as we desire to be treated. Seventy years I have been associated with these creatures and I know them to the very letter. I have learned to love and value them very highly, and my soul is daily aggrieved and pained at the barbarity which I see exercised towards them, and no one to lift up a hand to mitigate their sufferings.

HENRY G. STEPHENSON V. S.

Capt. Grant's Orders Still Vleated

A party of well dressed hoodlums, old enough to know better, amused themselves last night by firing cannon crakers upon the stoops of citizens on East Front street. They threw one upon the stoop of Mr. Van Arsdale corner of Front and Elm streets, and as Mrs. Van Arsdale is of a nervous disposition it startled her into hysterics. Mr. Van Arsdale dressed himself, came down town and returned with Officer Flannagan, but the offenders could not be found.

The Dining Room to be Called "Plainfield."

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell's Visitor says: "The Women's Home Missionary Society of our church is the first auxiliary to give one hundred dollars towards furnishing a room in the new Albuquerque School, New Mexico, and hence the ladies have the right to give the name to any room in the building. They have selected the dining-room, and it is to be named after our beautiful city."

Beware of the City Ordinance.

Parents of children should bear in mind the fact that Section four of the Peace and Moral ordinance provides for the punishment by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for violating the ordinance by setting off firecrackers or squibs on the streets on any day except the Fourth of July.

Concerning Fast Driving.

Complaint is made against certain owners of fast horses, who are in the habit of speeding them on West Front street in the vicinity of Grant avenue. There is a city ordinance which provides for the punishment of fast and reckless driving.

Not only delicious for the palate, but an exceedingly health-giving beverage is Hires' Root Beer. It is the thirst quencher. Not intoxicating, and yet gently stimulating in its effects. Cheap enough for anybody.

E. H. LEWIS CHOSEN PROFESSOR OF LATIN.

Other Plainfielders Who Were Present During Commencement Week at Alfred Centre.

The exercises of commencement week at the Seventh Day Baptist University, Alfred Centre, N. Y., opened June 22, with the baccalaureate sermon by President Allen. On Monday and Tuesday the four literary societies held their anniversaries, and on Tuesday evening the school of music gave the annual concert. At the annual meeting of the trustees in Kenyon Memorial Hall, Professor E. H. Lewis, of this city, as already stated in THE PRESS, was elected professor of Latin.

Wednesday was set apart for the Alumni Association meeting, at which Dr. Daniel Lewis, of New York city, presided. Among the distinguished speakers at the morning session and the banquet in the evening were: The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city; the Rev. H. C. Cooper, of Springville; the Rev. E. M. Deems, of Hornellsville; Colonel C. J. Chatfield, of New York city; Dr. W. W. Potter, of Buffalo, president of the Medical Society of the State of New York; Professor D. R. Ford, D. D., of the Elmira Female College; George H. Babcock, of this city; the Hon. M. M. Acker, of Hornellsville; Mrs. Eva Allen Alberti, of Brooklyn; Professor D. A. Blakeslee, of Alfred; Professor A. B. Kenyon, of Alfred, and B. C. Davis, of West Virginia. P. B. McLennan, of Syracuse, was elected president of the association.

The graduating class on Thursday numbered fifty. The honorary degree of LL. D., was conferred upon Professor John W. Freyer, of Shanghai, China. The class of '90 closed the exercises of the week on Thursday afternoon. The attendance throughout was large. The last year has been marked by substantial additions to the library and the endowment funds of the university.

A Suit For False Imprisonment.

Charles Ramsberger and Berne Egel, the two men who were indicted by the last Grand Jury, tried and acquitted of the charge of grand larceny from Abram L. Cadmus, owner and proprietor of the commercial mills in this city, are about to bring suit for damages against Mr. Cadmus in the sum of ten thousand dollars each, for false imprisonment.

Ramsberger has engaged Counsellor Voorhees of Elizabeth, to defend him in his suit, and Egel has secured the services of Messrs Lindabury and Garretson.

In conversation with a PRESS reporter last evening, Ramsberger stated that overtures had been made to him indirectly, offering to settle the matter for $200, which amount, he says, he would not accept.

Before Judge Codington.

Wm. Ross and Patrick Lyons were before Judge Codington this morning for creating a disturbance in East Third street a month ago. The former was fined five dollars, while sentence was suspended on the latter with a solemn warning.

The trouble occurred in this way: Ross was backing a man by the name of "Coxy" in a pool match at Goff's saloon. Cox lost, and as witness testified: "Rossy thought he was 'er playin' off; see! And he got him outside and he did him." Lyons swore he found Ross down, with Cox on top. He tried to lift Cox off and Ross bit him. He slapped Ross to make him let go, and a three round fight occurred.

But Where Did They Get Their Pitcher?

(From the Trenton True American.)

The Trentons defeated the Plainfield team, at Plainfield, Saturday in a ten inning game by a score of 7 to 6. It was a great victory for our boys, for it was the first time this season that the Plainfield nine has suffered defeat. The Plainfielders have some professional players in their nine, but this did not bother the Trentons in the least for they went to Plainfield for the purpose of defeating the club and did so in great shape. On the Fourth, the Trentons play at Somerville, and on the 26th have a return date at Plainfield, when a great game may be expected.

Alpha Lodge Entertains Visitors.

The above named lodge met in regular session last evening, and transacted the usual routine of business. During the evening a delegation from Ray [of Hope Lodge, No. 6, of Elizabeth, came up in a stage, and the visitors were heartily welcomed by the members of the home lodge.

After an hour or two spent in singing, speech-making and recitations, the visiting delegation started for home, well pleased with the evening's enjoyment. Refreshments were served in abundance.

Poor girl, poor girl, so young, so fair,
And doomed to die so soon;
The seeds of death are scattered there,
And long before life's noon
The grass will grow upon her grave:
So friends in sorrow say,
And think no power on earth can save
The dear one from decay.

Why do you think and talk like this? Simply because some of her family have died from scrofulous poisoning of the blood, and they see indications of the same taint in her. Scrofula of the Lungs, commonly called consumption, is a terrible disease, and it is not to be wondered at that they dread it. But it can be conquered. The poison can be driven out of the blood. The taint can be eliminated from the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured thousands of persons who were expected to find early graves because "there was scrofula in the family." "Golden Medical Discovery" is warranted to remove all blood-taints from whatever cause arising. It cures all scrofulous, skin and scalp diseases, or money paid for it will be returned.

Saturday's Races.

The racing card at the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association on Saturday, consisted of three hotly contested events, as follows:

First race between John Hays' "Andy" and C. C. Brower's bay mare "Aala." "Andy" won two straight heats in 2.48½ and 2.45.

The next race was the most exciting one of the day, between O. T. Waring's "Copeland," driven by Peter Osborn, and A. C. Vail's "Frank S.," driven by his trainer, Owen Monks. "Copeland" trotted well, winning both heats. Time 2.46 and 2.33.

The concluding race was between John Osborn's "Colonel" and Mr. Coriell's "Somerville Boy." The former horse won the single heat in 2 57.

On Saturday next there will be some new horses in the field and some exciting races may be looked for.

What's the Matter With South Avenue?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Seeing your able article in last week's Constitutionalist in regard to the county roads, reminds me again that the city has as yet failed to put that part of South avenue that is in such poor condition, in good shape for the traveling public. There is only about 800 feet of said road that requires a top dressing of small stone to cover up the large stone that is bare. As South avenue is the "connecting link" with the county road leading to Elizabeth, and considering the fact that the expense of macadamizing it was borne entirely by the property-holders, it seems but just that the city should keep it in good repair and not act the "dog in the manger" after taking it out of the hands of the county.

NED NETHERWOOD.

An Accident at Westfield.

Charles Cox, a fifteen-year-old boy, was thrown from his bicycle on Broad street, Westfield, about eight o'clock last evening, and in falling he frightened a horse belonging Jonas S. Miller. The young man abandoned his wheel and made a heroic effort to capture the horse. The animal kicked him on the right leg, laying open the flesh on the calf for fully five inches. Dr. Cooper dressed the wound.

Election of Officers.

At a regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., held last evening, the following officers were elected, and the same will be installed at a subsequent meeting of the lodge:

N. G.—Joseph F. Sheppard.
V. G.—Chas. M. Raybert.
R. S.—Lewis R. Blackford.
Trustee—D. R. Weaver.

Overcome by the Heat.

An unknown woman was overcome by the heat on the sidewalk, on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon. She was taken to the hospital in a carriage for treatment, and later in the day she started for New York.

AN ELECTRICAL STORM.

Two Persons Killed and Several Knocked Down and Stunned.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 1.—An electrical storm visited this city about 6 o'clock last evening, and was the severest and most destructive that ever struck Columbus.

Campman Stutz, 18 years old, was instantly killed while standing beneath a tree which was demolished by lightning. William Wise, 17 years of age, met a similar death. Some half dozen other persons were stunned or knocked down, but not seriously hurt.

The wind was very fierce and trees were uprooted, roofs of scores of buildings blown down and great damage done to outbuildings, fences and yards.

Excursion of Mexicans.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 1.—On the 6th of August the National Railroad Company will send a special Pullman excursion train from this city to New York and return, stops being made at St. Louis, Chicago and Niagara Falls. Two weeks' time will be given in New York city to enable the excursionists to visit points of interest. On the return trip a stop will be made at Washington. A representative of the company, speaking Spanish, French an English, will accompany the party.

Protest by Boston Bricklayers.

BOSTON, July 1.—A protest has been made by Bricklayers' Union No. 2 against the employment of laborers by Norcross Bros. to do work heretofore done by bricklayers. It was agreed to support the 75 members of the craft who had struck against the employment of laborers to lay tiles.

GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY.

The Four Hudson County, N. J., Election Officers Convicted.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 1.—The trial of the four election officers, Thomas Fallon, Jacob Mochelle, Thomas Hart and George De Raney, was concluded before Judge Lippencott, in the Hudson County Court.

The jury, after being out less than two hours, brought in a verdict of guilty, and recommended De Raney to the mercy of the court.

Ex-Judge Garretson at once gave notice that an appeal would be made to the Supreme Court to have the verdict set aside on the ground that the verdict was not in accordance with the evidence.

The defendants were remanded for sentence. The penalty for conspiracy in New Jersey is two years' imprisonment, or a fine of $500, or both.

MOODY'S BIBLE SCHOOL.

Nearly Every College in the United States is Represented.

GREENFIELD, Mass., July 1.—Moody's Summer Bible School for College Students at Northfield is now under successful way, over 600 students being in attendance, representing nearly every college in the United States.

Mr. Moody considers the list of speakers engaged the best he has ever had here. Special attention is paid to athletic sports in the afternoons under the direction of Stagg, of Yale.

Conferences are held each morning from 8 to 9; Normal Bible classes from 9 to 10; addresses from 10 to 12; while in the evening are general association and missionary meetings and addresses. An unusual number of young ladies are in attendance.

Rolling Mill Hands Strike.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 1.—The president and general manager of the Fishback Rolling Mills of the Pottsville Iron and Steel Company refused to sign the wage scale and 800 men struck. Iron workers all over the country have signed this scale. It is to the effect that the employers will continue the present rate of wages until there is an advance in the price of iron, when there will be an increase of wages. The men are very quiet and orderly and no disturbance is apprehended. It is hardly possible that the strike will be settled before next week.

Horrible Death of a Boiler Tender.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 1.—Stephen Fogarty, boiler tender at the Liden Steel Works, met with a horrible death. He was standing upon a ladder making a connection with a steam pipe, when a faulty steam valve burst in front of him. He was struck on the neck by the broken valve and escaping steam, and was blown about fifty feet. He was dead when picked up. His head was almost severed from the body. He leaves a widow with seven helpless children.

Tammany's Chief Going Back to Germany

NEW YORK, July 1.—Ex-Chamberlain Richard Croker, the Tammany leader, is about to return to Germany. His tickets and stateroom have been secured, and he will get away just as soon as he pays a few calls to friends and relatives. He has been spending a few days with Col. Brown at Great Barrington, Vt. To-morrow night he will be made one of the Sachems of Tammany Hall.

Policemen Arrested by a Reporter.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Ward Detective George Logan, Roundsman Taylor, ex-Detective Flannigan and Frank Welsh, a clerk in the law office of George W. Gibbons, were arrested on complaint of Claude H. Wetmore, a reporter, for the larceny of $355. Wetmore claims to have paid this sum to the prisoners and others for "police protection" to run a gambling house in this city.

Big Fire in an Oil Refinery.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 1.—A fierce fire raged for eight hours at the refinery of the Standard Oil Company in South Louisville, destroying the entire plant, including several tanks filled with oil. By the explosion of the tanks several persons were injured. Their names are: John Klein, Seth Skene, John Pedigo, John McDonald, Andrew McDonald, Daniel O'Neil and John O'Neill.

Eloped With a Merchant's Daughter.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 1.—George Wells, a gilded youth of 19, has eloped with Jessie Arnold, aged 14, and gone off to New York to get married. There is a tremendous hubbub over what is termed the mesalliance, yet the Romeo is the son of a market gardener and the Juliet the daughter of a merchant. Papa Wells is in hot pursuit.

A Private Bank Suspends.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 1.—A private bank owned by John Kennedy & Son, at Tarentum, Pa., 25 miles north of this city, has closed its doors. Liabilities, $51,000; assets, personal, $125,000; real estate, $49,000. The suspension, it is thought, is temporary, and was caused by extraordinary demands. Attorney David Smith was chosen assignee.

Chief Justice Morton to Resign.

BOSTON, July 1.—Chief Justice Morton of the Massachusetts Supreme Court states that he will probably resign his office and retire from all work on account of failing health. He will tender his resignation about the middle of August. He is troubled with insomnia, and his physician advises complete rest.

Kampfer Held for Murder.

CARLISLE, Pa., July 1.—The body of Mrs. Rebecca Kampfer was exhumed and an inquest held, which resulted in a verdict of death at the hands of John Kampfer, the woman's husband. She died after taking a dose prepared by Kampfer, which he said was given to allay internal pains.

Senator Fassett Exonerated.

BOSTON, July 1.—The Senate Investigating Committee on the Elevated Railroad methods are unanimous in exonerating Senator Fassett from wrong doing and do not criticize Representative Williams, of Dedham, as had been expected.

The New York and New Jersey Bridge.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The members of the New York and New Jersey Bridge Commission held a meeting and the subscription books were opened. It was stated that all the stock, 3,000 shares at $100 a share, had been taken.

Jailbreakers Caught in Time.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 1.—A combined attempt was made by the inmates of the County Jail of this place to break out during the night. The scheme was to saw off the bars of the window leading to the courtyard. The job was well under way when one of the deputy sheriffs, suspecting that something was wrong, thwarted the plan just in time. The ringleaders will all be punished. This is the third attempt at jail breaking within a year.

An American Robbed.

LONDON, July 1.—Alexander Miller, an official of the State asylum at Denver, Col., reported to the United States Consul at Bradford the fact that he had been fleeced out of £400. He was unable, however, to tell where or in what manner he had been robbed.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

"It weighs only 33 pounds."
"How much do other safeties weigh?"
"From 46 to 51 pounds."
"That's only a difference of 13 to 18 pounds."
"ONLY! Why, it means that you must propel that many pounds more with each revolution of the wheel, and there are 400 revolutions in each mile."
"Is that the reason you consider the CATFORD cheaper at $140 than any other Safety at $135?"
"That is one of many reasons."

CHICAGO STILL HOT

Only a Temporary Cessation of the Warm Weather.

MANY PROSTRATIONS EXPECTED

The Heated Term Has Garnered a Murderous Harvest.

The Death Rate This Week Will Probably be the Largest in Chicago's History—Great Mortality Among Horses. Dead Animals Lying on All the Streets. No Relief Expected this Week.

CHICAGO, July 2.—For the past three days Chicago has been under a brazen arch whose rays have almost burned buildings and pavements, and made the atmosphere tremulous with heat. Should the death rate be sustained for the week it is probable it will be the greatest for seven days in Chicago's history.

The heated term has not ended. It is cooler now than it has been for several days, but the Signal Service predicts that it will be hotter to-morrow and still hotter Friday and Saturday. The only things that can change this forecast are local winds and thunder showers. If these prevail the suffering will be greatly mitigated; if not, the situation will become still more alarming.

The heated term has garnered a murderous harvest. Last week the deaths in Chicago, caused directly by the excessive heat over and above the normal death rate, were more than 90. The applications for burial permits yesterday reached 183. The number of deaths last week was 386; for the week previous, 297. At the rate the record is piling up this week it will reach about 800. Out of the shade the heat, radiated from the flaggings, has been almost beyond endurance.

Most remarkable is the extraordinary number of horses that are succumbing. So great is the mortality among them that the Rendering Company which has held the contract for the removal of the dead animals for years is unable to meet the emergency. Dead horses are lying on all the streets, and the Health Commission, for the first time in years, has been compelled to employ extra teams to drag them away.

THE MINERS ALL DEAD.

They Were Burned to Death at the First Explosion.

DUNBAR, Pa., July 2.—The opening into the Farm Hill mine was completed by the rescuers at an early morning hour and the air tested. It was found to contain 20 per cent. of black damp. This was the first conclusive evidence that none of the miners would be found living.

All of the rescuing party then came out and the huge fans were started to drive out the foul air from the mine to make further explorations possible, the mine inspectors fearing that another explosion would occur when the mine gas was driven up to where the fire is yet burning.

An hour or so later the fans were slowed down and twenty selected volunteers entered for the purpose of determining the fate of their fellows. Volunteers were plenty, the greatest difficulty being in keeping them outside. A few hours later the rescuing party returned and said that the miners were all dead, that the smoke was so dense in the mine ten feet from where the wall was broken into that no one could enter or survive in it.

Another exploring party, however, entered the mine and remained four hours. Three of their number had entered to within a few hundred feet of the subteranean fire and had found the dinner buckets and blouses of two of the men. The explorers suffered from the intense heat and black damp and scarcely escaped with their lives.

It was a trip to the very gates of the most realistic and practical hell that could be found on this earth. The explorers visited nine places where the men were known to have been at work. Their picks and shovels were found lying where they had been dropped. One mule was found dead and putrified. Otherwise no trace of the men could be found. The explorers then voted to abandon the work of recovery.

Superintendent Hill after this told the men the company would to-morrow pay them the wages due, and advised them to go to work wherever they could secure it. With this the greatest rescuing attempt in Western Pennsylvania was ended, and the dust or ashes of the thirty imprisoned men may rest beneath the Dunbar hill till the last day shall come.

Unveiled a Monument at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 2.—The 154th New York Volunteer Regiment unveiled a monument, a rough granite shaft, in the northeastern part of the town during the forenoon. Col. D. B. Allen of Otto, N. Y., Hon. G. S. Whipple and Col. Warner made speeches.

The Liquor Dealers' Distillery.

NEW YORK, July 2.—More than three-fourths of the $500,000 capital stock of the new distillery which the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association are to build has been subscribed and it is given out that the distillery will be in operation within a year.

A Labor Difficulty Closes a Mill.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 2.—The rod mill of the Iowa barb wire works has been shut down on account of a difficulty with the men, who want the company to place the mill under the Amalgamated Federation of Iron and Steel Workers.

KEYSTONE DEMOCRATS MEET.

Eckley Coxe Temporary Chairman of To-Day's Convention.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 2.—The Democratic State Convention was called to order at 11 o'clock this forenoon. Hon. Eckley B. Coxe was selected for temporary chairman.

On account of the large number of contests a recess was taken after the appointment of the Credentials Committee. It is believed that the fight for the nomination will really be settled by this committee.

Pattison now claims 200 votes and Wallace 195, and as there are only 367 delegates in all, somebody is miscalculating. Pattison's followers are the more confident. They scoff at the possibility of defeat, while Wallace's adherents admit that the contest will be a close one.

There is a good deal of talk about the old ticket of 1882 again, Pattison and Black.

Ex-Postmaster Larkin of Pittsburg is the Pattison choice for Secretary of Internal Affairs. Capt. A. A. Clay of Elk is the Wallace candidate.

THE GREAT REUNION.

Great Preparations at Portland to Entertain Soldiers and Sailors.

PORTLAND, Me., July 2.—The city is busy with the preparation in honor of the twenty-first reunion of the Society of the Army of the Potomac and the presence of the North Atlantic squadron. The Baltimore, the Dolphin and the Petrel are in port as the representatives of the new navy, and the Kearsage and the Essex of the old. Official courtesies have been exchanged between the Mayor and Rear Admiral Bancroft Gherardi, the one tendering the hospitalities of the city and the other the inspection of the fleet by the citizens at stated hours each day.

In the town all is bustle but orderly. Bunting and flags are displayed in great profesion. Monument square and Lincoln Park are decorated with flags from the Navy Yard at Kittery. The City Hall, the hotels and many private places of business and residences are already blooming.

General Sherman, General O. O. Howard and other distinguished officers will be here to-morrow.

A Police Sergeant Commits Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—Sergeant H. W. Thompson, of the 20th Police District, died in Hanneman Hospital shortly after 10 a. m. from the effects of a quantity of laudanum which he swallowed with suicidal intent. The sergeant was on duty in the morning and retired to his room about 5 o'clock. About an hour later he was found in a dying condition. The only cause for the sergeant's desire to end his life is said to be domestic troubles.

Mine Superintendent Phillips Released.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 2.—General Superintendent J. M. Phillips, of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company, charged with criminal negligence in connection with the Nottingham mine, where eight men lost their lives, was discharged from custody, the court holding that the evidence did not show such negligence as would constitute criminal negligence.

A Great Fight Coming.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The Puritan Athletic Club will soon have its inaugural glove contest under the direction of the new management. The trial of skill will be between Jack McAuliffe, the light-weight champion, and Andy Bowen, of New Orleans, the vanquisher of Billy Myer, the Streator cyclone. The men will contest for a $3,500 purse.

State Committee Changes.

CONCORD, N. H., July 2.—Hon. John B. Smith of Hillsboro was elected chairman of the Republican State Committee in place of Hon. J. H. Gallinger, resigned. Hon. P. C. Cheney was chosen member of the Republican National Committee, vice E. H. Rollins, deceased. The State convention will meet here September 17.

The New York Citizens' Movement.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The committee of 75 of the new citizens' movement held its first meeting last night at the Metropolitan Hotel. The following officers were elected: President, Wheeler H. Peckham; vice-president, James P. Archibald; secretary, Louis C. Whiton; treasurer, Gustav Schwab.

Shot a Bridge Bandit.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 2.—John Levsen, an ex-police officer, last night shot and probably fatally wounded George, alias "Tony" Sarvis, the famous captain of the notorious bridge bandits, and a nephew of Marshal Sarvis of this city. A reward was offered for Sarvis' arrest.

The Lottery Bill Passes the Senate.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 2.—The Senate, by a vote of 24 to 12, passed the Lottery bill as amended by the committee, increasing the amount to be paid for lottery privileges $250,000 per annum, making the annual payments $1,250,000. The bill was then sent back to the House with a message from the Senate asking concurrence in the amendment.

Garrison to Ride for Scott.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Hon. W. L. Scott has engaged Jockey Edward H. Garrison to ride for him during the remainder of the present racing season. He is to receive $10,000 salary, and can ride for outside parties in all races where there are none of Mr. Scott's horses contesting.

Clayton McMichael Sole Owner.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—Mr. Clayton McMichael has purchased the interests of all others in the North American, and the partnership heretofore existing between Walter and Clayton McMichael has been dissolved by mutual consent.

IDAHO IS A STATE

The Bill Passes the Senate Without a Division.

TO BE SIGNED ON THE FOURTH.

The Conference Committee Cannot Agree on the Legislative Appropriation Bill.

The Vote on the Federal Election Bill to be Taken This Afternoon—The Coinage of Annoying Coins to be Abolished—Bills Signed by the President—A Protest by Tailors.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The consideration of the bill for the admission of Idaho as a State was resumed in the Senate and Mr. Vance addressed the Senate in opposition to it.

He opposed it on the following grounds: The preliminary proceedings had been unauthorized by any legislation; the population of the Territory was not sufficient to entitle it to one Representative in the House; the constitution under which it proposed to come into the Union was not in conformity with the constitution of the United States in that it prescribed and disfranchised men for their religious opinion, and that the apportionment of its legislative districts was so one sided that it ought not to receive the sanction of fair or honest men in the Senate.

At the close of Mr. Vance's speech the bill was passed without division. The President, it is understood, will honor the forty-fourth sister of the Union by signing the admission bill on the Fourth.

THE MEASURE WILL FAIL.

No Agreement Can be Reached on the Legislative Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The Conference Committee appointed on the part of the Senate on the disagreement on the Legislative Appropriation bill, reported that the House refused to agree to the Senate amendments and declined further conference. The only alternative was failure of the bill, or a recession on the part of the Senate.

Mr. Dawes moved that the Senate recede, and that motion led to a long discussion on the subject of clerks and compensation.

The Senate finally refused to recede. This means that unless the House or Senate reconsiders its action, the Legislative bill will fail and a new Legislative bill will have to be prepared and passed.

Desperate Counterfeiters Arrested.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—United States officers arrested a band of desperate counterfeiters on a shanty boat near Portsmouth, Ohio. The counterfeiters had been defying the authorities along the river for weeks and kept the officers at bay with firearms. Two of the men were surprised while rowing to the boat. Those in the boat were soon captured including three women, who had shown themselves to be as desperate as the men.

Annoying Coins to Go.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—At the meeting of the Senate Finance Committee favorable reports were ordered upon the bill to abolish the coinage of three and one-dollar gold coins and the three-cent nickel coin, and on the bill authorizing the Director of the Mint to procure new designs for the fifty, twenty-five and ten-cent silver coins.

A Protest by Tailors.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—A delegation of the National Merchant Tailors' Association, including Robert Stewart of Philadelphia, is here to protest against the duty as fixed in the McKinley tariff bill on woolen or worsted cloths, knit fabrics and ready-made clothing.

Bills Signed by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The President has approved the Naval, Pensions and Post Office Appropriation bills, and the joint resolution providing temporarily for the expenditures of the Government.

Marshal at Foo Chow.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The President has appointed Spencer P. Gracie, of Massachusetts, marshal of the Consular Court of the United States at Foo Chow, China.

The Vote on the Election Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—It is almost certain that the House will pass the Election bill this afternoon. The majority is present in full force.

Twenty Convicts Pardoned.

TRENTON, N. J., July 2.—The Court of Pardons set free 20 convicts in the State prison, including H. D. Lefferts, of New Brunswick, the insurance agent, who was convicted and sent to prison for two years and six months for falsifying insurance papers.

Laborers Resist a Reduction in Wages.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 2.—The laborers in the Delaware Colliery have struck against a reduction in their wages of 18 cents per day which the miners proposed to make. They were receiving $2 per day. Four hundred men and boys are affected by the strike.

Embezzler Doyle Held Without Bail.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 2.—Edward M. Doyle, the Portland, Ore., embezzler was taken to Poughkeepsie by order of Judge Barnard, who held Doyle to appear before the Governor on Monday next. Doyle was held without bail.

The "Divine Healer" Liberated.

BOSTON, July 2.—Dr. J. A. Rose, the "divine healer" who was accused of stealing $400 while "anointing" a iron box in South Boston, has been discharged for lack of evidence.

BY THE WAY.

—Yesterday's transfers of real estate are crowded out until to-morrow.

—Everybody will take a skate Friday and Saturday evening, at The Crescent, and listen to the music of the band.

—Ex-Captain of Police Carey's three months' suspension expired on Monday, but he did not report for active duty, yesterday.

—To-morrow will end the first week of the vacation in the public schools, and the scholars are not one bit tired of it, either.

—There will be no public entertainment on the evening of the Fourth of July, except the skating and the band concert at The Crescent.

—Leaves worn in the crown of the hat are said to be a good preventive from sun stroke. The remedy is a simple one and one well worth trying.

—The regular monthly meeting of Gazelle Engine company, No. 1, will be held in their parlors this evening at eight o'clock. A full attendance requested.

—Members of the Grocers Protective Association are requested to meet in their rooms, this evening, at eight o'clock, by order of the President, George W. Rockfellow.

—Barnes gives just as much iced cream and charges no more than last year, although the price of ice advances. His crushed strawberry is now the favorite of the town.

—One young man was arrested by the police last evening, on complaint of his wife, who charged him with turning her out of doors. This morning he was fined five dollars.

—There will be no fireworks at the Netherwood, nor ball match at the La Grande avenue grounds Fourth of July evening, so everybody will be skating at The Crescent.

—A horse belonging to Borough Councilman Chas. Sebring, got out of the stable on East Second street last evening, but the animal was subsequently captured by the police.

—Borough Marshal Becker yesterday arrested four boys for bathing in Green Brook along Brook avenue. The boys were severely reprimanded by Justice Hardy, and discharged.

—The recent hot spell has greatly interfered with the work on the county roads. Scarcely a day passes but what some of the men and horses have to give up on account of the extreme heat.

—Prof. T. E. Hazell, teacher of music in the public schools, has left for Bailey's Island on the coast of Maine. He and his interesting family of children will remain at the above mentioned place during the entire Summer.

—It is reported that some unknown person entered Robert Simpson's stable on Washington avenue, Saturday night, harnessed a horse and spent the night driving around the country, returning the animal to the stable before morning.

—Those who desire to have their photographs taken will have an opportunity to do so on the Fourth. Fisher & Monfort will keep their studio open on that day from 8 A. M. until 6 P. M. Cabinet photographs are made at the rate of $3 50 per dozen.

—There have been five special deputy sheriffs appointed in Westfield to look after Mount Ararat during the Fourth, and see that her gas overflow doesn't catch fire and blow her up. They are: Isaac Seely, Benj. Woodruff, Wm. Gilby, Cy Wilcox and Charles Reese.

Almost a Runaway.

A syphon of vichy bursted in H. P. Reynolds' delivery wagon on North avenue, a little after noon, today, and the noise frightened Mr. Reynolds horse so that the animal attempted to run away. Matthew B. Walker, one of George W. Rockfellow's clerks, rushed out of the store and captured the horse just as the latter was turning into Park avenue.

Another Gift for Winfield Scott Post.

OVER 11,000.

PLAINFIELD'S GREAT GROWTH IN TEN YEARS.

The Completed Census Shows an Increased Population of 40 Per Cent.

When the people of Plainfield read in this issue of THE PRESS—and it will be recorded nowhere else—that the completed census of the city shows an increase of forty per cent., in ten years, they will be as pleased as they will be astounded.

Through the efforts of THE PRESS reporters, a compilation of the returns of the several enumerators has been secured, and the approximate total of the inhabitants of this city foots up in round numbers 11,350. Ten years ago the total was in actual figures, 8,126. The difference, about 3,224 or over, shows an unprecedented growth most flattering to Plainfield.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY.

Dr. J. T. Fritts Thrown Out and Badly Injured—His Driver, Frank Douglas, Has a Thrilling Experience, But Finally Gets the Animal Under Control.

In a runaway accident on East Second street, yesterday afternoon about four o'clock, Dr. J. T. Fritts was thrown out, dragged about fifty feet, and seriously injured about the body and legs. The Doctor and his hired man were seated in a covered cart, driving along Second street, and when in front of the Crescent League bowling alleys, the animal, a spirited bay, began to plunge and kick. The dashboard and flooring of the cart were broken off, and the Doctor was thrown under the horse's feet, striking on the hard roadbed below, one of the wheels on the cart passing directly over his body.

Dr. Fritts was assisted to a seat on the stepping stone in front of the side entrance to the City Hotel, until a carriage could be summoned to take him home. An examination of his injuries disclosed an ugly-looking flesh wound on the right knee, together with many bruises about the body and legs. Fortunately no bones were broken excepting a thumb.

Meanwhile the horse ran at breakneck speed along West Second street, with Frank Douglas, the Doctor's hired man, still in the cart, but with no control whatever over the animal. Douglas managed, however, to get hold of the reins which dropped on the shafts when the Doctor was thrown out, and by superhuman strength managed to bring the animal under control soon after passing Liberty street. Those who witnessed the runaway from the start say that they expected to see both the Doctor and his man seriously if not fatally injured.

Noisome and Noisy.

Residents on Manning avenue are annoyed by certain colored families living on Race street, whose belongings are properly a matter for investigation by the Board of Health officers.

In addition to odors, and "the pestilence that stalketh at noonday," these dusky tenants keep dogs that disturb the peace and quiet of at least ten families; but more annoying than the dogs is the ribald language and the songs of the strong-lunged occupants, that is kept up until after midnight during pleasant evenings.

This condition has become so unbearable that the heads of the disturbed families assembled and went as a delegation of the whole, to submit their grievance to his Honor, Mayor Place, and were listened to by him.

There is no class of our people who are more ambitious to acquire and hold every right that belongs to citizenship than the colored folks; but there is one lesson they must learn, and that is that with the rights they seek there are also responsibilities.

Beware of the Youthful but Wily Match Vender.

A lady residing in the vicinity of East Seventh street and Crescent avenue, was called to her door by a little match peddler the other day. She said she did not want any, and turned away after shutting the door, to attend a summons in another part of the house. When she came back to the hall she met the boy coming down the stairs.

He explained that he thought there was another family upstairs that might want some matches, and left. Shortly after the lady discovered that about twenty-five dollars she had left in a bureau drawer, was gone. The police were notified but the boy had escaped, as although Officers Grant, Lynch and others have taken every match boy within their reach to the lady, she says none of them is the guilty one.

A Sneak Thief Who is Known.

Monday a thief entered the stables of Dr. J. F. Berg, on Sycamore street, and going to the room of James Henry Frisbie, the Doctor's coachman, stole one dollar from his vest. Yesterday the same thief went to the place again and stole two dollars more of James Henry Frisbie's money from another pocket. He is known, was seen to go buy the house, and can be identified as having been in the stables yesterday. Unless he settles, his name will be published and he will be prosecuted.

—The Plainfield snake story published in the World today, is a "fake," pure and simple.

EXCLUSIVE NEWS.

Change of Post Office Location.

At last Plainfield is to have a postoffice building suitable for the accommodation of increasing mail service and the accommodation of the people without attending nuisances, offending sight and nostrils. As known by us, and told in THE PRESS four months ago, negotiations have been in progress between the Post Office Department and certain owners of desirable sites for the postoffice in anticipation of the removal of the office from its present location, in consequence of the opening of a saloon for the sale of spirituous liquors in the basement of the postoffice building, which is in direct violation of the rules of the Postoffice Department.

As in the case with a great many other matters in connection with postal affairs, it takes time to arrange matters, and Uncle Sam takes his own time to arrange them. At last, however, affairs have come to a focus regarding the location of the postoffice for the next five years. On Monday last Postmaster Pope received an official notice from the Postmaster General to notify the lessor of the building, Mrs. Elizabeth Schorb, that the lease of her building for use as a postoffice would be cancelled October 1, 1889. Said lease would have expired May 1, 1890. Subsequently negotiations were completed with Mr. Wm. R. Clarkson for his handsome three story building, No. 17 East Front street, three doors above the present location for a lease of the same for five years from October 1, 1889, for the first floor and basement, at an annual rental of $1,300, the lessor to fix up the same in a suitable manner to accommodate all mail service necessary, which includes all fixtures, boxes, furniture, etc. As the Government will thus control the basement, there need be no more fear of a liquor establishment in the building. The site is a most desirable one.

Possession of the new quarters will be given September 1, 1889, when the necessary fixtures will be placed therein, to be ready for occupancy October 1, as one of the model postoffices in the State.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Chauncey Pennington, son of Station Agent Pennington of Westfield, has been lying dangerously ill with congestion of the brain for some time, but all will be glad to learn that he is better today although not yet out of danger.

Henry Meyer, the six-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyer, died of inflammation of the bowels, last night, at their home on West Fourth street. The funeral will take place at Hope Chapel tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

Miss H. Carrie Case and sister, Mrs. W. R. Mosher, left Plainfield yesterday for a sojourn in Orange county, New York. The former intends to remain in Orange county for the Summer, until about September 1, and it is hoped by her many friends that she will return home much benefitted in health.

Emmet I. Case, a student of the Colgate Theological College, at Hamilton, N. Y., at the recent commencement exercises of the college, carried off high honors. He was awarded second prize for his highly meritorious oration. Mr. Case has a number of friends in this city and the borough, who will be pleased to learn of his success.

An "impromptu" was held at the home of the Misses Minnie and Laura Smith on West Front street, Monday evening, at which the following persons were present: Miss Ella Osborne of Pamrapo, Misses Saddie Herder of Neshanic, the Misses Force, Miss Lulu Hand, and Messrs William Force, Geo. Blazier, Alvin Carey and Chas. R. Baker of this city.

NETHERWOOD NOTES.

SOME WHO ARE THERE, AND WHAT IS DOING.

Distinguished People Who Are Attracted by Our Suburb's Charms—The Hotel Overflowing—A Grand Hop Friday—Gossip and Facts of Interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Waddell, and Joseph Waddell, daughter and son, have closed their apartments at 123rd street and Seventh avenue, New York, and rented a Summer home on LaGrande avenue, Netherwood, for the season. Mrs. Waddell's Sunday teas, served in the true English style, have been society features of New York city for the past Winter.

Hotel Netherwood was never so full on June 29 since its erection, as it was on Sunday. 200 was the total of people accomodated within its walls. Not even a place to put a cot over the Fourth of July, is now unengaged.

Captain Barff, the genial and gallant executive officer of the "City of Chester," was the guest of George Taylor at dinner at the Netherwood, Sunday. Mr. Taylor's family had crossed the ocean under the care of Capt Barff on his last trip, and the former on Sunday seized the opportunity to express his appreciation of the latter's kindness and favor in that royal, generous manner the few who are favored with his friendship know so well.

The music at the Hotel this season has never been equalled. It consists of a selected string quartette from Greenop's philharmonic society of Brooklyn. All the performers are brothers—that is, two are brothers and so are the other two—which may be one of many reasons for their perfect balance and sympathy.

Of the recent guests are W. R. Chichester, M. D., and Mrs. Chichester, of New York. The latter, who is still a bride, is remembered by a large circle of friends and admirers as Miss Mamie Horton, who has whistled so often in public before swell audiences of New York and other large cities, for sweet charity's sake. She is the only woman who ever equalled in all and excelled in some particulars, the World-renowned Alice Shaw. By the bye, these two charming artists are half sisters.

There will be a full dress hop at the Hotel Friday night, admittance to which will be by invitation and card. Proprietor Miller will make the affair the grandest of its kind ever consummated within the walls of The Netherwood. Mrs. Miller's exertions as hostess will assure the gratification of everybody, although if her recent accident should confine her to her room that evening, the complete satisfaction of all will be alloyed by her absence.

It is undeniably the fact that no one receives near the amount of general and particular attention at the Hotel, as is enjoyed at present by Mr. Wachita, recently of Bolivia, a guest of Ira Canfield, Jr. Though the statement may seem to be incited by a reporter's envy, it is the usual thing to find not only the eyes of all the ladies on Mr. Wachita, and the tongues of many singing his praises, but the arms of some of the loveliest of lovely women clasp his neck and the younger girls "darst" to kiss him. "Wachita"—which is Spanish for orphan—is, however, only an 18-months-old Alpaca kid, presented to Mr. Canfield by one of the rulers of the South American republic. It is the oldest of its kind in captivity, and an affectionate pet with the finest pair of intelligent eyes any animal ever possessed. But the men are rather jealous of the affection lavished by the women on Wachita, and as one of the entrees on today's menu is "Goulash of Antelope," maybe the orphan is no more.

THE OLD, OLD STORY!

There's a Fine Large Target in Plainfield for the Foot Killer and His Gun, if He Only Knew it.

In the issue of THE PRESS of March 12—almost four months ago—appeared the exclusive news that the post office would be removed from its present location. An extract from the article is as follows:

The United States Attorney General's opinion received by Postmaster Force recently, is to the effect that as a saloon has been opened in the building now occupied by the post office in this city, the Government will be a tenant no longer. Yesterday Inspector Parham came to Plainfield, looked into the matter and decided at once that another location for the post office must be found.

Monday the owner of the building received official notification to that effect. Thereupon the bartender of the saloon rushes around to his bosom friend, the editor of the news, wakes him up and tells him what THE PRESS told the people four months ago. Consequently under three head lines, Monday's news amid great excitement in its second story office, announces the old, old story that "the post office must be removed."

A Wheelman's Run to the Seashore.

The Boston trip of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, has been postponed, and there will be a run instead on Friday, the Fourth. Starting from the club house at 8:30 in the morning, the members and all who will join them, will go to Red Bank and Asbury Park, returning by Monday. The expense of the entire trip will be about six dollars.

Not only delicious for the palate, but an exceedingly health-giving beverage is Hires' Root Beer. It is the thirst quencher. Not intoxicating, and yet gently stimulating in its effects. Cheap enough for anybody.

A SECT WHICH RADIATES FROM HERE.

Plainfield's Seventh Day Baptists and Their Pastor.

The following picture and all, from the New York Sun of yesterday, THE PRESS with satisfaction republishes in full because it is deservingly creditable to the people and the pastor it treats of, as well as to the young High School graduate who wrote it—Walter N. Chamberlin:

ABRAM HERBERT LEWIS, D. D.

The Seventh Day Baptist Church of Christ has a membership of about 9,000 in this country and an influence over 40,000 persons. Two centres of its influence are at Alfred Centre, N. Y., where is the church seminary and university, and at Plainfield, N. J., where is a vigorous congregation, from which has radiated two other churches—one in New York city, another at Daytona, Fla. Plainfield is also the home of Dr. A. H. Lewis, one of the best known divines in the church. Dr. Lewis' congregation is getting ready to put up a new church building of stone. It will cost $35,000, and will occupy the site of the old wooden building, which has been moved, steeple and all, at the rate of a few inches a day, to a lot forty feet in the rear. The new building will be on a plan peculiar to Seventh Day churches, every room on the ground floor, and with no galleries or choir loft.

The Plainfield church has fifty-two years of life behind it. The parent church is the New Market Seventh Day church, originally known as the Piscataway church, and the oldest church of its order still in existence. One of the members a long time ago of the regular Baptist church of Piscataway was Hezekiah Bonham. He lost faith in Sunday as a Sabbath, and challenged a deacon who reproached him for working on Sunday to prove it was the real Sabbath of the Bible. The deacon and several other members wrestled with him, and the result was that they also withdrew with him to form a Seventh Day church. This was in 1705 and the New Market church organization is therefore 185 years old. When the New Market church had passed the century mark by thirty-three years it had 200 members. Fifty-six of them, living in Plainfield, three miles away, organized the Plainfield church. Their house of worship was in Central avenue. In 1867 a new church was built at the corner of Central avenue and Fifth street. This is the house now being moved. About a half of the original members are still living. Eleven are still members of the church, four of whom are representatives of the Randolph family, two each of the Titsworth, Alberti and Dunn families, and one of the Tingley family. The Randolphs, Titsworths, Dunns and Dunhams have furnished the largest numbers on the church roll, and they furnished a half of those who left the church for the war. There are now 183 members, nearly all intermarried and living a social life of their own, to a great extent. The families show no tendency to separate and scatter. The sons and daughters are sent to Alfred University. Grocers and butchers of their own faith furnish provisions, and tailors and dressmakers who are Seventh Day Baptists clothe them. Their belief in the seventh day as the true Sabbath closes to them a good many opportunities in business life, but their tradesmen have a monopoly of the Sunday trade of the town in newspapers, stationery, cigars and provisions, and as their Sabbath ends at sunset they catch the Saturday night trade also.

Two of the men in the congregation who have prospered are Charles Potter, Jr., and George H. Babcock. One is the inventor and manufacturer of a printing press and the other of a boiler. Mr. Potter's big factory in the town is sometimes run on Sunday, but never on Saturday. Two other wealthy members of the congregation are Capt. J. Frank Hubbard and Elias R. Pope. Both are conspicuous in county politics, Capt. Hubbard having just rounded his sixteenth year as a member of the Board of Freeholders and Mr. Pope is now serving another term as Postmaster of Plainfield. A former Mayor of the town was a Seventh Day Baptist and Seventh Day Baptists hold places of honor as lawyers and doctors in the town, which has about 15,000 inhabitants.

Dr. A. H. Lewis has been pastor of the church since 1880. He has written "A Critical History of Sabbath and Sunday in the Christian Church," and "A Critical History of Sunday Legislation." He edits the Outlook, the church organ, has written tracts and books in advocacy of the seventh day, and is besides a theological and historical professor at Alfred University. He is a tall, broad-shouldered man, the product of six generations of soldiers and preachers, beginning with Nathaniel Greene of Revolutionary fame. He is combative in argument, but personally a gentle and kindly man, and greatly liked in the town. Dr. Lewis believes the decline of Sunday as the Sabbath is due to the pagan origin of the day. Holidayism has always been a feature of the day, he says, and there can be no true and holy Sabbath until Saturday, the Sabbath of the Bible, is substituted for our Sunday, and the old division of the day, from sunset to sunset, adopted. They are not exclusive as a sect, joining heartily with other churches in revivals and temperance work.

MARRIED, AND HAPPY, AND ALL.

Deacon Robinson's Daughter and Mister McQuay, United and Contented.

Information has been secured by THE PRESS regarding the whereabouts and condition of the young daughter of Mansfield Robinson, and Mr. Finch's coachman, both colored, who eloped together from this city some days ago. Mr. and Mrs McQuay—for they were married as they passed through New York—are enjoying themselves at a place that it would be a breach of confidence to mention just yet. He has about $300 of his savings to live on for a while until he secures a new situation.

Why the young girl's parents should have objected to the affair, is a mystery. McQuay was one of the best of his race in the city. A man of good habits and a regular church attendant. The girl is young, of course, but romantic. The elopement had been planned for some weeks before it was published in these columns. The girl told her schoolmate a few days before she went, that her mother had whipped her and she was going to run away and get married. Mr. McQuay has no intention now of returning to Plainfield. Deacon Robinson's oldest daughter, who supposed she was the object of McQuay's heart's affections, is of course the greatest sufferer by the event.

BASE BALL.

The Hackett-Carharts and the Flushings Coming Again, This Week, Besides the Greenpoint Athletics.

There will be lots of base ball this week, and the Crescents will retrieve their lost laurels of last Saturday on the Friday and Saturday coming.

Fourth of July morning, the "Flushings," who the Crescents defeated on Decoration Day by a score of only 4 to 2, will be here again with a strengthened team. On Saturday afternoon the Hackett-Carharts, who the Crescents defeated June 14 by a score of only 2 to 1, propose to have another try and win.

The Greenpoint Athletics, one of the clubs that are already at the head of the race for the championship of Long Island, will be here Friday afternoon. These three games this week will test the Crescents to the extent of their abilities. Gregg will pitch against the Flushings and the Hacketts; and probably Martin will pitch against the Greenpoints. The Fourth of July morning game will be called at 10:30; the afternoon games at 3:45 as usual.

Notice of Warning to the Public.

Fire Marshall, T. O. Doane, has issued an official notice to the public in general, that the placing of fire crackers, rockets and torpedoes or other inflammable or explosive substances upon any sidewalk, or in front of any store or other building contiguous to any street is dangerous to life and property. All persons are therefore warned that such danger must not be incurred within the city limits.

Any person or persons who shall act in disregard of the marshall's notice will be prosecuted.

For the Benefit of the Fresh Air Fund.

A number of the young Misses of North Plainfield held a fair on the lawn adjoining J. B. Cleaver's residence on Somerset street, yesterday afternoon, and the affair was well patronized, the net proceeds being $43, which will be added to the Fresh Air Fudd.

Among those who assisted at the fair were: The Misses Cleaver, the Misses French, Berebie Thorn, Bessie Valiant, Florence Valiant, Mamie Clark, May Ryerson.

TROOPS CALLED OUT

Desperate Fight With Strikers in England.

THE POLICE WERE DRIVEN BACK

A Large Number of Rioters and Soldiers Severely Injured.

A Charge of Disloyalty Brought Against the Parnellites—Major Panitza's Reprieve Refused for Political Reasons—The Queen Confers Honors—An Irish Editor's Family Poisoned.

LONDON, July 2.—The conflict between the striking gas workers and the police at Leeds was characterized by great desperation on the part of the mob.

Though the police were upward of 200 strong, they were driven back several times by the crowd and mercilessly pelted with sticks, stones, bottles and every conceivable missile. Many of the police were injured.

The situation finally became so bad that troops were summoned from York. When the soldiers appeared they were immediately attacked by the crowd and showered with stones. The order was given to charge, and the mob fell back under the rush of the troops.

The number of injured is large, and pretty evenly divided between the soldiers, policemen and rioters. Among those severely hurt is a magistrate who was struck on the head with a stone.

When the blacklegs, whose employment by the gas company gave rise to the disorders, found that their work would be dangerous as well as laborious, they joined the strikers.

DISLOYAL PARNELLITES.

Tories and Unionists Raise a Howl Against the Irish Leaders.

LONDON, July 2.—A tremendous howl has been raised by the Tories and Unionists and by some Liberals over the omission of the loyal toasts from the after dinner programme of the banquet given to Mr. Parnell at the National Liberal Club, in honor of the Irish leader's birthday.

This omission is regarded as the more flagrant because of the fact that the day was also the anniversary of the coronation of Queen Victoria, of whom no mention was made in the toasts or speeches.

The Parnellites admit the breach of custom in neglecting the proposal of a toast to Her Majesty, but explain that the dinner was a private one and had no political character or significance whatever.

The omission was unfortunate, however, and will undoubtedly be alluded to with effect by Mr. Balfour in his frequent Parliamentary attempts to show that the Irish are hopelessly disloyal.

PANITZA'S EXECUTION.

Political Reasons Prevented Prince Ferdinand from Exercising Clemency.

SOFIA, July 2.—It has just been learned that the consent to the execution of Major Panitza was only obtained from Prince Ferdinand after his cabinet had threatened to resign.

Madame Panitza was not informed of the decision of the court, the first intimation which she received being the announcement of her husband's execution. Princess Clementine was one of those who interceded for mercy to the condemned man.

A Demand for New Foundland Fishermen

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 2.—A demand has been made by Dr. Howley, Prefect Apostolic at St. George's Bay, for the payment of $10,000 to the fishermen to reimburse them for the loss caused by the French in stopping them from fishing. This payment has been refused by the Newfoundland Government, and Dr. Howley has been referred to the Imperial authorities. The Prefect will carry his claim to London. It is said that he and Premier Whiteway have had hot words over the matter.

A Mother and Four Children Poisoned.

DUBLIN, July 2.—While visiting at Seaport, near this city, the wife and four young children of James O'Conner, of the editorial staff of "United Ireland," were fatally poisoned by eating pickled mussels. Another child and a servant who were also poisoned are slowly recovering.

Long Voyage in a Lifeboat.

LONDON, July 2.—A telegram has been received here announcing that the lifeboat Storm King, which sailed from here to Cape Town, and from the latter place to Albany, West Australia, has completed the long voyage in safety.

The Anglo-German Agreement Signed.

BERLIN, July 2.—The Anglo-German agreement was signed by General von Caprivi and Dr. Kranel on the part of Germany, and Sir Edward Malet and Sir Percy Anderson on behalf of England.

The Queen Confers Honors.

LONDON, July 2.—The Queen has conferred upon the Duke of Connaught the grand cross of the Order of the Bath and upon Chief Justice Johnson, of Quebec, the Order of Knighthood.

Fed a Tramp to the Bears.

VIENNA, July 2.—At Trentschin, in Hungary, the owners of a bear circus have been arrested charged with having murdered a tramp and fed his body to the animals.

The Enterprise Again in Commission.

BROOKLYN, July 2.—The United States ship Enterprise, which went out of commission at the Brooklyn Navy Yard shortly after the trial by court-martial of Commander McCalla was concluded, and has since been getting a thorough overhauling, has again gone into commission. Commodore George H. Converse is to have charge of her, and Lieutenant T. W. Nichols will be her executive officer.

An Aged Farmer's Suicide.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 2.—Amos Leisy, a farmer near Reamstown, this county, aged 60 years, worked in the harvest field all yesterday and went home in the evening and hanged himself. The cause of the suicide is a mystery.

Suffering from Blood Poisoning.

EXETER, N. H., July 2.—Gen. Gilman Marston, ex-United States Senator and Representative, is suffering from uræmic blood poisoning. His case is considered practically hopeless.

SAD DROWNING CASE.

Two Little Boys Perish in the Passaic River Near Paterson.

PATERSON, N. J., July 2.—John and Peter Sullivan, aged respectively 12 and 4 years, the children of the superintendent of William Pennington's estate on the Passaic River, just above the falls at Paterson, were drowned within a stone's throw of their father's home, at 10:30 a. m.

With the father's consent Johnnie took his brother and little sisters for a row, as he had frequently done before. They proceeded up stream, and when about one hundred yards from the house, which was screened by the dense foliage, little Peter, who sat in the stern, tumbled backward into the stream.

The boat was a short distance from the shore, but the water was six feet deep, and the little fellow sank at once. Johnnie dropped the oars, and sprang overboard to his brother's assistance, and when he came up the second time seized him and attempted to drag him ashore.

The task was too great, however, and after a brief but desperate struggle both sank together. Some young men on the opposite side of the stream swam across to the rescue, but arrived too late. They dove for the children and brought them ashore but life was extinct.

The father arrived just as the lads were placed upon the bank, and was overcome with grief. The mother is frantic, and sorrow pervades the entire neighborhood. County Physician Johnson granted a certificate of accidental death.

TOILERS' TROUBLES

New York's Destitute Cloakmakers to Parade in Rags.

ON THE VERGE OF STARVATION

No Money Left in Their Union and the Landlords Threaten Eviction.

The American Federation of Labor Issues a Call for an International Labor Congress—Another Big Strike Threatened in England—Sleeping Car Porters Demand More Wages.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The locked out cloakmakers are in dire straits. The first of the month saw them without means to meet their landlords' claims, and many of them have been notified that unless they pay at once they will be evicted. Where they will go when they are put out they know not. Most of the men have wives and families of small children, and it is a pitiable sight to see the woebegone faces.

But notwithstanding their extremity, they do not propose to surrender, and they never seem to consider such a step. The union they regard as a matter of necessity. If they did not feel that it was a fight for living wages and better conditions, in the future, a stampede would have occurred ere this.

The cloakmakers propose to make a grand demonstration in the shape of a parade to-morrow. This display will be the most unique in the history of Independence Day, for the cloakmakers and their wives and children will march forth in all the instructive uniform of rags.

In the evening a big mass meeting will be held. There is also a movement toward a benefit at the Madison Square Garden, which it is proposed to make of monster proportions with consequent monster returns. A number of well known professional people have already volunteered their services.

STRIKE FOR FRESH AIR.

New Haven Girls Quit Work Because the Windows Were Not Raised.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 3.—Forty of the female employes of the corset works of Mayer, Strouse & Co. are on strike because of the refusal of the employers to have the lower portion of the windows raised.

They claim that the girls spend too much time looking out of the windows. The girls say the rooms are too warm, and that with the lower part of the windows closed the air is hot and stifling.

They proceeded to Wooster square, where a mass meeting was held, and speeches were made by some of the girls, which were enthusiastically applauded.

Thirty-five of the strikers met on the green and a large number of spectators were attracted. Nearly one-half of the girls returned to work, but the others will not return until the rule is rescinded.

A LABOR CONGRESS.

NEW YORK, July 3.—A strong proclamation has been issued by President Samuel Gompers' of the American Federation of Labor, addressed to the wage workers of all countries, calling upon them to attend an international labor congress, to be held in connection with the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893.

After explaining the desirability of further cementing the relations between those in labor on both sides of the Atlantic, Mr. Gompers says:

"It is our intention to have the congress in a position to discuss the question of labor from a broad and liberal standpoint embracing as wide a scope of economic thought as the world itself."

Another Big London Strike Probable.

LONDON, July 3.—The prospects of a strike of the telegraphers are increasing. The London telegraphers' movement, which has hitherto been confined to London, is extending to the provinces, and organizers are kept busy intisting men into the unions. Operators claim they are working from 10,000 to 12,000 hours' overtime each week for which they receive no compensation. Unlike the American telegraphers, the English members of the craft have been successful in previous strikes against injustice and oppression, and with the advantage of that experience and the benefit of a good cause they are confident of victory if they are driven to extreme measures.

British Miners After Eight Hours.

LONDON, July 3.—A determined movement has been commenced by the British miners for eight hours a day. The Federation claims to have brought 150,000 union men together and to have increased wages from forty to fifty per cent. The Metropolitan Labor Association has resolved in favor of State-aided emigration as a remedy for an overcrowded labor market.

A Warning to Garment Cutters.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The Amalgamated Committee, representing the locked out cloak operatives, have issued a circular to all the trade assemblies of garment cutters throughout the country to keep away from New York. Any member disobeying this order by working for the Cloak Manufacturers' Association is threatened with expulsion.

Wages to be Advanced

LANCASTER, Pa., July 3.—Notices have been posted by the Columbia & Susquehanna Rolling mills and the Columbia Iron Company of an advance in puddlers' wages from $3.85 to $4 a ton and other employes in proportion. Nearly seven hundred men are affected.

THE FEMALE FORGER.

Mrs. Lippincott Will Have to Answer to Seventeen Indictments.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 3.—Mrs. Julia C. Lippincott's incarceration at this place is the principal topic of conversation. She is the wife of Edwin Lippincott, formerly proprietor of Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, and Medford, N. J. The arrest took place in Baltimore, and she was locked up in Camden jail on the charge of forgery preferred by Atlantic City merchants and others. The amounts range from $100 upward.

A bench warrant was issued after seventeen indictments had been found against her. About four months ago she became a fugitive from justice, since which time detectives have been in search of her. Often close on her trail, yet she managed to elude the officers until traced to Buffalo. When confronted by Detective Henry, she admitted her identity, and accompanied him to Camden without waiting for the formality of a requisition.

Mrs. Lippincott's appearance betrays the effects of her sufferings during the time she has been wandering. She has lost flesh and her face is haggard, but her nerve appears to be unshaken. Unaware of the number of indictments against her, she expressed a belief last night that she would soon be released on bail. There is, however, little chance for her in that direction.

DUNBAR'S DESTITUTION.

Twenty-One Widows and Seventy-Seven Half-Orphans in Want.

DUNBAR, Pa., July 3.—The work of smothering or putting out the fire in the Hill Farm mine has commenced. The mine cannot be flooded, and an effort is being made to smother the flame.

It is thought there is only one way in which the property will be of any use again. That is to shut up the burning portion in walls of brick. By confining it in this manner part of the vein which has never been reached will be within reach.

The coroner's inquest over the bodies of the two men brought out of the slope will begin on Monday. It will be one of the most important ever held in this district. It will be the aim of the coroner to try and test the entire work from the first.

What is most needed here now is relief for the twenty-one widows and seventy-seven half-orphans of the victims of the explosion. Money is needed badly, as there is much suffering.

An Incendiary Tramp.

BANGOR, Me., July 3.—Food being refused a tramp at the residence of Francis H. Duffy in this city, by a woman who was alone in the house, and afraid to admit him, he set fire to a pile of shavings in the stable. The blaze was extinguished, but half an hour later the hay in the stable was found to be on fire. The woman fainted and was rescued by the neighbors from the burning building. The incendiary is still at large.

The Benguela Lost.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Word has come by cable that the steamship Benguela, carrying 44 passengers and a crew of 40 men, had been abandoned at sea and the crew and passengers had been landed at Lisbon. The Benguela plied between this port and the Azores. She left home on June 20th with a very valuable cargo. Nothing was heard of her, although she usually made the trip in eight days.

Grumbling in the House.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—There is a great deal of grumbling in the House that the session should be so prolonged. The House might be ready to adjourn in a few days now where it not for the Tariff bill, but it must remain in session until the Senate has that measure completed, and the postponement of its consideration makes the outlook very discouraging.

The British Squadron.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A dispatch says the British Government is centralizing the Pacific squadron at Esquimault. When the squadron is mustered, it is reported, two and perhaps three vessels will be sent to sea, and will see that no British vessel is outraged nor the British flag insulted.

An Old Actor Dies Suddenly.

NEW YORK, July 3.—George A. Parkhurst, the actor, died suddenly here, aged 50 years. He formed one of Laura Keene's company on the night of Lincoln's assassination, and was a favorite supporter of Forrest and Booth.

Explosion of Molten Metal.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 3.—Henry Shawvel was seriously burned and several other workmen slightly injured by an explosion of molten metal at Barton's foundry. The building was damaged.

New Officers of Colby University.

WATERVILLE, Me., July 3.—The trustees of Colby University elected A. W. Small president of the college, and C. F. Leyford, of Springfield, Mass., and Rev. J. H. Higgins, of Charleston, Me., trustees.

Cooler in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 3.—The hot wave has disappeared. For the first time in many days Chicago is enjoying cool and pleasant weather. There is a sharp, cool breeze blowing from over the lake.

Bay State Legislature Prorogued.

BOSTON, July 3.—The Legislature was prorogued last night. The Governor signed the West End Elevated Railroad bill, and the Lobby Reform bill.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Federal Election Bill Passed in the House.

THE FINAL VOTE 155 TO 149.

The Silver Conference Committees Trying to Reach an Agreement.

The President Leaves To-Day for Cape May Point—Both Houses Take a Recess Until Monday—Programme of the Senate Next Week—Eight Hours for Postoffice Clerks.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—An unusual crowd witnessed the closing scenes in the House over the Federal Election bill. During the intense excitement toward the end, the galleries frequently joined in the applause that greeted telling points made by those on the floor.

The first real struggle started on Mr. Hemphill's amendment striking out that section of the bill authorizing the use of United States troops to enforce the election laws. It was rejected—yeas, 145; nays, 156.

Mr. Springer changed his vote from aye to nay in order to move a reconsideration, and Mr. Rowell moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. The motion was carried. Ayes, 153; nays, 148.

Several other amendments were offered and, after debate, were defeated. A vote on the bill was ordered.

Mr. Springer made a motion to lay the bill on the table, and by a yea and nay vote the motion was defeated—yeas 149, nays 155.

Mr. Springer demanded the reading of the engrossed bill. But the Speaker was prepared for this demand, the bill having been engrossed in advance, and a burst of applause came from the Republican side when the clerk began the reading.

Two hours were consumed in the reading of the bill.

The question then recurred on the passage of the bill. As the call was in progress the greatest interest was manifested on both sides of the House. As Mr. Coleman, of Louisiana, cast his vote with the Democrats, he was greeted with applause from that side of the House, and the applause was reinforced with cheers when Mr. Lehlbach, of New Jersey, also cast his vote against the measure. The Republicans retaliated in kind, and as the Southern Republicans—Messrs. Houk and Taylor, of Tennessee; Waddill and Mudd, of Maryland, and Wilson, of Kentucky—recorded their votes in the affirmative, cheer after cheer was given.

The bill was passed—yeas, 155; nays, 149.

THE SILVER WRANGLE.

The Conference Committees Trying to Reach an Agreement.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The conferees of the Senate and House upon the Silver bill met again to-day. Since the refusal of the House to accept the free coinage provision added to the bill by the Senate there has been a good deal of quiet canvassing, and the leaders of the extreme silver element have decided upon terms which they offer to the other faction as an ultimatum.

They demand, first, that the bill shall be amended so as to provide for the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces of silver monthly, instead of $4,500,000 worth. Second, that the certificates issued upon the standard dollars coined shall be legal tender, and be redeemable in coin at the option of the holder and not at the option of the Government, and third, that the bullion redemption feature shall be stricken out of the bill.

These three propositions they will insist upon, and consider them as liberal concessions.

The silver men say that they have been striving to accomplish only this much, and will be satisfied with it, but they will not be satisfied with anything less. They will insist that each kind of money issued by the United States shall be as good as any other kind, and that all the financial obligations of the Government shall be interchangeable at the option of the holder.

This principle must be established or they will again amend the bill. It is not exactly certain that the conference committee will agree to these propositions, but it is very probable.

The Senate's Programme.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—It is proposed now to call up the River and Harbor Appropriation bill on Monday next instead of the Tariff bill as was intended, and there will be a struggle for consideration between the two measures. As nearly every Senator is more interested in getting an appropriation of money for the rivers and harbors in his district than in the consideration of the tariff, it is probable that the former bill will be given the right of way and the Tariff bill postponed until the middle of next week.

General Appraisers Appointed.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Under the provisions of an act of Congress approved June 10, 1890, the President sent to the Senate the following nominations for General Appraisers of Merchandise: G. C. Tichenor of the District of Columbia, George H. Sharpe of New York, James A. Jewell of New York, Charles H. Hamof Illinois, Joseph B. Wilkinson, Jr., of Louisiana.

The President's Trip to Cape May Point.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The President will leave Washington this afternoon for Cape May Point, where he will spend the Fourth with Mrs. Harrison. Although no definite plans have been formulated, it is probable that he will not return to this city until next Tuesday evening, and may, perhaps, not come back until later in the week.

MAY HAVE BEEN DEACONS' DAUGHTERS.

A Picnic Party from Tottenville, Staten Island, Spend the Day in This City.

Two nervous looking and unprotected drivers, and as many stage loads of pretty girls, drove up in front of Reynolds' pharmacy, Tuesday forenoon and stopped while one of the drivers inquired the way to the City Park. Inquiry revealed the fact that the party was made up of young ladies from Tottenville and that they were simply out for a day's pleasure and recreation. The girls were in joyous spirits, and when they reached the park they alighted and at once commenced to make preparations for a day's outing.

Lunch, consisting of sandwiches, cake and peanuts was served on the "lawn," after which the girls made a tour of the city on foot, raiding the soda water fountains and iced cream saloons. Later in the day the party was driven through some of the principal streets, and before night they started for home, but whether or not the poor drivers were alive when they reached there is not known.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

H. M. Gilder and wife of Huntly, N. J., are visiting friends on LaGrande avenue.

Messrs John H. Jackson and Chas. B. VanWinkle started for Illinois on a business trip today.

Ex-Councilman Jasper G. Cadmus is confined to his rooms in Force's Hotel, with serious illness.

Edward Fulper of Newark, was last evening the guest of his brother, Wilson Fulper, of North avenue.

Miss Lou Kerwin and Miss Maggie Flanagan have gone to Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., to spend a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Faber of Rock View avenue, will spend the season at the Sherman House, New Preston, Conn.

Fred. C. Knowland returned from Connecticut last evening, where he has been on a trip of business and pleasure combined.

One of the latest publications issued by the Chautauqua-Century Press, is "A History of England" by James Richard Joy, of this city.

Henry Hansen and Carl L. Peterson today sailed for Europe, where they will spend the Summer, visiting their former home in Germany.

Geo. Apgar of Philadelphia, is visiting his brother, "Ed." at the City Hotel. This is the first time in thirteen years that Mr. Apgar has been in Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Osborn Doane—nee Miss Sarah Bagot—will celebrate the 50th and golden anniversary of their wedding, Wednesday evening the 16th inst, at their home, 45 East Fourth street.

The First Regiment, New Jersey, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, is in camp at Milwaukee, Wis., and its Quartermaster, John C. VanDyke of this city, will be there too from the 5th to the 10th inst.

Alec. Robinson, of Baltimore, Md., who has been the guest of minstrel George Thatcher, at his home on Central avenue, the past two weeks, returned to the former named city this morning. "Alec" has some wonderful fish stories to tell when he arrives home.

At a regular meeting of Plainfield Crescent League, last evening, the Rev. J. P. Taylor was elected an honorary member, and the following to active membership: Ex-Councilman B. Frank Coriell, Joseph G. Miller, John Chandler, Wm. H. Sebring, Randolph Thorn and J. H. Fosher.

The condition of Dr. J. T. Fritts who was injured in a runaway accident on Tuesday, is today about the same as yesterday. He passed a very restless night and suffered a great deal from the injuries he received. The Doctor will in all probability be confined to the house for several days to come.

Clarence Vail of West Fourth street, will spend his school vacation in Genesee county, New York State. He started for Alabama, at 8 o'clock last evening in charge of J. E. Tyson of Saugerties, (traveling salesman for a Philadelphia house), whose genial face and gentlemanly deportment are well-known to many here.

L. R. Ross of this city, representing H. P. Plante & Bro., of New York, makes his first trip to Europe July 16, in the interest of his house. He's a good furnishing man, but what kind of a sailor he is—well, wait until his return. Mr. Ross is expected home from a six weeks' trip through the South and West today. His European tour will be followed by a trip to California.

To-night at Reform Hall.

There will be a fine entertainment at Reform Hall, this evening, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, a recitation by Miss Livermore of New Market, and other interesting features. The question to be discussed is: "Which will advance the cause of temperance the most; be temperate yourself, or help, aid and assist those who are striving to live a temperate life?"

"I Don't Want Relief, But Cure."

Is the exclamation of thousands suffering from catarrh. To all such we say: Catarrh can be cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It has been done in thousands of cases; why not in yours? Your danger is in delay. Enclose a stamp to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., for pamphlet on this disease.

GREGG AND BROWN WILL PITCH.

And it is Hoped That McIndoe and Gillis Will Hit—Three Big Games Scheduled.

There will be three of the most exciting ball matches ever played in this city, to-morrow and Saturday. To-morrow morning at 10:30, the "Flushings," who were only beaten 4 to 2 by the Crescents on May 30, will be here; and in the afternoon at 3:45, the "Greenpoints" who have already beaten the "Flushings," will have a hack at Plainfield's crack team. Saturday afternoon at 3:45 the Hackett-Carharts will try again.

Hackett-Carharts: Moorehead, short stop; Kraus, catcher; Hammell, center field; Diven, first base; Barry, second base; Abel, left field; Nugent, third base; Carmichael, right field; Tierney, pitcher.

Crescents: Martin, short stop; Lufbery, second base; Wiegand, first base; Jones, catcher; Gillis, center field; McIndoe, left field; Gregg, pitcher; Lee, third base; Walker, right field.

It would be, of course, too much to put upon Gregg, to require him to pitch three games in two days against such clubs. Consequently a new pitcher, Brown, of New York, has been engaged for to-morrow afternoon's game.

While There's Life There's Hope.

A communication has been received from the Secretary of the West End base ball association of Somerville, to the Plainfield Crescent League, expressing regret that the former had no open dates until September and therefore could not arrange a series of games with the Crescent nine.

Both the Plainfield and Somerville people will regret exceedingly if such proves to be the case, as all would rather see the West Ends and Crescents pitted against one another, than any other match in the World. Harkins and Williams, Conklin, Carbonell and Bergen would receive an ovation here, as they are justly admired for their good playing and professional decency.

The Match Peddler Arrested.

The wily match peddler and thief who robbed a lady on Second place of $25, a few days ago, as told exclusively in yesterday's PRESS, has been arrested and sent to the Reform School. The precocious youth was found sitting in the Erie depot at Jersey City, yesterday morning, counting over a large roll of money, and the police placed him under arrest. The lady referred to heard of the arrest, went to Jersey City, yesterday, and identified the young scamp.

It was subsequently ascertained that the fellow had stolen one hundred in a similar manner from a house in Paterson.

Shooting Woodcock.

The "open season" for shooting woodcock in this State commenced on July 1 and closes July 31. There was a large number of gunners along the Passaic River, who met with good success as a rule, in securing numbers of the long-billed gentry. Over thirty persons were shooting over the tract at the intersection of Dead River with the Passaic River, the fusilade opening at daybreak and continuing up to seven o'clock and even later in the day. A careful estimate of the number of woodcock killed by this party, is over 100.

An Upset on South Second Street.

Two ladies and a gentleman from Dunellen, whose names could not be ascertained, were thrown from a buggy on South Second street, Sunday afternoon, but fortunately none of them were seriously injured.

The party were seated in a buggy, and in turning into South Second street from Clinton avenue, one of the wheels collapsed, throwing the occupants out.

Stealing Fowls by the Wholesale.

Chicken thieving has been carried on of late in the Fourth Ward to an alarming extent. Within the past few weeks one man's flock of chickens has been reduced from 45 to 17. Raids are made periodically by a gang of hoodlums, who after stealing the chickens go off into the woods and broil them.

C. Y. M. L. U.

A meeting of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Union was held in the parochial school hall on Tuesday evening, with President Thomas Carty in the chair. Arrangements were completed for a grand bazaar which the society is to hold in the school hall, next week, and for the drawing which is to take place at that time.

A Raid on a Banana Wagon.

Three boys ranging in age from eight to eleven years raided a banana wagon in the rear of French's mill, last evening, and carried off about four dollars worth of fruit. Captain Grant located the boys this morning, and as they promised to pay for the bananas before Monday, they were allowed their liberty.

Not only delicious for the palate, but an exceedingly health-giving beverage is Hires' Root Beer. It is the thirst quencher. Not intoxicating, and yet gently stimulating in its effects. Cheap enough for anybody.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

THE FULL BOARD PRESENT.

Librarian Adams Granted a Vacation, and Miss Petrie Fills Her Place.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room was held last evening. The meeting was called to order promptly at eight o'clock by the President, Mayor Male. There were also present A. C. Baldwin, Jos. W. Yates, H. P. Talmadge, M. W. Tyler, Geo. H. Babcock, J. B. Dumont, and Wm. M. Stillman.

The treasurer read the annual report of the directors to the Common Council, or the year ending May 31, 1890, and on motion the same was adopted and ordered engrossed in the minutes.

The librarian's report for June was read and ordered on file, as given in ful below. It was resolved that the thanks of the board be extended to Andrew D. Mellick, Jr., for his gift to the library of the book entitled: "The Officers and Men of New Jersey, in the Revolutionary War." The request of John W. Stimson for the use of the library, was referred to the Library Committee. The Librarian, Miss Adams, was granted a leave of absence for three weeks in August, during which time Miss Petrie will take her place.

ANOTHER MESSAGE OVER THE SEA.

President Murray Hopes Ground is Broken for the Y. M. C. A. Building.

One more of the birds who started for Europe with President Murray has returned home and brought a message. The bird is the property of J. Hervey Doane, and the son of the celebrated ocean flyer, "Ancient Mariner." Its name is "Wm. D. Murray," No. x7985. It reached its loft at noon of Tuesday. The message it carried read:

S. S. AURANIA, June 29, 6 A. M.

We have had a delightful sail so far. It was very warm at first but cooled off at six o'clock in the evening. No one sick. The Yale boys have been very quiet so far. We have been thinking of you and wondering if ground has yet been broken for the Y. M. C. A. building. We like our trip. Plenty of children. I shall start to amuse them to-morrow.

W. D. MURRAY.

"If You Don't See It in THE PRESS, It Isn't So."

At a special meeting of the board of education held on Friday night, E. S. Hunt, a graduate of Amherst college, was appointed assistant principal of the public schools.—Central Times.

As has become the people's by-word, "If you don't see it in THE PRESS it isn't so." The above item is therefore a misstatement.

It was told in these columns exclusively, last week, that the name of Edward S. Hunt, an Amherst senior, was being considered by the Board of Education to succeed E. H. Lewis as teacher of the Senior Class of the High School. It was also stated that Mr. Hunt had been sent for to meet the Board on Friday evening.

He came, made a good impression, and was given two weeks to consider the Board's proposition. If he accepts, THE PRESS will tell of it. Until then the appointment of "assistant principal" is still open.

Hard for Them to Tell the Truth.

It seems hard for the Republican penny-a-line reporters of this city to the New York dailies to tell the truth now-a-days. Here is a sample from one of them in an item to this morning's Tribune:

Plainfield citizens are greatly pleased at the policy which has been exhibited by the postal authorities in cancelling the lease of the schorb building, under which a liquor shop was maintained during the Democratic administration.

The first part of the item is correct—the people are pleased, but the latter part is untrue. The Democratic administration did not maintain the liquor shop. Be a more truthful Jeems after this, please.

A North Plainfield Girl Acquitted.

In the Court of Quarter Sessions, held at Somerville on Friday last, a girl named Parkinson of North Plainfield, was put on trial on a charge of grand larceny, made by Hannah Vandervoort, a colored woman. She was acquitted.

Cricket Match Against Brooklyn's Club.

The St. George's cricket club of this city, will play the Brooklyn cricket club a match to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, on the new grounds of the former at Girard and Willow avenues.

A Sunny View of It.

The sun thro' rosy curtain glanced
And by the dewy glow entranced,
Exclaimed, as dazzling hues revealed
The jewels night had ill-concealed—
"Those gems remind me more and more
Of precious goods in Collier's store."

Until the blood is cleansed of impurities, it is useless to attempt the cure of any disease. Rheumatism, which is traceable to an acid in the blood, has been cured, in numerous cases, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, external treatment being of no avail.

A DENIAL FROM THE PRESIDENT.

Westfield Will Have a Donkey Race Open to Her Own Citizens and Neighbors, Besides Other Sports With the Exception of Two-Legged Ones.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your paper of June 30 appears an article in reference to the coming Fourth of July celebration in Westfield. Your reporter is evidently unacquainted with the character and habits of our citizens. Or, perhaps, long residence in Plainfield has given him the impression that where there is horse racing there must necessarily be betting, book-making, etc. There will be nothing of the kind done by our own people, though I am not prepared to say what might "happen" should the sporting fraternity of Plainfield visit us on that occasion. Our Johnny is actively engaged in organizing an efficient police force and says he will "scoop 'em in" if they attempt to indulge in any unlawful practices in our town.

There are to be other amusements as well. There's the donkey race, (open to all along the line of the C. R. R.,) mustang race, obstacle race, tug-of-war, foot races, etc., to be followed by an oration by a distinguished orator, after which we will liberate a real live American eagle, which has been trained to emit the orthodox scream as it soars heavenward. The display of fireworks in the evening will be the grandest ever seen in this vicinity, and numbering 172 pieces in all. The fire department will erect a grand stand for the accommodation of all who desire seats.

We cordially invite you to come and spend the day and evening with us, and learn how a real live town celebrates the "Glorious Fourth." It's all "free as air," (except the grand stand). When we want money with which to get up a celebration or to build monuments to our patriot dead, it is only necessary to let our people know what is required and the cash will be forthcoming. Yes, come down, and we will show you how the thing is done. PRESIDENT

Westfield, N. J.

92 COAL CARS WRECKED.

Fall of a Railroad Pier at Elizabeth, but No Lives Lost.

A small-sized panic occurred among the men at work on the docks of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company at Elizabeth, yesterday. Nearly 100 men were engaged loading coal at 11 o'clock, when pier No. 2 fell down with a loud crash. Ninety-two cars, which had been filled with coal, were carried down with it and badly wrecked.

Although men were working on all sections of the pier, fortunately no one was injured. There were, however, a number of miraculous escapes.

Transfers of Real Estate.

The following changes in real estate were made yesterday, and the deeds for the same were recorded in the County Clerk's office at Elizabeth:

Elizabeth Mary Whelan and Patrick J., her husband, of Newark, to Henry Mc Cready, of New York, 3 tracts of land in Fanwood and Westfield townships, viz: one track on Jerusalem road, 10 59-100 acres; second tract on Jerusalem road, John street and Evarts avenue, 180,000 square feet; third tract on Fanwood avenue, 900x200 feet, block H, bounded by Fanwood avenue, Harrison avenue, John and Smith streets, $1 and other valuable considerations.

Plainfield Land Improvement Co., to William M. Stillman, of Plainfield; land on West Fourth street, se s, 50 feet from Peacock place, 50x150, $400.

Jacob VanDeventer and wife of Plainfield, to Caroline R. Brunson of North Plainfield, one-fourth acre on Second street, Plainfield, $9,000.

Edward H. Sebring, of Plainfield, to Charles P. Sebring, of Plainfield, tract land 25x127 feet on Second street, Plainfield, and tract 38x82 feet, nws of North avenue, $1.

Charles P. Sebring and wife to Samuel Q. Lawson of New York, same tract on North avenue, 109 feet from Peace street, and another tract, 55x38 feet, $22,000.

Somerville Wants Fire Horses, Too.

The city of Plainfield, says a Somerville paper, has purchased five horses to work on the streets and for use of the fire department. The horses will do all of the carting needed for street purposes. This is just what we have advised the Somerville Commissioners to do several times. It would be a saving of money in the long run.

Fourth of July at Bound Brook.

The people of Bound Brook are arranging for a grand public demonstration on the Fourth, on the occasion of the second annual celebration of the opening of Washington's camp grounds at that place. The programme will include music, prayer and an address by J. Newton Voorhees, Esq., of Flemington.

He Wanted the Earth.

An apparently crazy ink peddler was about town this morning, telling people that he owned every store on the South side of West Front street. The man wanted to borrow a half dozen umbrellas to shelter him from the rain.

No matter what may be the ills you bear from indigestion, a dose of Ayer's Cathartic Pills will ease you without question. Just try them once and be assured; they have much worse dyspeptics cured. You'll find them nice and amply worth the price.

Looking Out for the Soldiers.

Governor Abbett has sent out a letter to all Grand Army Posts in the State calling attention to the fact that Congress has passed a bill granting pensions to ex-soldiers and sailors who are incapacitated for the performance of manual labor and providing for pensions to dependent relations. The letter sets forth the main features of the bill and announces that the Governor, by the authority set forth in the joint resolution in reference to pension claims of New Jersey volunteers, passed by the last Legislature, will aid all worthy soldiers, sailors or their dependent relations in needy circumstances in the matter of urging the allowance of the pension provided in the act passed by Congress. Blanks will be furnished to applicants without cost.

Doesn't Like that Kind of Game.

The young man who was on Tuesday night presented with a neat package containing what he supposed to be a pair of quail, and which he asked a certain hotel proprietor to put on the ice until he was ready to go home, was much chagrined upon opening the package, to find a full grown crow. The crow was shot during the day by a party of local sportsmen.

Assist the Firemen.

Owners of property in this city should assist the firemen in guarding against fires on the Fourth. A fire once started would in all probability prove most disastrous. It is therefore highly essential that the utmost precaution is taken to guard against fires.

—The Oriental Social Club will give a hop in Amphion Hall, this evening.

—The July meeting of the City Council will take place on Monday evening next.

—Fine turnouts for to-morrow or any day, can be had at Stelle's livery, 26½ West Front street, back of Pecks.

—Those enterprising and successful shoe merchants, the Rogers Bros., will close their store all day to-morrow.

—All can take a skate or enjoy the band concert at The Crescent, to-morrow evening, as there will be no other entertainment in town.

—A stage load of the lady members of the Crescent League spent yesterday picnicing at Chimney Rock. The party arrived home early in the evening.

—There will be a regular adjourned meeting of Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, held in their parlors, on Wednesday evening of next week, business of importance to be transacted.

—There will be no fireworks at The Netherwood, to-morrow evening. The guests will have a full dress ball and supper, to which a select few of their friends will be admitted upon card and invitation.

—The horse belonging to Borough Councilman Chas. Sebring, which got out of the stable on East Second street, Tuesday evening, was captured by J. E. Yose and workman and not by the police.

—The young man named Beekman, who has been missing from his home on Grant avenue, since Saturday, with a horse and cart belonging to his father, has been heard from. He is stopping with his grandfather near Spottswood, N. J.

—At a meeting of the Grocers' Protective Association, held last evening, with President George W. Rockfellow in the chair, it was decided to hold the annual grocers' picnic to Boynton Beach on Labor Day—the first Monday in September.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Ray Gillman, the 10-year-old son of Charles Gillman, of Oxford, N. Y., was drowned last evening while bathing.

Four war vessels will accompany Emperor William on his trip from Norway to Riga.

There is very great rejoicing at Boise City, Idaho, over the passage of the bill admitting Idaho to Statehood.

The Massachusetts Assembly by a vote of 85 to 107 refused to reconsider the engrossment of the West End Elevated Road bill.

One hundred and fifty-one infants under one year of age died in Montreal last week, of which six succumbed to cholera infantum.

The trial of ex-State Treasurer Archer, charged with the embezzlement of the funds of Maryland, has been set down for Tuesday next.

Jack Wortman, the horse thief, who murdered his jailer at Beatrice, Neb., June 28, and then broke jail has been re-captured at Wichita, Kans.

Colonel Hardman makes formal announcement of his withdrawal from the Georgia Governorship race. This leaves the field clear to Colonel Nothen, who will, from present indications, have everything his own way.

The Peabody Institute at Danvers, Mass., was burned to the ground yesterday. The fire was caused by painters who were burning the old paint from the building. The building was the gift of George Peabody and was insured.

Robert L. Wallace and Ignatz B. Lowitz, of New York city, who plead guilty to the larceny of $50,000 belonging to John H. Wallace of "Wallace's Monthly," the uncle of the former, have been sentenced to State Prison for eight years and eleven months.

Haverhill, Mass., celebrated the 250th anniversary of its settlement with the firing of salutes, ringing of bells, parades, etc. There were open air concerts in the early forenoon, and Governor Brackett and many invited guests were received by the Mayor at the City Hall.

Weather Indications.

A LIBERAL VICTORY

Barrow-in-Furness Elects the Gladstone Candidate.

SIGNAL DEFEAT FOR MR. CAINE.

Soldiers Called Out Last Night to Suppress the Leeds' Rioters.

The Murderer Eyraud Confesses—An American Charged With the Theft of the Duke of Edinburgh's Diamonds—A Consul Murdered by Arnauts—Bismarck Would Not Sign the Treaty.

LONDON, July 3.—The election at Barrow-in-Furness to fill the seat made vacant by the resignation of Mr. W. S. Caine, Unionist, who sought re-election on an anti-compensation platform, took place with the following result:

Mr. Duncan, Gladstone Liberal, 1,994; Mr. Wainwright, Conservative, 1,872; Mr. Caine, Unionist, 1,280.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of W. S. Caine, a Unionist, who wished to test the feeling of his constituency regarding the licensing clauses of the Local Taxation bill relating to the compensations of publicans, and who resigned just before the clauses referred to were dropped by the Government.

In 1886 Mr. Caine was elected for Barrow-in-Furness by a vote of 3,212, against 1,882 for Mr. Ainsworth, the Home Rule or Gladstone Liberal candidate.

Anti-Slavery Conference.

BRUSSELS, July 3.—All the powers represented at the Anti-Slavery Conference, which has been in session here for some time, with the exception of Holland, to whom a delay of six months has been granted, have signed the General Act passed by the Conference, and the regulations relative to import duties on goods received in the Congo basin.

Bismarck Would Not Sign the Treaty.

BERLIN, July 3.—At the banquet of the Colonial Congress at Cologne, Herr Wolf, who was formerly the commercial adviser of Major Wissmann, said that Prince Bismarck had declared that he never would have signed such a treaty as the one entered into by England and Germany in regard to Africa.

The Newfoundland Question.

LONDON, July 3.—With reference to the Newfoundland fisheries the Daily News says: "Lord Salisbury has to determine not whether, but only how the existing treaties may be abrogated. They are already doomed, and their speedy extinction would be the truest mercy to all concerned."

Dr. Peters' Expedition.

ZANZIBAR, July 3.—Dr. Peters is expected to arrive at the coast on July 10. After hard fighting in Ugogo he subdued the hostiles and hoisted the German flag at Mewanda. He was completely successful in Uganda, and returned to the capital, where he was joined by a European missionary.

An American Arrested for Robbing.

LONDON, July 3.—An American named Stephen Smith has been arrested here for the theft of jewels of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, which were abstracted from their apartments at Edinburgh during their absence at the opening of the Electrical Exhibition.

Groaned for the Queen.

LONDON, July 3.—The staff of the Central Telegraph Office of London, numbering 400 persons, refused to cheer for the Queen, on the invitation of the officials in honor of the postal jubilee. Instead of cheering they groaned for the Queen.

Murdered by Arnauts.

BELGRADE, July 3.—It is learned that M. Marinkovies, the Consul of Servia at Pristina, was murdered by Arnauts, who also killed the consul's secretary. The killing was done in the most brutal manner, both bodies being mutilated.

Riotous Strikers.

LONDON, July 3.—The strikers and their sympathizers made another riotous demonstration last night, smashing windows and firing revolvers. The police and military charged upon the mob and dispersed them.

Eyraud Has Confessed.

PARIS, July 3.—Michael Eyraud has confessed to the murder of Gouffe, the huissier.

MURDERED BY A MANIAC.

GRAVENHURST, Ont., July 3.—William Brown, an insane person, strayed from Log Lake Monday morning, and was not heard from until last evening, when he turned up at Charles Robinson's farm, five miles from this town. He had stripped himself of every stitch of clothing, entered Mr. Robinson's house and invited him to come out in the rain, which was falling heavily, and wash himself.

Robinson refused and an altercation ensued, during which Brown seized an old gun, with the stock of which he beat Robinson to death. He was about digging a grave in the garden in which to bury his victim when help arrived. Brown fled, still naked, and hid himself in the long grass, where he was afterward discovered, and lodged in jail.

His Injuries Prove Fatal.

PASSAIC, N. J., July 3.—Joseph Palzoosky died at St. Joseph's Hospital this morning from the injuries he received at the hands of Paul and Mike Somski in a street brawl of the night of June 22. They quarrelled over Somski's sister, and the Somski brothers struck Palzoosky with a blackjack. The Somskis are under arrest.

Public Bar Decision.

BOSTON, July 3.—In the case of the Commonwealth vs. Charles W. Sanborn, tried in the Superior Court, which is to determine the question what constitutes a public bar, the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty, and Mr. Sanborn was acquitted.

Chief Engineer Page Dead.

PATTISON NOMINATED.

The Ex-Governor Carries Off the Prize on the First Ballot.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 3.—The ticket nominated by the Democratic State Convention was no surprise to those who have watched the current of events for the past few days.

Ex-Governor Pattison was nominated for Governor on the first ballot; Chauncey F. Black took second place also on the first ballot, and William H. Barclay, of Pittsburg, was nominated for Secretary of Internal Affairs.

Ex-Postmaster Harrity, of Philadelphia, was chosen permanent chairman of the convention. When the nominations had been made a committee was appointed to bring Mr. Pattison before the convention. He expressed his thanks, arraigned the Republican party for insincerity, and stated that with the assistance of a united Democracy he hoped for victory.

The convention then listened to brief remarks made by Eckley B. Coxe while waiting for Senator Wallace and other defeated candidates to appear. Fifteen minutes later the committee reported that Senator Wallace, Mr. Hensel and Mr. Wright said they were preparing to catch a train, and expressed their regrets at not being able to appear before the convention. Three cheers were given for Governor Pattison, and the convention adjourned.

The Platform.

The platform favors a Constitutional Convention for the purpose of removing the marked ballot clause in the Constitution so as to secure the freedom of the voter; tariff reform is urged in order that manufacturers may be freed from the unnecessary taxes on raw materials, and cause the laborer to be relieved from useless taxation; local tax reform is favored in order to equalize unjust discrimination; the clause in the Constitution ordering the investment of the State surplus in State or U. S. bonds must be observed and executed; the administration of Grover Cleveland is pointed to with pride; the keeping of both gold and silver coin in circulation is favored; the right of apprenticeship to a trade should be enjoyed equally by every race or nationality; gerrymandering is denounced; the Republican party and Senator Quay is arraigned, and Speaker Reed's policy is also attacked; the rigid enforcement of the Civil Service law is demanded; the McKinley Tariff bill is denounced; passage of bills for the benefit of laborers is recommended.

Young Kelliher Not Held for Murder.

BOSTON, July 3.—J. P. Kelliher, the 19-year-old youth charged with causing the death of Charles Sampson on April 30, by squirting liquid from a syphon on him and causing him to fall down a flight of stairs, was discharged. The judge held that the act of the defendant, whether he squirted the liquid or not, was altogether too remote to hold him responsible for Sampson's death.

Organizing Against Foreign Competition.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 3.—For the purpose of protecting themselves against foreign competition the Eard Clothing Manufacturers, representing North Andover, Lawrence, and other points in New England and Philadelphia, have formed a business combination.

Death of Prof. William Elliott, Jr.

BALTIMORE, July 3.—Prof. William Elliott, Jr., president of the Baltimore City College, is dead at his home here, aged 69 years. Four weeks ago he was stricken with paralysis. Prof. Elliott was born in this city in 1821.

Porters Want Higher Wages.

CHICAGO, July 3.—Over eight hundred sleeping car and dining car porters running into this city threaten to strike soon unless they get a raise to $40 per month. They now get $35. The tipping system, they say, is on the decline, and they are compelled to ask for an increase in wages on this account.

Postal Employes' Working Hours.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Representative Ketcham having received the necessary information from the Postoffice Department, reported favorably from the Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads the bill limiting the hours of labor to eight hours for clerks in the first and second-class postoffices.

A Recess Until Monday.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The House and Senate propose to take a recess from today until Monday next, and may decide to take a second recess next week, so as to give the members an opportunity to visit their homes.

Ex-Secretary Whitney Returns.

NEW YORK, July 3.—Ex-Secretary Whitney and Mrs. Whitney have returned from their European trip. They will go to their Newport cottage tomorrow. Mr. Whitney says the rumor that he is to become a leader of Tammany Hall is baseless.

Freight Handlers Compromise.

ST. LOUIS, July 3.—The freight handlers' strike is at an end, a compromise having been effected. The men demanded $1.50 per day. The roads offered $1.40. These figures were accepted and the men returned to work.

The Race is Always to the Swift
IF HE RIDES A

"Why?"
"Because, it is so light that every ounce of pressure on the pedals tells."
"How light is it?"
"It weighs only 33 pounds."
"How much do other safeties weigh?"
"From 46 to 51 pounds."
"That's only a difference of 13 to 18 pounds."
"ONLY! Why, it means that you must propel that many pounds more with each revolution of the wheel, and there are 400 revolutions in each mile."
"Is that the reason you consider the CATFORD cheaper at $140 than any other Safety at $135?"
"That is one of many reasons."
"Have you a Ladies' Safety?"
"Yes; and for SWEET, ATTRACTIVE GRACE, there is nothing like our SPECIAL LADIES' PREMIER, especially when the lady is riding it!"

ECHOES OF THE DAY

Premature Explosions Caused a Number of Accidents.

FIREMEN BUSY IN NEW YORK.

Sons of the American Revolution Have a Reception in Washington.

Sunday School Children from Three States Present at Woodstock—Chinamen Caused a Commotion at Trenton—A General Demonstration in the Mohawk Valley—Notes from Various Places.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Business was suspended here and free rein was given to patriotism. Fireworks were used without fear of police interference, and there was, of course, an abundance of noise. two serious accidents occurred. May Agnes Van Alstine, a pretty five-year-old girl, was burned to death, her clothing catching fire from a lighted match. Her parents supposed she was up stairs playing with her dolls. Charles Leighter, a 15-year-old boy, living on Capitol Hill, had both eyes blown out by a premature explosion of gunpowder.

The event of the day was the reception and celebration of the Sons of the American Revolution. Senator John Sherman presided. Prof. Goode, of the Smithsonian Institution; Representatives Hemphill, of South Carolina, Butterworth, of Ohio, Wheeler, of Alabama, and Grosvenor, of Ohio, and Gen. Breckinridge and the Inspector General of the army were the speakers.

EXERCISES AT WOODSTOCK.

Prominent Men and Sunday School Children Take Part in the Celebration.

PUTNAM, Conn., July 5.—The annual celebration of the day at Mr. Henry C. Bowen's country seat, at Woodstock, was well attended. It was the twentieth anniversary of Mr. Bowen's establishment of this method of observing the Fourth. A feature of the exercises, not introduced in previous years, was the gathering together of large numbers of Sunday School children from this place and numerous other towns in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The programme was accordingly modified to include entertainment and patriotic instruction for both young and old. There was an address of welcome by Hon. Chas. A. Russell. Senator Hawley spoke to "The Day We Celebrate," and Wm. Hays Ward, D.D. LL. D., read a poem entitled "The South Fork Fishing Club." Rev. Henry L. Wayland, D.D., spoke on the theme, "Duties in 1776 and 1890." "What the Sunday School Stands for in Our Land," was the subject of an address by Rev. Geo. M. Boynton, D.D. Fred. Emerson Brooks read a poem, "The Ghost of an Old Continental," and there was music, vocal and instrumental.

AT CAPE MAY POINT.

The President Will Not Return to Washington Until Friday.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 5.—President Harrison will return to Washington on Friday next, and about a week later the entire family will go to Cresson Springs.

The President spent the morning at the cottage, Private Secretary Halford was with him, and they transacted some business of a private nature. Afterwards the President, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee and the children took a drive about the island.

A Procession Several Miles Long.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., July 5.—The largest celebration held in the Mohawk Valley for many years occurred in Canajoharie. Fifteen thousand people took possession of the town, and there was a procession several miles in length, with sports and pastimes of various kinds. Last night a brilliant display of fireworks on the Mohawk flats illuminated the valley for many miles. Several serious accidents occured from falling grand stands and piazzas, the principal injury being sustained by George O. Blowers, a prominent citizen, who is injured internally.

Chinamen Astonish Trenton.

TRENTON, N. J., July 5.—The day was celebrated here with much enthusiasm. An unusual feature was the letting off of ten thousand firecrackers at one time by two Chinamen named Hop Lee and Sam Sing opposite the Masonic Temple. The explosion caused quite a sensation and a panic among the women and children. The crackers were exploded in the middle of the street, and made a din which lasted nearly an hour, and which attracted a thousand or more people.

Both Hands Blown Off.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 5.—Thomas Ditton, a harness maker, had both hands blown off and was otherwise injured last night by a premature discharge of a cannon. He and three comrades were firing a salute in honor of Corporal Tanner. The man at the vent was careless, and the gun being hot, ignited the powder. Ditton was in the act of ramming the charge home. It is believed the man will die. One hand was blown 300 feet.

Mr. Cleveland at Wareham.

WAREHAM, Mass., July 5.—Ex-President Cleveland and his wife were the guests of Gerard C. Tobey, at Wareham, in which place a public celebration of the Fourth was held in honor of the distinguished visitors. A clam-bake was served at Ware's Grove, and speeches were delivered by H. P. Tobey and Rev. A. R. Boyle. Mr. Cleveland could not be coaxed into oratory, but remained a spectator of the fun and a helper at the disposal of the bake.

FOUR PERSONS DROWNED.

The Occupants of a Flatboat Thrown Into the River.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 5.—Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Eliza Thompson, aged 2 years, and Baby Thompson, an infant; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, their little daughter Priscilla, and Robert Smith, aged 15 years, were all out rowing in a small flatboat on the Youghiogheny River, near McKeesport, last evening. The flat upset from their weight, throwing all the occupants into the river.

Thompson swam to shore with his wife and baby. He then returned to save his 2-year-old daughter Elisa, but in this last attempt both were drowned.

Richard Smith saved his wife, but was drowned with his daughter Priscilla while trying to reach shore. Robert Smith, the 15-year-old boy, swam to shore. The four bodies were recovered.

LECONEY'S REWARD.

He Now Offers $1,000 for the Arrest of the Murderer.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 5.—Chalkley Leconey will increase the reward for the discovery of information that will lead to the conviction of the person or persons who murdered his niece on Sept. 9, 1889, to $1,000. On March 6, 1890, he advertised a reward of $500.

Since the reward of March 6 Leconey has received financial assistance from many people, and as a result he has decided to utilize it by increasing the reward. His action is said to be a surprise to his friends. He is delared to be chafing under the fact that nothing has come from the reward and believes that the increase may be productive of better results.

UP IN A BALLOON.

Ten Thousand People Witness a Marriage on the Lowell Fair Grounds.

LOWELL, Mass., July 5.—Charles G. Stowell and Miss Lottie E. Anderson were married up in a balloon, 10,000 people at the Fair Grounds witnessing the event. Rev. W. W. Downs, of Boston, performed the ceremony.

The balloon, which was in charge of Prof. J. K. Allen, sailed away to the north after rising.

The balloon landed safely in West Newburg at 6:30 p. m.

Sixty-Eight Bookmakers Arrested.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Sixty-eight bookmakers were arrested at Monmouth Park on warrants issued in Jersey City on complaint of John A. Skokill, who is supposed to be one of Bookmaker Delacy's henchmen. The bookmakers were prepared, however, they having secured the presence of Justice Van Dorn, who placed them under $100 bail as fast as they were brought before him. Business was but slightly interrupted. The racing association refuse to give Delacy, who does business in New York only, the results, and Delacy in turn is trying to prevent bookmaking at the track unless he be allowed facilities that he needs.

Objected to Ex-President Hayes.

NEW YORK, July 5.—At the annual meeting of the New York State Society of the Cincinnati held at Delmonico's Hamilton Fish was re-elected president. Gen. John Cochrane was elected vice-president in place of Alexander Hamilton, deceased. General Cochrane moved that ex-President Hayes be made an honorary member by suspension of the rules. There was some opposition to the motion, and it was decided, inasmuch as Mr. Hayes is an honorary member of the Pennsylvania society, to withdraw the motion.

Jackson Will Not Take Slavin's Place.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Peter Jackson has received a telegram from the Pelican Club offering him a $6,000 purse and $1,000 expenses to take Slavin's place to fight Joe McAuliffe. Jackson declines the offer and says he is satisfied to await the bidding of the California Athletic Club. The directors of the club have decided to make a test case on July 9. The police will probably raid them. A big defence fund has been raised and an interesting legal war will probably follow.

Vanderbilt's to Erect a People's Palace.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Cornelius Vanderbilt and his mother are about to build a People's Palace in 42d street, near 3d avenue. It will be modeled upon the institution bearing that name in London, and will cost $250,000. It will contain departments for technical and industrial education, mission schools, food and shelter, gymnastics, libraries, etc. The endowment will probably be added to by the Vanderbilts and their friends as time goes on.

To Stop Ocean Racing.

NEW YORK, July 5.—A prominent official of the White Star Steamship Company makes the statement that the engineers on the fast steamers Teutonic and Majestic have received orders to turn the wheels of their steamers three revolutions less per minute than they hve been doing, in order that all suspicion of ocean racing may be removed from their ships.

Many People Injured in New York.

NEW YORK, July 5—The usual large number of Fourth of July accidents and small fires occurred yesterday and last night. The firemen and ambulance surgeons had a busy day. Many people suffered quite serious injuries from premature explosions, bullet wounds, etc.

Stabbed and Killed His Wife.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Hester Lotty, a middle-aged tailoress, was stabbed and killed by her husband, Martin Lotty, a drunken and worthless little fellow whom she had supported from her earnings.

SOULES' SAFE TRIP

The Daring Swimmer Goes Through Niagara Rapids.

IN THE WATER FIVE MINUTES.

He Comes Ashore Just Short of the Famous Whirlpool.

Dashed Against a Large Rock and Badly Bruised—He Saved His Life by Not Going the Full Distance—He Says He is Willing to Make the Trip Again. Fighting With Breakers.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 5.—Soules, the swimmer, at 3:30 o'clock dipped his feet and arms in the water and waving a good-bye to the people on the bridge, slid off into the rapids.

At the point where Soules received the signal to go the water is very swift, but forms a series of eddies, and instead of going out towards the centre has a tendency to bring objects toward the shore. It could be seen that Soules was making strenuous efforts to get into the middle of the river without making much headway and was still going down.

As he passed under the railway suspension bridge he was treading water with his body well out. Just below the bridge he struck some large breakers and was out of sight for an instant. As he came in sight he was within a few feet of a large rock, against which he was dashed, badly bruising and cutting his left knee and hurting his foot. But he passed over all right and could be seen swimming a good stroke.

His effort to keep away from the rocks had used up a good deal of strength and finding that he could not get out into the river he swam to shore and was helped out on the rocks, having been in the water about five minutes.

He expressed a willingness to start out again, but it was evident that he had had all he wanted for one day at least, and it required but little persuasion to induce him to give it up.

Although his trip was short it was a dangerous one, Soules being the second swimmer to successfully swim that part of the rapids. Webb went through with only swimming tights and lost his life. Kendall, the most powerful of the three, went through with a life preserver, but was taken out exhausted.

From Soules' condition when taken out the chances are had he gone the full distance he would have been taken out of the whirlpool a corpse.

STOLE FOR HER LOVER.

The Police After the Man Who Received Money from the Female Forger.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Miss Nettie Clark, the alleged female forger, who came to this city from Providence with over $3,000 which it is claimed she obtained by forging the name of James L. Tourtellotta, and who was arrested by Inspector Byrnes, is in the Jefferson Market Prison awaiting the arrival of requisition papers from the Governor of Rhode Island.

The note which she is alleged to have forged was for $5,000. It was indorsed by James Budding, who, with the alleged maker, is a friend of the girl's father, Hollis H. Clark, a prominent resident of Providence. Miss Clark's mother visited her yesterday, but with this exception she has seen no one since her arrest.

It is understood that the young woman has been infatuated with some one in this city, to whom she had sent money before. Providence officers, with the aid of the police, it is said, have located this person, who is not a medical student, as was stated in a paper here.

Inspector Byrnes said that all of the money had been recovered, with the exception of about $50. It was also learned that the statement had come from Providence that before Miss Clark left that city she had telegraphed $1,000 to her friend here, but that the telegram had been intercepted.

Sister Gertrude Among the Lepers.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Sister Rose Gertrude, who has devoted herself to work among the lepers of the Sandwich Islands, writes to her Brooklyn friends that, although not on the leper island itself, she is experiencing to the full the horrors which she foresaw. She is at the reception hospital at Kilihi. Two persons had already died in her arms of the dreadful disease. In company with the Board of Physicians she has visited Molokai, the leper island, where victims are sent to die. The arrangements there for the care of the lepers is much better than at the reception hospital.

Shot His Wife and Killed Himself.

NEW YORK, July 5.—John Lutz, 40 years old, of 22 Clinton street, a Hungarian, had a quarrel with his wife Mary, aged 36 years, at their residence in regard to their 8-days-old daughter Emily. Lutz drew a revolver and shot his wife three times in the left side and once in the left elbow, inflicting probably fatal wounds. He then turned the weapon on himself and put two bullets in his left breast, killing himself instantly.

"There Is Only One Sullivan."

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—Jack Dempsey, who is in this city with his combination, giving sparring, wrestling and athletic exhibitions, was asked a direct question in regard to the oft-repeated assertion that he was willing to meet John L. Sullivan, notwithstanding the difference in their weights. Dempsey laughed and said: "The big fellow could pick me up, turn me over on his knee and spank me. There is only one Sullivan."

BY THE WAY.

—The North Plainfield Council met last night and adjourned to Wednesday evening next.

—There were no arrests either in this city or in North Plainfield during Thursday evening.

—For the first time in fourteen years the North Plainfield fire department was yesterday without horses.

—Van Emburgh & White call special attention to the many bargains they are offering for the month of July.

—J. W. A. Bauersachs of North Plainfield has been appointed as a substitute letter carrier by Postmaster Pope.

—Hail stones larger than peas fell during yesterday's shower, doing considerable damage to the crops in this locality.

—The Fourth was celebrated in a glorious manner at Bound Brook, yesterday, many persons from this city taking part in the celebration.

—The firemen had a comparatively easy day yesterday. Not an alarm of fire was sounded during the 36 hours the firemen remained on duty.

—An overgrown boy, who ought to have known better, threw a lighted firecracker under a horse on North avenue, yesterday, nearly causing a runaway.

—A bolt of lightning run in on the shafting at the Pond Machine Tool Works on Thursday afternoon, and visibly shocked three of the employees of the works.

—The beautiful portrait of Gen. Winfield Scott, which was recently presented to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city, is on exhibition at Stelle's drug store for a few days.

—John Brick, arrested by Special Officer Hope on Thursday for stealing rides on coal trains, was given a hearing before Judge Codington the same night, adjudged guilty and fined two dollars.

—During the heavy thunder shower yesterday afternoon, a bolt of lightning passed directly through Elias Mosher's residence on East Fourth street, but fortunately no one was injured.

—The third annual Summer Night's Festival of the Oriential Social Club in Amphion Hall, on Thursday evening, was a grand success. The programme consisted of twenty-seven numbers.

—Five cars not entirely filled was the extent of the Pond excursion to Coney Island this morning. The heavy showers and generally threatening weather, probably frightened away hundreds.

—The New York World is now furnished from here by one of the news representatives, which accounts for the snake story and other inaccurate articles which have appeared in The World lately.

—Master Dreier makes the public announcement that his nine will play any ball club in the World, whose members are not over 14 years of age. He says his battery is S. Firstbrook and S. Van Liew.

—The Brooklyn Cricket club defeated the St. George Cricketers of this city, yesterday, by a score of 108 to 43. The Plainfielders have a great bowler in Hendry. The full score is crowded out today.

—The attention of the Board of Health is called to the stench arising from a lot of clam shells which have been dumped in the driveway leading to the rear of Alert Hose company's house, on Madison avenue.

—The ladies of the W. C. T. U. are making arrangements to hold a bazaar on November 25, 26 and 27, and would like each member and all friends of the Union to remember the same during the weeks intervening.

—The Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue church will leave Plainfield at 8 A. M., and Asbury Park at 5:30 P. M., on their excursion a week from next Wednesday. All who go will have seven hours and a half at the seashore. No change of cars.

—Bernard Brady of Liberty street, had an attack of apoplexy on Thursday afternoon, and Dr. Simpson, the attending physician, found it necessary to bleed him in order to save the man's life. Yesterday Mr. Brady's condition was reported as improved.

—A delegation from this city yesterday went to Somerville to witness the ball game between the West Ends and Trentons, the former team winning an easy victory. In the sixth inning, Harkins of the West Ends, struck out three in the one, two, three order.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. H. B. Milliken of Philadelphia, is spending a few days with his parents in this city.

Isaac Harris of Philadelphia, is spending a few days with relatives on West Second street.

John Henry, formerly of this city, but now of New York, spent the Fourth with friends in this city.

Ex-Councilman W. H. Voorhees and family of Brooklyn, are visiting relatives in North Plainfield.

John B. Hunt, traveling freight agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad company, was in the city yesterday.

James N. Ryno, a former resident of Plainfield, but now of Jersey City, spent the "4th" among friends here.

F. O. Smith and wife of West Front street, started for New Haven, Conn., today, where they will spend the coming week.

A. E. Addis of Massachusetts, spent the Fourth with his uncle, Wm. Addis, of Second street. He has just been graduated from Andover College, and leaves today for Europe on the "Umbria," for a pleasure trip.

Councilman S. G. Smith was the winner of the handsome silver trophy offered by Ellis Campbell for the best shooting at inanimate targets at his club grounds on Park avenue, yesterday. See-me-more's score was 26 straight.

At his home 96 West Front street on Thursday, occurred the death of John George Lackner, in the 76th year of his age, his death resulting from old age. The funeral will take place from the house on Sunday at 1:30 o'clock P. M., and from St. Mary's church at two o'clock.

The Netherwood's Successful Day and Night.

The Fourth was celebrated at the Netherwood yesterday in a glorious and gratifying manner to the hotel full of guests. A wealth of day fire works were burned in the morning to the delight of the little folk; a concert by Diller's full brass band—a detachment of Gilmore's—entertained the older ones in the afternoon; while the night was a scene of gaiety for the belles and swells, never equaled in the history of the house.

Messrs H. D. Brewster, W. E. McCready and F. F. Robins were the committee of reception that brought about the perfect consummation of all the evening's plans, and carried the ball through until its close at two o'clock this morning, without a break in its entire faultlessness and finish. There were twelve sets on the floor at a time, composed of the guests and their chosen friends only—cards of admission being required for the occasion. The display of gowns and jewels was grand. Mr. Miller added to the social entertainment he accorded his people, a supper that was all that could be desired in quality, quantity and service.

Installation of Officers.

At the regular meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., held in their hall, corner of Front street and Park avenue, on Thursday evening at eight o'clock, after the regular routine business was transacted the installation of the officers which appeared in THE PRESS last week, took place by District Deputy Clareden of Elizabeth. Speeches for the good and welfare of the order were made by brothers from Elizabeth, Rahway, Roselle and the home Council.

A Revolutionary Relic.

The "One Horn Cannon," which the members of No. 2 Engine Company, have held for some years past, was shot off on Washington avenue, near the bridge, at midnight, on Thursday. Later the old relic of the revolutionary war was drawn through the streets, and at intervals the cannon was discharged.

It was stated during the evening that an organized party was coming up from Westfield to capture the old cannon, but the visitors failed to materialize

Struck by Lightning.

During the heavy thunder storm which passed over the city on Thursday afternoon, a bolt of lightning struck a house owned by Jacob Grieb, situated at No 211 West Third street, tearing open the attic shutters and destroying a portion of the roof and weather-boarding. The bolt passed through one of the bed rooms on the Second floor, setting fire to the bedding, but the flames were quickly extinguished.

The First of the Season.

On next Friday the Sunday school of the First Baptist church will go with their friends on the first excursion of the season to the sea shore. The usual arrangements for the comfort of all have been made. THE PRESS' advertising columns give details.

A Report by Way of the Chimney.

The concussion from the report of No. 2's one-horn cannon, blew out the cover of a stove-pipe hole in one of the rooms of Laing's Hotel, Friday morning. The occupants of the room heard something drop on the floor in the dark, and thought the ceiling was falling.

"If 'twere done, when 'tis done, it were well 'twere done quickly!" is what a person thinks when he is contemplating taking a dose of old-fashioned pills. Dr Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated granules, scarcely larger than mustard seed. As a remedy for all derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels, they are unequaled.

THE POLICEMAN & HIS "$25,000 BUILDING."

But Then Carey Only Paid $500 For It, and Agrees to Give It Back if He Can't Pay More.

We take advantage of a day after a holiday, to explain the true inwardness of the following which appeared in ex-Policeman Carey's organ, the news, June 25:

WE ALL CONGRATULATE HIM.

Ex-Chief Carey yesterday purchased the Dunlap building, corner West Front and Grove streets, of Mr. Abram Dunlap.

The building is 60 feet front, by 60 feet deep, and four stories high, with cellar, is built of pressed brick, and is estimated to be worth $25,000.

The total selling price of the building was $14,500, which considering the fact that it has been tenantless for years and possibly will be for years to come, unless Mr. Carey himself starts a junk shop therein, is a big price.

But then Carey only paid $500 cash, and he and his wife gave a mortgage for the balance, $14,000. They furthermore agree that if Carey at any time within two years from the date of the mortgage, shall allow the interest on the mortgage to remain due and unpaid for sixty days or more after the same falls due, or if he shall fail within two years and sixty days after the date of the mortgage to make payment of two thousand dollars on account of the principal, then Tunis J. Carey and wife will hand back the building to Mr. Dunlap free and clear from encumbrances, upon said Dunlap surrendering the bond and mortgage and repaying anything that may have been paid on account of the principal.

OBITUARY.

VOLNEY GREEN.

Volney Green, an old resident of Brooklyn, died Thursday at No. 19 Decatur street, in that city, from an attack of apoplexy. He leaves a daughter and one son, Fred S. Green, of East Fifth street, this city. Mr. Green was a sincere believer in the future of South Plainfield, and owned a large amount of property there at the time of his death. He was an uncle of Councilman S. G. Smith.

He was born in 1819 at Hartwick, N.Y., He began a business career as a grocer at Utica, and was afterward in the same business in Syracuse, where he was an Alderman, and was the chairman of the committee that had charge of building the street bridges in that city. In 1853 he removed to New York, and since 1859 he made his home in Brooklyn. He continued in the wholesale grocery business.

In war times he was an active Republican leader, and was chairman of the Kings County Republican General Committee for two terms. He was a prominent Odd Fellow, and was said to be the youngest man ever made Grand Master of the State. Last week Mr. Green went to Barre, Mass., to visit his wife's grave on the anniversary of her death. On his return he had an attack which proved fatal. The funeral will take place on Sunday, and the burial will be at Barre.

The Camera Club Moving.

The House Committee announces to the members of the Plainfield Camera Club, that their rooms at No. 17 East Front street—the new post office building—have been fitted up with a dark room in complete order, sky-light, burnisher, outside shelves for printing and will soon have a camera, backgrounds and all accessories for taking portraits. Printing and mounting can also be done by a competent person should any member wish to employ him.

The rooms are being furnished tastefully, and are open every Wednesday evening for the reception of members and their friends.

His Fourth of July Fun Spoiled.

Frank Wyckoff a former driver for F. D. Randolph, was painfully injured by the premature discharge of a cannon on Arlington avenue, about midnight on Thursday. He was about to touch off the cannon when a spark from his lighted cigarette accomplished the work for him, the concussion tearing open the flesh on the right cheek and forehead.

The injured man was taked to the Park House where Dr. Allis dressed the wounds.

Plainfield Wins the Bicycle Race.

Among the athletic sports at Westfield, yesterday, under the management of a committee consisting of Cornelius Patton, was a two-mile bicycle race which was made exciting by the mud, a few tumbles and a dead heat for second place. The time was good considering the road. Stanton Smith of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, won on an Eagle, while James Murray and Lute Waring, on Safeties, came in second neck and neck.

Where Were the Police!

Complaint reaches THE PRESS that between two and five o'clock of yesterday morning, a number of young men of respectable families were gathered about the vicinity of the City National bank, indulging in language and conduct most outrageous. They yelled, cursed and made night generally hideous without any apparent interference on the part of the police.

Not only delicious for the palate, but an exceedingly health-giving beverage is Hires' Root Beer. It is the thirst quencher. Not intoxicating, and yet gently stimulating in its effects. Cheap enough for anybody.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

ALL DAY WITHOUT AN ERROR.

The Crescent League ball team played two errorless games yesterday, and won them both. Not only did no one of the Crescents make a mistake, but only one of the visitors (Suiter, in the ninth inning of the first game) reached second base on a hit. Gregg had 12 chances, Martin 8 and Lee 4, all were beautifully fielded. Gregg struck out eight men in the morning, and struck down four in the afternoon. The latter pitcher was an experiment used to give Gregg a rest for today's game. He was very effective up to the eighth inning. Gregg pitched his finest game of the season in the morning, and the Flushings never got a hit outside of the third inning. His fielding was great, too, and in the sixth he assisted them all out.

The afternoon game was the more interesting. The Greenpoints came here with a reputation of having beaten the Hacketts, Acmes, Flushings and other strong teams. They would have gone away, however, without a run, had not a ball knocked into right field by Sublich, rolled up one of the fence braces and over the top when two men were on bases. The runners and batter all walked home and tied the score. But McIndoe saved the game. He had already made a home run, so when he came to the bat in the ninth inning with Jones on first, 1,000 people shouted, "Kill it Mac!" He did, and Jones came home. The game was thus won with no one out in the ninth.

The scores were:

A Defeat for Newark.

The Mystics of Newark came to Plainfield Friday for the purpose of defeating the White Caps. But never was a club so sadly left. The score at the end of the ninth inning was 12 to 6.

The game was well contested throughout, though the White Caps outplayed the visitors at every point. The latter were unable to do anything with Burt's deceiving curves—he striking out ten men. In the sixth inning Egan was hit by a foul tip on the leg below the knee, which disabled him. Carver caught the rest of the game. Below is the score by innings:

Changes in Realty.

On Thursday the following changes were made in real estate in this city and vicinity, deeds for which were recorded with the Clerk of the County:

Sarah A. B. Green, widow, of Plainfield, to Josephine A. Huff, of Plainfield, land on Southeast side of Park avenue, Plainfield, 69x200 feet, $800.

Kizzie C. Dunham and husband, of Plainfield, to Ellen Miller, widow, of Plainfield, land on Fifth street, Plainfield, 40x89 feet, $780.

William P. Lynch, of New York, to James T. F. Randolph, of Brooklyn, land in Westfield township, near Jerusalem road, 200x150 feet, $4,000.

Henry De Zarala and wife, of Brooklyn, to Job Male, of Plainfield, land on Southeast side of Fifth street, 65 feet Northeast from Franklin place, 50x100 feet, $5,000.

Injured by a Train of Powder.

Willie McDonald, a fourteen-year-old boy from New York, who came to this city on Thursday to spend the Fourth with some relatives on South Second street, met with a serious accident on Plainfield avenue during the afternoon of that day. The boy was playing with another lad named John Lawlor, and the two made a train of powder. Lawlor applied the match while young McDonald was yet leaning over the powder, and in an instant there was an explosion, the flames shooting up, burning the boy's face, hands and breast in a horrible manner.

The unfortunate youth was carried to the home of his relatives and Dr. Endicott was summoned to dress the wounds.

The Siege of Vera Cruz.

Visitors to Manhattan Beach this early in the season say that the great military and naval spectacle descriptive of "The Siege of Vera Cruz," which Pain offers this year is the greatest of all the exhibitions they ever made at Manhattan Beach. Not only is the immense stage across the lake utilized for the movement of troops, but the platform in front of the audience is also taken advantage of. The lake, too, is used for the boats belonging to the American fleet which took part in the bombardment. All branches of the service, cavalry, artillery and infantry, are introduced into this mid-Summer spectacle at Manhattan. The display of fireworks at the close is greater than ever.

Nearly Drowned at Boynton Beach.

A party of young people from this city spent yesterday picnicing at Boynton Beach, and during the day they all went out for a row on the bay. When the boat reached a point where the water was about 16 feet deep, it is alleged that the young men in charge deliberately upset the boat throwing the occupants out into the water.

None of the girls who were in the party could swim, and some of them narrowly escaped drowning.

In Memory of the Dead.

There having been no preparation made to protect the Boroughites from the special danger of fire on the Fourth, a number of the citizens over the brook seemed to believe that there was no life left in the North Plainfield fire committee. Therefore they secretly made their way into Warren Engine company's house, and respectfully draped the steamer in morning.

Dislocated His Shoulder Blade.

Charles Harris, a resident of North Plainfield, was thrown from a wagon at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, about eight o'clock last evening, and striking on the roadbed, dislocated his right shoulder blade. The injured man was taken to Dr. Jenkins' office where his injury was attended to, and later he was driven home in a carriage.

A New Building on Park Avenue.

Monday, Doane's jewelry store will be removed across the way, and the low two-story buildings that have stood for so many years at Nos. 9 and 11 Park avenue, will be torn down to make room for a handsome brick double store with offices and apartments above, that City Clerk Coward intends erecting on the spot.

Only Out a Few Hours.

Charles Williams was released from the County Jail this morning after serving out a sixty day's sentence for disorderly conduct. He was immediately arrested again on a charge of larceny, waived an examination before Justice Nash, and was again committed to await the action of the Grand Jury.

One Arrest in North Plainfield.

Patrick Cahill of this city was arrested by Special Marshal Becker on Grove street, last evening, for disorderly conduct. He was fined $15 and costs. This morning he was re-arrested on a similar charge, and his hearing will take place before Justice Hardy at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Whose Homer is This?

A carrier pigeon, No. 14427, stopped at the farm house of Mrs. Mariah Veghte, Pleasant Plains, N. J., about two weeks ago. The bird is a dun and appears to be a young one. It has become very tame and the family are already much attached to it.

—There was a fine display of fireworks at the City Hotel last evening.

—Quitd a number enjoyed a skate at The Crescent, last evening. To-night it will be open again with full band of music.

Local Base Ball.

The employees of Messrs Woolston & Buckle played a match game of ball with Messrs Marsh & Ayer's men on the Crescent League grounds this morning, which resulted in a defeat of the former team by a score of 18 to 9. The game was very interesting throughout.

—Last night's shower cooled the atmosphere to a considerable extent.

—William Cunningham was arrested by Officer Laine yesterday for disorderly conduct. This morning he was fined five dollars.

—The West Ends of Somerville defeated a team from Trenton, yesterday, but it was not the team that played ten innings with the Crescents, last Saturday. Their pitcher was a substitute, and Harkins disabled him during the game by knocking the ball at him.

The American Riflemen Give a Banquet in Berlin.

SPEECH BY MINISTER PHELPS.

The Life of the Germans and Americans Contrasted.

Americans in London Display the Usual Enthusiasm—A Grand Banquet at the American Legation—The Celebrations Throughout the United Kingdom—The President's Flag Presented.

BERLIN, July 5.—The American riflemen gave a brilliant banquet at the Kaiserof last night. Mr. Weber presided. Among the guests were United States Minister Phelps and wife, Walter Damrosch and wife, ex-Comptroller John Jay Knox, the Rev. Dr. Stuckenburg, pastor of the American Church, and wife, the leading American residents, and a number of noted German marksmen.

Mr. Phelps, speaking to the toast to President Harrison, said that America's great danger arose from her immense material prosperity. President Harrison ruled the richest and strongest nation on the globe. From his lofty station he saw more clearly than any one else the full sweep of this incredible prosperity. He was neither dazzled nor shaken. He kept his poise rugged and firm as Washington, shunning the tempting paths of popularity, keeping the Puritan simplicity of our fathers' days, and having no aspiration, except to show that man was greater than his surroundings, that character was greater than success.

Referring to estimates that $150,000, was spent by Americans yearly while travelling in Europe, he said that although nothing the Custom House can show was a return reward, yet there was a certain reward in the ample knowledge and experience gained which these Americans turn to use. "Any one of them," he said, "can learn enough in Germany alone to pay his part of these millions."

Referring to the American home life as the sweetest and purest on earth, Mr. Phelps said he thought, however, that the travellers present would find that the Germans made home life fuller, taking their families into their pleasures and amusements, and many taking them into their business. Americans insisted on amusing themselves expensively, but Germans, if they could not hear Patti or Strauss, were contented with hearing an open air concert on the Wilhelmplatz for "funf pfennigs." Travellers looking about them learn of economies in pleasure and cheerfulness with small means. They also learn of the love of art and nature, from which a German beggar got nearly as much pleasure as a German prince.

THE PRESIDENT'S FLAG.

PARIS, July 5.—The American Art Students' Association received the flag which was sent to the association by President Harrison. Mr. Reid, the United States Minister, made the presentation. Mr. Anderson, president of the association, delivered an oration, and Mr. Reid and Gen. Foster replied.

There were 650 guests present. Rain prevented the ceremony from being held in the gardens, so it was transferred to the association's rooms. The rooms were too small and were much overcrowded. Mr. Anderson expressed the students' sense of Mr. Reid's kindness in presenting with his own hands a flag which recalled to them their country, and he charged Mr. Reid to transmit the student's thanks to the generous donor of the flag. Luncheon was served, and afterward a concert was held.

The Usual Enthusiasm in London.

LONDON, July 5.—The anniversary of American independence was celebrated by Americans in London with the usual enthusiasm. Mr. W. H. White, First Secretary of the United States Legation, entertained a number of American guests at dinner, where the customary patriotic speeches and toasts were indulged in, and in many other ways the prominent Americans residing or sojourning here especially observed the day.

Celebrated Generally.

LONDON, July 5.—In any part or in all parts of the United Kingdom where two or more Americans were to be found the day was celebrated in such a manner as seemed most fitting. It is even safe to assume that where one American was to be found at least one bottle was emptied as a mark of respect to "the day we celebrate."

Will Test the Law.

LONDON, July 5.—In order to test the law regulating or prohibiting public meetings in the parks, thousands of East Enders will march in several processions to Hyde Park to-morrow, where preparations have been made to hold a mass meeting. It is probable that the police will interfere with the paraders, though no special order to that end has been promulgated, and in that event the prohibition will be made the subject of parliamentary discussion.

Caine is Now a Liberal.

LONDON, July 5.—Mr. W. S. Caine has written a letter to Mr. Gladstone saying that he has returned to the Gladstone party and is prepared to accept home rule in principle, while still reserving freedom with regard to details.

The Great Peace Congress.

LONDON, July 5.—Elaborate preparations are making for the opening of the Peace Congress, which will take place here on July 14. The deliberations of the body will be presided over by David Dudley Field of New York.

Miss Ehret's Baron.

BERLIN, July 5.—Anna, daughter of George Ehret, the New York brewer, now in Berlin, is engaged to Baron Zedlitz, an officer in the artillery.

Brutal Treatment in a Reform School.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 5.—Charley McCarthy, a lad of 15 years, is lying at the point of death in the Rhode Island Hospital at this place. Medical Examiner John A. O'Keefe, who has attended him, believes that his condition is due to brutal treatment received at the State Reform School in Sockanosset.

FINED FOR KISSING.

An Englishman and His Sweetheart Before a Montreal Judge.

MONTREAL, July 5.—There is a great deal of indignation among the English-speaking citizens of this city over the outrage that has been perpetrated by a French judge upon a wealthy Englishman and his affianced bride.

The lady, who is the daughter of an aristocratic English family, came here to meet Mr. Gordon, her intended husband, and visited friends in a fashionable quarter, while Mr. Gordon put up at a leading hotel. Of course the lovers have been constantly together, as for two years Mr. Gordon has been in South America.

On Thursday evening a party was formed to walk to the Mountain Park. On the stroll through the grounds the lovers became separated from the rest and sat down on a park bench. A lover-like kiss had just been exchanged when two men appeared and arrested them for disorderly conduct in the park. They were bailed out later in the night.

The next morning the lady was too ill to leave her bed, and Mr. Gordon was brought before Judge Demontigny. He admitted the kiss, but the judge would listen to no explanation and fined him $15 and the lady $10. Not satisfied with this the judge made slighting remarks upon the character of the lady, and Mr. Gordon was only prevented from assaulting him by active interference of the police.

LETTER CARRIERS MEET.

Delegates from the Large Cities Preparing Plans for Eight Hours.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Forty delegates to the first annual conference of the National Association of Letter Carriers met at the Wendell Assembly Rooms at noon. The delegates present represented New York City, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Providence, Newark, Albany, San Francisco and Chicago.

Thomas W. Nolan, of Newark, was elected permanent chairman and John Walworth, of Brooklyn, permanent secretary.

Mr. Goodwin, of Providence, member of the executive committee of the National Letter Carriers' Association, stated to the conference that its object was three-fold. First, to ultimately obtain for the letter carriers a salary of $1,200 per annum; second, to secure legislation that after twenty years of service all carriers should be pensioned, and third, that a rigorous observance of the Eight-Hour law should be maintained.

A resolution that all first class post-offices in the United States should be represented in the national organization was adopted.

It was decided to petition Congress to adjust the salaries of carriers as follows: In the first class offices for the first year, $600; second year, $800; third year, $1,000, and each succeeding year, $1,200. In second class offices, from $600 to $1,050.

It was announced that half of the $10,000 needed to build a monument to S. S. Cox, the "letter carriers' best friend," had been collected, and a resolution was adopted calling for immediate action of the carriers in all large cities to raise the remainder of the fund.

The meeting of the National Association will be held in Boston on August 12th.

EDWARD LOVE,

COR. NORTH AVENUE AND PEACE STREET. 1-6-tf

Blomburg, Wash., knee hurt and bruised; Nictor Montgomery, of Chicago, scalp wound, taken to hospital; Mrs. Nordstrom, en route from Finland to Seattle to join her husband, badly cut in several places and tendon severed and wrist cut; John Ritchie, baggage master, cut in head; Albert Lee, express messengar, badly bruised; Mrs. C. R. Mann, Milwaukee, arm bruised and shoulder sprained; Addison Angur, Paloose City, Wash., face cut; G. A. Mann, St. Louis, temple bruised; Mrs. C. R. Griffith, Miles City, Mont., badly bruised; Ben Sporsman, porter of Vice-President Purdy's car, spine injured and head hurt seriously; Warren P. Furdy, vice-president of the Rock Island Railroad, and family, accompanied by Col. R. S. Thompson and wife, were in Mr. Purdy's private car, but none were seriously injured.

The train consisted of three baggage cars and nine coaches, also Superintendent McCabe's special car, containing a party of Chicago & Northwestern officials accompanying Mr. McCabe. The passengers in the sleepers succeeded in dressing and saving their valuables, although it was difficult in the dark.

A wrecking train immediately went to work, and after several hours trains were able to run.

During the prevalence of the storm the temperature was 92 degrees.

The storm extended over Northern Minnesota, and was slightly felt at Detroit, Minn., where it demolished the plate glass front of the Record office and overturned a few small buildings and one house was struck by lightning and burned. No one was hurt in Detroit.

A DISASTROUS SMOKE.

CARLISLE, Pa., July 8.—David Stauffer, living near Hagerstown, was frightfully burned last evening in a singular manner, and will probably die. Stauffer while crossing a field of new mown hay lighted a cigarette. He held the match in his fingers until it burned them and he was obliged to let it drop on some dry hay.

The fire spread rapidly and Stauffer fought the fire until he was exhausted and became unconscious, remaining in that condition for several hours. He was terribly burned about the head and body, as was also his mother, who with neighbors ran to his assistance.

About ten acres of hay were destroyed, but by putting a couple of horse rakes in the field and clearing the path of the fire of the dry hay, it was gotten under control.

Saloons Ordered Closed.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 8.—The license of every saloon here expired twenty days ago, and pending the decision of the License Board upon their application for new permits, their proprietors were allowed to keep their places open. An order is now issued for every unlicensed place to close its doors at once, and it was obeyed under pressure of instant arrest and prosecution. Scores of saloons are now closed.

Vetoed the Lottery Bill.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 8.—Governor Nichols has returned the Lottery bill to the House with his veto. In it he points out the excellent condition of the State and its public institutions, and urges the Legislature not to flaunt Louisiana as a pauper before the eyes of the world.

Boston has a strong bid for the conclave, on the strength of her close race for it against Milwaukee, at the last meeting. Gen. Carnihan and all the Indiana brigade will pull the wires for Indianapolis, and the Hoosier city stands a fighting chance against the rest.

GOLD EXCITEMENT.

A Wonderful Discovery Reported from Cross Mountain in Colorado.

TIN CUP, Col., July 8.—The most wonderful discovery of gold ever reported comes from six miles from here on Cross Mountain. There is a ten-foot vein, the lower six feet of iron manganese and the upper four being bearing-quarts of free gold.

The lowest assay from this rock is $440 per ton, and there are specimens which return $20,000 in gold to the ton. The value of the mine is estimated at $187,000,000.

The excitement is intense and thousands of miners are rushing into the camp.

Paralyzed After Taking an Oath.

READING, Pa., July 8.—Detective William Y. Lyon was acquitted two weeks ago of a charge of extorting $10 from a woman to settle her case in court. At the trial he refused to kiss the Bible, merely affirming in this language: "I hope that God will paralyze me if I took that $10 gold piece." When Lyon appeared on the streets yesterday he was unable to talk even in a whisper. It is thought that his vocal organs are partially paralyzed.

Death of an Important Witness.

WATERBURY, Conn., July 8.—John Russell, a saloon keeper, died early in the morning. It was in his saloon a few weeks ago that Thomas Flannigan shot and killed Michael McDermott, and Russell was to be the principal witness for the State at the approaching trials. His death will considerably weaken the cause of the State.

Rolling Mill Hands on Strike.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 8.—The puddlers' helpers in the Susquehanna Rolling Mill at Columbia went on strike in the morning to enforce their demand for scale gatherers. The puddling mill is shut down in consequence of the strike, and sixty hands are thrown out of work.

Croker to Return to Europe.

NEW YORK, July 8.—Mr. Richard Croker, leader of Tammany Hall, has engaged a berth on the steamship Columbia, of the Hamburg-American line, which sails on July 17. Mr. Croker will be accompanied by Mrs. Croker and other members of his family.

Chicago Sweltering.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Chicago is in for another hot spell, judging from to-day's temperature. The Signal Service officers here said to day it would probably be hotter here this time than it was during the late hot spell.

Two Young Men Missing.

PORTLAND, Me., July 8.—A special from Rockland says two young men of Cushing attended a dance at Union Hall, in Friendship, and as nothing has been heard of them it is thought they perished in the flames when the hall was burned.

Senator Mr. Bland of against the con- and Mr. Bland will the House concur in Coinage amendment.

Russian Seal Contract.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A dispatch from San Francisco says the Alaska Commercial Company, which until recently had the exclusive right to capture seals in the American waters of Behring Sea, has now secured a contract with the Russian Government granting it the exclusive right to capture seals on the Siberian coast. The number of seals to be taken is limited but is not known.

Refused to Take Up the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—By a vote of 28 to 20 the Senate refused to take up the Tariff bill. This means merely a postponement for the purpose of considering the River and Harbor bill this week.

Ready for a Long Talk.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Democratic Senators have resolved to talk the National Election bill to death if necessary.

DR. BURTSELL SILENT.

The Clergyman's Friends Predict a Long and Bitter Controversy.

NEW YORK, July 8.—In ecclesiastical circles of the Roman Catholic Church there is practically strict silence as to the censuring of Dr. Burtsell of the Church of the Epiphany by the propaganda. The priest himself would not talk of his disputes with Archbishop Corrigan, nor would Mgr. Preston be seen on the subject. That one effect of the Archbishop's visit to Rome would be the ordering of Dr. Burtsell from the parish in which he is beloved to an obscure parish in the State was long since the conclusion of his friends.

Dr. Burtsell is one of the most learned priests in the United States and a high authority on canon law, and several clergymen who are among his friends declared that they believed there would yet be a terribly bitter fight, in which the now condemned priest would not be easily vanquished.

The Archbishop will return in August to his see, but it is rumored that he will not long remain at its head. Although Rome may uphold him in a struggle with any of his priests, individually, yet according to well-informed clerics the Holy See does not desire the arising of scandals at such frequent intervals in this archdiocese and will probably in the very near future provide for Dr. Corrigan elsewhere.

Another eminent member of the hierarchy, Bishop O'Farrell, is already being mentioned as his probable successor. Dr. O'Farrell was formerly pastor of St. Peter's, in Barclay street.

Burned to Death.

KEENE, N. H., July 8.—A special from West Bridgewater says that while W. E. Weatherbee was at church on Sunday his house took fire by the overturning of an oil stove. The only occupants at the time were a Mrs. House and Mr. Weatherbee's youngest child. The flames ignited the child's dress and it was burned to death. In attempting to save the child Mrs. House was so severely burned that she died.

To Import a Lace Factory.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 8.—It is reported here on good authority that the proprietors of the Wilkesbarre Lace Factory have been approached by one of the largest firms in Nottingham, England, with a proposition to transfer the Nottingham factory with all its machinery to this city and enlarge the factory here, making it the largest plant in the world.

FIVE YEARS FOR ARCHER.

Maryland's Ex-State Treasurer Pleads Guilty and Goes to Prison.

BALTIMORE, July 8.—The sudden and unexpected ending of ex-State Treasurer Archer's case caused a sensation. In the criminal court he pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with embezzling State funds, and was sentenced by Judge Stewart to five years in the penitentiary.

Mr. Archer's counsel read a long statement which was signed by Archer in which he begged the mercy of the court.

He offered no excuse or palliation of his conduct and realized the enormity of his crime. No blame for any part of it, he says, attaches to any one but himself.

Mr. Archer, after the sentence, immediately left the court room and was driven to the penitentiary.

Actor Gillette Seriously Ill.

NANTUCKET, R. I., July 8.—Owing to his continued weakness, William Gillette, the playright and actor, who has been ill for the past two months at his mother's residence in Hartford, has been removed to this city for the summer. He has a serious weakness of the digestive organs. His physician encourages his friends to hope that the sea air will prove beneficial.

Railroad Freight Handlers on Strike.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—A dispatch from Cincinnati says: The demand of the yard men of the Pennsylvania road and the Louisville & Nashville in this city for the Chicago scale has been refused and the strike is now complete. The Pennsylvania line sent out its passenger trains and perishable freight from that city to-day according to the regular schedule.

Insanely Jealous.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—Daniel Mason, colored, shot his wife in the shoulder, inflicting a slight wound. He then blew his own brains out. Mason was insanely jealous of his wife and frequently threatened to kill her.

A Valuable Colt Dead.

[illegible] they are [illegible] ment to duty a[illegible]

Dense crowds [illegible] surround the war[illegible] alternately cheering [illegible] groaning the Home Chief Commissioner [illegible] police were repeatedly [illegible] clear the streets, but they were no sooner cleared than they were filled again.

Exciting Scenes.

Many exciting scenes occurred, especially in Bow street, which is the headquarters of the disaffected men. The military has been called out to preserve order, but it is asserted that the soldiery are also disaffected, owing to the fact that their ranks are filled with relatives, friends and sympathizers of the recalcitrant policemen. The latter declare that the provincial police are thoroughly in sympathy with them and will assist them in every possible way, even to the extent of joining in their movement.

The authorities profess the utmost confidence in their ability to overcome the crisis without difficulty, but the general public do not share their opinion.

The Postmen May Strike.

Postmaster-General Raikes has ordered the postmen to report for duty at five o'clock to-morrow morning under the penalty of suspension. This action is taken by Mr. Raikes in order to enable him to ascertain who are the unruly members of his force. It is probable that a large number of the postmen will refuse to report at the hour named, and their suspension will doubtless bring the postal difficulty to an issue.

The Military Uneasy.

The military are also disposed to air their grievances. One regiment, quartered in the West End, has refused to perform the routine duty, the men claiming that they are subjected to excessive and useless drills, and the War Office has decided to order the regiment to India.

In anticipation of a strike a riotous mob of roughs blocked up Bow street last night, preventing the constables from reaching the station. The crowd becoming turbulent, mounted officers endeavored to clear a passage, and were received with hoots and pelted with bags of flour, sticks, etc. In one instance the constables had to rescue a fellow officer who was attacked by the crowd.

The Czar and Prince Ferdinand.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—It is stated that the Czar is growing more furious over the open defiance of Russia by Prince Ferdinand and some action in the direction of Bulgaria is daily looked for. The scheme to displace Ferdinand for Prince Oscar, of Sweden, does not find favor in European courts and especially in the Austrian Empire, where the execution of Panitza has been hailed with enthusiasm by the Hungarians, and where the Government finds it difficult to resist the popular pressure for the recognition of Ferdinand. The situation on the Danube is every day becoming more complicated.

State Teachers' Association.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 8.—The New York State Teachers' Association began its 45th annual meeting here last night. About 1,500 members are present. Three sessions daily will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, and the meeting will last until to-morrow afternoon.

The Kennedy-Manning Fight.

David Straley of Williamsport died at Reedsville, Pa., while riding in a Pennsylvania Railroad baggage car which was in charge of his son.

Messrs. Zimmerman and Klein, of New York, and Mr. Jacobi, of San Francisco, were among those who won prizes in the rifle contests in Berlin yesterday.

The Rev. Dr. E. J. Stearns, of Easton, Pa., is dead. He was 90 years of age, and widely known in the literary world. He was known as the author of "Notes on Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Knit goods manufacturers from New York, Amsterdam, Little Falls and Cohoes met in Albany and formed all the knit goods establishments in these places into a trust with a capital of $5,000,000.

Cal McCarthy, the pugilist, announces his acceptance of the proposition of the Pelican club of London, which has offered a $5,000 purse for a fight between McCarthy and George Dixon, the colored pugilist.

The Knights of Labor in P. W. Varney's shoe factory at Lynn, Mass., numbering one hundred and fifty men, are all on strike. The fight is against a reduction claimed by the cutters' union to the amount of 85 cents per case in the cutting room.

Weather Indications.

...s, how easy it is to do what we want to do ...d then to defend it!

It is not the rattle one hears in the neighborhood of a rattlesnake that he objects to. A child might play with it. The dance is the rattle, but the danger is in the fang and the poison. The dance cannot be considered abstractly. It is a usage of society. Its associations and tendencies must come into the count. And one must not discriminate too critically nor carry his experiments too far where there lurks a real danger. The rattle may please a child, but, grasping the rattle, he may receive a deadly sting.

Now in the dance there must be at some point a peril, or so many wise and good people would not have written, taught and preached against it.

It has been said: "To the pure all things are pure," but alas, who are the pure, and how many such are there? Let those dance who will; the humble, earnest, consistent Christian who desires to consecrate his or her every word and act to Christ, will deem it wrong and inconsistent to dance.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN H. VINCENT.

To Play Off the Tie.

The concluding and deciding game of the series of three between the Acmes of New York and the Crescents, will be played next Saturday. On April 19 the Acmes won by a score of 7 to 2; but on June 7 the Crescents shut them out by a score of 3 to 0.

Last Saturday the Acmes defeated the Rahways by a score of 10 to 2, and next Saturday they propose to beat the Crescents just the same. Their manager writes that he is saving a crack pitcher for the game. The Crescents, however, intend to win the game themselves. It will be an opportunity to show the Rahways where they stand. One of the papers of that city said last week:

The Plainfields are afraid to include the Rahways in their list, having declined to make any date for a game. As the Rahways have defeated some of the clubs that have beaten the Plainfields, it would appear that the fear by the latter is well founded.

Choked, in Broad Daylight.

Mrs. Louis A. Miller who resides on Woodland aveuue, was choked by a highwayman on Broadway, yesterday afternoon, and the fellow escaped, leaving his victim almost prostrated through fear. Mrs. Miller's husband is a hard working and industrious man, and is employed as foreman in Rice & Loomis' coal and lumber yard on Peace street. He was first acquainted with the facts in the case when his wife sent him a note some time afterward telling him of what had happened.

To a PRESS reporter today Mr. Miller said that the man who attacked his wife was a fellow named Perrine, who was but recently liberated from State Prison after serving out a ten years' sentence for a robbery committed in this city in 1880. Mrs. Miller was Perrine's wife at the time of his arrest, but during his incarceration she married Miller, with whom she has since been living.

—It seems possible that Plainfield will have an electric fire alarm.

Weiss was a Hungarian by birth, single, and had been employed at the hotel for about six weeks. He was considered one of the best walters in the main dining hall.

Every Comfort and Convenience Assured.

In the arrangements made for the First Baptist excursion on Friday, the comfort and convenience of all who go have been taken into consideration. Both sections will stop at Long Branch going and returning. A baggage car will be attached to the 1st section with a reliable man in charge. Baskets or parcels placed in his care will be taken to the excursion house on Wesley Lake, and in the evening will be brought back to Plainfield without expense to the owners.

He Cut Her With His Axe.

Annie Stites, 12 years of age, daughter of Israel Stites, was cut in the head last evening with an axe that slipped out of the hands of Fred Westphal, 18 years of age. The latter was breaking up barrels, about 7:30 o'clock, in the rear of Westphal's grocery on Liberty street.

Fortunately the head of the axe struck the girl and she was only slightly injured. Dr. Simpson dressed the wound, and pronounced it a most miraculous escape.

To Free Masons.

The members of the Masonic fraternity generally are invited without further notice to attend an emergent communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, at Masonic Hall, No. 10 East Front street, to attend the funeral of Bro. Jas. C. Lyon.

By order,

Johnny Marsh Proof Against Dynamite.

A correspondent writes: "You can't catch old birds with chaff, coax a grey rat into a trap, nor, it seems, fire off Johnny Marsh with an infernal machine. Who is it that wants to blow him up? The box is post-marked New York city. Mr. Marsh has not been blown up as late as 2 P. M. today

Stole Their Sunday Dinner.

Some time during Saturday night some mean thief entered Jas. Hanrahan's residence on East Third street, by bursting open a cellar door, and stole about four dollars worth of meat, all the meat the family had in the house for their Sunday dinner. The thief left no clue whereby his identity might be established.

The Clerks' Meeting.

The Plainfield Clerks' Association will hold a mass meeting in Music Hall this evening at 8 o'clock. The object of the meeting is to bring the question of early closing of stores before the people, and to secure more rest for the overworked clerks. Prominent speakers will be present and address the meeting.

How tempting! Something "just as good" is offered when Hires' Root Beer is called for. The reason is plain. The unprincipled dealer makes more profit on imitation goods. The wise ones insist on getting Hires'.

The coal is to be furnished at the uniform price of five dollars a ton.

The inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood-purifier should be known to every wife and mother. It corrects and gives tone and strength to the vital organs, and cleanses the system of all impurities. The best family medicine.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

THE FARGO TORNADO

Several Buildings in the Young City Demolished.

AN ENTIRE FAMILY KILLED.

A Passenger Train Caught and Toppled Over Into a Ditch.

No Lives Were Lost, but a Large Number of Persons Injured—The storm Extended Over Northern Minnesota—During the Prevalence of the Cyclone the Thermometer Was 92 Degrees.

FARGO, N. D., July 8.—The tornado which struck the city at 2:30 s. m., left a birthmark that will be remembered in years to come.

The storm demolished the Manitoba & Milwaukee freight houses, threw down the electric light towers, destroyed the fronts of the Davis block, the Opera House block, the Continental block, the Garfield block and the Webster block; unroofed the Northern Pacific freight depot, also the Republican office and the Chapin hardware store. The court house tower is badly twisted and deposited on the sidewalk on Tenth street. The Plymouth Congregational Church is destroyed, the Luger Furniture Company's warehouse is damaged, numerous bricks from the Argus brick block lie on the ground. The Deering warehouse is damaged to some extent, as also is Alfstad's hardware store and Vachens' restaurant, and the rear battlement on the Bank of North Dakota lies on the ground in ruins. The Keeney block and Exchange Hotel suffered badly. Dozens of smaller buildings and rods of sidewalk are demolished.

The saddest of all is the death of the entire family consisting of the mother and seven children of the late Captain McCarthy, which occurred at their residence at the corner of Ninth and Fifth streets. The family had taken refuge in the cellar and in some manner were caught in the timbers of the falling building and crushed to death.

Train No. 1, the Northern Pacific passenger, was caught just as it was departing from Fargo and was toppled over into a ditch. No one was killed, although the following were injured:

George E. Manning, Post Falls, Idaho, knee hurt and badly shaken up; J. E. Boustree, Pingree, badly bruised and leg hurt; Miss McCabe, sister of Supt. McCabe, ankle bruised; C. F. Hol...

POLITICIANS PUNISHED.

Four Convicted Election Inspectors Get Eighteen Months Each.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 8.—There was a large crowd of politicians and others at the Hudson County Court House to listen to the sentences of the four Jersey City election officers, Thomas Fallon, James Hart, Jacob Moschell and James De Rancey, who were found guilty of conspiracy to violate the election laws in last Fall's election.

At 12:30 o'clock the prisoners were called to the bar and were sentenced by Judge Lippincott to 18 months each in the State prison and to pay the costs of court.

The court declined to accede to the recommendation of the jury for mercy on behalf of De Rancey, the Republican member of the board, on the ground that he was equally guilty with the others, and had betrayed the trust reposed in him by the party he represented.

The accused were then conducted to the county jail. It is understood that application will be made at once for a writ of habeas corpus, and that an appeal will be made to the higher courts.

The convicted men comprised but one Election Board out of seventeen who were indicted. They were tried by a struck jury and were convicted mainly upon the testimony of Jameson T. Altemus, who is now under bail on an indictment for perjury.

Sixty-four elections officials remain to be tried on charges arising out of last November election controversies. Their cases, however, may be delayed pending the result of the appeals to be taken in the cases of the four men now convicted.

Later the four men were released on $3,000 bail each pending the result of the appeal to the Supreme Court.

The Streets of Milwaukee Alive With Uniformed Men.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 8.—The streets are alive with uniformed men, and every train swells the sweltering mass. The weather is intensely hot, and the Pythian Knights, arrayed in sombre black and buckled up tight with accoutrements, present the very picture of discomfort. Mostly all the divisions that came from short distances arrived on their own special trains and marched directly to the camp grounds to take part in the great parade.

Gossip is already heard about the probable location of the next biennial conclave. Strong efforts will be made to get the encampment for Omaha, Lincoln, N...

The "Original Package" Measure to be Considered First.

A Prediction that the Bankruptcy Bill Will Pass—The Conference Committees Agree on a Silver Measure—Democratic Senators to Talk the Election Bill to Death—The Tariff Bill Set Aside.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The Committee on Rules agreed to report to the House this afternoon a rule providing that the remainder of the week shall be devoted to such measures as the Committee on the Judiciary may present.

This means that the Torrey Bankrupt Bill and the bills providing for the increase of the federal judicial salaries, and of the court of patent appeals, the original package cases and possibly some others will be considered.

The Judiciary Committee, at its meeting to-day, will determine the order in which the bills will be considered. It is thought probable that the "Original Package" bill will be considered first, and that the Bankruptcy bill will then be considered and the others in the order named above.

Col. Jay L. Torrey said that he felt confident that the Bankruptcy bill would be passed when considered by the House. It is thought that the other bills will be favorably considered.

TROUBLE IN LONDON

The Police Ready for the Long Threatened Strike.

CLERKS GUARDING THE BANKS.

The Military Waiting to Suppress the Expected Uprising.

The Postmen Also on the Verge of a Strike—Soldiers Very Uneasy—Tradesmen Guarding Their Shops—Police Reserves Called to by the Commissioner—A Small Riot in Bow Street.

LONDON, July 8.—The police situation is rapidly nearing a crisis. The determined front of the men has led the West End tradesmen and banks to prepare for the worst. They have armed their clerks and every one of them was on duty all night.

In addition to this the shopkeepers and bankers have barricaded the fronts of their securely locked and heavily barred places of business, the fronts of some of which have been rendered almost impregnable to an artillery assault. Though these precautions have been taken, not one of the frightened tradesmen and bankers can say what he really fears.

The striking police themselves—should they go on strike—would be the very first to prevent thieves from taking advantage of the situation to plunder houses, and the idea of a riot between the old men and the new is regarded generally as absurd. Still nobody can tell what may happen.

Sir Edward Bradford, the new Chief Commissioner of Police, is also taking precautionary measures, evidently believing that the men are thoroughly determined to obtain compliance with their demands at all hazards.

Calling in the Reserves.

Accordingly he has withdrawn all the special policemen employed at the theatres, halls, dock yards and other places, and ordered them to report for general duty. He has also called in the suburban reserves and notified all applicants for places on the force that ... required to report for assign... service.

BISHOP VINCENT DENOUNCES DANCING.

He Tells a Young Woman What He Thinks of It and Quotes Other's Opinions.

The question whether a Christian may or may not dance troubles many a conscience. While greatly distressed in mind on this subject, a recently converted young lady—a reigning society belle in a prominent Western city—addressed a letter of inquiry on this subject to several of the most prominent American divines of different denominations.

DEAR MISS ——: You ask me if it is wrong or inconsistent for a Christian to dance. Let me quote to you what some wise and good people have said of dancing. The great lion-faced orator, Daniel Webster, when asked why he did not dance replied: "I have not brains enough."

Thackeray, the great novelist, has written: "When a man confesses himself fond of dancing I set him down as a fool." Horace Bushnell speaks of certain forms of the dance as "Contrived possibilities of license which belong to high society only when it runs low."

Arthur Cleveland Coxe, Episcopal Bishop of Western New York, has said to the clergy and city of his diocese:

"The gross debasing waltz would not be tolerated another year if Christian mothers in our communion would only set their faces against it and remove our daughters from its contaminations and their sons from that contempt of womanhood and womanly modesty which it begets. Alas! that women professing to follow Christ and godliness should not rally for the honor of their sex and drive these shameless dances from society."

Gail Hamilton has written: "The thing in itself is, of its very nature, unclean and cannot be washed. The very pose of the parties suggests impurity."

One of the most fair-minded Congregational pastors of New England thus states his views: "Fashionable dances as now carried on are revolting to every feeling of delicacy and propriety and are fraught with the greatest danger to millions."

Now in the face of such testimony as that which I have quoted above from wise and good men and women, it seems scarcely credible that any true man or true woman would engage in a pastime of which such things have been said. It seems almost inevitable that the passions of those participating in the round dances must be excited by the exercise—the physical contact is so intimate, the music and motion are so intoxicating.

All people, whether Christians or otherwise, require some form of recreation, and it is upon the plea that dancing comes under this head that many excuse their indulgence in it, but is it probable that the impure atmosphere, the glaring light and heat and the late hours of the ballroom can recreate us?

"Oh, of course we do not approve of the public ball," say the dancing Christians. Certainly not; and yet they make "exceptions" in the case of "college promenades," or ...tions" given to "the danc... sweet little French wife," ... "dancing school," where ...

FESTAL FANWOOD 'FOLKS.

Pyrotechnics in Plenty and a Feast of Music on Quality Hill.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather on the evening of the "Fourth," the display of fireworks which was anticipated upon "Quality Hill" at Fanwood, was postponed until Saturday, upon which evening almost the entire population assembled at the homes of Col. Charles K. Moore and Abner P. Downer to witness a display which was unparalleled in the annals of our suburban sister.

The material for the display was generously furnished by the Colonel, and the exhibition was under the control of Henry Kyte, who was ably assisted by Messrs Todd and Downer.

The exhibition lasted over two hours and was greatly enjoyed and appreciated by the many present. The guest of the evening was Mrs. Thos. Ewing, for whose particular benefit the exhibition was given. Mrs. Ewing, although 72 years of age, walked from "Maple Knoll" to "Frog Villa," accompanied by her son, "The Baron," and of course occupied the seat of honor at the right of the "Colonel."

After the pyrotechnical display, a grand musicale was given by Mrs. Moore, assisted by the talented young musician, Miss Plumb of Plainfield. Among the other artistes were the Misses Kyte, Bates and Hamlin, the Hon. Geo. Kyte and Baron Ewing. In the meantime a progressive euchre party was being held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abner P. Downer.

As is usual at all entertainments given by the Colonel, the mascots, Miss Madeline Robinson and Master James Moore, II, were on hand, which insured the success of the entire entertainment.

A communication from the Decker Portable House Co., was referred to the Committee on Police, Salaries and Elections.

These additions and alterations were asked for, and in each instance the petition was referred with power.

Rowland Cox, for a frame addition, 30 x20 feet, one story frame, at No. 28 West Seventh street; Geo. H. Babcock to remove house at No. 31 West Fourth street to a lot at No. 71 on the same street. The same petitioner asked for permission to remove another house on that thoroughfare, so as to make room for improvements.

Martin Roth asked the privilege, in a communication, to extend his shop on Exchange alley, outward, four feet.

Jesse Hatfield asked for permission to build a wagon shed at 66 East Front street, and Theo. Kurzhals asked for the privilege of extending his back stoop.

...ty about $200 a year. Mr. Dunham presented a list of the families which the city is now supporting, in various localities, who now refuse to occupy quarters in "Battle Row." For their maintenance the city pays $43.40 per month, and the total cost for the whole of "Battle Row" is only $45 a month. A resolution offered by that gentleman to the effect that no rent be hereafter paid for persons or families who refuse to accept shelter offered by the city was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Hetfield presented report of Committee on Fire and Buildings, on the communication of Chas. Hand to purchase his building on West Second street. That if the city purchased the building, certain alterations would have to be made at a cost of $3,500, and if the city could purchase the same for $47,000, with all alterations made there would be a great saving to the city, as the bonds could be floated at 4 per cent. interest making an expense to the city of $1,600 per annum, where now it was paying $1,000 per annum for rents with very poor accommodations. The rentals from the building outside what would be necessary for the city's use would be $2,232, leaving a balance in favor of the city of $632, and eleven offices for city officials, city court room, common council chamber and city jail free of rent. The committee submitted plans and specifications for the necessary alterations, and recommended its purchase for $40,000 including all alterations. Report received and placed on file.

THE PRESS is correctly informed that Mr. Hand will accept the $40,000 including alterations.

Mr. Hetfield, from the Fire and Building Committee, sent in two sealed bids for the alteration and improvement of Gazelle engine house. They were as follows: Brokaw & Kane, $3,092; Pearson & Gayle, $3,650. The bids were filed.

Rule 30 was suspended so as to allow Mr. Hetfield to present a communication from East Third street property-owners, asking to have that thoroughfare macadamized from Peace to Richmond street, said property-owners agreeing to pay $227.50 toward the total cost of the work. Referred to the Street Committee with power.

Mr. Smith also presented a petition from East Sixth street residents, asking that that thoroughfare be macadamized to the width of sixteen feet, property-owners along the line agreeing to pay fifteen cents a running foot. Referred to Street Committee.

Upon motion of Mr. Rushmore, John Hickey was paid $25.13 the amount due him, and awarded by a commission in 1875, for moving back his fence at the time Plainfield avenue was widened.

Mr. Johnston, from the License Committee, reported back as conforming with the city ordinance, the liquor license applications of Michael F. Watson, Augustus H. Krohne and Matthew Kilpatrick. All of them were sent back for correction, Charles H. Hand withdrawing his signature from Watson's license, M. Messerschmidt withdrawing his from Krohne's and Daniel Hibbitt's and Martin Galbraith requesting their names stricken from Kilpatrick's application. There were also several remonstrances sent in against granting the licenses. One petition was received, signed by Thos. Burk, Chas. Westphal and others favoring the granting of Watson's silicense, but as he fell short of signers, the application was refused, and as above stated, it was sent back for correction.

The Auditing Committee at first refused to sign A. D. Thompson's bill for $1,050, claiming that the committee appointed to purchase horses had exceeded the appropriation by $50. Whereupon an extra appropriation of $50 was added to the original appropriation and the bill went through.

Upon motion of Mr. Smith, the Corporation Counsel was requested to proceed with the enforcement of the sidewalk ordinance.

The Auditing Committee reported on the claims sent in during the evening, and the Council adjourned for two weeks.

The Great Races in Westfield on the Glorious Fourth.

The census taker, (who by the way is Y. M. C. A. Marsh) has not yet made his returns, informing the public what the present population of Westfield is; but nobody who was present to witness the races, estimates the crowd assembled in Park street, July 4, at less than 2,000. The course is about a half-mile stretch, and the walks, the fences, and the parks, were all black with spectators. Did they congregate by reason of the notice given in THE PRESS, to see Johnny Marsh and his polished bracelets, and the committee referred to, or to see the races only? For all those reasons, doubtless!

"Cy" Wilcox took the cup. No one says it was not justly won. The mustang of Robert Woodruff, Jr., was second in the race. The track was as good as the weather permitted, but somewhat heavy.

A Warning to Train Jumpers.

General Superintendent J. H. Olhausen of the New Jersey Central Railroad, has caused notices to be posted conspicuously in the stations along the line, calling attention to the law as amended and approved March 2, 1881, with reference to jumping on and off of coal and freight trains. All agents and others in the employ of the railroad company are requested to assist in the enforcement of the law, a violation of which is punishable by a fine of $25 or 30 days in the County Jail, or both, at the discretion of the Court.

Unnecessary Misery.

Probably as much misery comes from any derangement of the functions of the body, and it is difficult to cure, for the reason that no one likes to take the medicines usually prescribed. ### Another Murderer Secures a Stay.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., July 8.—The Warden of Auburn State Prison has just been served with a notice of appeal which acts as an order to stay the proceedings in the case of Frank Fish, the Canandaigua murderer, who is under sentence of death by electricity and the time for whose execution was originally fixed for the week commencing July 12. The motion for a new trial, which was denied by the Supreme Court, will again come up, and the proceedings will not be in the form of a test of the constitutionality of the law.

MYSTERIOUS MIRAGES.

Optical Illusions That Have Astonished Those Who Saw Them.

Various Forms of One of Nature's Strangest Phenomena—Remarkable Sights Witnessed on the Shore of Lake Ontario and at Rochester.

This wonderful phenomenon takes several forms, according to the state of the atmosphere, but those most generally seen are the looming mirage and the Fata Morgana.

In looming mirages distant objects show an extravagant increase in vertical height without alteration in breadth, says the New York Observer. Distant hummocks of ice are thus magnified into immense towers and pinnacles, and a ship is sometimes abnormally drawn out until it appears twelve or thirteen times as high as it is long. Rocks are seen drawn up to ten or twelve times their proper height. Houses, as well as human beings and animals, appear in like exaggerated shape.

Another form of mirage is when a ship, or some other object near the water, seems greatly elongated, and a second inverted image meets it from above. Sometimes the proper image of the object is elevated far above the lake or sea, while the second image strangely appears inverted beneath it; the whole surrounded by a sheet of sky, which is mirrored and repeated within it.

Dr. Vince, on Aug ust 6, 1806, at seven p. m., saw from Ramsgate, at which place only the tops of Dover Castle towers are usually visible, the whole of it, castle, [illegible] appeared as though lifted up and bodily placed on the near side of the intervening hill. So perfect was this illusion that the hill itself actually could not be seen through the figure.

Some forms of mirage are lateral as well as vertical, arising from unequal density of two contiguous vertical bodies of air. Thus, on Lake Geneva, a boat has been seen double, the two images some distance apart. Persons have been duplicated in the same way. Any one on a hot day, by placing his eye near to a heated wall, may see lateral mirages of objects at a distance, and nearly on a line with the wall.

Here, on the shores of Lake Ontario, many beautiful and wonderful mirages are witnessed. The lake is so wide the opposite side is not at all visible. And yet during some peculiar states of the atmosphere it is clearly outlined. A gentleman witnessed a most perfect mirage from Sheldon's Point, Oswego. It was about one o'clock in the afternoon when a splendid view of the Canada shore was given. It extended from a point nearly opposite Oswego City to Cape Vincent, at points on the Jefferson County shore. Whole blocks of the city of Kingston were visible and localities distinctly defined. From Sackett's Harbor, Point Peninsular, more than two or three miles away, and so plainly in view that the limbs of trees were visible. Stony Island stood out plainly in view, and far beyond it could be seen Gallop and Duck Island. Even the Canada shore in the vicinity of Long Point and Prince Edward's Bay was at times plainly in sight.

In Syracuse, a distant city, a remarkable mirage was witnessed by many persons. It lasted two hours and was best observed from University hill looking northwest over Onondaga lake. Lake Ontario was plainly visible, and stretching out at an angle of 25 degrees of the horizon it looked like an ocean. Prof. Comfort says that a few years previous a similar mirage occurred, and it was so distinct that by means of a glass he could discern a town, probably Kingston.

Portions of Rochester and sections of the country lying south of it have been seen out in the lake six and ten miles distant, as though the city was standing erect in the air. Trains of moving cars and other objects were clearly defined, the aerial phenomena continuing for nearly an hour.

A well-known lake captain has also witnessed a wonderful mirage out on Lake Ontario. While on his way from the St. Lawrence up the lake and near the islands known as the False Ducks, and while standing at the wheel, there suddenly burst into view the city of Oswego, thirty-one miles distant, with the gas lights in the streets and all the appearance a town lighted up would present from a hill in the immediate vicinity at night. The light-house at Oswego, as well as others on the lake shore below, as far as Sackett's Harbor, were distinctly seen. It was a sort of night mirage, and a rare sight indeed. It lasted for several minutes, then slowly faded away into darkness.

At Rochester, which is about twenty miles inland from Lake Ontario, a mirage of the most surpassing character was witnessed by many. The entire northern sky as far as the angle, or bison, was lighted above the land-mark with the blue waters of Lake Ontario, while reflecting from her bosom could be seen the mountains, hills, valleys, bays and rivers of the Canada shore inland for miles. The coast could be plainly seen mirrored over a stretch of fifty miles, and so perfect at one time that the forests could readily be distinguished. The reader can form some idea of its grandeur by knowing that a country separated from Rochester by a lake seventy miles in width was, as if suddenly by the hand of its great Creator, painted upon the heavens so plain as to be seen from a standpoint near one hundred miles distant.

Muzzling Dogs in London.

Since the order went forth that all dogs in England should be muzzled, in consequence of many outbreaks of rabies, the number of cases of the disorder reported has fallen from eighty-one in the last quarter of 1889 to thirty-nine in the first quarter of the present year, and the decrease is still going on. What is more to the point, nine of the rabid dogs seized since the order was issued were found to be properly muzzled, and thus prevented from doing mischief.

STAMMERING CURED.

Suggestions That Will Take the Place of a School.

Main Points for Self-Help—The Principal of a School for Stammerers Furnishes Details of the System of Teaching—Defects in Speech Corrected.

According to the census of 1880, out of the entire population of the United States there were 250,000 men, women and children who stammered in their speech.

Years ago this defect in the action of the vocal organs was thought to be irremediable. Of late years those physicians who devote their talents to the cure of diseases of the mind and the nervous system have discovered that it can be cured and that it is simply a nervous habit that can be overcome by training.

The New York Herald gives its readers all of the details of one of the best known of these systems of training, so that any one who is afflicted with this distressing habit may be able, by following the exercises shown in the illustrations and the advice which accompanies them, to overcome his vocal defect without the necessity of putting himself under the care of a professional trainer.

It seems odd to the vocal specialists that there should be such dense ignorance among those persons who speak with perfect ease regarding the difference between stammering and stuttering. Nine persons out of ten believe that the terms are synonymous. Yet there is a vast amount of difference between them. Stammering is an affection of the articulating organs. A stutterer has no trouble in articulating words, providing the vocalizing organs act normally. In one sentence, stuttering is a refusal of the voice with perfect organs of speech, but stammering is a defective articulation caused by habit or imperfect organs of speech.

LEARNING TO BREATHE.

The first exercise of this method is in simple calisthenics—an outward, forward and downward movement of the arms. This develops the muscles of the chest and upper part of the body, but is of even greater importance in giving the will of the pupil a stronger command over his muscles. If he can command the movement of these at will he is in better trim to attempt control over the refractory ones which cause the defect in his speech.

After this exercise has been repeated several times the pupil inhales a deep breath, goes through the movement once and then exhales with as much evenness of force as possible. The next exercise is designed to give flexibility to the respiratory muscles and strengthen and aid in the control of the diaphragm. The pupil draws in a long breath, places his hands upon his sides, with his arms akimbo, and then gently sways his body to the right, left, forward and backward.

Another exercise renders the muscles of the throat and neck more flexible. The pupil slowly bends his head from side to side, forward and backward.

Besides these simple movements there are many more that are used in obstinate cases. Health lifts, rope and weight chest expanders and various movements such as placing the palms of the hands upon the wall and slowly letting the chest come in contact with the wall and then pushing it back into an upright position.

After these have been finished the pupil takes his first respiratory exercise. This consists in placing the hands upon the sides of the abdomen, as is shown in the first illustration earlier in the article. This posture is designed chiefly to fix the pupil's close attention upon the absolute necessity of breathing slowly, strongly and evenly from the diaphragm.

As is shown in the accompanying illustration the learner places his finger and thumb upon the sides of his throat, so that he can feel the vibration of the vocal chords and the action of the larynx, and by this means correct any tendency toward unevenness which may exist.

After sounding the vowels the pupil is taught to affix the various consonants to each sound, as a—ah, e—eh, o—oh, etc.

Then he prefixes the consonants, as a—ba, e—be, o—bo, etc.

These are gone over several times until the pupil is ready for his first exercise in vocalizing a sentence. This is accomplished in the following manner. Take for example the first line of one of Longfellow's poems:

I stood on the bridge at midnight.

I—oo—o—e—i—a—i—i.

The pupil inhales a deep breath and exhales it slowly. This is repeated half a dozen times, gradually increasing the length of the inspiration. The majority of persons, whether stammerers or not, have the habit of doing this instinctively, using at first more breath than should be necessary and the illustration shows one of the methods used in the system to prevent this defect. The pupil places his hand upon his chest to call his attention and rivet it upon a too great chest inflation. While his hands are in this position he inhales and exhales as he was taught to do in the foregoing exercise.

In the first vocalizing exercise the pupil places his hands on the sides of his abdomen, breathes, and, instead of whispering the long vowel sounds, he speaks them at first, dropping the voice in pitch toward the end of the sound. Next he holds the pitch to the end. After the long come the short vowel sounds.

These same exercises are gone over again with the hands upon the chest.

Now the pupil tries a new position, the value of which is important. He feels his voice with his fingers.

These are the vowel sounds that are used in the foregoing line, and they should be spoken as though they were one long word. All words used in sentences are similarly treated before they are joined with their proper consonants.

SEPARATING THE TEETH.

After this has been done, the words as originally printed are whispered once or twice, and then the student is ready for articulation. This is performed slowly, each vowel sound being prolonged far beyond its customary length, and a breath is taken between the words at first. Before the lesson is over, the class are frequently able to read and speak, so that, beyond their deliberation, a stranger would not notice any thing disagreeable in their speech.

The above illustration shows one of the best methods in use to prevent a too great expenditure of muscular force, which the stammerer is apt to put forth in speaking. The pupil places two fingers between his teeth and articulates in that position. If the force is too great, his teeth impress that fact very forcibly upon his fingers.

In the last illustration the artist shows how another exhibition of a too great nervous force may be avoided. The pupil holds the sides of his face so that he may feel the movements of his muscles. It might be well for him to hold his hands in a similar position upon the face of some one who speaks normally at first, so that he may contrast the normal muscular action with the nervous movements of his own muscles.

At the Herald's request Prof. Bryant gave me a few points in the way of advice that will prove of inestimable value to such of the Herald's readers as this article chiefly appeals to. They comprise the advice which he uses oftenest in his class-room, and they correct faults which the pupil finds most difficult to rid himself of in his efforts to acquire a normal habit of speech.

The professor's advice is as follows:

The correct application of these exercises will relieve the physical part of the defect and will give the pupil confidence, a quality which he has heretofore never possessed, and he must use every means in his power outside of these exercises to increase his stock of confidence and self-reliance.

To this end he must take the best possible care of his health by keeping good hours, eating nourishing food and only at regular intervals, observing habits of cleanliness, abstaining from the use of tobacco, especially cigarettes, and of all intoxicating drinks or any thing that is likely to excite or deplete the nervous system.

A game of football or two or three hours of violent athletic exercise have been known to undo the benefits of a month's training.

He should be careful not to become overheated or chilled, as these states have a bad influence upon the control of the nervous force necessary for the proper action of the muscles.

FEELING THE VOCAL MUSCLES.

In speaking he should continually listen to the sound of his own voice. As the well regulated and modulated voice of a friend will give confidence and assurance to a hearer, so will the correctly produced tones of the person who has heretofore spoken in a nervous, spasmodic manner give him self-confidence.

While speaking or reading do not give way to any nervous habits of the hands, feet, eyes or any other party of the body, such as wriggling or twisting the hands or fingers, fumbling a watch chain, picking at clothing, moving the feet, shrugging the shoulders, shutting or winking the eyes, etc.

Look the hearer squarely in the face and talk directly at him.

Do not avoid any difficult words. Say what you originally intended to say in the way you originally intended to say it. Keep up your pluck and patience, and say the words if it takes an hour to get through them.

For those who have time the exercises should be practiced two hours a day. Of course one hour is better than no practice, but that is the least time that can be used with profit to the learner.

With practice and patience a pupil should be able to overcome his defective speech in a period varying from six weeks to three months.

These are the three things which embody all that these exercises are designed to teach. These three things must borne in mind, not only in the study, but constantly throughout the day. They are:

1. Deep and full, but gentle breathing.
2. Firm and easy vocalization.
3. Wide and free articulation.

These points contain all that is necessary to make perfect speech.

HOW SHALL LADIES RIDE?

Mrs. Grundy Says They Shall Not Ride as Do Gentlemen, Astride—The New Riding Dress.

There have been whispered hints in the boudoirs of Belgravia, says the London Daily Graphic, as well as the back drawing-rooms of Bayswater, that something shocking would happen at the meet of either the coaching or four-in-hand clubs. As the guardian of society proprieties, I need hardly tell you that I followed with the keenest interest the discussion in your columns relative to a revolution in riding, and made myself thoroughly au fait with all the arguments in favor of existing conditions. Will you judge of my consternation when I learned that some audacious creatures—I can hardly write that they were females—actually intended to appear in the park on one of these crowded occasions clad in attire worse than any of your most dreadful correspondents suggested.

It was my duty, therefore, to see these clothes. I found them being made at one of those establishments to which I have at last become habituated—a ladies' tailor, near Bond street. My feelings were shocked at the outset of my inquiries by finding that in the habit-fitting room the usual side-saddle upon the hobby-horse had been removed and a man's saddle had taken its place. The garments were brought down by a male tailor, who proceeded to exhibit them to me, and shortly afterward a young person connected with the shop entered wearing them.

She wore a coat fashioned exactly after the manner of my nephew's frock coat. It fitted her very closely to the waist, opening at the neck over a shirt and tie. The basques or skirt of the coat were somewhat longer and more ample than in the case of a gentleman's garment, but I assure you that that was the only compromise in the matter.

The [illegible]s—I believe that is the dreadful name that the [illegible] garments go by—were tight to the limbs and buttoned at the knee. High boots and spurs and a tall hat completed the attire, which I can only regard as a shockingly correct copy of what would be worn by one of the other sex. In fact, at a little distance I do not see how you could tell a brother and sister apart.

Now, sir, I venture to predict that the British public, who are strong admirers of my views at heart, will resent this innovation strongly. I used, in common, to believe with most people, to imagine that it constituted a misdemeanor at common law for man and woman to change the clothing assigned by conventionality to their sex for that of the other. My nephew, a learned barrister, assures me that such is not strictly the case, but as any person or persons wearing the garments of the other sex is practically certain to be followed by rightly surprised people, he or she is liable to immediate arrest as "a disorderly person," and to be charged with the offense of causing a crowd to assemble. I need not point out the sensation that ladies thus habited would cause in the park. This would be, indeed, an undignified end to the movement. I remain, sir, yours obediently,

AMELIA GRUNDY.

A Cruel Fate.

Friend (visiting an invalid)—Did you read about the Southerners contributing to build the Grant monument?

Invalid—Yes, I read about it.

Friend—It looks as if the cruel war was over.

Invalid (with a sigh)—The cruel war isn't over with me yet. I get it three or four times a day.—Texas Siftings.

Why They Struck.

Employer—I understand, Finnegan, that the men have struck work.

Finnegan—We have, sor.

Employer—And may I inquire their reasons?

Finnegan—Shure, we doan't know yit, sor. The dilygate froum th' 'Knoights' ain't kim yit, sor.—Light.

Faithful Till Death.

Employer (to ten-year-old office boy)—Johnnie, take this bouquet to Miss Blank with my compliments.

Johnnie—Excuse me, sir; but I have promised my fair one never to speak to another woman until we are married. I can give up my five dollars a week, but I can not be untrue in love. I can not go.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Great Price.

"Oh! Lillie, did you notice my new ring—isn't it just splendid?"

"Magnificent! It must have cost a snug fortune."

"It did."

"What was the price?"

(With a sigh) "My heart."—West Shore.

Let the Cat Out of the Bag.

Little Maude—How can money fly, Mr. Golden? It hain't got wings.

Mr. Golden—Why, what makes you ask such a question, Maudy?

Little Maude—Only 'cause I heard sister Pearl say she'd make your money fly when she got you.—West Shore.

The Habit Justified.

Parrott—Tell me, Grafton, why do you always wear a single eye-glass?

Grafton—Well, to tell you the truth, old fellow, it's to conceal my glass eye.—Texas Siftings.

THE SPANISH CRAZE.

Gay Paris Copies Castilian Customs and Fads.

Seductiveness of Petticoated Dancers—How the Supple Posturers of the Languorous South Have Become All the Rage.

It is not easy to explain, says the Paris correspondent of the New York Morning Journal, the Spanish craze which has possessed Paris for the last few months, and which seems now to have received a substantial check by the interference of authorities in the bull-fights in the Rue Pergelese.

A few years ago the Parisians would have scorned to borrow their pleasures or fashions from the lands beyond the Pyrenees. They pretended to detest the Spaniards, whom they called vain and cruel and disposed to alliance with their enemies, the Germans.

But opinions, especially in the fashionable world, have changed much since then. The Exposition of 1890 brought out many Spanish peculiarities and made them popular. It became the fashion for the aristocracy to visit halls in which the beautiful dancers of Seville and Madrid aired their skill and their ankles.

Paris discovered that a dancer in long petticoats was twice as seductive, as coquetish, as bewitching as a ballet dancer in her ungainly, stiff and starched [illegible] skirts.

Carmencitas, Doloreses and Conceptions, from the ballet of the sun-swept and languorous South, became the rage.

The fashionable circuses were not slow to recognize the new predilection for trained pyrean novelties, and they introduced mules and muleteers, knife-throwers of Albacete, and athletes dressed in the silk jackets, the embroidered breeches and tasseled hats of the toreadore. But they did not dare to introduce the bull-fight, against which Paris had always felt a strong repulsion.

The Amazons at the hippodrome blossomed out with Spanish names, and the equilibristes learned the voluptuous dances of the Sevillanas, throwing a

The gorgeous combinations of yellow and black in which Spanish women delight appeared in the evening costumes of the lorettes; and here and there a Parisian lady of quality wore the mantilla and manipulated the fan like a true Madrilena.

Then began the fashion of inviting some one of the Spanish women dancers in vogue to appear at a private entertainment, exactly as for years it has been the thing to engage Sarah Bernhardt, Coquelin, Jeanne Granier Vauthier, Lassalle or Richard, for parlor performances between the frozen punch and the supper.

The innovation was so startling that all the ladies straightway called it delicious. A long and broad table was brought in and placed directly in front of that awful semicircle of dowagers, which at a French reception is so conspicuous. Around it were grouped the young ladies and their mammas, and back of them row after row of young officers, old academicians, bald-headed Senators, hirsute artists, smart young literary men and a multitude of dandies, many of them in scarlet coats, colored waistcoats and silk knee-breeches and pumps. Then—flash!

Suddenly appeared on the table, to ascend which she had been gallantly helped by a score of eager hands, the Dolores or Carmencita of the hour, a radiant being in gaudy toilet, with her blue-black hair plastered down over her olive-colored brow and a miraculous fan in one of her slender hands.

Then awoke a slumbrous music of guitars, which made one think of the moonlight over the white roofs of Seville, and of the graceful ladies promenading in Las Delicias, and of the tinkling sound of the water in the fountains of the patios, and the Dolores or Carmencita began to dance; the dowagers, at first horrified, began to admire, the gentlemen to applaud, and all to feel the strange, inexpressible charm of this wild, Arabic, Celtic, sensuous "poetry of motion."

Paris found that it liked this better than the purely gypsy dances, and so Dolores or Carmencita and their tables on which they have swayed to and fro for the delectation of the aristocracy have made the grand rounds of the capital since the beginning of the season, and I am told that the fashion has also been followed in numerous great houses in New York.

The Art Preservative.

Editor (to foreman)—Isn't the ink running a little gray?

Foreman—That'll be all right, sir, after a few hundred more impressions. The printer's devil upset an oyster stew on the form at lunch-time.—Judge.

He Died Summarily.

McCluskick—I hear poor Jinks is dead. He must have died very summarily.

Reed—Very summery indeed. He took off his flannels too soon.—Texas Siftings.

"RATS," THE PLUMBER'S BOY.

He Was Thoroughly Up to Business, But Had a Tender Heart.

Of course, if you have seen Hoyt's "Tin Soldier" you remember "Rats."

Well, our plumber's boy was "Rats" to the letter—the same torn hat and ragged clothes, the same happy-go-lucky disregard of property—in short, the true vandal spirit. He knew his business, too, for he kept us in a chronic state of unrepair, and so had what was almost a permanent job. His name we never knew; his boss called him "Boy;" to us he was simply "Rats."

One evening just at dusk "Rats" was putting the finishing touches on some work he was doing in the library. I sat in the back parlor with the gas unlit, and Kittie was playing upon the piano; and in the gathering gloom I could but notice that tattered "Rats" was a picturesque object as he bent over his little furnace, now in relief, now in shadow, now with the ruddy glow upon his brown face.

Kittie played on and on—gay gallops, dreamy waltzes, bits of ballad tunes, lullabies. The strokes of "Rats" hammer grew fainter until finally they stopped altogether. Kittie began singing very softly:

"Hush, my babe, lie still and slumber,
Holy angels guard thy bed."

I looked through the portiere at "Rats." Totally unconscious of my presence, he was whistling under his breath an accompaniment to the sweet old air.

"Heavenly blessings without number, Gently falling on thy head," sang Kittie, and a great tear rolled down "Rats'" cheek, then splash! it dropped with a sizzle on the hot soldering iron. The quick sizz roused him.

Rat-a-tat-tat—bang! went his hammer; crash came Kitty's hands down upon the keys. The spell was broken.

I lit the gas. "Rats" was humming "I Owe Ten Dollars to O'Grady," and the light shone brightly upon his face. Had it been all my fancy? No, there was a white streak down his grimy cheek, and somehow I was glad to see it.—Chicago Tribune.

SQUAT ON THEIR HEELS.

How the Chattering Cigar-Girls of Manilla Make Cheroots.

One of the most interesting of the sights of Manilla is the cigarreras, or cigar-girls. About sunset any week-day you may see coming out of a long, low building near one of the bridges and wending their way by twos and threes many hundred women, clad in the simple but picturesque costume of the Indian, of all ages from twelve to fifty, most of them having fine eyes, hair and figure, but homely faces. These are the cigar-girls who work in the government or private factories.

Most of them are Chinese metizas, as indicated by the obliquity of the eyes, though they have the Malay width of cheeks.

The number of the cigarmakers in and around the city is about 22,000, of whom only 1,500 are men. The outside of the cigar is made of one or two leaves beaten flat by small smooth stones. They are filled with smaller pieces rolled and cemented on the edges with a pink paste. They are cut to the same length by scissors. The work is done on wooden

Several hundreds are employed in each room, 10 on each side of tables about a yard wide, as near together as possible, with a narrow passageway along the middle. All squat on their heels or sit on bamboo stools about two inches high. No one but a Tagal could maintain such a position for hours at a time.

They use nothing but their fingers, the hammers, the scissors and the paste, writes Dr. Samuel Kneeland in Harper's Monthly. The noise made by these stone pestles on the wooden tables is almost deafening, in the midst of which they keep up a constant chatter until hushed by the approach of the inspector.

They come in the morning and go home at night, often to considerable distances, on foot or in boats, and are a very merry, happy set.

First Catch Your Hare

Reads an old recipe; that's well enough in Culinary matters, but it dosen't do to wait until you Cut, Scald or Burn yourself, and then run for a bottle of CARL KRARTH'S

"Instantaneous Liniment."

A much wiser plan is to spend 25c., and keep a bottle in the house.

Ask your Druggist for it.

A GREAT HOT WAVE

The Thermometer Registers the Highest in Years.

ONE HUNDERED IN THE SHADE.

Man and Beast Prostrated by the Sun's Roasting Rays.

The Hottest in New York Since 1876—The Number of Sunstrokes Decreased in Chicago—Great Suffering Among Children in Baltimore—Cooler Weather Promised for To-Morrow.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The following maximum temperatures are reported: Washington city, 98 degrees; Albany, 99 degrees; New York and Philadelphia, 96 degrees; Kansas City, 100 degrees; Boston, 92 degrees; Chicago, 88 degrees; Tennessee 90 to 96 degrees.

The temperature has fall from 10 to 14 degrees in Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Iowa. The cool wave extends over the Lake regions, Tennessee, and the Ohio valley to-day, and the Atlantic coast north of New York to-morrow.

Continued warm weather will prevail on the Atlantic coast to-day, with cooler weather during the night, and lower temperature to-morrow. Out of 146 stations 110 report a maximum of 80 degrees or over, 65 of which report a maximum of 90 degrees or over.

Sick Children in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 9.—It was three degrees warmer here than the hottest day of last year. At 2 o'clock the mercury had climbed up to 97, and at 3 o'clock it marked 98½ degrees. The thermometer has not been so high in Baltimore since August 16, 1888, when it reached 96 degrees at noon. The highest temperature last year was 93 degrees. The extreme hot weather has increased the cases of sickness incident to children, and the mortuary report of the present will, it is feared by the Health Department, show a large increase in the number of deaths.

Cooler in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The thermometer's highest range was but 89½, and as a consequence the number of sunstrokes was greatly decreased, there being not more than 15 prostrations by the heat throughout the city. Four or five deaths are reported. A wind blew from the southwest the greater portion of the day, and this alleviated the sufferings of the people somewhat.

100 Degrees in New York.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The old idea that July 8th is the hottest day in the year would seemed to be justified by the weather. The mercury reached 100 degrees, and the day was the hottest since July 8, 1876, when the same degree of heat was registered. There were many cases of prostration by the heat.

Brooklyn's Scorching.

BROOKLYN, July 9.—The thermometer at the Brooklyn end of the bridge indicated 105 degrees in the sun at 10 o'clock a. m., and 93 degrees in the shade. It was a scorcher in Brooklyn, and there were many cases of prostration.

Hot in the Mountains.

TWIN MOUNTAIN HOUSE, N. H., July 9.—The heat throughout the White Mountain region was unusually severe. The mercury reached 85 degrees at Bethlehem. A heavy rain storm followed.

Nearly 100 in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—The mercury reached 99½ degrees here. It was the hottest day since 1876, when the thermometer registered 100 degrees. There were many prostrations by the heat.

93 in Bridgeport.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 9.—The mercury reached 93 degrees here. It was the hottest of the season.

A WYOMING VOLCANO.

New Crater Geyser Spouts Stones and Water With Alarming Vigor.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Secretary Noble has received the following dispatch from Superintendent Boutelle, at Mammoth Hot Springs, Wyoming, which seems to indicate the outburst of a volcano in that region:

"The following dispatch just received from Norris Basin: 'At 4:15 p. m. there was a severe shock of earthquake, followed by a terrible roar, and upon investigation it proved that the geyser called New Crater, had an eruption. It is throwing up a column of steam, stones and water about six hundred feet in circumference and to the height of about one hundred and twenty-five feet, and shaking the whole basin in that vicinity."

He Stole His Child.

BIDDEFORD, Me., July 9.—Joseph Boothby, whose petition for appointment as guardian of his minor child was denied by the Supreme Court some three years ago, came to Parsonsfield from Florida recently to visit the child. Two days ago, during the night, Boothby and the child disappeared, and it is thought Boothby has taken the child to Florida. The child was left considerable money at its mother's death three years ago.

They Are Not Armed.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 9.—The statements appearing in American papers dated Victoria, that the schooners were fitting here and at Marple Bay for the purpose of assistance to American revenue cutters in Behring Sea, are wholly without foundation.

Failure of Shoe Dealers.

READING, Pa., July 9.—Charles M. Hellman & Co., shoe dealers, have failed. The store is closed, and executions for $10,000 have been issued.

TEACHERS IN SESSION.

Matters Before the State Association at Saratoga.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 9.—The State Teachers' Association was called to order at 9:45 a. m., when President Gunnison announced the Standing Committees.

The next thing in order was the paper by Nicholas Murray Butler, P. H. D., of Columbia College, upon "The Duty of the University to the Teaching Profession."

In the discussion which followed, Frank S. Capen, P. H. D., principal of the State Normal School at New Paltz, presented his views with signal ability from the Normal School standpoint, taking the broad ground that among the agencies thus far devised the Normal School training stands pre-eminent in its aims to make successful teachers.

Francis J. Cheney, P.H.D., Principal of the Kingston Academy, advanced many interesting propositions from the point of view of the academy, claiming that in the common school and the academy the foundations of a stable government are laid, and that the time has gone by when it was necessary to apologize for the existence of training schools.

The afternoon session was devoted to the hearing of a paper by Hon. William A. Poste, Civil Service Commissioner, on the question, "Is special training in the schools for the political duties of citizenship practicable?"

THE LE CONEY MURDER.

New and Important Disclosures Said to Be Under Way.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 9.—A special from Columbus, Ohio, says: A gentleman who lives at Waverly, Ohio, the home of Miss Le Coney, who was murdered at the house of her uncle in New Jersey about a year ago, says that since Charles Le Coney's acquittal important evidence has been discovered tending not only to establish his innocence, but pointing strongly in the direction of another.

Detectives are now working on the case trying to get the $5,000 offered by Le Coney for the conviction of the murderer, and hope soon to have the suspected person under arrest.

He says that they have found that the blood blotches on the pantaloons produced as evidence in Le Coney's trial were put on them subsequent to the murder.

Dr. Wagner a Pauper Lunatic.

FREDERICK, Md., July 9.—Dr. Harrison Wagner, the litigant, who has been confined in the county jail here for the past three weeks, has been arrested under a petition in lunacy and taken before the Circuit Court on a writ of habeas corpus. He admitted that he is a lunatic pauper, and it was ordered that he be delivered into the custody of Hannah Wagner, his brother, of Ohio, to be taken by him to that State. He agrees to use his best endeavors to prevent him from the further prosecution of his suits against residents of Maryland and the Adams Express Company.

Boycotters Arrested.

DOVER, N. H., July 9.—Fogg & Vinal, shoe manufacturers, of Springvale, Me., have caused two of their workmen to be arrested and placed under $2,000 bonds for the next court to test the new law in Maine against conspiracy to boycott and to prevent nonunion men from working. H. C. Moulton, general organizer, has gone to Springvale, and it is reported that Fogg & Vinal will have him arrested if he interferes.

Telegraph Wires Burned Off.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The building 141 Chambers street, occupied by Barron & Co., dealers in wooden ware, was partially burned last night. Loss on buildings and contents, $50,000. The roof of the building was a landing place for wires, and about 200 telegraph and telephone wires were burned off, causing much interruption of communication and considerable loss to the companies.

Gov. Hill Will Not Go to Texas.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9.—Governor Hill has declined the invitation of the executive board of the Texas Bar Association to deliver the annual address before the association at Galveston, on August 7th next. In his letter the Governor says that official engagements will prevent so long an absence from the State as the trip to Galveston would necessitate.

A Successful Parachute Jump.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 9.—At the Manchester Driving Park, Prof. Cliff-Jones made a successful parachute jump from a balloon, floating at a height of 4,000 feet. For several hundred feet the parachute fell like a stone; it then opened, and its fall was retarded. It landed 1,500 feet from the starting point. The balloon came down uninjured about a mile away.

Narrow Escape of a Picnic Party.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 9.—A special to the Times from Meadville, Pa., says: The Meadville and Linesville excursion train, carrying the Baptist Sunday-school of Franklin, who picnicked at Conneaut Lake, was wrecked at Watson's run station last evening, injuring seriously but one out of the 1,000 passengers on board.

Golden Rod Has a Majority.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 9.—The Superintendent of Public Instruction announces the tabulation of the vote of the school children for a State flower. It shows the golden rod to have a decided majority, with the rose and daisy following in the order named. The buttercup received the smallest vote.

Vanderbilt's Yacht at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 9.—W. K. Vanderbilt's steam yacht Alva arrived here from Havre via Fayal. The family and guests in the party are all well.

SWEPT BY A CYCLONE

Many Houses Destroyed Along Lake Champlain.

SEVERAL LIVES REPORTED LOST

A Steam Tug Sunk by the Storm and the Crew Drowned.

Southwestern New York Suffers Severely. Jamestown Flooded and Property Badly Damaged—The Tornado Visits Vermont and Maine—A Number of Buildings Torn Down by the Wind.

SARATOGA, July 9.—Passengers on the midnight train from Montreal say the storm was general from Rouse's Point to Whitehall.

The force of the wind was terrific. Many small houses at Rouse's Point and other towns along the lake were lifted from their foundations and destroyed.

The Bluff Point Hotel suffered damage to the extent of $5,000. No one in the hotel was injured. So far a known one guest, name unknown, who was out in a small boat when the tornado struck the lake was drowned.

Trees and small buildings in the vicinity were torn down by the wind.

TROY, N. Y., July 9.—General Passenger Agent Burdick, of the Delaware & Hudson Company, left here at 1 o'clock this morning for Bluff Point. He said that his first information was that the hotel had been wrecked by a cyclone, and that sixteen lives had been lost. Later he learned that while the hotel had been considerably damaged only one person could not be accounted for. The storm lasted only a few minutes, but was of great severity.

THE STORM IN VERMONT.

A Report that a Steam Tug Was Sunk and the Crew Drowned.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 9.—The storm which occurred here last evening was the worst known for years, and several private yachts had narrow escapes from sinking.

The steamers Vermont and Chateaugay were both late at this port and fears were entertained for their safety, but both arrived safe. Word has been received here that the steam tug Little NeHie, Capt. Clark, of Willsboro, foundered off Rouse's Point at the beginning of the storm and sank, with Capt. Clark, his son and the engineer, a resident of Rouse's Point, name unknown, on board.

So far as learned no lives were lost in this immediate vicinity. Considerable damage was done to shade trees and lawns and some chimneys were blown off. A house in Underhill was struck by lightning and badly damaged.

Terrific Wind and Rain Storm.

WINTHROP, Me., July 9.—A remarkably severe wind and rain storm occurred last night, the wind reaching the velocity of a tornado. A large number of buildings were badly damaged, the wind seeming to cut a swath through the town about 200 feet wide. The belfry of the Methodist Church was blown off and fell upon Chester Shaw's house. Mrs. P. B. Shaw, Chester Shaw's mother, was terribly crushed by the falling of the roof.

Jamestown Flooded.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 9.—A storm of almost unprecedented severity visited Jamestown last night. The streets were quickly converted into raging torrents. Trees have been blown down, streets washed out, and lawns and sidewalks covered with debris. The loss will reach many thousand dollars. The wires are down in all directions.

Southwestern New York Visited.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 9.—Southwestern New York was visited by a severe wind and rain storm last evening. Reports from Fredonia, Salamanca and other places say that trees were uprooted, houses moved from their foundations, crops devastated and other damage done.

Bangor Suffers Severely.

BANGOR, Me., July 9.—The heaviest wind and rain storm known here for years swept over the city last night, unroofing several ice houses, blowing down trees and fences and prostrating wires.

Pensions for Women Nurses.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The Committee on Pensions reported favorably the bill proposing to grant pensions of $12 per month to all women who served as nurses six months or more during the war, who are now, from the results of such service or the infirmities of advancing age, unable to earn their support. The committee recommends the passage of the bill.

Cable to Bermuda Complete.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 9.—Advices from the cable ship Westmeath, which is now lying off Bermuda, say that great difficulty was found in laying the shore-end of the Halifax-Bermuda cable. The work has been successfully accomplished, however, and at noon Bermuda gained electrical communication with the civilized world.

A Congressional Candidate Withdraws.

MIDDLEBURG, Va., July 9.—J. K. Batchelder has withdrawn as a candidate for the nomination by the First District Republican Convention, which meets here to-day. Judge H. H. Powers will probably be nominated.

The President Returns to Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The President, Private Secretary Halford, and Mrs. and Miss Halford have arrived in Washington from Cape May.

Lottery Still Passed.

NEW ORLEANS, July 9.—The Lottery bill passed the House over the Governor's veto.

Violent Sewer Gas Explosion.

BOSTON, July 9.—As Michael Clancey and two other men were filling in a trench over a gas pipe which had just been laid in Lagrange street, opposite the manhole of the New England Electric Light Company, there was a violent explosion, probably of sewer gas, which hurled the three men from the trench out upon the sidewalk. Clancy was injured about the head and his leg was broken. The other men were unhurt.

Arbitrators to Settle a Strike.

LYNN, Mass., July 9.—The State Board of Arbitration has been called in by the Messrs. C. W. Varney, shoe dealers, to adjust the labor trouble in their shop. The Cutters' Union must now treat with this body instead of the firm. All the employes of the factory with the exception of the lasters remain out and will not return until a settlement is reached.

Vanderbilts in the Big Stock Yards Deal.

CHICAGO, July 9.—It is reported in Board of Trade circles that President Chauncey M. Depew, of the New York Central, will also be president of the reorganized Union Stock Yards, the Vanderbilts still having a large interest in the yards.

THE LONDON POLICE

The Strike a Fiasco but Rioting Continues.

ANOTHER ROW IN BOW STREET.

Several Ugly Rushes Between the Mob and the Police.

The Strike Rails Through for Lack of Organization—The Ringleaders Were Novices—Public Opinion Against the Movement—Passions of the Rioters Excited by the Brutality of the Police.

LONDON, July 9.—At 11 o'clock last night Bow street was in an uproar. Fifty thousand people blockaded the thoroughfare and neighboring streets away down to the Strand.

One hundred mounted police were continually moving and charging the crowd. Many men and boys were severely injured.

Some of the mounted officers were wounded by bricks, and one of the men had his nose smashed. He was led away amid a storm of jeers, hisses and missiles.

There were cries of "blacklegs and traitors" directed against the foot police.

It appears that the strike is a fiasco. The passions of the mob were, no doubt, excited by the brutality of the police, all of whom acted together against the crowd last night.

The police were placed at a decided disadvantage as regards justification, in attempting to strike upon the short notice they gave of their intentions, since every member of the force is bound by an agreement to give two months' notice of his purpose of abandoning the service.

The agitators of the strike were mainly novices, who had everything to gain and little to lose. The veterans of the force hesitated to sacrifice the benefits and advantages of their past long service by following the lead of their hot headed juniors and their hesitancy in the future will certainly be greater.

It is unquestionably to the coolness and better judgement of the older men in the service that the failure of the strike is due. These men had never committed themselves to an out-and-out strike and their reluctance to take the step influenced many of their colleagues who otherwise would have responded to the call for a general outbreak.

Two of the dissatisfied policemen have been sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment for having assaulted officers who were performing their duties.

The men are already weakening, and, unorganized as they are, a general strike is not likely to occur, but isolated disturbances are anticipated before matters return to their normal condition.

The dismissed constables are petitioning the authorities to condone their offences and reinstate them in their lost positions.

To-day the entire Metropolitan force either on duty or prepared to report for duty, none of the men having struck.

VICTIM OF THE HATFIELDS.

A Missing Detective Believed to Have Been Murdered by the Outlaws.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 9.—Detective J. W. Napier, better known as "Kentucky Bill," has been mysteriously missing for several weeks. When last seen he was at Racine, Boone county, and was on his way to Logan county, with the avowed intention of arresting the Hatfields on warrants charging them with the murder of Dave Stratton, at Brownstown.

When he left Kanawha he promised to write to one of his friends there, and although the letter has been expected for fully two weeks, it has not yet arrived.

His friends fear that he has been foully dealt with, and will never again be seen alive, as it is known that the Hatfields have more than once stated that they will never be taken by him, although they have expressed a willingness to come down and stand trial if anyone else will serve the warrants.

Cholera Much Worse Than Reported.

MADRID, July 9.—The new War Minister, who has visited Valencia, declares that the cholera epidemic is more serious than is generally believed. The Cabinet has decided to punish the local officials for concealing the true state of affairs.

Protesting Against German Authority.

LONDON, July 9.—A deputation headed by Sir Donald Currie waited upon Lord Salisbury and protested against the increase of German authority in South Africa, also urging the retention of Walfish Bay by England. Lord Salisbury promised to consider the matter.

American Pork Not Prohibited.

BERLIN, July 9.—A report has been forwarded to Washington by United States Consul Johnson which states that Hamburg, Lubeck, Rostock and other free cities of Germany are not included in the law prohibiting the importation of pork.

War on the Mormons in Switzerland.

LONDON, July 9.—The Federal Council of Switzerland has been petitioned to expel all Mormons from the country. The petition is very largely signed by the poorer classes, who openly threaten violence to the Mormons if the Government does not drive them out.

British Troops Must Evacuate Egypt.

LONDON, July 9.—The Turkish Government has sent a note to the British Government demanding that it fix a date upon which Egypt will be evacuated by the British troops without the right to again occupy that country.

A GRAND PROCESSION.

Over Six Thousand Knights of Pythias Parade in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 9.—Unquestionably the grandest procession, civil or military, ever seen in this city was the Knights of Pythias parade of uniform rank and non-uniform Knights. It took two hours for the procession to pass a given point.

Careful estimates by Pythian officers as well as by well posted military men and civilians, place the number of men in line at over 6,000. The uniform rank men in line numbered nearly 6,000, nearly every regiment in the United States and Canada being represented.

As the vast column moved down Grand avenue and brigade after brigade fell in from the side streets, a grander scene of glittering pageantry could not well be imagined.

After the parade the Supreme Lodge convened at West Side Turner Hall, Supreme Vice-Chancellor Shaw presiding. The annual report shows that the order had a membership at the close of 1889 of 263,847, and now about 275,000. In treasuries of grand lodges, $115,938.08; subordinate lodges, $1,755,203. Paid for relief in past year, $789,455.53.

Vice-Chancellor George B. Shaw, Eau Claire, Wis., will undoubtedly be elected Supreme Chancellor. There will be a hard fight on the question of crushing out local insurance companies connected with grand lodges.

TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

The Missing Steamship Glasgow Arrives at Kingston, Jamaica.

NEW YORK, July 9.—A cablegram received here announces the arrival at Kingston, Jamaica, of the missing steamship Glasgow.

The vessel put into that port for supplies, and reports terrible experiences from hunger for two weeks past. She left this city June 1st for Barbados, arriving and leaving there June 14th. Her next port was Venezuela, two days' journey. She failed to make that port, rough weather throwing her entirely out of her course.

She had on board a week's supplies, and these ran out late in June. Since then her crew has had little or nothing to eat, and were in a terrible condition when they reached Kingston.

The Pure Beer Advocates.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The Ways and Means Committee has decided to give the advocates of the Pure Lager Beer bill another hearing. Petitions signed by 20,000 persons in favor of the bill will be presented to the committee. The malsters of Philadelphia and New York have taken hold of the bill and will back it up to the extent of their ability.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EVERYBODY'S PAPER, THIS.

Off the lavish patronage of the people, we have waxed fat and grown considerably. You can't get the Earth at any price, but The Press is still sold for two cents and is bigger than the World, today.

We propose to continue to please and to prosper. Remember that although The Press does not always suit you, neither does it always suit us; yet its every issue suits somebody. You may not like pie plant, but you don't change your grocer because he keeps it, too. Some of his customers like pie plant, and at the same time he has plenty of else to please the rest of us. This is everybody's paper.

You will always find to-morrow's news in today's Press—it's the only newspaper in Plainfield. Just think of it! 19 columns of personal mention, local happenings, gossip, church notes, all the doings in town and society, and general miscellany, left daily at your house for ten cents a week.

BY THE WAY.

—A very interesting programme has been arranged for the Reform Club meeting, to-morrow evening.

—There will be no regular communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., again until September 9.

—The New Jersey Central Railroad Company announces another excursion to Mauch Chunk on Wednesday of next week.

—A horse belonging to Councilman Roberts fell in the harness on North avenue, yesterday afternoon, overcome by the heat.

—Mr. E. P. Thorn has purchased of E. A. Campbell, a valuable young horse, which for speed and beauty has but few equals in this section.

—It is understood that a complaint is to be lodged against one of the main witnesses in the Day case, yesterday, for robbing a hen roost on the Boulevard, recently.

—On account of his large private class Mr. Venino will not teach at the Seminary during next year. Attention is called to his advertisement in another column.

—Nellie Heppel was arrested by Special Marshal Coddington in North Plainfield, last evening, for being drunk and disorderly. Justice Hardy fined her three dollars and costs.

—On the first page of The Press today, is an account of the grand procession of Knights of Pythias at Milwaukee. Among the 6,000 in line were a number of delegates from this city.

—There are almost enough people at Washington Rock every Sunday afternoon to make a hotel pay at that point. If the Crescent Rink were only up at the Rock somebody might be getting rich.

—A regular adjourned meeting of Gazelle Engine company, will be held in their parlors this evening at eight o'clock, at which a full attendance is desired as business of importance is to be brought before the meeting.

—Peter Grimes, a youth, was arrested in Elizabeth on Saturday, for begging from house to house. As Grimes is wanted in this city for some petty offense, the Judge thought it would be safest to commit him for thirty days.

—The second regatta of the Cranford Boating Association will be held Saturday afternoon next at 3:30, providing the weather permits. The first carnival of the season will be held Saturday night, July 26, which may be witnessed from all bridges and the banks of the river.

—Charles Smith, the lessor of the Middlesex Gun Club grounds, gave an entertainment there yesterday to a number of his friends, who indulged in shooting at live birds and inanimate targets. There was much rivalry among the contestants, but physic finally triumphed over flesh. It was a good all around entertainment.

—Messrs Jeremiah Manning, J. A. Hubbard and E. C. Mulford, the commissioners appointed at the Council meeting on Monday evening, to assess the damages to residents resulting from the proposed extension of Orchard place East to New street, will meet for that purpose within a few days, and report at the next regular meeting of the Council.

THE CLERKS' MEETING.

A Public Demonstration in Favor of the Early Closing Movement—The Attendance Small but the Enthusiasm Great.

Pursuant to an announcement a mass meeting was held in Music Hall, last evening, under the auspices of the Clerks' Early Closing Association, but owing either to the extreme heat or a lack of interest in the matter, the attendance was small.

Previous to the meeting the clerks made a short street parade, preceded by the Plainfield Cornet Band, and arriving at the hall the musicians took seats in the orchestra, discoursing popular airs during the evening. President Jeremiah Moore called the meeting to order, and Wm. A. Coddington acted as chairman of the meeting. The latter stated the object of the meeting, which he said was to advocate the early closing movement.

The first speaker announced was the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who spoke on the line of general principles. He was followed by the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, who ably and forcibly illustrated both sides of the question. He also told of the three classes who are directly interested in the early closing movement, namely: the store keepers, the clerks and the buyers. He contended that no resolutions which might be passed or no public demonstration could coerce the store keepers into closing their places of business. Again, he said, the merchants are conducting their business in accordance with the contract which the clerks voluntarily enter into when they engage. Mr. Mitchell also spoke of the temptations which the saloons hold out to the clerks during their leisure moments. He nevertheless hailed the early closing movement, and considered that both the merchants and the clerks need more rest.

The Rev. Father Freeman of North Plainfield, expressed himself as with heart and soul in sympathy with the movement. He said if the merchants wanted to keep open at night they should put on two gangs of clerks.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis spoke in favor of making eight hours constitute a day's work, and the Rev. A. R. Dilts thought that the best way out of the difficulty is to create a public sentiment and educate the people into making their purchases in the day time. If keeping away from the merchants who persist in keeping open at night is boycotting, it is in the interest of humanity and is therefore morally right.

The Revs. W. R. Richards, W. E. Honeyman and C. L. Goodrich all spoke in favor of early closing, and the Rev. E. M. Rodman thought that a little sound advice to the merchants would be listened to with "my tale of woe." He favored first making eight hours constitute a day's work, and then to advocate five working days in a week.

The Rev. C. Schenck was introduced as the last speaker. He considered that with the proper amount of enthusiasm success would at last be attained.

A unanimous vote was taken in favor of early closing, a vote of thanks was tendered the speakers, and the meeting adjourned.

Bitten by a Snake.

Charles Cashen, a resident of North Plainfield, while at work in a stone quarry just Northwest from Scotch Plains, yesterday afternoon, was bitten on the left arm by a huge snake of the mountain pilot species. The man was loading stone on a wagon, when the snake sprang at him, biting his arm near the wrist. The arm was soon swollen to immense proportions, and the pain was intense.

Cashen was brought to this city in a carriage and Dr. E. W. Hedges dressed the wound. Today the patient is much better, although his arm is yet terribly swollen and inflamed. The reptile, which measured about four feet in length, was killed.

Fat vs. Lean.

On Friday of this week one of the most interesting base ball games of the season will take place on the Crescent League ball grounds, between a team composed of fat men whose aggregate weight is 1981 pounds, and the lawyers of this city. Following is a list of the fat men, together with their individual weight and the positions they will occupy:

| | Pounds |
|---|---|
| Keller, 1b | 225 |
| Bowman, p | 202 |
| Russ, ss | 230 |
| McMahon, c | 224 |
| Gaddis, 3b | 220 |
| Smith, 2b | 235 |
| Evans, lf | 230 |
| Wilbur, cf | 218 |
| Miller, rf | 197 |

"Ed" Marble, the minstrel, will umpire the game.

Either a Light or a Jingle.

The ordinance to regulate the use of bicycles after dark in this city, introduced by Councilman Smith, Monday evening, was prepared by the Corporation Counsel who is a persistent rider himself. It requires that all persons riding at such time must carry a light or have a bell ringing perpetually.

A Press Poet's Personal Experience.

Now the maiden spends her hours,
In the shady hillside bowers,
And the flowers blush with envy when she smiles;
While the idol of her soul,
Flies him to the swimming-hole,
And the waters of the brooklet gently riles.

—The heat was so thick in The Press office yesterday, that it could be cut off anywhere in large dark green slices, and the Zulu and the Hottentot were envied of all men.

CASEY IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

He is Called Upon to Show Cause Why He Should Not be Removed From the Police Force.

The Police Board held a regular meeting last evening for the transaction of such business as might come before it. All the members were present except Mayor Male, as follows: President Roberts, Secretary Hetfield, and Councilmen Moffett and Spangenberg. The following communication was received:

To the President and Members of the Police Board:

GENTLEMEN:—Inasmuch as ex-Captain of Police Tunis J. Carey's three months suspension has expired, and as he has not yet reported for active service, I deem it my duty under the Police Board rules and regulations, to report the matter to your honorable body.

Signed, GEO. W. GRANT,
Captain of Police.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., July 8, 1890.

By a unanimous vote of the Board, the Secretary was instructed to "notify policeman Carey to appear at the next meeting of the Board to be held at the office of Councilman Hetfield, next Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, and show cause, if he was any, why he should not be removed from the police force of the City of Plainfield for failure to perform duty."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Maggie Wear of Orange, is visiting her Grandfather, J. P. Brokaw of East Third street.

Miss Mabel Smith and Masters Thomas U. and H. Clifford, are at Glen Cove, L. I., Summering.

"Joe" Roberts of Easton, Pa., is visiting his uncle, Councilman D. S. Roberts of North avenue.

Seeley Edsall and family started today for a six weeks outing at the Thousand Islands.

Mrs. H. T. Smith and Miss Elsie Smith have gone to Highland Mills, Orange county, for the Summer.

At the First Baptist church on Sunday evening next, there will be a special musical service under the direction of E. J. Fitzhugh.

Miss Grace Beake, of Orange, is the guest of Miss Randolph at the home of ex-Mayor Randolph, Front street and Farragut avenue.

Morgan S. Taylor and family of Rockview avenue, Washington Park, North Plainfield, will Summer at the "Goodnow House," Franconia, N. H.

The officers of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., paid a fraternal visit to Geo. H. Adams Council, at Newark, last evening, and a very enjoyable time was had.

Dr. W. E. Mattison, the attending physician, reports the condition as improved of Mrs. Amos P. Gray and Bertie, her son, who were injured in the runaway accident at Washington Valley, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Vroom and family, of No. 39 Somerset street, started this afternoon for Boston, from which place they go to Niagara Falls and thence to Toledo, Ohio, where they will remain for the Summer with Mrs. Vroom's parents.

Gen. and Mrs. Eli Long and family of Grove street, left last evening for their Summer residence at Penn Yan, N. Y., where the General has one of the largest vineyards in the country. The family will remain there until Fall, and the General will divide his time between fishing, hunting and business.

The Jury Found Him Not Guilty.

The adjourned case of the City vs. James Day, on a charge of interfering with the police in the discharge of their duty, came up before City Judge Codington and a jury in the City Court room, yesterday, the case occupying the greater part of the day. Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh conducted the prosecution and Hon. John T. Dunn of Elizabeth, represented the defence. Some half dozen witnesses testified for the defendant, while the only witnesses for the city were the two officers, Giesse and Kelly. After the testimony was all taken, counsel summed up, and the case was given to the jury late in the afternoon. After a two hours deliberation a verdict of not guilty was rendered.

A Good Old Mason's Cherished Hope.

Right Worshipful Brother Timothy H. Morse, the oldest Mason in New Jersey, who is nearing his ninetieth year, is highly elated over the idea that his long cherished hope, that all Masonic bodies of Plainfield share one roof, is soon to be realized. He will live to see it, is what we long ago assured him.—Royal Craftsman.

Brother Morse's active mind and still steady fingers have also become infused with his interest in the scheme, as is proven by original and artistic architectural designs in the pharmacy of High Priest Miller, drawn by Brother Morse merely to set forth for his own satisfaction his own idea of a Masonic Temple for the joint occupancy of Arch Masons, Chapter members and Knights Templar.

New Voting Machinery.

Already there is a discussion as to the probable expense incurred in providing the necessary election machinery under the new law. It is necessary to fit up polling booths, and the increased cost to each county will range between $2,000 and $10,000, according to size and population. It is also thought doubtful if the glass ballot boxes, which all the counties were required by law to provide themselves with a few years ago, will answer the purpose any longer, as the official envelopes, in which the ballots are to be enclosed, will not, it is stated, go through the machinery at the mouth.

Lawn Party.

The scholars of the Friends' First-day school were tendered a lawn party on the lawn adjoining the meeting house at Peace and Third streets, yesterday afternoon, which was thoroughly enjoyed by those present. During the afternoon refreshments were served, and Editor A. M. Powell delivered an address.

Intense Heat.

Yesterday's heat was something terrible yet no cases of sun-stroke have been reported. At two o'clock in the afternoon the thermometer registered 102 degrees in the shade, at 6 o'clock it had only dropped to 96, and at 8 P. M. the mercury registered 88 degrees.

Nine Hours' Work, Ten Hours' Pay.

Boston, July 9.—A large number of the coopers of Boston and its vicinity have obtained the nine-hour labor day without reduction of wages, to obtain which they organized three months ago. At a meeting of L. A. 4,956 last night their committee reported that the following ale brewers had conceded the nine hours with ten hours' pay: Rueter & Co., John R. Alley, Kenny & Co., McCormack and J. Souther. The lager beer brewers have not been heard from, but they are expected to grant the demand.

His Grave in Owasco Lake.

Waterloo, N. Y., July 9.—A dispatch was received here early in the morning that the body of Albert Dohles, of this place was found in Owasco Lake, near the Ensenore Glen House. William Dohles, his son, received the following letter from him Monday night: "Good bye, William, my grave is in Owasco Lake. Your mother is the cause of it." Young Dohles started at once for Ensenore, arriving there shortly after the body was recovered. The suicide was 42 years of age.

Reunion of the Kingman Family.

Brockton, Mass., July 9.—About 300 members of the Kingman family held a reunion here. The first Kingman family came from England to Weymouth, Mass., in 1635. Major Douglass welcomed the visitors and ex-Governor Ladd of Rhode Island responded. The visitors came from all parts of the country.

Psotta Loses the First Heat.

London, July 9.—In the first heat of the rowing race for the diamond sculls, at Henley, Kennedy defeated Psotta by four lengths.

The Saratoga Detained By Storm.

London, July 9.—The United States schoolship Saratoga has been detained by storms, and has not yet arrived at Southampton, from Plymouth.

New Yorkers Win Cups.

Berlin, July 9.—In the rifle contests here Messrs. Busse, Kraus and Schroeder of New York won cups.

Weir Knocked Connor Out.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 9.—Weir knocked Connor out by a savage blow on the jugular in the third round.

PREHISTORIC REMAINS.

Prof. Leidy's Discoveries of Fossil Bones in Florida.

Big boxes full of curious old bones have been arriving lately at the Biological School of the University of Pennsylvania, pending a resting place in the working room of Prof. Joseph Leidy, the famous anatomist. They are were found in Levy County, Fla. The specimens have been carefully wrapped up in Florida moss and other packing to prevent breaking on the way north.

These bones are hundreds of years old. They belong to extinct creatures of the quaternary period. Dr. Leidy has been hard at work identifying the animals of which the bones form part, and this identification is now complete. His conclusions are very interesting. The chief bones, he says, are those of a rhinoceros, a mastodon, a llama, a three-toed horse and a giant sloth. There are also parts of a tapir, a small crocodile and a gar pike.

In 1887 a gentleman living in Archer, in Northern Florida, found some fossil bones in beds of clay, and wrote to the late Prof. Baird of the Smithsonian Institute about them. At that time scientists were not expecting the discovery of fossil remains in Florida at all, and Prof. Baird, becoming interested, suggested to Dr. Leidy that he go there and search for more bones. Dr. Leidy, being unable to do so, interested Major Powell, Superintendent of the United States Geological Survey, in the matter, and the latter sent one of his assistants, Mr. Dall, to Archer for two weeks.

Dr. Leidy identifies the rhinoceros as a variety whose skeleton has never before been found in this country east of the Mississippi. It is about the size of the present Indian rhinoceros, but has tusks eight inches long instead of three inches, and was probably hornless. It lived in Florida in the quaternary period, previous to the appearance of man. The mastodon, whose bones were found, Dr. Leidy calculates to have been half as large again as the present Asiatic elephant, and a different species from the common mastodon, whose remains have been found in almost every State in the Union. One of the giant sloths, pronounced by Dr. Leidy the megatherium, was also as large as the Asiatic elephant. The only living sloth known, about the size of a terrier, is a tree animal.

Dr. Leidy is satisfied that the elephant, tiger, horse and camel, being found in the same cave, lived at the same time, and thinks it likely that the others had been brought to the spot by the tiger as its food. The finding of the bones of a horse is considered strong evidence that the common horse once existed on this continent and afterward became extinct. These animals are also placed in the quaternary period.

Until these recent discoveries the eyes of scientists had not been turned toward Florida in expectation of finding fossil remains. European geologists are now on the qui vive to hear the descriptions of the animals unearthed there. The Bad Lands, Dak., and Bridger, Wyo. T., are two of the prominent fossil fields in the West.—N. Y. Star.

What a Dunce!

I suffered with fever, hot head and foul breath. With stomach disordered—was sick unto death. I bore it a week—surely I was a dunce— Then I took a few "Pellets"—they cured me at once.

What a dunce, indeed, to neglect such a remedy and suffer a week when quick relief could have been found in Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

AN OPEN LETTER.
Mr. Seely Edsall,
Plainfield, N. J.
In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopedia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.
We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.
You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.
Yours truly,
R. S PEALE & CO.
Remember that Mr. Edsall is the only authorized agent for Plainfield for the sale of these books at the wonderful low price of $1 50 per volume.

INVESTING OUT OF TOWN.

A Plainfield Man Interested in a Street Railway at Ocean Grove.

The Ocean Grove and Shark River Street Railway company has filed articles of incorporation with the Secretary of State, with the objects in view of constructing a street railway from the intersection of Main street and Cookman avenue, in Asbury Park to the public road leading from Asbury Park to Belmar, a distance of two miles. The company has a capital stock of $75,000. The incorporators are: Howard L. Chandler, of Philadelphia; W. L. G. Thomas, of Wilmington; James Middlekitch, of this city; Edward M. Fielder, of Ocean Grove; Daniel W. Sisson, James E. Wartmen and John Hubbard, of Asbury Park.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following changes in real estate have recently been made in this city:

Edwin Bachman & wife, of New York to Henry Liefke, of Plainfield, land on Main street, Plainfield, first lot containing 7-100 acres of land, second lot 25x35 feet. $12,000

Charles Potter and wife, of Plainfield, to William M. Stillman, of Plainfield, land on Seventh street, Plainfield ..... 2,366

Susan B. Martin and husband, of Plainfield, to William J. Pearson, of North Plainfield, land North corner Lee place and Third street, Plainfield, 100x150 feet 4,850

William J. Pearson and wife to Samuel R. Wheeler, same tract ..... 4,850

J. Frank Hubbard and wife, of Plainfield, to Charles Potter, Jr., of Plainfield, land on Seventh street, Plainfield, beginning corner of Jonathan Doty's land ..... 1,800

Mary Ann Rogers, widow Daniel B. Rogers of Horseheads, Chemung Co., N. Y. to George H. Babcock, of Plainfield, land on Madison avenue 134 feet from Fourth street, 134x125 feet ..... 4,800

Abraham B. Dunlap of Plainfield, to Tunis J. Carey of Plainfield, land Northwest corner Front and Grove streets, Plainfield, 60x85 feet ..... 14,500

Agreement between Abraham B. Dunlap and Tunis J. Carey and wife, whereby the latter agree to convey said land back to Dunlap if they are unable to pay in two years and sixty days $2,000 on account of said principal of ..... 14,500

An Obstreperous Family.

There is a "crib" on West Fourth street, near Park avenue, which should be weeded out by the police, and the occupants ordered to leave the city. The place is occupied by Jacob Snyder, an old man, and his family, and the members of the family are continually at variance with the neighbors. Monday morning Snyder threw a bucket of water over one of his neighbor's children, and this led to a [illegible] tongue lashing between the two families, attracting a large number of spectators.

The old man is very abusive with his tongue, and the family has already moved from the neighborhood on account of the frequent brawls and disturbances created by this one individual. The neighbors are loud in denouncing the place as a nuisance, and the matter should be attended to without further delay.

Since the above was written Snyder has been served with a warrant of arrest, charged with violating the second and third sections of the peace and moral ordinance, and his hearing is set down for to-morrow afternoon.

Accused of Larceny, But Acquitted.

Some six months ago Amos B. Stites of Grove street, in the borough of North Plainfield, packed his household goods and furniture and stored them in a dwelling on the aforesaid street; he and his wife then took a pleasure trip to the far West.

On their return a few days ago, upon an examination of their stored goods, several articles were missing and upon inquiry, they were informed by some one (evidently of an envious or malicious disposition), that a certain married lady of the borough, of unquestioned integrity, had been seen about the premises, and upon this information Mr. Stites immediately sought Justice Hardy, made a charge of larceny and the woman was arrested. The accused employed W. R. Codington, of Jackson & Codington, and at 7 P. M., yesterday the trial took place, resulting in a verdict in her favor.

In all probability a suit for false imprisonment against Mr. Stites will follow.

A Young Plainfielder Vice President of a Texas Bank.

Fort Worth is rapidly becoming the financial center of Texas, and nothing is bringing this about faster than the establishment of National banks in the towns and cities of that section in which Fort Worth capital is largely invested.

Last month another National bank was added to the number in which citizens of Fort Worth hold stock and are directors, with a capital stock of $50,000, and Wm. D. Craig of North Plainfield was elected Vice President.

Will Not Interfere With the Work.

About a dozen Italians were brought out from New York, yesterday, to work on the water works plant at Netherwood, and today the men quit work, after demanding $1.50 per day. The men were offered $1.35 a day, which is fifteen cents more than the laborers on the New Jersey Central Railroad get. A gang of new men have been engaged to proceed with the work.

A Prosperous Plainfield Paper.

(From the New York World)

The Plainfield Daily Press has been forced to enlarge on account of the pressure of business. It is a bright, newsy paper.

How tempting! Something "just as good" is offered when Hires' Root Beer is called for. The reason is plain. The unprincipled dealer makes more profit on imitation goods. The wise ones insist on getting Hires'.

A SUGAR MAN IN THE BOOK BUSINESS.

James Taylor One of the Incorporators of a Big Publishing Concern.

At the office of Secretary of State Kelsey, yesterday, the United States Book Company, a New York concern, filed articles of incorporation. Their New Jersey office is to be located in Jersey City. The objects of the company are to manufacture, sell, deal in, print and publish books, magazines and pamphlets, etc. The capital stock amounts to $3,250,000, divided into 32,500 shares of $100 each. The entire amount is paid up. The incorporators are: Horace K. Thurber, Samuel Thomas, Chester W. Chapin, Edward Lange and John W. Lovell of New York city; Michael A. Donahue of Chicago; James D. Sofford of Springfield, Mass.; James A. Taylor, of this city; Erastus Wiman of St. George, N. Y. Edward Lange holds 32,492 shares of the stock.

At the New York Theatres.

"Castles in the Air" begins the tenth week of its run at the Broadway next Monday evening with every prospect of continued prosperity. The hot weather does not seem to have any material effect upon the attendance so far, probably because the interior of the theatre is always kept at least ten degrees lower than the atmosphere outside. Mr. Hopper and his company also seem proof against the heat, for their every performance is just as lively and spirited as of old. Preparations are already being made by the managers, Locke and Davis, for the celebration of the one hundredth performance of "Castles in the Air" on August 11, when an entirely new and valuable souvenir will be presented to those in attendance.

J. H. Hill will probably open the season at his Standard Theatre a little earlier than at first anticipated. Negotiations are now in progress for a new farce-comedy called "The U. S. Mail," with Frank Davis as the star, to open the theatre on August 18. Minnie Palmer will follow with her new play, "My Prima Donna," on September 1, for a run of several weeks, after which Gus Thomas' "Reckless Temple" will be produced with Maurice Barrymore as the stellar feature.

John L. Sullivan will begin his career as an actor, and, at the same time, open the Fall season at Niblo's on August 18, with the new play, "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands," which Duncan Harrison is now writing for him. The Lilliputian German Opera Company, from Berlin, will succeed John L. for a few weeks, and then spectacular production, "Nero." Mr. Gilmore has so much faith in this production that he is holding his entire season open after October 18, with the expectation that the piece will run the season out.

Census of the Jersey Cities.

Throughout the State of New Jersey there is admittedly a large increase in population since 1880. The following figures, more or less honest, speak for themselves, and show a growth of about 30 per cent during the last ten years:

|---|---|---|
| Newark | 181,320 | 136,508 |
| Jersey City | 163,000 | 120,722 |
| Elizabeth | 37,900 | 28,229 |
| Paterson | 78,000 | 51,031 |
| Passaic | 13,000 | 6,513 |
| New Brunswick | 18,452 | 17,166 |
| Trenton | 56,000 | 29,910 |
| Camden | 58,000 | 41,659 |
| Hoboken | 43,000 | 30,999 |
| Bayonne | 18,000 | 9,372 |
| Orange | 18,846 | 13,307 |
| Plainfield | 11,360 | 8,126 |
| | 696,872 | 493,442 |

"The Salmon Fisher."

The Angling Fraternity will welcome with no small degree of pleasure the very seasonable appearance of Charles Hallock's latest work, entitled "The Salmon Fisher." From the literary reputation which the author has enjoyed for a period covering more than a generation, the public are prepared to receive whatever he writes with confidence. His habit of practical observation and wide experience in the field of which he discourses would seem to authorize him to write anything. The book meets an immediate popular demand. It is full of valuable hints to salmon anglers, and replete with reminiscences of adventure. Mr. Hallock is spending the Summer in Plainfield.

The Game Laws in Brief.

The open seasons for shooting game are as follows: Quail, ruffed grouse, grey squirrel and rabbits, Nov. 1 to Dec. 15, inclusive. Woodcock, during the month of July and from Oct. 1 to Dec. 15, inclusive. Upland or grass plover, Aug. 1 to Dec. 15, inclusive. English snipe during the months of March and April, also between the 1st day of October and 15th of December, inclusive. The penalty for violation of the law in case of reed bird, rail bird and marsh hen is $5, and for others $20.

An Enormous Hay Crop.

The hay crop in Northern New Jersey is the biggest that has been gathered in years. Some of the farmers have more hay than they know what to do with, and instead of gathering it they simply cut it down and leave it in the fields as a fertilizer. They say it will pay them better to thresh their wheat and rye so as to sell the straw. They get $17 a ton for long straw, while hay is as low as $6 a ton.

—This is another one of those days you like to read about.

A CURIOUS GREEN-HOUSE.

Valuable Work Done By the Bureau of Vegetable Pathology.

Probably the most curious greenhouse in the world is supported at Washington by the United States Government. For whereas ordinary conservatories are maintained with a view to securing health, this one is kept up for the purpose of propagating diseases in plants. It is a hospital of all useful things that grow from the soil, and the disorders from which the patients suffer are inflicted upon them artificially, in order that the nature of the complaints may be ascertained and methods of combatting them discovered.

The Department of Agriculture here has a dozen agents in various parts of the country who do nothing but travel about and collect specimens of diseased plants, which are promptly sent to Washington with descriptions of the injuries done and the extent of depredations. Professor Galloway, who has charge of this work, upon receiving a twig exhibiting morbid symptoms, starts in to find out what sort of fungus is responsible for the mischief. Very nearly all disorders of plants are caused by parasitic fungi, of which there are 50,000 kinds; so it isn't always easy to tell off-hand just which one is the destroyer. If the latter is not readily recognizable by its known effects, the germ incubator must be resorted to.

This is a hatchery of fungus spores, somewhat on the principle of an egg incubator, but resembling to the eye outside a miniature furnace. Inside there is a compartment above that is kept heated by a spirit lamp below always to the temperature of a hundred and sixty degrees Fahrenheit. Suppose the Professor has been sent a leaf that is affected by a mysterious disease, burning it brown. His experienced eye detects the fact that it is covered with a deadly fungus of some sort. So he breaks off a scrap of the leaf and chops it up in a saucer of distilled water, and, when he knows that the water must be filled with the germ, he takes a drop of it and lets it fall into a tube that already contains a small quantity of gelatinous substance derived from a Japanese fish called "agar." This substance has previously been rid of all germs by boiling, and it is tightly corked up again at once, to prevent any other germs from getting in.

Now, it happens that this agar is most nutritious and palatable food for the fungus germs, and no sooner is the drop of water let fall into the tube than the little spores which cause the disease of the leaf begin to feed and multiply. If there is only one to begin with, it grows big enough in a few minutes to divide itself into two whole ones; each of these presently divide into two, and so on until within a few hours there are billions. Still the professer can not be absolutely certain that those are the germs of the disease he is trying to find out about save in one way. He fishes a few of them out on the end of a platinum needle and rubs them on a leaf of the same sort of plant in his green house. If the disease is reproduced in the plant thus inoculated, he has found the enemy. That is the first important step; it only remains to discover something that will kill it.

Prof. Galloway's Bureau of Vegetable Pathology has been in operation now for only four years, but it has accomplished a great deal already. It has found out how to demolish twelve of the fifty kinds of dangerous fungi that attack the grape. Likewise a cure has been found for the fire-rot, which turns the limbs of pear trees black and dead so quickly. The germ of potato-rot, too, has been identified and means found of fighting it effectively and cheaply. The same may be said of more than a dozen diseases of other things vegetable. At present attention is being given to the troubles of the rose, as well as to a new disease which is destroying thousands of dollars' worth of hollyhocks in northern greenhouses. The professor propagates some disease germs "for their beauty," as he expresses it—because colonies of them in the tubes are bright red, blue, green and other colors.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AROUND THE WORLD.

The Cost of Such a Trip and the Route to Be Taken.

An interesting suggestion of the ease and cheapness with which a journey around the globe can be made these days is given in a form of imaginary coupon ticket headed, "Around the world in seventy days." It consists of fourteen coupons containing the names of the different lines of transportation and the fares, as follows:

|---|---|
| Boston to Chicago | $ 22.50 |
| Chicago to Council Bluffs | 12.50 |
| Council Bluffs to Ogden | 43.00 |
| Ogden to San Francisco | 35.00 |
| O. & C. S. S. Co., San Francisco to Yokohama | 200.00 |
| P. & O. S. S. Co., Yokohama to Hong Kong | 80.00 |
| P. & O. S. S. Co., Hong Kong to Brindisi | 225.00 |
| Italian Government railroad, Brindisi to Modane | 24.00 |
| P., L. & M. railroad, Modane to Paris | 16.75 |
| Northern of France railroad, Paris to Calais | 7.20 |
| London, Chatham & Dover railroad, Calais to London (via Dover) | 2.00 |
| London & Northwestern railway, London to Liverpool | 7.00 |
| Steamship company, Liverpool to New York | 100.00 |
| Fall River Line, New York to Boston | 4.00 |

The total cost of the decidedly "round" trip indicated by these tickets is $871.95, which for a journey of something like 25,000 miles is not excessive. The cost of the ocean travel could be very considerably reduced, as for instance the voyage from Liverpool to New York, the cost of which is stated at $100, could be made first-class for $60, and reductions on other portions of the route are possible. We imagine that some of the prominent tourist agencies could give figures for the around-the-world journey considerably more favorable than these.—Railway Age.

He Had What He Wanted.

Wheel-of-fortune man (at a country fair, addressing a green, awkward youth who is trying to meddle with his wares) —Well, sir, what do you want?

Green youth (with a backwoods stare) —Nothin'.

Wheel-of-fortune man—All right. You have it there under your hat.—West Shore.

IS MARRIAGE POPULAR?

The Question Answered by a Man Who Knows What He Is Talking About.

A suspicion seems to be gaining currency in some quarters that the old, old bauk of love has failed, says the Burlington Free Press. Because here and there some private broker's establishment has gone under the people are beginning to get fidgety, forsooth, about the great international banking system of sentiment.

Nonsense!

And yet, let us see. Marriage is getting to be unpopular with the Mormons and bigamists. Certainly they are an unhappy lot, these fellows. We have never yet met a man who married on the strength of divorce, or who had two or three wives living in different parts of the country, who was really a cheerful and contented individual.

Marriage in moderation is a good thing, but too much of it—well, too much of it is certainly apt to make a man sneaking, misanthropic, round-shouldered and bald.

Marriage is also getting to be unpopular with those who have had too little of it. The bachelors and old maids don't think much of marriage—according to their own showing. Neither of them know any thing about it, of course, but that don't make any difference. It simply gives the ill-disposed imagination a big swing, and yet old bachelors and old maids think that they have a sort of oracular right to denounce the marriage relation—just as much right, perhaps, as the fox has to sit and look up at grapes soured by distance.

Marriage is also getting to be unpopular with the men who collect statistics of crime. It takes many a job out of their hands, and gives them more time than they relish to rule blank columns and speculate on the degeneracy of primitive institutions.

Finally, marriage is getting to be unpopular with the anarchist, the undertaker, the black-leg, the thug, the cynic, the hermit and the man who would like to see the world rolling swiftly down to destruction like a big foot-ball. Yes, marriage certainly is an unpopular institution with some persons, but it is an institution that the world is going to try to put up with for a little while longer at least.

THIRTY YEARS SILENT.

Mrs. Merrifield's Adherence to the Vow Provoked by Her Husband.

The death of Mrs. Susan E. Merrifield revives interest in one of the most peculiar cases ever known of a vow of silence made and kept thirty years, says an Americus (Ga.) dispatch to the Philadelphia Times. In 1860 Mrs. Merrifield, who, it is said, was a little woman of a peculiarly bright and cheery disposition, was telling her husband of some occurrence, when he requested her in a very surly manner to be silent, adding that the sound of her voice was hateful to him.

It seems that Mr. Merrifield, while a good husband in every other way, was in the habit of venting his displeasure when aroused by outside matters by ill humor with his wife, whose good nature usually passed his testiness by, but on this occasion she replied that as it was hateful to him he should never hear her voice again. And he never did, nor did any other person ever hear it, for in spite of her husband's remorse and remonstrances from friends and relatives, Mrs. Merrifield kept her vow, though she continued to act the part of a good wife and mother, fulfilling every duty scrupulously. She even bore three children to her husband after this vow was taken. When communication was absolutely necessary with those about her she used a slate, but reduced a language of signs to such perfection in governing her household and children that it was but seldom that this slate was resorted to.

It was thought that when her husband died she would resume the use of her speech, but while she sat by his dying bed, devoted and loving to the last, in answer to his supplications that she speak but a word to him, wrote on the slate with all the evidences of grief: "I can not, I can not! God forgive and help me. I can not!" But whether it was that she found it impossible to break her will and her vow, or that long disuse had affected her organs so that she really could not use them, could not be arrived at, but her family inclined to the latter belief, for it is said that while on her own death-bed she made distinct and ineffectual efforts to speak to her children, dying with the seal of silence unremoved from her lips.

Auburn Hair Has the Call.

A St. Louis hair-dresser says every body now is calling for auburn hair. It is the color above all others in favor in the world of fashion. The shade is very becoming, especially to women with pretty shades of complexion, olive or fair, as the case may be. The auburn has the warm, bright glow of the sun, without the unbecoming tendency of golden hair to exaggerate features and make them look so much larger. Auburn hair is now in greater demand than blonde hair ever was, and is gaining in favor daily. Of course, Patti is the originator of the present style.

Possibilities of Marriage.

A Kentucky couple have escaped the penalty of murder by getting married. The two drowned a child from a boat and were the only witnesses. The woman confessed throwing the little one into the water, but claimed that the man made her do it. The Kentucky law provides that a wife can not testify against her husband or a husband against his wife, so the case must be dropped. Kentucky law is unique at any stage, but this marriage, which dispels the shade of the gallows in two lives, is about the queerst phase of its possibilities yet developed.

Whence Come the Flies.

So you want to know where the flies come from, do you, Lucullus? Well, the cyclone makes the house fly, the blacksmith makes the fire fly, the carpenter makes the saw fly, the driver makes the horse fly, the grocer makes the sand fly, the boarder makes the butter fly, and if that is not enough for you you will have to pursue your future studies in entomology alone.

THE STAGE SUPE.

Some of the Tricks and Manners of Animated Scenery.

The Basso Who Couldn't Afford to Shave for a Salary—Serfs of the Footlights—A Super Who Had Something to Say—Super Captains.

"I am thoroughly tired out," said a certain manager one day last week; "for I have spent six hours rehearsing 'supers' for 'The Dead Heart.' I have examined scores of them, tried the voices of some and drilled others. I am hoarse from yelling and ready to drop."

"But the work wasn't without its redeeming features," put in Mr. W. F. Blande, of the O'Neill company, who had been helping to bring order out of chaos. "We saw some queer types of humanity. There was one big son of the Emerald Isle with a deep bass voice. We accepted him for the chorus, at the same time telling him that he would have to shave his ferocious mustache.

"'Shave me moustache, is it—niver!'

"'And why not?' I asked.

"'Shure, I'm afraid if I did I look like monkey.'

"And from his profile as I remember it I think his fears were well grounded."

"Talking of supers," said a newspaper man who was present. "I have been haunted by one for seven years. She is a tall, lank Scandinavian girl with a good stage face, but with an expression as blank as if nothing on earth interested her. I first saw her when there was an attempt made to lure her and some companions to the West by a scoundrel who pretended to be a theatrical manager. Fortunately the plan was balked.

"But what I was going to say is that I have seen her on some stage or other at least once a month for seven years. I have seen her in all Mme. Modjeska's plays and in all sorts of costumes. She has trailed the robes of princesses across the boards of the Chicago Opera House. I have seen her in burlesque attire at the People's posing in her elongated unconsciousness. She has bent over the death scenes of Clara Morris, and in statuesque vacuity and green gauze has adorned the spectacles of Kiralfy. In all the scenes of merriment through which she has moved she has never smiled; she has listened to heart-rending, pathetic appeals, and never shed a tear. Terrible crimes have been committed in her presence and she has never moved a muscle—never even looked surprised.

"She is a sphinx. She fascinates me. Sometimes I do not see her for weeks, and I am beginning to forget her, when she appears at an unexpected time and I gaze on her in wonder, heedless of every thing else in the play. If she would only show some sign of interest in what is going on around—if her indifferent eyes would only condescend to emit one gleam of intelligence, the spell would, perhaps, be broken.

"But no. In the seven years that she has haunted me she has never spoken a single line. It is barely possible she does not speak English. Or she may be deaf and dumb. I make all sorts of conjectures about her, but can not rest on any. She possesses an uncanny attraction for me. Sometimes I think of writing a romance and making her the central figure. Then, perhaps, I might lift the burden of her mystery from my shoulders to those of my readers."

And why should not the serfs of the stage have their George Kennan to champion their cause? Who ever gives them a thought—the men and women, who are stuck here and there in the background to fill in the scene like the daubs of paint an artist uses to suggest shadowy figures? Talk of an actor merging his identity in a character; he has his real name and his assumed one on the programme. The super has no identity at all: He is a cipher with the circle rubbed out.

He receives no recognition from the audience. If he is made conspicuous for a moment the gallery boy scornfully abridges the already abridged name of his humble calling, and yells "Supe!" at him. That is all. The real actors and actresses regard him as a piece of vivified furniture. The tragedian, if he be a heavy one, will occasionally honor him at rehearsal by vigorously swearing at him.

And the super bears it all patiently—silently. He is of a forgiving, kindly nature. When a Barrett or a Booth drops off into the unknown the super sighs: "Ah! another of us gone! What is the stage coming to?"

Cases have been known where a super rose from the ranks and even reached distinction. But they are few. Joseph Wheelock is a case in point. On the other hand, there have been ambitious supers who tried to rise and failed. An English member of the tribe was given a single line to speak, and his soul hungered for applause. He had to say: "My Lord, the carriage waits." Night after night he said it, but the audience remained cold. At last he conceived a supplementary line which he thought would stir the British breast. "My Lord," he said one night, "the carriage waits, and," advancing to the footlights and addressing the gallery, "I wish to say here that the villain who would lay his hand on a woman, except by way of kindness, is unworthy the name of a Briton and a man!"

The long-delayed applause came; that speech brought it.

Though it is seldom that the super asserts himself individually, he has done so collectively now and then according to theatrical annals. "Fight! Fight in earnest!" cried Forrest once at a rehearsal in Albany to half a dozen supers who seemed to be timid about touching him. (The play required that they should try to kill him.)

"Do you want 'a bully fight?'" asked the super captain.

"That's it; pitch in."

The night came and in the scene of the attack the supers did "pitch in." But the six of them were no match for the burly and now thoroughly aroused tragedian. The spectators beheld the scene that was the height of realism. Four supers fell over one another as they were knocked behind the scenes; one received a blow that sent him spinning into the orchestra, and the last climbed into the flies yelling "Fire!"

Charlotte Cushman had good self-control on the stage; but she lost it once when playing in one of the Southern States. She was enacting a Roman mother who was torn away from her children by the tyrant's minions and borne to execution. The stage manager was to provide two children. When the great scene came Miss Cushman advanced toward them, but recoiled in amazement to find they were pickaninnies! The stage manager thought they would do as well as white youngsters.

The first Murderer in "Macbeth" is not a super; but the actor who once played the part with Macready should have been one. At rehearsal he was so stupid that Macready had a nail driven into the floor to show him where to stand. That night he entered at his cue and stood anxiously scanning the boards.

"What are you doing?" whispered Macready.

"Looking for that blanked nail!" was the loud and disgusted reply; and it brought down the house.

Supers on the French stage have been known frequently to protest against appearing as "the enemy" in patriotic plays. They think it degrades them.

In a melodrama called "The Battle of Waterloo," which was once produced in London, an English regiment was represented as retreating before a French one. The house would not stand this, and the taunts so affected the retreating supers that they turned on the supposed French and threw them into the pit.

Every one knows how dull an affair is the Bosworth fight in "Richard III.," but on one occasion in London it was lively enough. It seems that a super had been hurt in the mimic fight the night before, and the stage manager had given him a half sovereign as a balm. He told his fellows of his luck and the next presentation of the fight was a massacre. What were broken heads to them when the salve took the form of half sovereigns?

Speaking of half sovereigns, the pay of a super in Chicago is twenty-five cents a night. The super captain, who takes the trouble of drilling, deducts one night's pay from the amount coming to each man. These sums of twenty-five cents are perquisites, for he has a stipend from the theater.

Some of these captains are accomplished boodlers. Here is one of the tricks of a trade: When a super has worked four or five nights the captain discharges him on some pretext or other and takes a new man. But the captain hands in his bill for the usual quota and pockets what is due the discharged man.

Then again, there are always young men who wish to get near to their footlight idols, and they pay the super captain for the chance to "go on." This is a great practice with the Harvard boys in Boston. Old Jim Taylor has been super captain for thirty years at the Boston Theater. His "tips from the boys" have provided him with a handsome competence in his old age.

In New York nowadays there are regular agencies for supplying the theaters with trained supernumeraries of all kinds. There are 400 men and 500 women registered as professional supers. The thing is not yet so systematically managed in Chicago, although there are agents who make the supplying of supers a part of their business. But the super captain of each theater generally has a constituency from which he can draw on all ordinary occasions.—E. J. McPhelin, in Chicago Tribune.

CHARGING A REGIMENT.

An Enraged Bull's Mad Attack on General De Trobriand's Troops.

Near New Kent Court House, Va., General De Trobriand's brigade encamped in a field in which was an ill-tempered bull. At first the animal seemed to pay no attention to what was going on, but after the arms had been stacked and the men had scattered in all directions in search of wood and water, he began to be excited by the unusual stir. As he began pawing the ground and bellowing, the dogs of the regiment set up a chorus of barking and immediately started in the direction of the bull. He charged resolutely upon the first five or six of them, and the men hastened from all sides to enjoy the spectacle.

The moment the bull saw that he had enemies more worthy of his notice, he fell upon the nearest. The men, who had no arms except their canteens and tin cups, took to their heels with all haste, and their companions, seeing that the sport was becoming serious, made for the fence, in the midst of cries and laughter, the noise of which came nearer and nearer.

Blinded by rage, worried by the dogs, the bull in a few bounds was at the front of the regiment. The Lieutenant-Colonel was there at that moment, giving orders, when twenty voices at once called to him: "Look out!" He turned his head; the animal was almost upon him, foaming at the mouth, fire in his eyes, with horns lowered.

With one bound the Lieutenant-Colonel jumped to one side, his foot slipped and he fell in a furrow. Happily for him, the brute was under such headway that he could not stop nor even turn before striking our stacks of arms with his lowered head. He knocked over two or three of them, threw himself on the line of the Sixty-second, overturning every thing in his passage, and again turned upon us in the midst of a general rout.

On our right was the Seventh Massachusetts. One of their wagons had stopped near the road, and behind the wagon was chained a fine Newfoundland dog, the pet of the regiment. The courageous dog made frantic efforts to get loose, and a general cry went up: "Unchain the dog! Unchain the dog!"

The dog was loosed. He bounded across the road and rushed upon the enemy whom no one knew how to fight. A few men, indeed, had seized their guns, but they could not use them for fear of killing some of their comrades. As to playing the role of picador with the bayonet, it was so dangerous that no one was willing to try it.

When the Newfoundland entered the lists every thing was changed. For a moment the dog and the bull stopped in front of each other, while a circle of warriors was formed around them.

Then followed a series of maneuvers for position till all at once the big dog mad a feint, turned sharply back, sprang at the head of the bull, and remained fastened to his ear—a weight of not less than sixty or eighty pounds.

The bull first tried to free himself by tossing the dog into the air. Next he tried to crush him under his feet. But the dog saved himself with great address, and then the bull, mad with pain and rage, began to run at a venture, bellowing fearfully, and carrying the huge dog fastened like a vise to his ear.

At this instant the commissary sergeant of the regiment, a butcher by trade, came up. He armed himself with a hatchet, and one vigorous blow upon the backbone of the bull put an end to the contest.—Youth's Companion.

SAVE THE SCRAPS.

How to Be Economical in Practice as Well as in Theory.

There are a great many persons who are economical enough in theory but who waste a great deal in practice. It requires patience to separate the bits of fat from a cold roast, to try them out and lay them aside for use in the store-room. For this reason many housekeepers throw away the remnants of a roast after it has been served up twice. A woman who will sew industriously for many hours to save paying a seamstress half a day's work will sometimes thoughtlessly throw away more than the equivalent of the seamstress' wages in these scraps. The fat of beef nicely tried out is equivalent to butter and equally valuable for frying. Try the experiment of saving every scrap of beef, veal and chicken fat, strain and it weigh it, and its value will be a cause of genuine astonishment if you have never undertaken the experiment before. Save every scrap of mutton and other strong-flavored fats and try them out for soap. It takes only a few moments to prepare good home-made soft soap, and the saving from this source alone will be found nearly equal to the saving of butter from making use of the scraps of fat suitable for cooking.

No scrap of meat or vegetables should ever be wasted. Bits of meat, however inconsiderable in quantity, can be combined with some other, put in an omelette, made into croquettes by addition of rice or some other meat and re-served in many ways that will leave no hint that it has previously appeared for perhaps a third time. It is a little more difficult to know what to do with vegetables that are left over. The most appetizing method of disposing of such as can be used in this way is in a salad. Spinach, string beans, beets, bits of turnip and potatoes can be used in this way. The next method is an omelette. Cold asparagus, peas, bits of fried egg plant, oyster plant and other vegetables are delicious served in this way. Most mashed vegetables, like parsnips or mashed potatoes, are delightful served in balls. In preparing all rechauffes it should be remembered that the food is already cooked, and any further continuation of the cooking will impair its flavor. It should therefore be heated to the point of cooking, but not beyond it. A little boiling-hot sauce is a great advantage to these dishes where it can be suitably used. Steaming is one of the best ways of heating food which is re-served. Not one crumb of bread in a household need be wasted. Each week after baking, all stale bread should be collected, dried and sifted to serve for breading meats, for croquettes, pudding, stuffing to fowl, or many other dishes.—N. Y. Tribune

WAR BETWEEN TURTLES.

A Singular Contest Among Three Ill-Mannered Jersey Reptiles.

Some boys who were gathering watercresses in a pool beside the Passaic river near Avondale, N. J., recently witnessed a singular battle among three turtles. Two of the combatants were common water turtles, each about the size of a man's hand, and they were arrayed against a small but exceedingly vicious snapper, hardly half the size of one of its opponents. When the boys arrived on the scene of action the battle had evidently been raging for some time, for all the reptiles seemed to be pretty tired. One member of the dual alliance occupied a masterly position. It was holding the snapper's small tail in its mouth, and though the jaws of the common turtle are not usually very formidable it maintained its grip with the tenacity of a bulldog.

The snapper had taken the other turtle by its wrinkled throat, and it would soon have brought that part of the combat to an end had it not opened its jaws every few moments to try to see what it was that was chewing so vigorously at its rear. Owing to its anatomy this was, of course, impossible, and each time it turned to renew operations against the enemy in front that cautious creature had drawn its head deep into its shell, and, though it did not attempt to run away, the snapper, hampered as it was behind, found considerable difficulty in pushing its own smaller neck into the aperture and dragging out the reluctant forequarters of the water turtle.

At last the snapper seemed to understand where the remedy for its trouble lay, and the next time it seized the lacerated throat it took hold to stay. The water turtle's eyes bulged, and then the lids slowly closed. It was soon dead, and then the snapper brought its whole strength to bear upon its tail, which it tried to pull into its shell. It might have succeeded, but the lads were becoming impatient, and they slaughtered the two survivors with their sticks. Throughout the battle the turtles had not noticed their presence.

THEY SOUGHT REVENGE.

Blue Jays Furiously Attack a Horse That Broke Up Their Nest.

Along one side of a field on the Myers farm there is a thick growth of bushes, some of which grow high and strong, says the Lancaster correspondent of the New York Sun. Many kinds of small birds find this thicket most favorably for their nesting places, and in the spring cattle and horses that pasture in the field browse on the sweet and tender young foliage. The owner of the farm turned in the field to pasture a few days ago a number of cattle, among them two bay horses. The farmer was working in the field, not far from the thicket, when he heard blue jays making more noise than is usual even with these noisy birds. Looking up to see what the trouble might be, he saw four blue jays engaged in a fierce assault on one of the horses. They were darting at him from all sides, pecking at his face, striking him in the neck and sides and about the head in a manner that was evidence enough that the horse had offended them in some aggravated way. The poor horse ran first one way and then another to escape the fury of the excited birds, but he was headed off whichever way he turned by the birds dashing fiercely in his face and assailing him with beak and claw. Fearing that the sharp-billed and persistent jays would blind the horse, the farmer hurried to his aid. Even after he arrived on the scene and took the horse by the mane and led him away from the spot, the infuriated birds hovered about and followed him for a long distance, making frequent descents upon the horse's body, and inflicting blows that made him wince and jump as if he were being deeply prodded with a spur. The farmer led the horse to the other side of the field, and the birds returned to the thicket, where they held noisy consultation at a particular spot, and seemed to be in great tribulation. To discover, if possible, what had aroused this extreme anger of the blue jays against the horse, the farmer went over to the thicket, and at the spot where the clamor of the jays was so great he found the dead bodies of three newly-hatched blue jays. The old birds circled around him furiously a moment, and then dashed away across the field to where the horse had resumed its feeding, and renewed their attack on him. The farmer hurried back to the protection of his horse again. The poor animal was dashing frantically about, while the birds pecked and struck him at every vulnerable point. The farmer rescued the horse a second time, and the birds flew back to the bushes. Every time the horse was left to himself, however, the birds would renew the attack on him, and the owner of the horse was at last compelled to take the animal back to the barn. The jays made no attack on the other horse, which was feeding not far from the thicket. The next day the horse that had excited the animosity of the blue-jays was turned in the lot again, but he had been there only a short time when the birds discovered his presence and attacked him as fiercely as they had the previous day, and he was taken home. A road passes on the other side of thicket and is constantly traveled by teams. On the second day of the attack of the jays on the bay horse he was hitched up to drive to a neighboring village on the road mentioned. As he was being driven past the thicket he was set upon by blue jays again, and the result was that the driver could not hold him and he ran away, breaking the wagon to pieces, and endangering the life of the driver. As this state of affairs, if continued, promised to be disastrous to the farm and the farmer, the offending jays have been hunted down and shot. The only explanation that can be given of this enmity of the blue jays against the horse is that while he was browsing along the edge of the thicket he pulled down a branch on which a family of blue jays had their nest and shook the young ones out of the nest to the ground. The jays and neighboring jays sought revenge upon the despoiler of this nest, and hence the bitter and unrelenting fight they made upon him.

HOUSEHOLD BREVITIES.

—Carrot Chops.—Mash finely some boiled carrots with butter, pepper and salt; add a beaten egg and mix well; shape with the hands like a chop; dip in an egg and bread crumbs and fry brown in butter; serve with gravy or melted butter.

—When cutting bread for the table, save all the crumbs, which in the course of a year amount to considerable, and are useful for stuffing, puddings, etc. You can put a handful into your rice puddings occasionally and no one be any the wiser.

—Some persons like strawberries sugared and set away on ice a little while before serving, and when they are not very ripe or a little tart it is a good way; but they do not look so pretty, and, unless all the family like it so, it is better to let each one add cream and sugar according to taste.—Demorest.

—For a summer sitting-room nothing can be cleaner, sweeter, or more wholesome in every way than furnishings of rattan or willow ware. Tables, chairs, and a variety of other articles, such as work-tables and baskets, as well as bureaus and escritoires, can be found in this ware in the shops of our prominent dealers.—Christian at Work.

—Let a person, not overstrong, subject to frequent colds from the slightest exposure, the victim of chronic catarrh, sore throats, etc., begin the practice of taking a sponge bath every morning, commencing with tepid water in a warm room (not hot), and following the sponging with friction that will produce a warm glow over the skin, and then take a five minutes brisk walk in the open air.—The Household.

—Pie-plant Pudding.—Slice as for pies, spread slices of bread on both sides with butter, remove the crust. Put a layer of bread in the bottom of a pudding dish, then a layer of pie-plant, abundantly sweetened, a few bits of butter, and a very slight sprinkling of flour. Fill the dish with alternate layers of pie-plant and bread, cover while baking. After thirty minutes remove cover and brown the top, serve with a sweet sauce.—The Housekeeper.

ADULTERATED SPICES.

How Pepper, Cloves and Ginger Are Doctored By Dishonest Dealers.

Adulteration has become an art in which the knowledge of science and the ingenuity of trade are freely exercised. Pure spices are debased for pecuniary profit by adding to them inferior or spurious articles, or by taking from them one or more of their constituents. The objects of adulterations are to increase the bulk or weight of the article, to improve its appearance, to give it a false strength and to rob it of its most valuable constituents.

People know so little about spice that it can be adulterated with very slight chance of discovery. An expert, however, can tell at once. The head of the spice department of a grocery firm said: "To be sure of adulteration one needs only to look at the price lists of certain firms which sell spices. The price of a ground spice is often less than that of the unground article, which is absurd on its face. This means that the ground spice has been heavily adulterated with some cheap material. Some go so far as to advertise adulterated goods and evade the law by calling them compounds.

"Black pepper is adulterated with a substance called pepper dust, made from cocoanut shells and also with buckwheat hulls, charcoal, white meal and mustard bran. Cocoanut shells, when ground up very fine, are used very generally as an adulterant of spices, as there is no taste to interfere with the flavor of the spice. Buckwheat hulls, otherwise worthless, are a source of profit to millers, as they are worth two and one-half cents per pound for adulterating purposes. The charcoal gives a black appearance to the pepper."

Put a sample of the best Malaga pepper beside a poor quality of black pepper and the Malaga pepper can readily be distinguished because of its lighter color. Mix some white meal with the common pepper and it becomes so like the best pepper that it can hardly be told apart, it not only adulterates the pepper, but to all appearances improves its quality.

White pepper is adulterated with white meal, terra alba and rice flour. Terra alba is fine marble dust, and enormous quantities are exported from Italy for purposes of adulteration. Gypsum, sand, starch, mustard, husks and various kinds of meal are also used for adulterating pepper, but not to so great an extent as the things mentioned. Cayenne pepper is adulterated with white meal, venetian red and salt, the three being ground together. The salt gives a brighter color to the red, which is itself a poisonous article. This doctoring is practiced on African pepper, a dull red pepper, worth only eight cents a pound, in order to bring it up to the brilliant color of Natal pepper, worth thirty cents a pound. The fraudulent article can be detected by placing a small quantity on a sheet of white paper and rubbing it with the finger. The venetian red will make red marks on the paper.

Ginger is adulterated with meal, rice flour, starch, cayenne pepper and manila rope. Ginger root has a very fine hair-like fiber running through it, and this is found in the ground article. Country people will not buy it unless they see the fibers, and bits of manila rope are used to take their place in the false article. The cayenne pepper makes the taste sharper. A drop of ammonia will expose this compound by turning it red. Chrome yellow, a poisonous substance, is sometimes used for coloring.

Cloves are adulterated with clove stems worth two cents a pound. These clove stems are the little green twigs from which the cloves are plucked. Cloves are also adulterated with pepper dust, and allspice is also treated in the same way.

Considerable ingenuity is shown in adulterating cinnamon and nutmeg. Old crackers or flour are baked brown in an oven and ground up fine, and this is mixed with the ground cinnamon and nutmeg. In adulterating mace, venetian red is mixed with the cracker dust. —Boston Commercial Bulletin.

ADDRESS TO EDITORS

Chairman Belden Sends Out a Document.

ALL ABOUT THE ELECTION BILL

The Congressional Committee Asks the Support of the Republican Press.

Many Millions Involved in the Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill—A Third Ticket for Pennsylvania—The House Calls on the President for All Papers on the Behring Sea Question.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Chairman Belden, of the Republican Congressional Committee, has issued the following address to the editors of the Republican papers of the United States:

WASHINGTON, July 10, 1890.

"SIR—The Republican party in its several National platforms have pledged the country that, as one of its fundamental planks, it would see to the execution of that provision of the constitution which guarantees to every lawful voter in federal elections his right to deposit his ballot and have it counted for the candidate of his choice.

"That pledge, based on justice, involves merely the exercise of an unquestionable constitutional right of every American citizen. Nevertheless, the gravest election abuses in a large section of our country have deprived vast masses of their lawful franchise, have by fraudulent agencies imposed an unlawful representation in the National House of Representatives, and have thus practically subverted the constitution in some of its most important and valuable provisions. The strict enforcement of this inalienable right is demanded as a solemn duty.

"No question of negro supremacy, no usurpation of federal power, is involved in the issue. The national elections bill which recently passed the House deals only with national elections; it does not meddle, directly or indirectly with State elections, State officers, or State organizations. The States are very properly left to work out their own destiny through their own agencies. Why, then, should the bill not become a law? As declared by the Hon. William McKinley in his recent speech in the House, the passage of the Federal Election bill is the supreme duty of the hour. Its passage cannot longer be reasonably evaded.

"The House, faithful and active in the fulfilment of party pledges, zealous in the performance of a great public trust, and undaunted by the diabolical thrusts and assaults of the Democratic party, has promptly performed its duty by the passage of the bill. Now it only remains for the Republican majority in the Senate to emulate the House and permit the President by his signature to ratify and register the will of the Nation. Will the Senate promptly perform this imperative obligation?

"The committee is in possession of information showing concentrated effort on the part of the Democratic party to change the trend of public thought by poisoning the minds of the people to the end that a sentiment may be manufactured that would deter Congress from passing a National election law this session.

"It is believed that a favorable expression of opinion at this juncture from the Republican press all along the line would be as forcible as timely, and would exert a wholesome influence and inspire legislators to the carrying out of the party's pledge.

"The House has performed its part of the work to which the party was pledged. Will you not do your duty in urging that the Senate shall respond promptly by the passage of the measure which the House deems essential, absolutely essential, to the purity of the elections of its own members?"

MANY MILLIONS INVOLVED.

The Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Reported to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The Sundry Civil bill, as reported to the Senate by the Appropriations Committee, carries with it an appropriation of $31,241,680, an increase of $3,181,513, so that the bill as reported is $6,552,172 less than the estimates and $5,944,338 more than the bill of last year. The most important feature of the work of the Senate Committee on this bill is the elimination from the measure of the appropriation of $777,500 of an irrigation survey.

This provision was vigorously attacked by a number of Western Senators, and they succeeded in defeating it in committee. Their opposition was based largely upon the ground that its effect would be to reserve from the public domain a vast amount of public lands which should be open to settlement. The appropriation for topographic surveys by the geological survey, however, is increased from $200,000 to $300,000.

Tariff Reform Orators.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Hon. Roger Q. Mills left here for an extended trip through Missouri, where he is to deliver Tariff reform speeches to the farmers. He was to have been accompanied by Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, but at the last moment the latter gentleman found it impossible to go. The Tariff Reform Club of New York has made arrangements with Mills, Springer, Breckenridge, Wilson, of West Virginia, and McAdoo, of New Jersey, to speak at picnics and fairs throughout the country, the club to pay the expenses of the speakers.

A Third Ticket for Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Mr. Walters, managing editor of the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, is here and is understood to have been feeling the anti-Quay Congressmen as to the advisability of launching an independent State fight with a new ticket in Pennsylvania. Mr. Dalzell, of Pittsburg, when seen, would not corroborate the report.

GEN FISK DEAD.

The Well-Known Prohibitionist Expires After a Short Illness.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Gen. Clinton B. Fisk died at his residence, No. 175 West 58th street, in the morning. His death was not expected. He died peacefully, surrounded by his family.

General Fisk was born in Livingston County, this State, on Dec. 8, 1828. His parents removed to Michigan during his infancy. After a successful career as a merchant, miller and banker in that State he removed to St Louis in 1859.

When the war broke out Mr. Fisk went to the front, and early in the struggle was made colonel in the Thirty-third Missouri Regiment. He was promoted to be brigadier-general in 1862, and brevetted major-general of volunteers in 1865.

Gen. Fisk actively aided in the establishment of Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., in 1865, and it was named after him. He has ever since been identified with its financial and educational interests and was president of the board of trustees at his death.

He was also a trustee of Dickinson College, of Drew Theological Seminary and also of Albion College, Michigan. He was a trustee of the American Missionary Association and also a member of the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Since 1874 he was closely identified with the Board of Indian Commissioners, of which he was president.

He was particularly identified with the temperance movement and was the Presidential candidate of the Prohibition party at the last election.

TWO HAPPY BOODLERS.

Maloney and De Lacy Return from New York and Are Released on Bail.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The attaches of the District-Attorney's office were surprised during the morning by a visit from ex-Alderman De Lacy, of the Boodle Board of 1884, and "Billy" Maloney, the clerk of that Board, who had just returned to the city from Montreal.

They were accompanied by counsel and held a consultation with the prosecuting officers with a view of having the indictments against them dismissed.

They were taken before Judge Martine, of the Court of General Sessions, and he decided to release the boodlers on bonds of $40,000 each. The bonds were furnished by friends and the returned exiles left the court room accompanied by a number of politicians.

Died from Excitement.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 10.—August Reubender had a noisy quarrel with his daughter-in-law last evening in front of the house of Mrs. Ann M. Morlock, in Hier avenue. Mrs. Morlock came out and ordered Reubender, who was intoxicated, away, but he turned on her threateningly and a quarrel ensued. Mrs. Morlock turned to go into her house but dropped dead on the steps. It is supposed that she died from excitement, and it is not known whether Reubender struck her or not. Reubender was arrested.

Murdered With a Hoe.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 10.—Albert Cummings, an insane farm hand, living in the eastern part of Susquehanna County, several miles from Thompson, murdered a farmer named Palmerton with a hoe, chopping the man's head in many places. Cummings had threatened the lives of Palmerton's family, and the latter was going for help to restrain him when the murder occurred. The lunatic afterward tried to hang himself, but was overpowered and looked up by a posse of farmers.

Mrs. Carter Defeated Again.

NEW YORK, July 10.—A dispatch from Chicago says the Appellate Court has affirmed the decree of Judge Jamieson granting a divorce to Leslie Carter from Caroline Louise Carter. It is understood that Mrs. Carter's lawyers will carry the case to the Supreme Court.

Shot Himself in the Head.

NEWARK, N. J., July 10.—Charles W. King, manager of the United States Express Company attempted suicide by shooting himself through the head at ex-Alderman Sandford's house, where he spent the night. He will probably die.

Short in His Accounts.

ROSDOUT, N. Y., July 10.—A shortage of upwards of $300 has been found in the accounts of Joseph Larkip, tax collector of Public School District No 3 and the Board of Trustees has been notified to make good the deficiency.

The Injuries Proved Fatal.

WINTHROP, Me., July 10.—Crews of men are busy clearing away the wrecks by the storm. The damage will be more extensive than first reported. Mrs. Salena B. Shaw, injured by the falling church belfry, is dead.

The Female Forger Off for Fr[illegible]

NEW YORK, July 10.—Nettie [illegible], the female forger of Providence, R. I., was given in charge of detectives from that city.

A LOCKOUT NOTICE

New York Clothing Cutters to Follow the Cloakmakers.

EIGHTY FIRMS IN THE COMBINE

The Cause of the Trouble Alleged to be a Boycott.

One Thousand Men Will Have to Quit Work—The Rev. Father Ducey Asked to Arbitrate the Cloakmakers' Troubles—Workmen Rioting at West Superior—Two Strikers Shot Down.

NEW YORK, July 10.—Eighty clothing manufacturers, employing 1,000 cutters, have decided to lock out their men on Saturday. Recently the United Clothing Cutters resolved to expel any member who might take the place of a locked-out cloak cutter. The employers met immediately, and agreed to make their establishments "union shops" if the United Clothing Cutters rescinded the resolution referred to, and allowed their members to work for the cloak manufacturers who locked out their men. The officer was rejected.

A few days ago the manufacturers wrote to the United Clothing Cutters demanding that they raise the boycott on Alfred Benjamin & Co., of No. 104 Bleecker street. Copies of the demand were served on the clothing cutters in this city and on their National organization, District Assembly No. 23. They were given until July 7 to act, but they have taken no action.

The clothing cutters met last night but transacted only routine business. They were given to understand that they would be locked out Saturday. They say the Benjamin boycott is used only as a pretext for a lockout. Trade is dull at present. The officers of the union say that the manufacturers' policy is to force their men to idleness in the hope that they will in a few days go to work for the cloak manufacturers.

TALK OF ARBITRATION.

A Ray of Hope for the Locked-Out New York Cloakmakers.

NEW YORK, July 10.—An air of confidence now pervades the ranks of the locked-out cloakmakers. The glad tidings has reached them that the manufacturers were tired of the struggle and were not only willing but anxious for arbitration.

A feeling prevails that the lockout will not last longer than this week, and enough has been learned to justify this conclusion.

The Manufacturers' Association held an important meeting at the Prescott House and had a long consultation over a letter sent by the Rev. Father Ducey, in which he expressed his willingness to act as a mediator. He suggested the Rev. R. Heber Newton in the same capacity if it should be considered necessary.

Emil Meyer, president of the Manufacturers' Association, said afterward: We are willing to arbitrate at an hour's notice. We will be willing to meet the representatives of the Amalgamated Board, and we think it would be a good thing to have Father Ducey or the Rev. Heber Newton or even a representative of the United Hebrew Charities."

Mr. Meyer also said that they would decide as to what points they could arbitrate about first, and then, if agreeable to all parties, would proceed with the arbitration.

RIOTING WORKINGMEN.

Two of the Strikers Shot Down by a Superintendent.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., July 10.—A riot occurred here, and for a time the situation was critical. Some 300 strikers, armed with clubs, began to stop all labor in the city, and succeeded except at Watkins's block and the American Steel Barge Works, where officers and firemen with drawn revolvers kept them back.

Contractor Latten, in defending his men, was badly pounded. Others were cut and bruised. The strikers resumed forcible measures at the American Barge Works, and are now rioting.

Superintendent Anderson of the works fatally shot two of the rioters. The Mayor and police have been called to the scene. Charle S. Skilling, a Telegram reporter, was injured by a flying stone.

The idea is to stop all common labor until all shall have $2 per day.

He Slapped the Mayor's Face.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 10.—The residents here are excited over a passage at arms between James E. Taylor, Secretary of the Philadelphia and Seashore Railway, and J. Henry Edmunds, the Mayor of this place, in the course of which the latter was slapped five times in the face by the former. The trouble was caused by an article published in the Wave, owned by the Mayor, which stated that a certain official was intoxicated at a citizens' meeting held at the Hotel Lafayette on Saturday. The meeting had been called to consider beach improvements.

Thrown from His Wagon and Killed.

WATERBURY Conn., July 10.—Chas. Officer of Waterville came to this city to do some trading, and started to drive home. While turning a corner within half a mile of his home the wagon was overturned and Officer was thrown out and almost instantly killed. He leaves a wife and several children.

For a Statue to Admiral Farragut.

BOSTON, July 10. — The Boston Art Commission has formally accepted the model for the Admiral Farragut statue as submitted to the city government by Henry H. Kilson, the sculptor, and will officially advise the Mayor to conclude the contract for the execution of the [illegible]

A Report that the Naval Authorities Have Taken Serious Responsibilities.

Appalling Loss of Life—Seven Hundred People Killed by a Cyclone—London Postmen Threaten to Strike To-Day. The Financial Crisis in the Argentine Republic—Dr. Peters on the Coast.

LONDON, July 10.—A report just received says that Seoul had been occupied by American marines and Cores is now virtually in the hands of Americans. The uneasiness in English and Russian naval circles, which was so pronounced as to render everyone alert for a fortnight past, is just explained in an unexpected way. Instead of the Russians having occupied Cores, as was generally supposed when British ships began to puff into harbor, the modest United Steamer Swatara, lying off Shemulpo, sent her officers and marines to Seoul. They are now living in the King's palace.

Admiral Belknap was appealed to by the King for protection and he promptly gave it. The Swatara was on the Corean coast at the time and its officers were ordered to the palace. The men on the other men-of-war in the harbor were completely thunderstruck and began to prepare for action. Some orders came—no one knows what, but according to one of the British officers it meant fight right there. Commander McGowan and his staff are feasting with the King and his two American advisers, Denny and Gen. Le Geldre. The Swatara lies off the city flying the Stars and Stripes and developments are anxiously waited for.

This American naval authorities have taken serious responsibilities, and there is a probability that if internal trouble takes a serious turn they will have to fight their way out of the country.

APPALLING LOSS OF LIFE.

Seven Hundred People Killed by a Cyclone in Muscat.

MUSCAT, July 10.—A most destructive cyclone resulting in an appalling loss of life has swept over this portion of Arabia. Immense damage was done to houses and plantations and seven hundred persons were killed.

The greatest damage was done in the country districts, where whole hamlets were swept away.

Many plantations with the farm houses were levelled to the ground, and the peasants killed in their frantic efforts to escape the fury of the storm.

Survivors who are straggling into the city report the destruction complete in the path of the tornado, which extends in a zig-zag direction for a distance of forty miles.

Thousands were injured by flying timbers and falling trees which were uprooted or twisted off by the force of the wind.

Muscat is a seaport town of Arabia, and has a population of 40,000.

Threaten to Strike To-Day.

POLICE MAKE A RAID.

Officers of the "Mining Stock Exchange" in New York Arrested.

NEW YORK, July 10. — The police at noon made a raid on the "Mining Stock Exchange" at 51 New street and arrested George W. Rumble, the president of the "Exchange," and James W. Waldson, broker, who is interested in the business of the concern. The police also captured a large amount of paraphernalia. The other people connected with the place and a number of stock speculators escaped.

Police Captain McLaughlin bought five shares of stock in the "Xenia" mine par value $100 a share. This certificate had originally been issued to President Rumble. It was transferred to the captain, who paid his money to Broker Waldson.

At the time Captain McLaughlin bought Xenia stock was at par. He had hardly made his purchase, however, before Xenia took a tumble. Then the captain gave the signal and policemen seemed to come out of the ground.

At the sight of the blue coats the "exchange" suspended operations in a hurry. Speculators flew in all directions without stopping to put up margins or realize on stock on hand.

The police seized the articles of incorporation, $350,000 worth of stock certificates in the Xenia and other mines, and all the papers, books, etc., belonging to the outfit.

At the station house Rumble gave his residence as the Centennial House, Chicago. Waldson hailed from this city.

The Wyoming Bill Ready for the President.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—In the Senate the bill for the admission of Wyoming as a State was signed by Mr. Ingalls, the presiding officer. The bill now goes to the President for his signature. At 12:15 the Senate went into secret session.

BY THE WAY.

—The Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. meet this evening.

—Reform Club meeting this evening at 8 o'clock. Interesting exercises. All welcome.

—The runaway season has again fairly begun, there being two runaway accidents yesterday.

—The weather, yesterday, was decidedly cool, quite unlike that of the day before.

—The Central Railroad of New Jersey has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent. payable August 1.

—An insurance map of the buildings in Somerville is being prepared by P. R. Buckelew of Plainfield.

—The street sprinkler would have been a welcome visitor, last evening, as the wind raised the dust in clouds.

—The Sunday school of Grace church will probably go with the Trinity Reformed church excursion to Ocean Grove on Wednesday, July 23.

—There was a decided change in the weather last evening, the wind shifting from the West to the Northeast, thereby greatly cooling off the atmosphere.

—Mrs. William Anderson and son, of Somerville, and Miss Emma Hope, of Belvidere, are spending a few days at Janitor Hope's, 31 Richmond street.

—At Reform Hall, this evening, there will be rendered an interesting programme, and a large audience will doubtless be present to take part in the exercises.

—Just at the present time there is a general outpouring of people from the city, who are in search of health and recreation at the mountains and seashore.

—One of the New Jersey Central Railroad section men at Westfield was overcome with the heat, while at work on the track, on Tuesday, and it is reported that he has since died.

—This evening will occur the midsummer sociable of the Young People's Society of Warren Mission chapel, and an interesting programme has been specially arranged for the occasion.

—The next sociable given by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Dunellen Presbyterian church will be held this evening at the residence of Charles Carpenter, North avenue. The Entertainment Committee have arranged a pleasing programme for the evening.

He Says Lightning Don't Strike Twice in the Same Spot!

After the funeral of the late James C. Lyons, at Scotch Plains, yesterday, as elsewhere noted in this issue of THE PRESS, the will of the deceased was read in the presence of the family and near relatives. The will named Wm. C. Stanbury and a Mr. Dean, both of Scotch Plains, as the executors. The estate is valued at upwards of $20,000, over one-half of which is left to the Scotch Plains Baptist church, and the balance goes to the widow, and other surviving members of the family.

This is the second time the Scotch Plains Baptist church has been blessed in a financial way within the past few years, the church having been left in the neighborhood of $200,000 by the late Frazee Lee.

Bitten by a Cat.

Maud Warner, a little girl who claims Plainfield as her home, was admitted to the Pasteur Institute in New York city, yesterday, suffering from a cat's bite.

There were two little holes in the child's leg and the doctor in charge claims that the wounds, slight as they are, would be more apt to cause hydrophobia than a operation ten times as bad caused by a dog.

In talking with Dr. Paul Gibler, one of the attending physicians, the girl's mother stated that the child was petting the cat, when it turned on her and bit her leg. The cat ran under the bed, spitting and nothing at the mouth. The cat was subsequently shot. The accident only took place Monday.

Open Air Concert.

Fred Caspar, proprietor of Caspar's Hotel on East Front street, last evening tendered his patrons an open air concert. The music was furnished by Prof. Guttman's cornet band, and the concert lasted till about 10:30.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETING.

Petitions for Macadamizing Presented—Chief Martin of the Fire Department Resigns, and Mayor Place Sends in a Communication Favoring the Opening Up of Peace Street—Thomas Rutledge Elected Regular Marshal—Other Matters Considered.

The July meeting of the North Plainfield Council was held last evening, with Mayor Place in the chair. All the other members were present.

After the minutes were read, corrected and approved, petitions were presented and referred as follows:

From M. S. Taylor, J. F. Wilson and others, asking for the macadamizing of Green Brook road, from Grove street to Cadmus' Hill, the petitioners agreeing to pay certain sums set opposite to their names.

From Charles Smith and others, asking for similar improvements on Craig place, the petitioners agreeing to stand a portion of the expense.

Mary B. Loomis and others petitioned the Council to accept as a public driveway a portion of Westervelt avenue, to be known as "Westervelt avenue extension."

CLAIMS

were presented, referred and subsequently ordered paid as follows:

H. J. Martin, $8 33; Geo. P. Becker, $37.25; Job Coddington, $4.88; N. Y. and N. J. Globe Gaslight Co., $260.67 and $260.67; Plainfield Gas Co, $22.05; Wm. Boe, $3 50; P. T. B. Nevius, $70.52 and $35.56; P. Seader, $2; P. Kellgher, $6.25; L. Conrad, $8.75.

A communication was received from H. J. Martin, tendering his resignation as Chief of the Fire Department, said resignation to take effect immediately. The matter was referred to the Fire, Water and Lamps Committee, and at a later stage in the proceedings Councilman Emmons, from said Committee, offered a resolution which prevailed, accepting the resignation.

Mayor Place then sent in the following communication, which was referred to the Street Committee:

July 9, 1890.

To the Borough Council:

I desire to call the attention of the Council to the importance of taking some action in connection with the City of Plainfield, in extending Peace street from the city limits through the borough to such point in North Plainfield as may be deemed advisable. The question is being seriously talked of by the city authorities, and Mayor Male is anxious that the street should be widened to the city limits, and that the borough act in harmony with the city to accomplish this highly important improvement.

As to the wisdom of opening Peace street through the borough—if the city will widen it to the limits—there can be no question. It would add much value to the property adjoining it, making a direct route to and from the depot, and not only this, but those living in that part of the borough would have much shorter access to the depot and city than they now have.

I am informed that many owners of property, and residents upon the proposed street within the borough, are very anxious to have it extended, and will render all the aid possible to that end.

This improvement possibly could be accomplished with but little, if any, cost to the borough, and be of great benefit to the property and residents East of Somerset street.

I therefore would recommend that the Street Committee, or a Special Committee, as in the judgment of the Council may seem best, be empowered to investigate this matter, confer with the Plainfield City authorities, and report thereon as soon as practicable.

CHARLES PLACE,
Mayor.

Mr. Sebring, from the Fire, Water and Lamps Committee, reported that 500 feet of new hose had been received and that the same was satisfactory. He also reported that the committee took proper precaution to guard against fires on the Fourth, with no expense whatever to the borough. The report was filed.

Justice Hardy reported for the month 19 arrests, of which 7 were for disorderly conduct, 3 for being drunk, and the balance for trivial offences. The total fines amounted to $82.65, leaving a balance less court expenses of $51.25. The report was filed.

Mr. Smalley, from the License and Marshal Committee, reported favorably upon the matter of purchasing a strip of land 18x40 feet in the rear of the engine house, for $225, and later on a resolution was offered by Mr. Hegeman and adopted, authorizing the committee to contract for the purchase of the land, making the contract provisional for a clear title and also for a driveway leading into Emily street. The purchase price is not to exceed $235, and the land is to be used for borough purposes, principally for the erection of a lock-up.

The committee also recommended providing a suitable room, wherein Justice Hardy can hold court, and also for the appointment of a regular Marshal. Report received and recommendations adopted—with the exception of Justice Hardy's room being designated.

The Street Committee, through its Chairman, Mr. Hegeman, reported that certain portions of Willow, West End and Rockview avenues, have been turnpiked; Green Brook road has been re-graded, and the work of macadamizing Mercer avenue was begun on July 7. The total receipts have been $1,291.69; and the expenditures, $1,139 59. The report was filed.

Under the head of miscellaneous business, Mr. Hegeman offered a resolution appointing Thomas Rutledge regular marshal, for a term to expire on or before April 1, next, at the pleasure of the Mayor and Council, his compensation to be at the rate of $450 per annum.

Mr. Emmons moved to amend the resolution by inserting the name of Thomas McDonald, whose past services, he said, should be considered. After some debate a vote was taken on the amendment, and it was lost, Messrs Buckle, Needham, Hegeman and Smalley voting "No." A vote was then taken on the original resolution and it was carried, Mr. Smalley again voting "No."

Upon resolution offered by Mr. Hegeman, the Street Committee was authorized and empowered to borrow $700 for street work in anticipation of taxes.

Mr. Buckle was appointed Chairman pro tem of the Street Committee, during Mr. Hegeman's intended absence for a few weeks, the Auditing Committee reported favorably on the claims and they were ordered paid.

The Council then adjourned.

A DISASTROUS RUNAWAY.

A Lady and Two Children Thrown From a Buggy and Miraculously Escape Serious Injury.

A most disastrous runaway occurred on West Front street, about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, which resulted in the partial demolition of three vehicles, and the almost miraculous escape from serious injury of Miss May Palmer of New York, and two children of John Day of Clinton avenue, a boy and a girl.

Miss Palmer, who is a sister-in-law of Mr. Day, drove into town during the afternoon to make some purchases, leaving the horse standing along the curb in front of Mrs. Dunn's millinery store on West Front street. Just as she and the children were starting for home, a boy, whose name could not be ascertained, frightened the horse, causing the animal to run away. Before going far, however, Miss Palmer's rig collided with a buggy belonging to Firman Giese of Dunellen, throwing Miss Palmer and the children out, and dragging them along for some distance.

The runaway horse next struck a two-seat covered wagon belonging to O. M. Hetfield of Dunellen, completely wrecking the left hind wheel on Mr. Hetfield's wagon.

By the heroic efforts of Alexander Williams, one of Joseph S. Cutter's clerks, the runaway horse was captured in front of C. K. Compton's bakery, before doing any further damage. Miss Palmer and the children were assisted into A. W. Rand's residence, where an examination of the wounds revealed only a few slight bruises and a general shaking up. They subsequently left for home on the 5:20 o'clock train, but little the worse from their thrilling experience.

Buried With Masonic Honors.

The remains of the late James C. Lyons were interred in the Baptist burying ground at Scotch Plains yesterday with Masonic honors by members of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., of this city, of which body deceased was the oldest in membership. The funeral services at the house and church were conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Parks, who preached an instructing and interesting sermon from Genesis XV: 15., the Rev. Mr. Rich offering prayer. At the grave the Masonic ceremonies were conducted in an impressive and able manner by Past Master B Frank Corlell.

The pall bearers were Past Masters John Chandler, Henry Woodland, Charles Yeager and Brothers I. D. TenEyck, Samuel Ball and A. B. Darby.

Why Not Admit Them to the Local Union.

The Christian Endeavor Societies in the villages of New Market and Dunellen, have all practically voted to join the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union provided "the other local societies also unite." It was expected that the Executive Committee of the Plainfield organization would have taken some action ere this looking toward a consummation of the union idea, but Plainfield and Dunellen and New Market in this respect seem to be as far apart today as they were two months ago.

Off for the Beach.

If everybody who is talking about it goes with the First Baptists on their excursion to-morrow to the sea there will be a large and happy throng. The arrangements made insure convenience and comfort on the road, and as it promises to be fair weather and bathing will be good, a day of rare pleasure may be confidently expected by all who take the trip. See advertising columns for particulars.

A New Industry for Plainfield.

The Union Fiber and Reclaiming company of Plainfield was incorporated on Monday at Trenton. Its object is the manufacture of chemical fiber from wood, straw, cotton, etc., and reclaiming chemicals used in manufacturing paper. The capital stock is $250,000. Seymour G. Smith and Charles E. Runk, of Plainfield, are the incorporators from Plainfield, and P. H. Balston, of New York.

How tempting! Something "just as good" is offered when Hires' Root Beer is called for. The reason is plain. The unprincipled dealer makes more profit on imitation goods. The wise ones insist on getting Hires'.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. W. K. McClure and family will spend the Summer at Valois, Province of Quebec.

Robert S. Manning of Franklin place, will spend a portion of the Summer at Asbury Park.

Miss Mary, daughter of the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, has gone to Noyes Beach, R. I., for the Summer.

Mrs. D. W. Littell and children of North avenue, will spend the month of July at Ocean Grove.

Miss Bessie Irving of Burnside, Clearfield Co., Pa., is visiting the Misses Mulford of East Fifth street.

L. L. Martin, of Crescent avenue, joins his wife at the Orange House, Asbury Park, today, for the season.

Mrs. Maggie Cadmus, of Philadelphia, is visiting her father, ex-Councilman John Simpson, of East Second street.

Mrs. L. Tietjen and son, Master Herman, of Brooklyn, are visiting their cousin, Mrs. D. C. Bird of West Second street.

Mrs. F. H. Andrews, of Broadway, goes today to the Rip VanWinkle House, at Pine Hill in the Catskill, to remain until August 10.

The Asbury Park dispatches to the New York papers, locate Geo. H. Babcock and wife of Eighth street, at the "Mile End," that place.

Jaspar G. Cadmus who has been confined to his room in Force's Hotel for some days past by illness, was yesterday able to walk out.

Mary, the three-year-and-nine-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trotter of West Second street, died yesterday, after a short illness.

The condition of Mrs. Kate M. Overbaugh, who was so seriously injured in a runaway accident on the mountain, Sunday afternoon, continues to improve, but it will be a long time before she will be able to leave the Hospital, where she was admitted as a patient.

Runaway on East Third Street.

A team of bay horses belonging to the estate of the late J. Newton Jenkins, became frightened and ran away on East Third street, yesterday, throwing the driver, a colored man named George L. Henry, out, and badly injuring one of his arms The team was stopped after running a short distance.

Still Buying Property in Plainfield.

In the County Clerk's office yesterday, was recorded the deed of transfer by William Cartright and wife of Plainfield, to George H. Babcock of Plainfield, lot on Fourth street, Plainfield, 359 feet from Plainfield avenue, 30x181 feet for $360.

But He Can't Beat the Crescents.

Tierney, who pitched for the Hacketts both games that the Crescents won, pitched for the Bayonne club yesterday against the N. J. A. C. The latter only got four hits, and the Bayonne won by a score of 13 to 1.

What a Dunce

I suffered with fever, hot head and foul breath, With stomach disordered—was sick unto death. I bore it a week—surely I was a dunce— Then I took a few "Pellets"—they cured me at once.

What a dunce, indeed, to neglect such a remedy and suffer a week, when quick relief could have been found in Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets.

AN OPEN LETTER.
Mr. Seely Edsall, Plainfield, N. J.
In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.
We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.
You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.
Yours truly,
R. S PEALE & CO.

CRUSHED
COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER
FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.
SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.
THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially
FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup
"FRUIT CRUSH,"
And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

HIS OWN REMINISCENCES.

THE ONLY THATCHER'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY AS WROTE BY HIM.

THE PRESS Induces the Modest and Bashful Minstrel to Tell the People of the Days He Danced on the Old Hay Scales and Was Fired Out For It.

It requires a superabundance of fortitude to become an auto-biographist. Shakespeare once wrote: "Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale. Vexing the dull ear of a drowsy man." If this is the case, and we have no reason to doubt the divine William's veracity, then of what interest can the life of an ordinary human creature be to the world at large, when compiled by himself?

After a supreme effort, however, on the part of a few friends who are interested in me, I have consented to put together some points concerning my earthly career, realizing the wisdom of my undertaking from the fact that personally I am at liberty to say just what I please and consequently will be expected to give a good account of myself. Whereas had this very arduous duty been given in trust to a more prolific pen, the amount of truths, (N. B., for which composers of light literature are noted) would possibly have made of me a creature of such vast importance, that the natural blush of modesty that kindles my usually mobile countenance, would have ceased to kindle; for when greatness is thrust upon one in these days of rapid advancement, "modest kindling" is not as staple a commodity as solid cheek, sans blush, particularly in public life. I think the majority will agree with me on this point and acknowledge that I am pursuing the wisest course in inflicting upon them the following particulars gathered from my own memory, which I find a very convenient one at times.

Unlike many of my brother professionals, I am not a millionaire; neither can I tell you of the number of large diamonds I possess. Nor have I an annual robbing or any other sensation to spring upon the press and public. I am like to them in only one particular—I have, as they all have, "The greatest show on earth," though I little dreamed in the year 1846 that I was to be so fortunate. I anti-date from that eventful year, for I am led to believe through force of circumstances that it was on one July morning of that period that I first saw the light of day in a little suburb of Baltimore, Md., known as Hockley Mills. Of course I only have the assurance of my dear old mother, as to the truth of this assertion, but she has often informed me in her positive way that she was present on that particular occasion, and I have come to the conclusion it must be so. I have always understood that I was a very interesting specimen of babyhood, and up to the age of seven years it was generally conceded that I took after my father—after that father took after me! I believe the first occasion that he saw fit to display his warmest feeling was when I had inadvertently lost my way en route to school one morning, and during my absent-mindedness strolled into the city of Baltimore, and found myself and m school books perched on a top seat in Old Dan Rice's circus. When I returned home that evening I saw more stars than were announced on all the circus bill boards. Talk about those hard board circus seats; to use a vulgarism, they were "not in it" with dad's south-paw. The effect can better be imagined when I assure you I took my breakfast standing the next morning.

It was not many moons before my parents concluded to allow me to take up my residence a little nearer the city, with my big brother-in-law, George Wheeler, who then kept the Cold Spring Hotel, a noted hostelry on the York road. Here I was master of the situation, and speedily assumed an importance as the proprietor's assistant in every d partment. I endeavored to have more to say, and less to do, than any of the other employees, as is usually the case where a relationship admits of otherwise impossible liberties; and it was here I first formed an attachment for the profession I have adopted. My journeys to Baltimore became more frequent, and I gracefully approached the entrance to a circus or theatre without that deep-seated feeling of fear for the consequences with which I was wont to struggle. One fatal day I saw in the papers an announcement that "George Kunkel's Minstrels" were to appear at the "Old Maryland Institute." I had never seen the minstrels, and I determined to go. I did so, and was carried away with enthusiasm. From that moment I knew nothing but minstrelsy. I talked minstrels; I found myself dreaming of minstrels; I would awake with an imaginary tambourine in my hand, and rub my face with my hands to see if I was blacked up, before I would realize it was, alas! but a dream. I bought a banjo and got a copy of Jayne's almanac to familiarize myself with what is known to the present generation as "chestnuts," with which I would endeavor to amuse the stable boys. I became thoughtful; I had been extravagant; I grew economical; what I had thoughtlessly wasted upon the usual boy's supply of tops, air guns, root beer and peanuts, I hoarded to devote to witnessing the next minstrel performance. I would pick up the paper early every morning and eagerly scan the amusement columns, with the vain hope of finding an announcement of the coming of the minstrels. The dream of my new life was to see or speak to a performer. I looked upon them as a superior personage to all other beings. I had advanced on the banjo, so that I could pick "Juba" very creditably. I had purchased a pair of clog shoes in a pawn shop, that I used to rattle on the old hay scales, to the amusement of the urchins in the neighborhood, and I had gone to a limit that taxed the forbearance of my brother-in-law to such an extent that I was relegated to the barn—banjo, clogs, almanac and all—until finally the opportunity offered itself.

In the meantime I had met some of the attaches of the "Institute" at the hotel one day, and I made it a point to strike up an acquaintance that ripened into a friendship which eventually gave me an entree behind the scenes. I soon became familiar with the workings of the stage, and had the pedigree of every performer on my tongue's end. In fact I considered myself a full fledged professional, but the consciousness of my importance was not realized until after I had appeared upon the boards to assist a table and chair to make its exit, when a cruel hearted boy in the gallery shouted "supe." But I was undisturbed, for my hotel experience had taught me, soup always came before dessert. In those days they had in Baltimore what was known as amateur nights, and on one of these occasions, unknown to our family, I succeeded in making my appearance, and pardon the remark—I scored a success. (If I had permitted a professional writer to make this sketch, dear reader, he would have had me in the academy of music wading in flowers up to my neck.) From that night on it was plain sailing for me everywhere, except at the Cold Spring Hotel. Whether they expected to make a clergyman of me, or send me to Congress, I have never to this day learned; however, it was a fortunate thing for the pulpit or Congress—and for myself as well—that I became a common minstrel. The ice had been broken, and, like the little peach of emerald hue, I grew.

An offer for my services came from Philadelphia in which city I became somewhat of a favorite, and found my position and prospects better with the approach of every season. During the seasons of 1877, '8, '9 and '80 I was connected with Tony Pasters travelling organization and located with the San Francisco Minstrels in New York city. In 1881 I accepted a flattering offer from Moore & Bengers, of St. James Hall, Picadilly, London; making my first appearance at that house July 10. Were it not for my self-possession, and the stock of modesty I previously alluded to in early part of this sketch, I fear my hat would have been a trifle small when I read a comparison in a London paper between myself and that greatest of all American wits, Artemus Ward. That was a trifle too strong, I admit, but I fortunately retained my equilibrium and finished what proved to be an agreeable and profitable engagement in H'old H'England. On my return I formed a partnership with Add Ryman, opening the Arch Street Opera House in Philadelphia, which, after two years, I relinquished to associate myself with two partners whom I was professionally connected with for six years.

The present season, which promises to exceed all others in my career, I have the honor to have as interested partners, Messrs Rich & Harris, of the Hollis Street Theatre and Howard Athenæum, Boston, the leading managers of America today, who are willing to cater to the public taste at any outlay, and are too widely known as gentlemen of means and ability to need any introduction or seeming flattery from me. They do not believe in cheap performers and unsatisfactory performances; they do not advocate feeding the public with bean soup and charging for terrapin. Our united efforts, together with that of my manager, Henry Sayers, have been devoted for the last twelve months to a judicious selection of artists and novelties to present the coming season, that rank in every conceivable department is far superior to any past enterprises with which I have heretofore been associated.

It is simply necessary for the amusement patron at large to read the several names of the artists engaged in the enterprise, to be assured of the completeness of the organization. It will not be necessary to resort to "circus" work and we shall avoid it in every particular. I am content d in the fact that I have been fortunate in surrounding myself with the very best element, socially and artistically, in the profession, and will convince the amusement World that it is as easy for a gentleman to be a gentleman and a minstrel, as it is for a minstrel to be a minstrel and not a gentleman. We seek not, nor will we countenance any means of advertising by blackguarding others, but will use as our standard the words of Joseph Jefferson in the Century Magazine; "Competition deals with our own affairs, and if pursued with honesty and industry, invariably leads to good results. Opposition meddles with the business of other people, and generally brings about the downfall of the opposer."

Yours professionally and otherwise,
GEORGE THATCHER.

A Big Show Coming.

Main & VanAmburgh's mastodon consolidated shows will exhibit on the lot corner Fourth street and Plainfield avenue, on Tuesday afternoon and evening next, July 15. The show combines a circus, museum, menagerie, thrilling Wild West, caravan, aquarium and free horse show, and the admission to all parts will be but 25 cents. Remember the date and place.

The inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood-purifier should be known to every wife and mother. It corrects and gives tone and strength to the vital organs, and cleanses the system of all impurities. The best family medicine.

Changes in Borough Realty.

Recent changes in real estate in North Plainfield Township have been made as follows:

Newton B. Smalley to John Herman, property in North Plainfield, $300.

Same to Martin Codington, property in North Plainfield, $300.

Daniel H. Thickstun et ux to William E. Johnson, property in North Plainfield, $3,400.

Negroes Address the Queen.

BOSTON, July 10.—Prof. A. C. Johnston, of Hamilton, Ont., who is in Boston, says that he has received a communication stating that Lord Kortsford has presented the address prepared on behalf of the negro subjects of Canada to Queen Victoria, and the Queen was much gratified by the expression of loyalty which it contained.

Population of St. Louis.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The official rough count of the population of St. Louis, made public at the census office to-day, makes the population of that city 448,123, an increase of 28 per cent. over the census of 1880. This makes St. Louis rank fifth in population of the principal cities. The population of Baltimore is given at 433,689.

The Argentine Republic's Financial Crisis

BUENOS AYRES, July 10.—Intense excitement has been created on the Bourse here by the rejection of the proposed sterling loan. An issue of bank notes to the amount of $100,000,000 for the relief of the financial crisis has been authorized by the President of the Argentine Republic.

Killed While Shutting His Barn Door.

ST JOHNSBURY, Vt., July 10.—Harvey Foster, aged 60, of Walden, was killed while shutting his barn door during the storm.

Nominated for Congress.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., July 10.—The first district Republicans nominated H. Henry Powers for Congress.

Negro Help a Failure.

RONDOUT, N. Y., July 10.—A large number of negroes who were brought from Virginia to work in brickyards along the Hudson river, have left for their Southern homes. The experiment proved a failure and occasioned considerable trouble and loss to the brick manufacturers.

Charged With Embezzlement.

WATERBURY, Conn., July 10.—George S. Pelham, manager for B. Shoninger, music dealer, was arrested last night charged with the embezzlement of $2,500. Pelham says an investigation will benefit him as the books are all right.

Murdered for a Chew of Tobacco.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., July 10.—Richard Gaughan shot and fatally wounded John Judge in a quarrel over a chew of tobacco.

The Behring Sea Squabble.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The House has adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Hitt, chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, for the President to forward to Congress all the correspondence bearing upon the Behring Sea question that may be proper to make public.

Thick and Strong.

It has apparently come to stay. The Vigor is evidently a great aid to nature."—J. B. Williams, Floresville, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles street, Haverhill, Mass.

"I have been using Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and believe that it has caused my hair to retain its natural color."—Mrs. H. J. King, Dealer in Dry Goods, &c., Bishopville, Md.

TEA-CULTURE IN NATAL.

South Africa to Be the Great Tea-Producing Country of the Future.

Natal, South Africa, is now looked upon as the great tea-producing country of the future. None of the tea has yet appeared in this country. The first plants were brought from Ceylon in 1877. J. L. Hulett, the pioneer, now has nearly three hundred acres under cultivation, and his crop is from eighty thousand to ninety thousands pounds annually. His plant cost but $5,000. The land lies about one thousand feet above sea-level, the soil containing a fair proportion of sand and decomposed granite, vegetable and other organic matter. The tea-farm is open, level and is well plowed. The rows are laid out five feet apart, and the plants are set four or five inches apart. A crop is obtained after the first year, and increases up to the sixth year, when the plant matures, after which it bears for an indefinite period. Great care has to be taken to keep the ground loose and clear of grass and weeds. The picking begins in September and continues every ten days until June—twenty to thirty-two pickings in all. Nothing could be done with the native help, but coolies are plentiful, and are exclusively employed. They are able to pick from thirty-five to forty pounds of green leaves daily. The crop is sold in Durban at from eighteen to thirty-eight cents per pound, fully twenty-five per cent. cheaper than the foreign product can be laid down for in that market. The withering is done on large floors, the leaves being laid thin and constantly stirred by boys and girls. A hot and dry temperature is needed. The rolling is done by machinery, and has the effect of breaking up the juice cells. The fermenting process is the most particular of all, and upon it depends the quality of the product. The drying is done by hot revolving cylinders. The sorting is accomplished by the use of sieves, the top one containing the lowest grade of tea.—N. Y. Herald.

DANGERS OF HYPNOTISM.

It Is Apt to Impair the Moral and Emotional Control of Patients.

At Nuremburg a case of some interest was tried in the police court. A commercial traveler while in a restaurant told the waitress to look steadily at the white of his eye and hypnotized her. On a second occasion he repeated the experiment; but this time the sleep was so profound that a medical man had to be called, who had the utmost difficulty in rousing the girl. The commercial traveler was accordingly summoned to appear before the magistrate, and the severe sentence of eight days' imprisonment was passed on him, which will probably be efficient in checking similar performances in that region. In France the practice of hypnotizing people for amusement seems to be very common, and unpleasant consequences are frequently reported.

At a supper party in Paris one of the company hypnotized a girl, and was unable to rouse her. She was consequently taken to the house of a medical man, and after a time she recovered consciousness. The whole party was taken into custody by the police, and were not released until next day. Even when hypnotism has been practiced by competent medical men for remedial purposes, unpleasant accidents and ulterior consequences have again and again occurred; so much so that an order has been issued by the French Government prohibiting surgeons in the army and navy from practicing it. The Lancet, which notes the foregoing instances, says that it ought to be distinctly understood, both by the profession and the public, that hypnotism is not devoid of danger at the time, and not frequently has permanently impaired the moral and emotional control of patients. A medical man is bound, before recommending hypnotism for a patient, to weigh the question as carefully as he would that of the advisability of administering an anæsthetic.

IT WOULDN'T WORK.

A Jaded Tourist's Discouraging Experience in the Suburbs.

A tough-looking customer with a dilapidated valise in his hand stopped outside the gate in front of a house in the suburbs a day or two ago and called to the woman who was sitting on the porch:

"Madam, will you oblige me with the information whether or not you keep a dog?"

"What difference does it make to you, sir?" she responded.

He took a dog-eared note-book from the valise and made a memorandum of it.

"Refuses to answer," he said. Raising his voice, he called out again:

"Man of the house at home?"

"Never you mind?" retorted the woman. "I'm running this house just now. Any thing you want?"

He appeared to be on the point of making another entry in his greasy memorandum-book, but thought better of it and put it back in the valise.

"I have asked these questions, madam," he said, "not necessarily for publication but as a guaranty of good faith. If I understand you correctly you positively refuse to answer?"

"You understand me exactly. It won't pan out. The census man has already been along here, sir."

"I inferred as much," rejoined the tough-looking customer, with a shade of sadness in his voice. "Under the circumstances it would not be worth while to ask you, I presume, if you have any eligible cold victuals to give out?"

"It would not."

"Just so," said the jaded tourist, and he lifted his hat, took a careful survey of the surrounding dwellings, and followed his nose a little further down the street, to a house that seemed to give forth an odor of fried chicken.—Chicago Tribune.

RAPID-FIRING GUNS.

A Sketch of Their Evolution to Their Present Perfection.

Lieutenant Seabury's Device—Some of the Advantages of His New Invention Clearly Set Forth—About Guns in General.

Toward the close of the year 1881 advertisements were issued in England, says the New York Herald, for designs of a gun that should fulfill the following requirements: The weight of the gun and mount was not to exceed 1,120 pounds; the projectile was to weigh six pounds, and to have a muzzle velocity of not less than 1,800 feet per second; the projectile and powder charge were to be formed in a single cartridge; only three men were to be required to manipulate the gun, that is, to do the loading, training and firing, additional men being of course required to keep up the ammunition supply; the gun was to be capable of firing twelve aimed shots per minute, particular stress being placed on the matter of aimed shots, the capacity of the gun for actual rapidity of fire being considerably in excess of that rate.

About the same time ordnance experts in France were impressed with the necessity for an increase in the caliber of rapid fire artillery and they advertised for a three-pounder rapid fire gun that should fulfill relatively the same conditions. The outcome of these efforts were the Nordenfeldt and the Hotchkiss rapid fire guns, one or the other of which may be found in vessels belonging to nearly every one of the great naval powers, Germany, with her Krupp system, being the most prominent exception. These guns were called for chiefly as a defense against the swiftly-moving torpedo boats, which were built sufficiently strong to resist the effects of the then existing machine guns.

For a time it was considered that a projectile weighing six pounds had sufficient power for this purpose, and for two or three years that limit was not exceeded. It was not very long, however, before gunmakers and breech mechanism inventors aspired beyond this, and an attempt was even made to adopt the rapid fire system to six-inch guns and others capable of attacking armored structures.

This ambitious idea received a serious check, however, when the weight of the ammunition became too great for successful manipulation without the aid of mechanical devices. Just as soon as the projectile and powder can no longer be contained in the same cartridge the time element is seriously attacked, and the few additional seconds lost are just

Consequently the rapid fire guns of to-day do not exceed a caliber of five inches.

For our own navy we are making guns of four inch caliber, which are powerful enough to pierce the sides of unarmored cruisers and can be fired almost twenty times per minute. The experiments with the 4.72 inches gun abroad show that it can hit a target six feet square five times in thirty-one seconds with a 45-pound shot, which when it leaves the muzzle of the gun travels at the rate of 2,356 feet per second, and goes with force enough to penetrate 10¾ inches of wrought iron.

The great advantage of the rapid fire system is due solely to details of breech mechanism and ammunition. We are fortunate in this country in possessing the requisite plant for making metallic ammunition, which in its finish and general make-up places us easily ahead of the rest of the world. Smokeless powders will soon be at hand and will contribute their share toward increasing the power of the charge while diminishing its weight. What remains to be done, therefore, is to modify the mechanism about the breech of the gun so that there will be more simplicity of parts, with a lessening of weight, while the strength is increased and the guarantees of safety from accident are assured. Ordnance experts and inventors in this country have had these points in view and have been gradually improving upon the various systems in use until they have evolved mechanism that is more practical than any in use abroad.

The very latest system is that of Lieutenant Samuel Seabury, U. S. N., which is here illustrated and which gives promise of answering the requirements by combining simplicity and lightness with safety and rapidity. The cut showing the breech-block thrown open is from the mechanism as originally designed, since which, however, modifications have been introduced that tend greatly toward attaining increased simplicity of movement with corresponding efficiency. The fact that the powder and projectile must be in one cartridge to insure rapidity in loading necessarily confines, for the present, at least, the application of the rapid fire systems to calibers having ammunition that requires only one man to handle it.

This system of mechanism is, however, readily adapted to the larger calibers, as the reduction to one motion in opening and closing the breech-block enables the simplest gearing for power to be employed.

As the cut showing the breech plug when open illustrates, the slotted screw principle is employed and the reasons for its selection over that of the side system are based upon the facts that a greater length of bore is obtainable, and hence greater power; the mechanical work of cutting the screw box is simpler than by cutting through the sides and the gun, in consequence, is much less weakened.

Although the breech mechanism is designed for firing by the use of the percussion primer, it can be readily and simply converted for firing by electricity. This latter method of discharging guns will probably be much more generally used in the future than it has been in the past, for by means of the range finders and their attachments, not only are we to be informed of the exact bearing and distance of the target, but at the moment the guns are brought to bear upon it they can be discharged by electrically worked apparatus controlled by the captain or officer in charge of the battery.

A very neat method for extracting the empty cartridge case after firing has been adopted in the Seabury system. Instead of using the spring hooks at the sides of the cartridge case, as in other systems, a plate sliding into a recess at the bottom of the screw box has been substituted.

The front end of this plate is so formed as to embrace a portion of the head of the cartridge, while a lug serves to engage a corresponding recess at the forward end of the breech block. At the rear end of the extractor plate is a transverse slot engaging the long arm of the extractor lever. The great advantage of this change lies in the power produced by the unscrewing of the breech block preparatory to withdrawal to loosen the empty cartridge case in the bore, while the rapid rearward motion given by the action of the mechanism in opening against the short arm of the extractor lever serves to throw the cartridge to the rear as effectively as in the smaller calibres of rapid fire guns.

The locking device for the breech block, which in the older models was in the handle, in the modified form consists of a strong panel pivoted on the rear face of the gun, which by gravity drops into a recess on top of the rack when the block is in the locking position. To open the plug simply throw up this panel and turn the handle quickly around to the right, which opens the bore of the gun and leaves every thing in readiness for the insertion of the cartridge. In this single motion for withdrawing the breach plug is to be found one of the strongest features of the Seabury system and one that seems well calculated to secure the greatly to be desired rapidity of action.

Guarding against premature explosion through the careless handling of the mechanism has been kept clearly in view by the inventor, and the trigger, which is on the rear face of the gun, can not be moved by the lock string until the return of the handle to the locked position. A second safety appliance is to be found in a cam which moves the firing pin to the rear, for until the breech block is locked this cam remains under the shoulders of the pin and effectually prevents its moving, and even could the pin get adrift the cam would prevent it from striking the cartridge primer. In rapid loading the cartridges are not always pushed well home to their seats, and the result is quite frequently a "jam." In this system the head of the cartridge can be as far as seven inches from its proper firing position in the four-inch caliber without endangering the quick working of the mechanism, as even at that considerable distance the plug as it is being closed pushes the cartridge into its place without the least jamming.

Simplicity and accessibility of parts recommend the Seabury system for work in the field as well as afloat, as any trouble caused by sand or other material interfering with its free working can be quickly remedied and damaged pieces can very readily be replaced by spare parts without the aid of a skilled mechanic.

—What the world needs to-day is not a mere sentimental or intellectual, but a more practical, every-day religion—a religion the farmer can take with him into his field, the mechanic into his shop, the merchant into his store or counting-room, and the lawyer or doctor into his office; a religion that will make men honest and true, and indeed more of that pure and undefiled religion which Christ taught and exemplified in His life when here on earth.—Morrill.

CULTURE VS. CHEEK.

Scene: A corner in a Murray Hill drawing-room.

Characters: Miss Bunker, a lady from the classic corridors of Boston.
Mr. Golightly, a gentleman from the wind-swept boulevards of Chicago.

Time: Evening.

Miss Bunker (with a refined smile)—Charming evening, isn't it?

Mr. Golightly—O, I didn't notice any thing about the evening, except that it was not raining.

Miss B.—But the moon—so exceptionally fine.

Mr. G.—O, yes; of course. Fine moon! Do you know, the finest moon I ever saw was one we used in some amateur theatricals out in Chicago—our club, you know. We made it out of the bottom of a lard can. Nothing like a lard can for almost any thing.

Miss B.—O, you have been interested in amateur theatricals, have you? I knew you were intelligently inclined. Do you like poetry?

Mr. G.—Oh! some kinds.

Miss B.—Of course, not all kinds. No one reads the old style of poetry now. Sad death, that of Browning's, wasn't it?

Mr. G. (toying nervously with mustache)—Yes, very. Let's see; he was a relative of yours, wasn't he?

Miss B.—(embarrassed)—Oh, no! Do you—do you know where they are going to bury him?

Mr. G. (making a desperate guess, consummate sangfroid)—In Chicago I think. At least, that's what I heard.

Miss B.—Indeed? That's singular. It must be so different there from his beloved Venice.

Mr. G. (bluffing manfully)—O, not so very different.

Miss B. (suspiciously)—Have you read much of Browning's poetry?

Mr. G. (nonchalantly)—O, I used to read a good deal of it when I was a boy, but one soon outgrows him, don't you know. Of late I haven't been reading much poetry, except what I see in Truck. Elegant poetry in Truck, don't you think?

Miss B.—O, very.

Mr. G. (becoming enthusiastic)—I remember a thing they had last month, called "A Kiss in the Kitchen."

Miss B. (sarcastically)—Must have been something like Browning's "Love in a Balcony," I suppose.

Mr. G.—Just about the same, only better. That's where Browning got his start, writing for Truck. They made him. He used to do the kind of work for them. Ten cents a line. Good pay, too.

"There was a young man from Madrid"

Miss B.—Really, Mr. Golightly, are you not mistaken in the man?

Mr. G.—O, I can't be. Father used to know him well. Loaned him five dollars once. Browning never paid it. But I must go.

Miss B.—Must you go?

Mr. G.—O, I must, indeed. I'll send you the copy of Truck containing that "Kiss in the Kitchen." I am sure you will like it. Beats Browning all hollow. Good evening.

Miss B.—Good evening.

Mrs. Livewayt (of Chicago)—Of course I don't. If it were not for marriage how could there be such a thing as divorce?—Judge.

SAILOR SUPERSTITIONS.

Queer Stories of the Effect of Dead Bodies on Shipboard.

It is an old sailor's superstition that a ship that carries a dead body on board is always sure to have trouble before the cruise is over, and many a time has this remark been applied by the "I told you so's" aboard the Enterprise. "It has never been known to fail" is a verdict to which the very large majority agree without question.

In a queer old book now out of date this question is asked: "Doth a dead body in a shippe cause the shippe to sail slower or and if it does, what is thought to be the reason thereof?" The answer given, although not perhaps quite all one would desire, is cleverly enought put to admit of repetition: "The ship is as sensible of the living as of the dead, and as the living makes it go the faster, so the dead make it not go the slower, for the dead are no phemoras to alter the course of her passage, though some there be that think so, and that by a kind of a mournful superstition."

This is quite as lively, however, as most superstitions on shore and there is more or less of a shade of probability about it. Those who favor the dead claim that if the eerie knowledge of the immediate neighborhood of a dead body weighs upon Jack's spirits by constantly reminding him of that unpleasant fact which he likes to forget—that there is only a plank between him and eternity—it will surely affect his power of work, and therefore "cause the shippe to sail slower." To those who can not entertain an idea of the superstition, there may possibly be more or less of reasonableness in the above idea.

The "dead light" is the name given to the air port shutters, which are always put in and well secured at nightfall and whenever bad weather is expected, and to the uninitiated the order to put in the dead lights carries more or less of the disagreeable with it. The story is told of a gentleman coming around Hatteras when it was blowing half a gale of wind with considerable sea, who, upon hearing the order to put in the dead lights, rushed off to his berth in a fever of repentance and began saying his prayers, or at least what he thought were his prayers, with such rapidity and in so loud a voice as to attract his next-door neighbor, who, thinking that something must certainly be the matter with his friend, whom he had never before known to go to the length he had then reached, rushed in to the other's room to find out what it was all about, and was still more surprised to find that it was not his prayers but the Greek alphabet he was repeating. Fear and hurry to prepare for the next world had proved rather too much for a faithful adherence to what was taught him in his Sunday-school days, although upon his friend's intrusion he said: "The ship is going down, and I'm praying to be saved."

This yarn is no worse than that of the learned divine to whom the story is told that he devoutly thanked Heaven whenever he heard men cursing and swearing in the forecastle. It appears that the captain had frequently impressed it upon him that such was the nature of the sailor man that he never was profane when he was in danger of drowning, so that, if he ever heard an unusually heavy amount of swearing, he could rest assured that matters would soon assume a more favorable aspect. In consequence of this, whenever there were appearances of particularly bad weather, the clergyman always walked quietly forward and patiently awaited the profane language that experience told him he would soon hear coming from the men's quarters. When he had heard enough, he would walk aft with a satisfied air, feeling assured in his mind that no danger was to be apprehended.

This swearing is one of Jack's silly habits, and he is never particular about waiting for an object to decorate with his expletives, but is quite like the Scotchman in the story, who "didna sweer at ony thing in particular, but just gaed ta the middle of the road and swore at lairge."—N. Y. Times.

General Dix's Famous Order.

Concerning General Dix's famous dispatch: "If any man attempts to haul down the American flag shoot him on the spot!" General Sickles said to a reporter a day or two ago: "On receipt of the news from New Orleans that an attempt had been made to seize a revenue cutter, General Dix impulsively wrote that splendid dispatch with the true ring of patriotism and fight in it. But he no sooner saw it in black and white than he began to hesitate and doubt. He first consulted the Attorney-General, and the result of their deliberations was approved by the latter but a final resolve was had on Dix's part to submit the message to the President before sending it. On the way to the White House I met the two officers, and General Dix showed me the dispatch as he had written it, and, stating the circumstances, added that the Attorney-General approved it. 'Then send it at once,' I said. 'The Attorney-General's approval is sufficient.' Still General Dix hesitated, when I said to him: 'General, if you send that dispatch the President will approve of it as highly proper and in the right key. If you show it to him it will never be sent.' It was sent, Buchanan did approve it, and the North was wild over it for weeks. General Dix narrowly escaped imperishable fame on that occasion."

How to Choose Kid Gloves.

The durability of kid gloves depends on how they are put on the first time. If you want a kid glove to fit buy it leisurely and with judgment, and put it on slowly, taking care to fit every part. It is better not to use a stretcher. The expansion should be made by the hands, so as to secure a perfect fit at every point. Gloves of the proper size need no stretcher. Choose gloves the fingers of which correspond with your own in length, work in the fingers first, then the thumb, and finally smooth them down until they fit every part. A glove that fits well generally wears well. If they do not come down well or if they are so long as to wrinkle they will chafe out easily. When fingers are so small as to need the stretcher the body of the glove is strained out in drawing over the hand.—Dry Goods Chronicle.

DWELLERS IN MINES.

Queer Creatures Found in Underground Workings.

Beasts, Snakes and Vermin That Lurk in Impenetrable Darkness—Trophies Gathered in Various Places by a Mining Expert.

Nothing tries a man's nerves more than the glaring eyes of some unknown animal that has taken up its abode in the dark and deep underground workings of the gold and silver mines of the Far West. Often bears, mountain lions, dogs, cats, rats, birds, snakes and many such things are found in the mines and make many an interesting story. Mr. A. F. Wuensch, now of Denver, but who for several years was the mining editor of the Leadville Herald and Democrat, and who has examined and reported on about 1,500 mines between British Columbia and Old Mexico, recently told the Denver correspondent of the Kansas City Journal some interesting stories about animals he has found in the mines. These were all in gold and silver mines, and not coal mines.

"I once went to Mineral, I. D.," said Mr. Wuensch, "to make a report on the Black Maria mine. On entering the large tunnel that leads to the workings, I stopped to strike a match, and, in so doing, placed my hand on one of the timbers of the tunnel. 'Don't do that,' said the superintendent to me, and then further explained to me that I was in danger of being bitten by a rattlesnake. He said that rattlesnakes were quite numerous in that section, and that they sometimes crawled into the tunnel. Rattlesnakes sleep during the night, and are not dangerous then. But early in the morning they crawl out and bask in the sun, and in the evening seek a secluded spot for the night. It was owing to these habits of the rattlesnake that the superintendent gave me the warning. I was at first surprised, for it is an unusual thing to find a rattlesnake in a mine. But the warning was timely, for we had only gone a short distance before we ran across a large snake that was uncoiling itself from behind the timbers to make its way to the sunlight at the mouth of the tunnel. We soon killed the reptile, which was a large one, and secured as a trophy eleven rattles from the tail."

Mr. Wuensch was sent out by the Union Pacific in 1888 as a geologist through Oregon and Idaho. Every night he and the party slept on the ground and never once thought of snakes, for the reason that even in those sections where the rattlers are quite numerous these snakes usually sleep in the night time. This suggests to me a story which a cowboy once told me. He said that although the rattlesnake is not often used for food, yet he liked them. He says that a tender rattlesnake's meat is as white and delicious as that of a frog. He claimed, strange as it may appear, that the whipping of a snake with a switch, when no club is convenient, paralyzes the reptile so that it is easily killed. According to his idea it is not the quality of the meat, but prejudice, that keeps more people from eating rattlesnakes. "Always be careful, though," added the cowboy, "and do not let the rattlesnake bite itself and thereby poison its own flesh."

Rattlesnakes are sometimes captured for the museums by placing a forked stick on the neck and holding the reptile down until the snake is safely secured, but no one not accustomed to this should attempt so dangerous an experiment. I have often seen large rattlesnakes coiled up under the sage brush on the plains, or along the mountain gulches, but never had any desire to experiment with them. "Bears and mountain lions are suspicious," continued the expert, recalling other stories of his experience in Western mining camps. "Hence they are not often found in tunnels. They rarely take up their abode in workings made by man. I have seen their tracks in tunnels where possibly they were compelled to seek shelter, but not often."

Mr. Wuensch says the most annoying circumstance of all his experience in the mining regions of the West was in some mines in Old Mexico. Here are found owls, bats and rats. Some of these famous old mines have inclines from the surface workings, and here and there large chambers, worked out many years ago, as large as the rotunda of many well-known hotels. The length of time in which some of these mines are idle causes them to be infested with rats, owls, bats and other animals.

"I had quite an experience with rats," said the expert, "in the Santa Barbara district in Old Mexico, near the boundary line between the States of Durango and Chihuahua. It was the most uncomfortable sensation I ever had in the gold and silver mines of the West. I tied my broncho to a post near by, and had descended the shaft alone. It was not very deep, and from the bottom of the shaft I followed a drift about three hundred feet. It was just wide enough for a narrow-shouldered Mexican to work in a cramped position. Near the top of the drift and about the height of my head was a streak of quartz four to six inches wide, in a horizontal position. This had been washed out, leaving a kind of groove on both sides of the drift. Well, this groove had become the abode of thousands of large, long-tailed rats, which had probably not been disturbed for many a year. Feeling my way carefully along this drift, with a feeble candle light, I seemed to arouse every rat. Their tails would strike me in the face, and when I would dodge to the opposite side of the narrow drift, it was only to encounter other long tails that would sweep over the groove. I was in no danger, but that nest of rats in that mine in Old Mexico made me more nervous than all my experience in the mining regions."

TERRIBLE RACE RIOT

The Killed and Wounded Placed at Sixteen.

STORES LOOTED FOR FIREARMS

The White Men Telegraph for Guns and Ammunition.

Another Outbreak in West Virginia—Drunken Negroes Create a Riot on an Excursion Train—A Fearful Conflict Ensued—Three of the Rioters Try to Cut a White Man's Throat.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 11.—A terrible race riot, in which the list of killed and wounded is placed at 16, is raging in Fayette County. The scene of the tragedy is Stone Mills, and the occasion was the drawing off of a fish pond. A large crowd had assembled to catch fish, and a row occurred between a negro and a white man. Others were soon interested and engaged in the difficulty, and a general war ensued. The result was that four negroes were killed, eight wounded, two white men seriously wounded and three or four grazed.

The row is still going on at last reports, and probably will continue tonight, as the white men, who were comparatively unarmed, telegraphed to Griffin for guns and ammunition. About one hundred shots were exchanged. One wounded white man is W. B. Harril and the other McElwaney. When the rioters had exhausted their ammunition they looted the stores of a neighboring merchant, and took all his powder as well as every knife and pistol in the place. The crowds on both sides are being augmented by friends and bloodier times are expected to-night than even those of to-day.

CONFLICT WITH NEGROES.

Great Excitement Throughout the West Virginia Mining Region.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 11.—Dispatches from Bramwell, Mercer County, says there is great excitement throughout the mining region, growing out of a terrible riot on the line of the Bluestone branch of the Norfolk & Western Railroad.

It seems that several hundred negroes made an excursion over the road, and as there was a good deal of liquor on board the train, a number of fights occurred. When a few miles from Bramwell three or four negroes attempted to cut a white man's throat, and Detective W. G. Baldwin and three of his men, who were on the cars, attempted to protect the man. They were at once attacked by about thirty drunken negroes, who broke the car seats to fragments and used the pieces as clubs.

The lights were knocked out, and a terrible conflict ensued, during which nine negroes were disabled. W. G. Baldwin was stabbed in the left side, hit on the head with a fragment of iron and terribly clubbed. His wounds are serious. Detective Campbell was badly hurt in the side. Detective Robertson had his right arm broken. W. G. Baldwin shot the negro who stabbed him in the shoulder and again in the right arm.

At Bramwell an attempt was made to arrest the negroes by citizens, which led to a second riot, but six negroes were jailed. Several negroes were beaten almost to death.

A GREAT UNDERTAKING.

Observations Before Beginning Work on the Big Tunnel at Niagara.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 11.—The first test-hole for the purpose of ascertaining the thickness of the different strata of rock which will be encountered in digging the big tunnel, has been completed.

The drill went down 214 feet. At a depth of 149 feet the drill passed out of the hard gray limestone into hard blue slate, and at 205 feet it again left blue slate and passed back into limestone.

A second test-hole was commenced further up the river on Tuesday.

Preliminary work on the tunnel has been commenced and ground has been broken for the foundation of a tower from which observations as to the different elevations of land along the proposed route of the tunnel will be taken.

It is expected that the formal commencement of the great undertaking will be on August 12.

Elks Elect Officers.

Mangled and Killed by a Train.

PATERSON, N. J., July 11.—John Grassman, aged 40 years, while attempting to board a freight train here last night, slipped and fell under the wheels of the locomotive. Both legs were severed from his body. He was taken to the hospital, where he died an hour later. He was a resident of Mountain View, and visited Paterson to look for work.

Collieries on Full Time.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—A special from Pittstown says the officials of the Delaware & Hudson Company have issued an order placing all of the collieries of the company in this vicinity on full time, and it is thought that the new order of things will continue for some weeks. The anthracite business is in good condition.

HUNTING JEWELRY THIEVES.

They Flee to the Mountains and Are Pursued by Hundreds of Citizens.

DANBURY, Conn., July 11.—Shortly after midnight two officers sighted two men on the road near Brewsters, whom they suspected of having robbed Lewis' jewelry store. They ordered the men to halt, but the men shot at the officers and fled.

The officers pursued the men for some distance but they escaped in the darkness. About twenty shots were exchanged. In their flight they dropped a package containing about $2,000 worth of jewelry.

The men are in the mountains and hundreds of citizens have joined the police in the search for the robbers, and it is thought to be only a question of time when they will be surrounded and captured.

A later dispatch says the two burglars were captured and lodged in jail. They gave their names as G. W. Wallis, of Albany, N. Y., and A. W. Spalding, of Bridgeport, Conn. All the jewelry was recovered.

A DESPERATE PRISONER.

He Flies Off a Chain, Locks Up the Turnkey and Escapes.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 11.—Archibald McDonald, who has committed many burglaries in St. Lawrence County, and who is wanted in Canada for murder, has recently been confined in the Canton jail awaiting trial for burglary. He was so desperate that he was compelled to wear a ball and chain. Yesterday he obtained a file and freed himself from the ankle, and when the turnkey went to look the cells last night McDonald seized him, thrust him into a cell and locked him up. Then the prisoner escaped and has not been recaptured.

Knights of Pythias Elect Officers.

MILWAUKEE, July 11.—Almost after the opening of the morning's session, the members of the Supreme Lodge of Knights of Pythias proceeded to the election of officers, with the following result: Supreme Chancellor, G. B. Shaw, Eau Claire, Wis.; Supreme Vice Chancellor, W. W. Blackwell, Henderson, Ky.; Supreme Prelate, E. T. Blackmore, San Diego, Cal.; Supreme Master Exchequer, S. J. Filley, Wilmington, Del.; Supreme Keeper Records and Seal, E. S. C. White, Nashville, Tenn.; Supreme Master-at-Arms, C. H. Mortison, Nevada; Supreme Secretary Endowment Fund, W. E. Kennedy, Cincinnati, O.; Supreme Inner Guard, Dr. D. C. Barkwell, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Supreme Outer Guard, John H. Thompson, Washington D. C.

Cornell's President Married.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 11.—There was general surprise here when the news was received by cable from London that Mr. Charles Kendall Adams, President of Cornell University, was married to Mary Matthews Barnes in that city yesterday afternoon. The bride was the widow of the late A. S. Barnes, the well-known publisher of New York. The honeymoon will be partly spent at the residence, of Mr. Andrew Carnegie, in Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Adams will start for New York about August 27.

Valuable Diamonds Stolen.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—Mrs. Paran Stevens reported to the police that a pair of diamond bracelets valued at $16,000 had disappeared from her apartments. She last saw the bracelets on July 2. She also says that she has lost $40,000 worth of diamonds in the past six months. The police are investigating the matter. They are inclined to think that some one in the house must have gotten the jewels.

Buffalo Wants a Recount.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—Mayor Bishop has forwarded to Superintendent of Census Porter documents going to show that the recent enumeration in this city has been so imperfect that a recount is a necessity, and requesting that a re-enumeration be ordered. There are good reasons for believing that at least ten thousand names have been omitted in the recent count.

Pugilist "Paddy" Duffy Dead.

Boston, July 11.—"Paddy" Duffy, the world's 140-pound fistic champion, died in the morning at his home here, after suffering for a year with a complication of lung and heart troubles. He was born in Boston 26 years ago and rose to national fame in the fistic world from the position of a bootblack in a West End saloon.

Robbed Street Letter Boxes.

LEWISTON, Me., July 11.—Harry Sackett, a book canvasser, was arrested here for robbing street letter boxes. Over twenty letters which he had opened and resealed were found on him. Sackett was yesterday seen sawing off the lock of a box, but it was supposed that he was repairing it. He had a key made from this lock.

Gov. Hill's Bereavement.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 11.—Governor Hill suffered a personal bereavement in the death of his favorite aunt, Mrs. Elmira Durfee, who died at her home in Waverly, N. Y., aged 87 years. The Governor has gone to attend the funeral and will not return until Tuesday.

Socialists and Nationalists in Politics.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Socialists and Nationalists both took steps last night to organize parties to nominate tickets for the coming municipal elections. The parties may possibly unite. At both meetings resolutions of sympathy with the striking cloakmakers were adopted.

Missionaries Released From Prison.

BOSTON, July 11.—J. S. Paine has received a telegram from the Secretary of State at Washington, stating that the missionaries, including the Rev. A. J. Diaz, have been released from prison in Cuba, by order of the court, through the earnest intervention of the Consul-General.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Senate Adopts the Silver Bill Conference Report.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY'S LABOR

The House Committee Advises Its Establishment for Government Workmen.

Republican Senators Hold a Caucus but Take no Action on the Election Bill—Arranging for the Tariff Debate—The President Signs the Act for the Admission of Wyoming.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The Senate adopted the conference report on the Silver bill by a vote of 29 to 26.

It was a strict party vote, but Mr. Payne, who was absent, released Mr. Sherman from pairing, and thus negatively supported the bill.

Mr. Morgan was the first Democratic talker, and he kept it up for three hours.

Mr. Morgan's arguments were answered by Mr. Farwell of Illinois and Mr. Jones of Nevada. Senator Call of Florida made a speech in opposition. He was followed by Senator Plumb, who, although he would much prefer free coinage of silver, said the bill was a long step in the right direction, and that this act will make a large and valuable addition to the circulating medium of the country. After Senator Plumb Senator Vance spoke in opposition.

Then the Senate drifted into a general discussion, participated in by Senators on both sides of the chamber, when the vote was finally ordered.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

The Committee on Labor Advises Its Establishment for Government Employes.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Mr. Bliss, from the Committee on Labor, reported with some minor amendments the bill constituting eight hours a day's work for all laborers employed by the Government.

In a report on the bill the committee states that the question of shortening the hours of labor is being considered the world over, and, in the main, the workmen have succeeded in having the hours reduced. The committee thinks the Government can well afford to set an example of liberality to the rest of the world and accord the same hours to its laborers as it does to its clerks. It is recommended that the bill, as amended, be passed.

ORDERS TO WAR SHIPS.

Trouble Imminent Between Salvador and Guatemala.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Information has been received at the Navy Department that trouble is imminent between Salvador and Guatemala, arising out of the recent changes in the Government of the former country.

It being thought advisable to have some American war vessels near at hand, orders were issued for the Ranger and Thetis, now at San Francisco, to proceed at once to the west coast of Central America. These vessels will not be expected to interfere in the troubles between the two countries, except so far as may be necessary for the protection of American interests and to afford a place of refuge to American subjects in case it should be required.

The Tariff Bill Next Week.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The Senate is not going to take up the Tariff bill until after the appropriations are disposed of. The Sundry Civil and River and Harbor bills will be taken up as soon as the Silver bill is got out of the way, and it is not at all probable that the Tariff bill can be reached before the middle of next week, when a long debate will begin.

Republican Senators in Caucus.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The Senate caucus was in session last night discussing the question of taking up the River and Harbor bill before the Tariff bill; also the order of discussing the Tariff bill and the Election bill. After a long debate the caucus adjourned without taking action on the Federal Election law.

Nominations by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: B. Bowser, of Connecticut, Consul at Sierra Leone. Postmasters—Massachusetts, F. E. Patterson, Chicopee Falls; Maine, H. G. Briggs, Portland; Pennsylvania, W. S. Barr, Parker's Landing; S. C. Stevenson, Scottdale.

Applying for Pensions.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The applications for pensions under the new pension law are being received daily at the Pension Office. The volume is increasing from day to day. It is estimated that about 30,000 applications have already been received.

The New Chilian Minister Presented.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Assistant Secretary of State Adee formerly presented Senor D. Prudence Lazarno, the new Chilian Minister to the President during the morning. The usual formal greetings were exchanged.

Wyoming a State.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The President has approved the act for the admission of Wyoming as a State of the Union.

Contract Workmen Held.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—Ten Belgian cigarmakers, alleged to have come here under contract, were refused landing from the Antwerp steamer Belgenland, and are detained pending an investigation.

AMONG THE FIGHTERS.

Dixon Refuses to Meet McCarthy and Slavin and McAuliffe Matched.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Special cablegrams from London contain the following notes regarding pugilists: George Dixon, the colored bantam champion, refuses to fight Cal McCarthy for the purse the Pelican Club offered.

Jack Burke is awaiting a reply to his challenge to fight Jack Dempsey.

Joe McAuliffe and Frank Slavin met at the Sporting Life office and ratified a match for the Police Gazette belt, to take place in the Ormond Club in the first week in October. The stakes are £500 a side and a purse of £1,000. Lord Lonsdale holds £300 which is to be forfeited to the American if he does not receive fair play.

Sons of Temperance Conference.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 11.—The National Division of the Sons of Temperance of America and Canada met again in the forty-sixth annual session this morning. The conference will adjourn sine die to-night.

AWAITING THE ISSUE

The Postmen's Trouble in London Becoming Serious.

A MOB AROUND THE POSTOFFICE

Troops Have Been Ordered Out and Special Guards Surround the Banks.

Changes Expected in the British Cabinet—Lord Churchill Talked of for Government Leader—A Report that Stanley is Begging for Pardon—Emin Pasha's Last Trip to Africa.

LONDON, July 11.—A strike all along the line has been ordered at the General Postoffice in St. Martin's le Grand, growing out of the refusal of the authorities to discharge the extra help engaged in anticipation of the strike of the regular force.

Several thousand men are employed in the two great buildings, and they, with an immense mob filling the squares in sympathy with them, are anxiously awaiting the issue, which they are prepared to accept.

Should the strike begin in earnest the new hands may be roughly treated. Reinforcements of troops have been ordered to the postoffice and special guards assigned the banks.

At the Cabinet council the feeling was very generally admitted to be that politics had to a large extent something to do with the strike; that the Liberals were anxious to force the Government to appear in a light hostile to organized labor. The Liberals contend that this is a cheap way of begging sympathy and make no hesitancy in declaring that both Chief of Police Bradford and Postmaster General Raikes have sadly blundered.

CABINET CHANGES.

Lord Randolph Churchill as Government Leader in the House.

LONDON, July 11.—The Press Association announces that the arrangements for the reconstruction of the Cabinet are making progress. It also says that the Right Hon. W. H. Smith, the present Government leader in the House of Commons, will be elevated to the peerage, and that he will probably be succeeded by Lord Randolph Churchill as Government leader in the House.

Lord Hartington has again been requested to take office, but he prefers to remain outside. He was consulted yesterday during the meeting of the Cabinet, and he advised that Lord Randolph Churchill be asked to resume office.

Lord Salisbury, it is said, went to Windsor Castle and obtained the Queen's assent to the proposed changes.

Emin's Last Trip to Africa.

BREMEN, July 11.—Doctor Hartlaub of this city, who is preparing for preservation the zoological collection made by Emin Pasha, has received a letter from Emin in which he says: "If I return in safety I will not tempt God by further explorations. I desire that my collections shall be as rich and varied as possible."

Boulanger Asks for Pardon.

PARIS, July 11.—The Soir asserts that General Boulanger has asked the Government to pardon him and permit him to return to France.

Gold Quoted at 302.

BUENOS AYRES, July 11.—The question of forced currency has created a panic in the money market here. Gold is quoted at a premium of 302.

INCREDIBLE CRUELTIES.

Starving Chinese Soldiers Buried Alive. Other News from China.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—Shanghai papers received by steamer say incredible cruelties have been practiced on Chinese soldiers in Formosa.

The men were mostly opium smokers recruited from the dregs of the big cities. After the war ended they were given passage back from Formosa, but were not supplied with food, and the result was starvation and disease.

Many of the sick were crowded into coffins and buried alive.

A European witnessed one case where the victim struggled to prevent the coffin lid being nailed down.

A great fire at Kirin destroyed one-fifth of the city and caused a loss of between two and three million dollars. It spread along the river, burning large timber rafts, on which were hundreds of people. Ten lives were lost.

In Tokio there is great suffering for lack of food. Thousands are living on bran mash and food of oxen and hogs; others live on garbage.

In the interior the situation is worse, and European missionaries declare that many will perish unless aid is furnished.

False Reports About Chicago Stock Yards.

BOSTON, July 11.—The Boston News Bureau says: The Chicago Stock yards transaction has been destined to about as much misrepresentation as any modern financial transaction. No sooner is the false report of a sale to an English company set at rest by an official statement that the reorganization will be upon an American basis than another false report, namely that the Vanderbilts will have control, is set afloat. This is not true. The Vanderbilts have for many years been owners in the stock yards property but control they are not seeking.

Quarrymen on Strike.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—About 100 quarrymen and laborers are out on strike at the Jammerthal quarries at Buffalo Plains for an increase of wages. They now get $1.75 a day and ask $2.

THRASHED BY A WOMAN.

A Connecticut Prize Fighter and Sport Meets His Match.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., July 11.—Clara Sturgess, of this city, has knocked out a middleweight pugilist named Tommy Cook, who claims the championship of the State. Miss Sturgess is a tall, slender, pretty looking Miss, about 19 years of age, and her feat is the talk of the town. For some days past Cook has been working for Farmer Sturgess, Clara's father, haying. The farmer allows his men to drink all the hard cider they can put away, and as a result Tommy became intoxicated, and went to sleep on the farmer's front door step.

Mrs. Sturgess objected and undertook to drive the slugger off. Cook's blood was up in a minute and he struck her. She screamed and her cries for help were heard by Clara, who quickly rushed to her mother's assistance. She picked up a chair and belabored the prize fighter over the head. The chair was broken in a few moments and Clara turned his attention to the girl and started to thrash her. She grabbed him around the neck and gave him a pummelling.

Here the girl's father arrived on the scene and added further to the prize fighter's humiliation by giving him a shaking. Cook was then thrown into a wagon and taken to the lockup. He has won several battles in the ring lately, the last one taking place not less than a month ago when he defeated Jimmy Reynolds, of New Haven.

A Coroner's Jury Disagrees.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—The coroner's jury investigating the case of the body found on Grand Island, supposed to be that of John Miesher, and on suspicion of having killed whom Ackerman is under arrest, have disagreed, standing six to six on the question of Ackerman's guilt. The jury were discharged and Ackerman will be held for further proceedings.

An Ex-U. S. in Jail.

TROY, N. Y., July 11.—James Wilton Brooks, Ex-U. S. D., of New York, is in Troy jail on a charge of grand larceny, second degree. It is alleged that he passed a bogus check for $100 on Dr. W. W. Seymour of this city.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The top of Mt. Washington is white with snow and frost.

The National Jewellers' Association is in session at Atlantic City.

James Cusian, aged 66, an old-time sporting character, is dead at St. Luke's Hospital in New York.

Congressman Fred Lansing, of the Jefferson-St. Lawrence district, New York State, declines to be a candidate for renomination.

The Pavers' Union of Boston last night voted to inaugurate a nine-hour day movement during this month and also determined not to work with non-union men after to-day.

The Millerville, N. J., postoffice was robbed during the night of $[illegible] money and stamps to the value of $1,800. The safe was blown to atoms. The burglars escaped.

George H. Wiggan, a prominent real estate man of Medford, Mass., is under arrest, charged with obtaining $[illegible],000 by false pretenses from W. M. Morse of Boston.

The laundry building of the Hotel Kaaterskill, Catskill Mountains, was destroyed by fire at an early hour. Fireman B. Smith was burned to a crisp while attempting to rescue the employes. Thirty-six girls working in the laundry were saved. Loss $35,000; insured.

Nettie Clark, the young woman who forged a note for $5,000 on the Franklin Savings bank of Providence, R. I., waived examination and was bound over in $6,000 bail for trial at the September term of the Court of Common Pleas.

The dispatches from Rome on the illness of Pope Leo are greatly exaggerated. He was slightly indisposed a short time ago, but has recovered. He celebrated Mass on Sunday and gave two public audiences since, besides attending personally to his usual routine duties.

The Governor of Wisconsin has granted a requisition for the return to Pittsburg, Pa., of Michael Callahan, the leader of a gang of robbers which has been operating extensively on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He is now under arrest at Ashland and will be tried at Newcastle, Pa., the scene of his crimes.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—For New England: Fair, slightly warmer; northwesterly winds; fair weather to-morrow.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Slightly warmer; fair; northwesterly winds; warmer to-morrow and Sunday.

For Western New York: Warmer; fair; winds shifting to southeasterly.

BY THE WAY.

—A new Council of the Jr. O. U. A. M., will be instituted at Cranford, on Monday evening.

—Two men were seen prowling around Justice Hardy's house in North Plainfield, on Wednesday evening, and the Justice now retires with one eye open.

—The outlet to the New street sewer, over which there has been so much complaint of late, has been repaired, and a passageway opened up leading into Green Brook.

—Wednesday evening's sudden fall in temperature caused an equally sudden demand for the blankets and comforters so fiercely repudiated the two previous nights.

—A report was circulated on the streets this morning, to the effect that a prominent city official had suddenly expired during last night, but the report was without foundation.

—A return game of base ball between the Blue Front and the Plainfield Athletic clubs was played Wednsday on the West End grounds at Somerville, and resulted in a victory for the former.

—People who throw paper or any other refuse in the streets, should be arrested and fined. When this nuisance will be stopped. Flying paper on the streets is often the cause of a runaway.

—Pierson, the hardware dealer of 42 West Front street, will give a public exhibition of his gasolene stove on Saturday morning, and will also serve coffee and cake made on the stove, free of charge.

—The colored people of this city and North Plainfield, attended a picnic in Allen's Grove, North Plainfield, last evening. The attendance was very large, and everything passed off harmoniously

—The Central Railroad company has 156.35 miles of tracks in this State. Its total income last year was $7,424,991.05, and the expenses $4,655,388.70. They paid three one and one-half per cent. dividends.

—A festival for the benefit of the Coontown church, was held on the lawn adjoining the church at that place, on Tuesday evening, which netted in the neighborhood of one hundred dollars for the church.

—The members of THE PRESS staff are indebted to Theodore F. French for a sample of the large and appetizing watermelons, a carload of which arrived in this city from his farm at Dixey, Georgia, a few days since.

—The Police Board will meet to-morrow evening, when ex-Captain of Police Tunis J. Casey will have an opportunity of appearing before that body and showing cause, if any, why he should not be removed from the police force.

—The Baptist Sunday school excursion to Long Branch, Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, to-day, consisted of two well filled trains. The weather is delightfully cool, and the excursionists will no doubt pass an enjoyable day at the beach.

—The deed was recorded with the Clerk of the County at Elizabeth, yesterday transferring from Ignatz H. Boehm and wife of Plainfield, to Charles Smith of Plainfield, lots 17 and 18, in block East Fifth street, Plainfield, 50x150 feet, $125.

—A well-meaning but misinformed lady inquired at a music store recently for "The Song That Breaks Your Heart." She was justly indignant when the frivolous clerk placed before her with a flourish of smartness the song in reference to petite Miss Rooney.

—The Main & VanEmburgh show, which is to exhibit in this city on Tuesday afternoon and evening of next week, is said to be clean and meritorious, surpassing even the more pretentious shows. A commendable feature is the entire absence of fakirs and swinders.

—The regular meeting of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., was well attended last evening, by the members, who are associated in instituting Councils all over the State. They gave very interesting reports of the work being done by the brothers throughout America. There were several brothers from Pioneer Council, Bound Brook, also present.

—Gazelle Engine company took their apparatus to the well at the corner of Front and Richmond streets, last evening, for a wash. The engine worked satisfactorily, throwing a stream of water through two hundred feet of hose with a one-inch nozzle attached, 225 feet. The new department horses worked very well and the company has every reason to be proud of them.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. M. A. Young of Dunellen, is Summering at Ocean Grove.

Mrs. Seymour G. Smith was summoned by wire this morning, to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. L. R. Proctor, who is lying seriously ill at her home in Hartwick, N. Y. Mrs. Smith took her children with her, and they will all remain until Mrs. Proctor is better.

Superintendent James W. Davis of the Creston Carpet Mills, this city, has purchased the junior partner's interest in the firm of Kline & Staats, coal and lumber dealers of West Front street. The firm will hereafter be Kline & Davis, but the latter will not sever his connection with the Creston Mills.

Messrs A. G. Hooley of this city and Henry Zuekerman of New York, left this morning for a few days' fishing on the upper Delaware where they expect to fish from the point where H. Lockwood McIntosh caught the large bass two years ago which weighed 5 lbs 7½ oz, when placed on exhibition at A. M. Vanderbeek's store. A good time and plenty of fish is predicted for them.

Young People's Sociable.

There was a large attendance at the mid-Summer Sociable of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Warren Mission chapel, held in the chapel, last evening, and too much credit cannot be given to the committee who had the matter in charge, for the able and efficient manner in which the entertainment was conducted. The following programme was rendered:

Singing—Walk in the Light.....Choir
Scripture Reading
Singing—Help a Little.....Choir

Refreshments were served and a general social time followed.

Great Game To-Morrow.

The game of ball to-morrow between the Crescent League team and the Acmes, promises to be one of the most exciting of the season. Each team has won a game, and to-morrow's match will decide the series of three games between the two teams.

Following is the batting order of the Acmes: Rivers, cf; Lestrange, c; Keeler, p; Parkman, 2b; Heiser, cf; Lowery, ss; Zoon, 3b; Sheehan, 1f; Kernath, rf. This shows that the Acmes have put in a new battery and new men at second base, third base and short stop, especially to win to-morrow's game.

Champion Morning Glories.

Stableman Johnson, of Taylor's Hotel, Dunellen, has under cultivation morning glory vines which have grown on an average since June 1, 5 11-17 inches per day, and measure between 6 and 7½ inches across the leaf. They are the largest of their species ever seen, and attract much attention.

Meeting of the Borough Health Board.

The members of the North Plainfield Board of Health met at the home of Dr. J. H. Carman, one of the members, last evening, and adjusted a few slight matters pertaining to the health of the borough.

THE BACHELORS CLUB STILL LIVES.

They Ate Greenbrook Terrapin and Other Indelicacies of the Season, Last Evening, at Taylor's.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Yes, I was asked, of course! Went down? Well, I should say so! They were the Bachelor's Club from this city if anyone should ask you, and they were tendered a supper at Taylor's Hotel in Dunellen, last night. Did you miss anything? You don't live on that route, eh! You are lucky. Right here I want to remark in accents loud, that it was a supper. Well cooked and nicely served. My, oh, my, you should have seen them eat. For two long hours they stuck at it, and——

Did he get paid? Now what a question. We are going down again in 1901. That Greenbrook terrapin was immense. They do say John Tingley grows them in his cauliflower patch and that they catch them with a little axe. Oh, yes! Taylor is very sociable. Indeed he made it pleasant for the boys. "Ostler Joe"—that is, Taylor's man—hardly knew the Bachelors when they called for their horses after a lapse of two and a half hours. The tree toad, the festive mosquito, the lightning bug and even the police, had gone to rest when they returned home.

"BILL" FREIZE'S PLEDGE.

He Solemnly Swears That He Will Not Touch, Taste or Handle Intoxicating Beverages, and That He Will Prove a Good Husband and Father.

William Freize, better known as "Bill" Freize, has on many occasions figured in the police proceedings, both in this city and in North Plainfield, where in the latter place he was last arrested, and committed to the Somerville jail, on a charge of disorderly conduct and cruelty to his children. After a short incarceration Mrs. Freize his wife came to the front, paid her husband's fine and he was liberated. Yesterday he went before Justice Hardy and made affidavit to the following:

Be it remembered that on this tenth day of July A. D., 1890, personally appeared before me James Hardy, Magistrate, William Freize and by these solemnly and irrevocably promises in the future for all time to abstain entirely and absolutely from the use of whiskey, beer, wine, ale, cider, or any spiritous or malt liquors whatsoever and not to drink use or handle any of the above mentioned beverages, and he furthermore promises and agrees not to interfere with or quarrel with any of his children or with his wife. All of which he solemnly promises and swears on his oath to perform.

Acknowledged and sworn to before me James Hardy, Magistrate, this tenth day of July A. D., 1890.

THANKS, JUST THE SAME.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

The Plainfield Press has increased in size, by the addition of several columns. The Journal knows what is to be forced to enlarge, through the patronage of the public and demand upon the advertising columns, and we therefore heartily congratulate the Press. It is a lively paper and makes it a point to give the news. The only thing against it is its politics. We hope the paper may continue to grow greater, and its politics to grow less.

America Lodge Meeting.

A regular meeting of America Lodge, of the Fraternal Circle, was held in the rooms of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, last evening, with President George Carpenter in the chair. Among other business transacted was the initiation of four new members, and the receiving of two new applications for membership.

The lodge is a comparatively new organization in this city, but it is rapidly increasing in membership.

Strange Disappearance of "Indian Jim."

Jas. Scott, the "Indian," who has been employed as a shiner in Brown & Hill's tonsorial palace, has disappeared. She is a member of the Langston Colored Gun Club, of which Dogcatcher James Babbitt is the only one who owns a gun. Scott was last seen going towards the Club's picnic grounds, yesterday, with a box of Barnyardo cigars under each arm. It is feared that some colored dame has stole her.

Indecent Bathing.

Complaints are rife as to indecent bathing in Green Brook. Half-grown boys are in the habit of breaking the law in this respect, to the great disgust and annoyance of ladies who are obliged to pass by that way. The practice should be at once put a stop to.

Borough Officials Have an Upset.

It is reported that Borough Councilman B. A. Hegeman and Street Commissioner Conover were thrown from a wagon on Washington avenue Wednesday afternoon, while on a tour of inspection of the newly macadamized roads. Neither of the officials was, however, injured.

Bathing All Day.

On Wednesday, July 16, the day of the excursion of the Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue church to Asbury Park, the bathing hours will be from 10 A. M., to 4 P. M. Leave Plainfield 8 A. M. Asbury Park, 5:30 P. M.

How tempting! Something "just as good" is offered when Hires' Root Beer is called for. The reason is plain. The unprincipled dealer makes more profit on imitation goods. The wise ones insist on getting Hires'.

No Labor Enemies.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., July 11.—Grand Master Workman T. V. Powderly delivered a lecture here on the objects and aims of the Knights of Labor to a large audience. In closing his address he said that the Knights of Labor were at war with no other labor organization, and that if they wanted to fight they could well find an enemy outside of the ranks of workingmen.

Soldiers' Orphans' Schools.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 11.—Three delegations representing the G. A. R. Posts, the Mt. Joy Sixteeners' Association and the citizens generally of Lancaster County, were before the Soldiers' Orphans' School Commission in an effort to have the school at Mt. Joy reopened. It is said the commission will not reverse its action in closing the school.

Four Ladies Killed by a Train.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 11.—Passengers arriving here on a special train from Owego to this city, on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, report that a carriage containing five ladies was struck, one mile this side of Owego, and four of the occupants of the vehicle were killed outright and the fifth was fatally injured. The names of those killed, as far as could be learned by the passengers, were: Mrs. Bert Cleveland and Mrs. Van Duzer of Owego.

All Hope Not Abandoned.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 11.—Charles Hatch, of this city, one of the counsel for murderer Kemmler, is reported to have said that he had not yet abandoned all hope of saving his client from electrocution, but was not now in a position to make his intended movements public.

Cadets to Go to West Point.

WASHINGTON, July 11. — Among the cadets appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point were Townsend, 19th Illinois district; Harry D. Lillibridge, 16th district, Ohio; Paul Kelso, 2d district, Arkansas; Abram S. Fleming, 5th district, Kentucky; Milton L. McGrew, 5th New Jersey, with T. J. Hillery, 5th New Jersey, as alternate.

Big Fire in West Troy.

WEST TROY, N. Y., July 11.—At noon fire destroyed four large canal barns belonging to Matthew Rowe, together with his feed store and two saloons kept by Daniel Murray and Michael Glynn, and a barn and two-story brick building owned by Mary Gilroy. The fire spread rapidly and aid from Troy was sent.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

Great Progress Made in the Treatment of Ailments of This Kind.

Nerves must be renewed through the medium of the nuclei which are in the inner side of the sheath discovered by Schwann. These fibers receive impressions and expend stimulus. The process of degeneration in a nerve is first a destruction of the myeline, multiplication of the nuclei and loss of continuity of the axis cylinder. There are not, as previously supposed by some, a special set of nerves which have as their function the creation of tropic conditions, the motor and sensory nerves are of themselves able to produce such a condition.

The return of sensibility to a part of the body supplied by a nerve which has been cut quite through does not indicate positively that the nerve has been reunited; the power of muscular action and other evidences are also required. When nervous power has also been lost and partially restored hope must not be abandoned, even if progress is slow, because months may be required for the recuperating process. Feeling generally returns sooner than muscular power. Nerves which have been injured may have pieces taken out and the sound end stretched till they meet, when they will reunite. Even nerve grafting according to this author may be possible.

No benefit has been conferred on victims of St. Vitus dance by surgical experiments on the nervous system, but when epileptic fits occur, because of an injured nerve, these fearful spasms have been stopped by dividing the injured nerve between the injured part and the higher ganglion. Tetanus is not found to be caused by injury to the nerves. The best cure for facial neuralgia is found to be nerve stretching, and is much better than cutting the nerves.—Journal of Anatomy and Physiology.

Earnings of Dress-Makers.

An English fashion writer says: "While the lot of the dress-maker's apprentice is not an enviable one, there are few trades for women that offer such prizes as making clothes for other women. The chief dress-maker of a Bond street establishment will command a salary of from £250 ($1,250), to £300 ($1,500) a year. What is more, the supply is not equal to the demand. A good head woman will always have a dozen places open to her if she leaves a situation. Naturally this encourages an independence of spirit that is often fatal to long continuance in one place. A chief hand's work is confined to cutting out, overlooking the other women and conferring with the designer. The designer is the rock over which many of them split, for if he wants to many alterations, the dress-makers rebels. The hours of a chief hand are not heavy, and no Paris education is necessary, as many suppose. If French ideas are needed a Frenchwoman is imported. The best houses prefer an English hand who is thoroughly English.—N. Y. Star.

—Cherry Catsup.—One quart of sour cherry juice, one pound of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cloves, two of cinnamon and a very little cayenne pepper. Boil until thick, bottle and seal.

Save Your Hair

BY a timely use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation has no equal as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, and preserves the color, fullness, and beauty of the hair.

"I was rapidly becoming bald and gray; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—Melvin Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. H.

"Some time ago I lost all my hair in consequence of measles. After due waiting, no new growth appeared. I then used Ayer's Hair Vigor and my hair grew

Thick and Strong.

It has apparently come to stay. The Vigor is evidently a great aid to nature."—J. B. Williams, Floresville, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles street, Haverhill, Mass.

"I have been using Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and believe that it has caused my hair to retain its natural color."—Mrs. H. J. King, Dealer in Dry Goods, &c., Bishopville, Md.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Mr. Seely Edsall,
Plainfield, N. J.

In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.

We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.

You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.

Yours truly,
R. S PEALE & CO.

CRUSHED
COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER
FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.
SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.
THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially
FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup
"FRUIT CRUSH,"
And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

A CHAMPION TROUT CATCHER.

Mr. Hotchkiss Has Great Luck in Capturing the Speckled Beauties.

Jas. F. Hotchkiss of this city, has just returned from a two weeks' trip to the Adirondacks, looking over some 10,000 acres of pine timber lands with a view of purchase and sale. He was accompanied by Mr. Boyle of Michigan, an experienced land looker.

Mr. Hotchkiss says he saw large quantities of as fine cork pine as Michigan ever produced, even on Cass River, many trees being 6 to 7 feet in diameter and 130 to 140 in height. Spruce also grows in abundance of the very best quality. He also reports deer as being unusually plenty and very tame. During his two weeks stay in the woods at Little Rapids he saw no less than 31 deer; 18 in one day at the foot of Albany Lake, 7 being in one group.

He says he ate 42 meals at the Hotel, at 41 of which trout was served. Mr. Hotchkiss caught fifteen of the spotted beauties, and brought home four which weighed 2 lbs & 2 oz, 1 lb & 7/8 and 1 & 1/4 lbs, respectively. A PRESS reporter had the pleasure of just gazing upon the 2 lb, 2 oz fellow, and he was a beauty. Mr. Hotchkiss shows the effects of his trip—he always had a strawberry complexion, but now it is the color of a boiled lobster.

Bridge Contracts Awarded.

A committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, met at Westfield, yesterday, and awarded the contracts for the erection of two new bridges in Westfield Township, one of them to be located on the Springfield Road and known as the "Ephriam Clarke bridge," with a twenty-four foot span, and the other known as the "Lee Farm bridge." William T. Kirk of this city received the contracts for the iron work, and the contracts for the mason work was awarded to Westfield parties.

Mr. Kirk has been very fortunate of late in securing bridge contracts in Union county. The firm which he represents, Milliken Bros., is one of the largest in the country, and the work performed upon the bridges by this firm has always proved satisfactory.

Hiram B. Willits Death.

The following from the Madison, N. J., Eagle in reference to the death of Hiram B. Willits, will be interesting to many of the older inhabitants who will remember him as a former resident of Plainfield:

Hiram B. Willits was past middle life, although up to the time of the illness which caused his death, was in fair health with every prospect of living to a good old age. For the past twenty-two years he has held the responsible position of private book keeper for Brown Brothers & Co., the New York bankers. In that capacity he proved a faithful and indefatigable worker, and to his close attention to business can be ascribed the cause of his illness and death. He was a man of strict integrity, kind and generous and a friend in whom we could place the utmost reliance. He was well read in the latest and best works of the day, and thoroughly acquainted with the scriptures. The death of such a man while an irreparable loss to his family is likewise a great loss to the community.

Mr. Willits was the only brother of Mrs. R. A. Ross and Mrs. A. M. Runyon.

A Choir of Young Ladies.

St. Mary's church has now a choir of young ladies of which it is very proud. This choir was organized by Mrs. Rhome for requiem masses. Among them are some excellent singers.

The leaders are Miss Josie Shaffer, Miss Lucy Rafferty, Miss Sarah Sharkey, Miss Maggie Lawler and Miss M. Sheehan. Others are as follows: Miss Katie Flanagan, Miss L. Butcher, the Misses L. and N. Casey, Miss C. C. Kelly, Miss L. McTyre. Miss M. Guinee, the Misses M. and T. Scully.

A Decision Reached.

The committee on Plainfield's Soldiers Monument held an adjourned meeting last evening, and adjourned again. There were only present: Chairman Tyler, Secretary Runyon, Comrades Negley, Moore, Stewart and Olssen, and Messrs McCutchen and Ginna. The design, however, as published in THE PRESS was decided upon, with slight changes in the size of the capital.

A New Jersey Team for Creedmoor.

Governor Abbett has requested General Bird W. Spencer to ascertain the cost of sending a contesting team of marksmen to Creedmoor to represent New Jersey in the national shooting contest. He is to report by next Tuesday, and if the amount is not large a team of principals and substitutes will be sent, consisting in all of twenty-four men.

A Word of Warning to Mothers.

Cholera infantum is prevalent. Mothers should be careful as to what their children eat in the way of fruit, and careful likewise not to expose them to the sun. Several deaths from that complaint have occurred in this city within the past few days.

Will Probably Select the Old Officers.

The Nominating Committee of the New Jersey Division of the League of American Wheelmen will meet at Elizabeth today to name officers for the Division for the coming year. It is not likely that there will be any changes in the officers from those of last year.

The inestimable value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a blood-purifier should be known to every wife and mother. It corrects and gives tone and strength to the vital organs, and cleanses the system of all impurities. The best family medicine.

The Snyders Adjudged Guilty.

The case of the city against Jacob Snyder and his wife, Margaret, who were charged with creating a disturbance on West Fourth street on Sunday last, came up before City Judge Codington at the station house, yesterday afternoon. Snyder could not get a lawyer to defend him, and he did not therefore put in an appearance. His wife, however, was present and pleaded her own case, she having no witnesses.

Some half-dozen witnesses testified against the Snyders, showing them to be quarrelsome people. Judge Codington adjudged both of the defendants guilty, and reserved sentence until this afternoon.

What a Whopper!

Justice Hardy and ticket agent Hummer, in their imported outing suits, went to Bound Brook fishing this morning, leaving ex-Marshal Becker to act as Borough Judge in the absence of the Justice.

As neither of the fishermen had returned at noon, fears were expressed that a whale had pulled them overboard, or that they had quarrelled over the jug of bait and in a struggle had fallen in the water and sunk together. But about one o'clock they wired for a freight car to bring home their fish. The Justice claims to have caught one large-mouth bass that weighs 329 pounds.

Incorporated in Union County.

Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Victor Radiating company with the County Clerk at Elizabeth. The incorporators are Franklin Brooks, L. W. Kingsley, Eugene Munsell, Patrick J. Kelly, Thomas W. O'Hara, Patrick H. Gilhooly and John T. Dunn. The company begins business with a capital of $100,000, and will have its works at Elizbeth, where it will manufacture steam radiators, tools and machinery for the same.

Three Home Runs by One Player.

The "Unknowns" defeated the "Young Grasshoppers" in a game of base ball, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 14 to 11. G. Firstbrook and C. Meyer were the battery for the Unknowns, and A. Muir, C. Smith and D. Galbraith for the Grasshoppers. The feature of the game was the three home runs batted by G. Weston of the Unknowns. A. Muir was knocked out of the box in the first inning.

A Good Home At a Bargain.

J. W. VanSickle, the North avenue butcher, advertises in another column today a comfortable dwelling house for sale on easy terms. The house is situated at No 228 West Fourth street, within three minutes walk of Grant avenue station. The house contains seven rooms, with a good attic and cellar.

Mark This Down for Reference.

Persons who predicted a rain storm today, simply because the Baptist excursion was announced for that date, were mistaken for once at least. However, most of the Baptists will receive a ducking in the "briny deep" before they return, which beats the natural shower bath all hollow.

It's a Dangerous Spot, Too.

One of the darkest spots on the face of the earth at night, is at the corner of Somerset street and Craig place in North Plainfield. Wednesday evening it was so dark at that point that a person could hardly distinguish a hand before their face.

—A meeting of the Firemen's Relief Association was held in Firemen's Hall, Wednesday evening.

—At Westfield on Wednesday afternoon, the Westfield Athletic ball team defeated the Linden team by a score of 8 to 6.

—A very close and exciting ball game is expected to-morrow, between the Crescent League team and the Acmes of New York.

—The Middlesex Bowling team of New Brunswick will bowl with the Dunellen team on the grounds of the latter club, to-morrow.

—A meeting of Plainfield Lodge, Order of Tonti, was held in the Hand building, last evening, but only business of importance to the Order was transacted.

—Charles Maltby had the good fortune to capture a 4½ lb. Oswego black bass in New Market Lake on Thursday last. The fish was caught on one of "Andy" Vanderbeek's 7 ounce rods.

Cold, cough, coffin is what philosophers term "a logical sequence." One is very liable to follow the other; but by curing the cold with a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the cough will be stopped and the coffin not needed—just at present.

—A case of assault and battery was to have been tried before Justice Hardy in North Plainfield yesterday afternoon, but owing to the absence of all parties concerned, the case was adjourned.

Good Points in a Woman.

A clear bright eye
That can pierce the sky,
A rounded cheek
Where the roses speak,
A chest so grand
That the lungs expand;
A steady brain
That can bear the strain,
A manner bright
And a spirit light.

Who does not wish for these, or having them wish to keep them, yet when sick headache, nervousness, and inflammations attack her, restoration can be accomplished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a medicine designed for woman's use, and placed with all druggists for their relief. Sold under the manufacturers' positive guarantee of satisfaction, or money refunded.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

The proposed Masonic Temple in Chicago is no longer a myth. The structure is finished and complete in all its details on paper. The plans and specifications have been prepared, accepted and filed. The structure will be eighteen stories high, thoroughly fire-proof, lighted throughout by electricity, provided with sixteen of the largest-sized elevators, and having office, store and shop accommodations for nearly three thousand tenants. Three of the upper floors will be elaborately fitted up for lodge rooms, Chapter Tabernacle, Commandery Asylum and Preceptory for the Scottish Rite bodies. The building will be by far the highest in Chicago, and possibly the highest now in the world, for the ceilings of the rooms in the upper part of the building will not be less than twenty-two feet from the floor. On the second floor a suite of handsome and convenient parlors will be fitted up for the accommodation of ladies who may be on shopping tours through the building, for it is expected that the building will contain every thing of luxury or necessity that the most extravagant female may require.

The dry-goods merchant, the jeweler, the druggist and the dentist will be there. The shoemaker, the tailor, the barber and hair-dresser will be represented. Besides, special facilities may be found for marriage or divorce without leaving the building. The study of the minister and the office of the justice will be open at all reasonable hours to tie the matrimonial knot, and there are sure to be enough Chicago lawyers in the structure who for a "reasonable fee" will readily guarantee to secure a divorce while you wait. Altogether, it will be a great structure when it is up.

The prospects for a successful Knight Templar encampment in Illinois this season are not now as bright as could be expected. The members do not seem to be yearning for any display that is likely to interfere with their regular vacation.

In the death of John J. Sproull, which recently occurred at New York, the Order of the Eastern Star throughout the country has lost one of its most devoted patrons. He was the first Master Mason ever admitted into the order, and for upward of twenty-five years his labors in the order had been unremitting. He had occupied the positions of Grand Secretary, Grand Marshal, Grand Chaplain and Grand Lecturer of the Grand Chapter, and in every subordinate body of the order, from Maine to California, his name was a household word.

The officers and members of Copestone Lodge of New York recently visited Old Well Lodge at Norwalk, Conn., and by invitation conferred the third degree. In Minnesota or Illinois this would be considered high treason. In these two States Grand Masters have arisen, who have said that to permit the work of any other jurisdiction therein is equivalent to making innovations in the order of Masonry, and they will none of it. What a commentary on our Grand Lodge system, and what a parody on the universality of Masonry. Fortunately these are exceptional cases, but they are sufficient to indicate the widely divergent tendencies of modern American Masonry under a system of absolute State supremacy.

Odd-Fellows.

One of the most important questions that will come before the Sovereign Grand lodge, which meets at Topeka, Kan., next September, will be a proposition to amend the constitution of the order, so as to admit young men when they attain the age of eighteen years. It is well known that the subordinate lodges in several States favor this amendment, because it will give the order control of a great army of young men before they become eligible for membership in the other fraternities. The proposed change may be expedient, but its wisdom is doubtful.

New York State is to have a troop of mounted hussars composed of three chevaliers from each canton in the State. The headquarters of this gallant body will be either at Albany or Syracuse. The name of the organization is to be "The Busbee Huzzars," and they will make their first public appearance at the triennial cantonment in Chicago next August.

The Rebekah's through the country are preparing to come to Chicago during cantonment week in great numbers, and will enter the contest for the liberal prizes offered by the Grand Sire. The rewards are to be offered for proficiency in the exemplification of the beautiful work of this degree.

The Elks.

The members of Louisville Lodge No. 8 are already arranging plans to secure the session and reunion of the Grand Lodge at Louisville, Ky., in 1891. For this purpose a large representation of the order from that city will be in attendance at Cleveland ready to urge their claims with the most persuasive eloquence, and I am inclined to think they will get what they are after. These migratory meetings of the Grand Lodge are sure to stir up considerable interest in the order throughout the country and increase its membership and usefulness everywhere.

New York Lodge is showing signs of being restored to its right mind at an early day. Rumors of a proposition to compromise with the Grand Lodge are around, but it is safe to say that nothing short of unconditional surrender or satisfactory evidence of absolute obedience will be considered.

Chicago will be represented at Cleveland by about 300 Elks, most of whom are members of Chicago Lodge No. 4. They will leave Chicago July 6th, reaching Cleveland the following morning, and their headquarters will be at the Hollenden Hotel. McDOUGALL.

AN OLD STORY.

But It Is Good Enough to Bear Reprinting.

Somewhere, in some book of advice to youth, many years ago, I read the following rhyme:

"Lean not on one mind constantly,
Less, where one stood before; two fall.
Something God hath to say to thee,
Worth hearing, from the lips of all."

There never was any thing truer said, albeit the poetry is not as rythmical and gliding as it might have been. I have long since forgot the singer, but have not forgot the song. It made a deep impression upon my young mind, and from youth to bald-headedness, the truth of it has been daily demonstrated. There is not a beggar in the streets, not a pauper on the highway, nor a booby black in the city but knows something worth communicating to his fellows. Human minds are as palpably divided in their caliber and range, as are the calibers of guns, or the species of plants. One can not stand in the doorway beside an educated man, even for a few minutes to keep out of the rain, without learning that he is a man of attainments. There is something in the attitude and intonation which indicates breeding and culture.

Yet the most learned philosopher may learn from his illiterate fellow-man. There was once an English scientist who was warned, on a sunshiny day, to hasten to the end of his journey, else he would get his jacket wet; and the warning came from a shepherd boy, ragged, poor, illiterate. The scientist looked at the clear sky and drove leisurely along, forgetting the warning. Within an hour the clouds appeared, and there came on a sunshine shower which more than made his jacket wet; it almost drowned him. Hastening to a farmer's house, he waited until the rain was over, and then drove back through the mud to find the shepherd boy and learn of him the infallible weather sign. He found him, and, in answer to his queries, the lad said:

"See ye not yan black ram o'er t'hill with 'is nose at t' sun? Wall, yan ram wor standin' with 'is tail ayant t' west when ye waint past 'ere. T'at meaned rain come sure 'i th' 'our. Yan ram, he knowed it an' t'aint for t' likes o' me t' ast 'ow hit 'appen as 'e knowed 't; fur 'e be into 'im by nature." S. D. F.

The Capital in Summer.

"I trust that you are enough of a salamander to stand a Washington July," was the sarcastic expression in a letter recently received from a friend in Chicago. Probably the most appropriate reply to this sally would be: "I hope that you are enough of a polar bear to stand a Chicago January." If the windy city on the big lake is as comfortable in midwinter as Washington City is in summer, it has certainly been misrepresented by newspapers and travelers. There has been no more charming weather than we have had thus far this season at any summer resort in this country. Every year a great many visitors from different points come to the city of Washington to spend the summer. It is certainly a delightful point from which to make cheap and charming excursions to the scenes of the civil war, not far distant, as well as down the Potomac to Old Point Comfort, across Maryland to points on Chesapeake bay, as well as little trips to New York and Cape May. Washington ought to be and probably is the best governed city in this country. Congress controls every thing through a board of three commissioners. The Congressional Library is open the year round, while the Capitol and various departments contain so much of interest that even the oldest inhabitants have not seen the half of them. To visiting strangers, and especially to those of intelligence and inquiring turns of mind, the sources of pleasure and enjoyment in the National Capital are simply limitless.

Senators Who Need Protectors.

One of the very wealthy men who came to Washington recently as a Senator instituted a search for some man as private secretary, who was especially familiar with the cranks and schemers of all sorts, saying frankly to his friends that he wanted a man to protect him from schemers of all classes. Heretofore he has always been considered quite competent to take care of his own business and he has been able to accumulate a magnificent fortune by the exercise of his own judgment; but ever since he came to Washington as a Senator he has felt that he needed a protector. Another one of the new Senators feels that he must have a retainer about him all the time who will anticipate his every want. He wants a man who will bring his shoes and slippers to him, put on his coat for him, anticipate what he should have for breakfast and have it already ordered for him, and have his bath ready for a morning plunge as soon as the great man awakes; and yet only a very short time ago this same Senator used to black his own boots, shave himself and brush his own clothes.

Will Be Wedded.

It is said that big Ben Le Fevre, who was for many years a member of Congress from Ohio, will soon be married. He is a bigger man than Grover Cleveland and he carries a heart and brain commensurate with his size. It is said that his bride is a wealthy young woman of New York who has just returned from a two years' trip abroad. It seems that General Le Fevre and this young lady have been acquainted for a number of years. The course of true love never did run smooth, you know, and it has run decidedly rough in this case. Despite the fact that both are free, white and twenty-one, and each of them possesses an ample fortune, there have been many family stumbling blocks in the way which have prevented the consummation of their desires for several years. There is no doubt, however, that they will soon be married and when the happy day comes round there will be congratulations and presents from every State in the Union.

om Gutenberg to the Perfecting Cylinder Press.

e Most Important Invention Ever ade—The Firm of Fust, Gutenberg, Schoeffer—The First Movable Type and Screw Press.

VERY human invention sinks into insignificance when compared with the discovery of printing. The period of its birth, late as it is in human history, may be styled the era of light—the commencement of true civilization and progress.

In the early part of the fifteenth century a young man named John Goensfleisch, who was born in the neighboring village of Selgelsch in the year 1397, went to reside at Mentz or Mayence, with a family of the name of Gutenberg, whose appellation (quite a common custom in those days) he soon assumed and ever afterwards bore. Whilst there he became implicated in one of the insurrections of the citizens against the nobility, which during that part of the Middle Ages were so frequent and ultimately terminated in the establishment of the institutions which were the basis of the freedom of the commercial classes in Germany.

When he could do so with safety he returned to Mayence and soon joined forces with a wealthy burgher whom, in all probability, he had known before his flight. This was Herr Fust—usually, but incorrectly termed Faust—and the young genius and the hard-headed business-man in partnership entered upon the undertaking to supersede the laborious occupation of the manuscript writer.

The first movable type was fashioned out of wood, but very quickly they bit upon the expedient of casting them in metal, which, being a more durable substance, was likely to increase and perpetuate their profits. Herr Fust is usually credited with this improvement, but on somewhat insufficient grounds. Probably it was only a Middle Age application of the "claims of capital."

Peter Schoeffer now makes his appearance on the scene. He was a stout young fellow, a native of Hesse Darmstadt, and one of the first employes of the pioneer printing firm of Fust & Gufenberg. He quickly became engrossed in his novel employment, and, being also a man of ideas, he first suggested that the type should be composed of lead or other soft metal, so that the material could be used again after remelting.

This was accomplished after much experimenting, and thus the entire initiatory process of the new art was completed. The principle of the screw press (which had been known to the ancients) was also utilized by the partners, and about this early period was solemnized the happy reunion of Spinster Movable Type and Bachelor Screw Press which has since fructified the whole earth.

In 1453 or 1454 a further great advance was made by the perfecting of the matrix method of type production. Schoeffer is generally credited with the main portion of this work, and with seemingly substantial grounds.

He, it is stated, after a long course of experiments privately cut the whole alphabet in hard-metal matrices, and displayed the result of his labors and ingenuity to his employers. Fust was so delighted that he promised to give him his only daughter, Christena, in marriage—a promise which he soon afterwards fulfilled. The new son-in-law was also made the junior partner in the firm. The matrix-made type was very quickly much improved by adding antimony to the original lead.

The introduction of printing into England was due to William Caxton, and his successor, Wynkin de Worde, who established for themselves a high reputation both as printers and letter founders.

How he acquired a knowledge of the art of printing is not recorded, but he must have been an apt student, for, according to De Worde, in 1470 he was already printing his first work in Cologne. In 1474 he returned to England and set up the veritable Anglo-Saxon pioneer press in the Almonry at Westminster.

About the middle of the sixteenth century the style of type now used to express an emphasized word was introduced by Aldus, and was called from the place of its origin Italic.

INKING BALLS.

Soon afterwards the greater plainness of the Roman characters was fully recognized, and they gradually superseded all other kinds of type for book-work except in Germany.

For a long time Holland was the great type producer, but in the early part of the eighteenth century England took the lead, and that land and America are now the masters of the art.

Towards the end of the eighteenth century the first radical improvement was made by an English nobleman, Earl Stanhope. He was a personage of marked mechanical ability and the progenitor of the legions of amateur printers of the present day. With the assistance of a skillful machinist named Walker he perfected an iron press in which the power instead of being derived from a screw came from a bent lever that impressed the "platen"—or iron plate—upon the paper, which is brought down on the surface of the type.

This press was quickly followed by several others, the most ingenious and powerful of which was invented by an American—the first appearance of the New World in a line which it has since made almost exclusively its own.

This pioneer was a native of the State of Maine, whose name was George Clymer. He patriotically termed his new press the "Columbian." It is of very ingenious construction, and its adaptation of the lever principles has stood the test of time so well that the improved Columbian is still the standard manual press. Numerous other modifications of the lever principle were introduced, mainly by English inventors;

AN EARLY PRINTING PRESS.

the most important of these was the "Ruthven," patented by Hopkinson of London, which is still in use.

The introduction of steam as the motive power is—with the exception of the invention of movable type—the most momentous event in the history of printing. It is the crowning discovery, and the substitution of a voluntary machine for main muscular strength has, in less than a century, revolutionized social conditions. Before, however, stating the circumstances of the application of steam power to printing, we should notice an invention, without which steam printing could never have been generally adopted. This is an improvement for inking the types by means of cylindrical composition rollers.

An Englishman, Mr. Foster, discovered a composition, an intermixture of glue, treacle, tar and isinglass, which could be made to adhere to a wooden roller, and which was fully as pliable and effective for inking purposes as the balls. The composition and durability of the rollers have been vastly improved since, but the type has still remained unchanged. All now was ready for the steam cylindrical printing machine.

After the usual groping and tentative efforts to satisfy a pressing need the man who was able to master the situation came to hand. This was Herr Konig, a German, who, being unable to obtain any recognition for his idea in his native land, emigrated to England and settled in London in 1807 or 1808. He was finally enabled to produce a small machine operated by steam power and capable of working one thousand impressions an hour—about quadruple the capacity of the most perfect manual press of that day. Three enterprising printers and book publishers—Messrs. J. Bensley, R. Taylor and L. Woodfall—supplied the necessary capital for experimentation and construction.

It is a somewhat remarkable fact that the periodical inefficiency of newspaper printing machines to supply a constantly increasing circulation with sufficient promptitude has been the cause of every progressive step in the improvement of cylinder printing. This pressure was first felt in England, and for nearly fifty years the London Times was always the steady patron of cylinder press improvers.

A machine was recently built which produces 90,000 per hour of a four-page paper, 48,000 of an eight-page, 24,000 of a sixteen-page paper. These are delivered at the head, pasted, folded quarter-page size and counted off in lots of fifty. If required a supplement can also be pasted inside the main sheets.

Another is almost a thing of life, insomuch that the press may be started to print an eight-page paper, but in a few minutes can be transformed into a producer of a sixteen or thirty-two page sheet, the folding, counting, etc., etc., automatically following the increased size. It must also be understood that these gigantic pieces of mechanism require but little service, and usually seven or eight men are fully competent to attend to the press department of even newspapers like the Tribune.

Another highly important invention connected with the advance of the typographical art is the process of stereotyping, by which all the letters forming a page of type are cast in one piece or plate of type-metal.

The process is older than the cylinder press and is believed to have been invented by William Ged, of Edinburg, Scotland, about 1730. After much perseverance, in the year 1725, he was able to form an arrangement with the University of Cambridge for casting their Bibles and prayer-books. The first plates met such a warm reception from the types and pressmen employed at the University, and so much damage was done that the new process was quickly discarded and remained almost in abeyance until after the steam press came into vogue. Since then its adoption has become almost

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—Rosa Bonheur is sixty-seven. She says she still has work enough in her mind to fill two lifetimes. She sold her latest picture for more than $10,000.

—More than twelve thousand letters and manuscripts of John Ericsson, the great engineer, have been put in the hands of Colonel W. C. Church to use in the preparation of his biography.

—Browning's grave was dug close to the front of Chaucer's monument, exactly between it and the monument of Cowley, in the east aisle of the south transept of Westminster Abbey, known as the Poets' Corner.

—Thomas Seymour Denton has invented the word "manuprint," verb, adjective and noun, for work done with a typewriter. It is at once more accurate and suggestive than "manuscript" for such work.

—The Sultan of Turkey recently submitted the manuscript of a comedy to a Parisian manager under a nom de plume. The play was carefully examined and displayed certain marks of crude ability, but its motif was too Oriental for even the Parisian stage.

—A new letter-press machine for printing simultaneously in various colors is now attracting attention in France. It is the invention of Mr. Stalin, of Paris, who has taken out about forty patents for foreign countries. It is said to be the most practical apparatus of the kind yet devised and likely to greatly reduce the cost of color work.

—It is said that Goethe was a victim of La Grippe. Lewes, in his biography, says of the poet's last illness that he had taken cold, and the physician on arriving "found him very feverish with what is known in Weimer as the 'nervous fever,' which acts almost like a pestilence."

—Of Zola's new novel, "La Bete Humaine," 45,000 copies were sold on the day of the issue, a record that has not been equaled since the appearance of "Nana." The total number of books issued by Charpetier, the publisher, over Zola's signature is now 1,031,000. Besides the profits on these, Zola receives $4,000 for every novel published in feuilleton form before the book is issued.

—The free public library established in Baltimore five years ago by Enoch Pratt, at an expense of about $1,250,000, is accomplishing a great work among the reading class. Last year the number of books issued reached 461,840. The rooms are crowded daily, and it has become a great educational force in the city, being especially valuable to the poor. Besides the main library, there are five branches located so as to accommodate all sections of the city.

—The smallest and daintiest prayer-book in the world is the "Finger Prayer-Book" which has just been issued by the Oxford University Press. It is printed in diamond and brillant type on the famous India paper. It contains 670 pages, 3¼x1 inches, and weighs only three-quarters of an ounce. It is arranged for "the chatelaine, the waistcoat pocket, or the purse," and ranges in price from 38 cents to $6.50. Though the paper is exceedingly thin, it is entirely opaque, and the type is beautifully clear.

HUMOROUS.

—"Ye see Missus Stookey's di'mon's yit?" "Yes; but I b'lieves dey's paste." "Waal, I shouldn't wondah. Her man's a bill-poster, anyhow, ye know."—Harper's Bazar.

—He—"Were you ever in love?" She—"I thought I was once, but since I have read a few of these modern society novels I have concluded that I wasn't."—Terre Haute Express.

—Irate Wife—"Why, in the name of sense, do you come home at two o'clock in the morning?" High-rate Husband—"Well, fact is, it got so quiet down street, I came home for excitement."—Light.

—He—"I notice you have a piano, Miss Clara?" She—"Oh, yes; but it is my sister who plays on it—not me!" He (rapturously)—"Clara, I love you! Will you be my wife."—Exchange.

—Ticket Collector (to passenger in first-class carriage with second-class ticket)—"Your ticket is second-class, sir. You must pay the difference." Passenger—"The second-class carriages were full." Collector—"Yes, but there was plenty of room third-class." Passenger—"Quite so. Pay me the difference and I'll change."

—"Dennis, I hear that you have been drinking again; if you can't do better I shall have to let you go." "Sure, sir, it was against me will that I got off this time, sir." "Nonsense! no man can do things against his will." Dennis (grasping at a straw). Faith I had a brother who went to prison against his will.—Jury.

—First Artist—"I received a magnificent tribute to my skill the other day at the Exhibition." Second Artist—"Indeed. What was it?" First Artist—"You know my picture, 'A Storm at Sea?' Well, a man and his wife were viewing it and I overheard the fellow say: 'Come away, my dear, that picture makes me sick.'"—America.

—Young Lady (at Bird Store)—Has this parrot any accomplishments?" Proprietor—"He can speak a little, but he's too old to learn any thing new." Young Lady (hesitatingly)—"Would he imitate any sounds he might hear, such as a sneeze, or a cough, or any thing of that kind?" Proprietor—"No. The girls were trying the other day to teach him to imitate the sound of a kiss, but he wouldn't do it." Young Lady—"I'll take him."—Chicago Tribune.

—Drummer (at Moonshineville, Ky.)—"Good morning, Mr. Crossroads; how's business?" Store-keeper (disconsolately) "Mighty poor, mighty poor. You see, a new store started up in opposition to me, and of course I couldn't stand that, so I jest give my frien's th' wink, an' they commenced killin' off his customers; but he had more trade than I kalkerlated on, an' when his customers began to shoot back it made a purty even fight, and both sides killed each other off so fast that now there ain't either of 'em any customers."—N. Y. Weekly.

SUCCESSFUL WORK.

The President of the University of Michigan Discusses the Subject.

One of the most common mistakes of young students is to overrate the value of mere brilliancy of intellect in comparison with that of industry. In almost every institution of learning, from the grammar school to the university, you will find many pupils pointing with a sort of admiration to some of their comrades, who has never accomplished much and saying: "He could easily outstrip the men whom the teachers rank as the leading scholars if he chose." They say this with a tone which implies that they esteem more highly his gifts than those of the hard-working, but less brilliant students, who are far in advance of him in intellectual attainments. Yet long observation shows that the plodding men of good, but not brilliant talent, will through life hold the lead, which they have already gained over the brilliant comrade who lacks the habit of persistent and continuous work. And if our young friends will study the biographies of even the most brilliant men they will find that the greatest achievements of these men were generally the fruits of serious and severe toil. Let us take two or three illustrations.

When I was a student in college, Rufus Choate was at the zenith of his power. He was the idol of young men, who admired brilliancy. The general belief among them was that if Mr. Choate were awakened in the middle of the night, he would need no further preparation for the delivery of a splendid oration than to run his fingers through his curling locks. But when his biography was published, it appeared that he was one of the most diligent and laborious of students, and that his great speeches were prepared with infinite care.

When Daniel Webster made his celebrated reply in the Senate to Hayne of South Carolina on Nullification, with only a single day for special preparation, the feat was deemed marvelous. It has often been referred to as striking evidence of Webster's readiness for a great emergency. Years ago, the late John Whipple, an eminent lawyer of Providence, and a warm personal friend of Webster, told me this story concerning that speech.

"I asked Mr. Webster," said Mr. Whipple, "as we were taking a walk at an early hour, before breakfast, on the beach at Newport, how it was possible for him to present so elaborate and complete an argument on so short notice in reply to Hayne."

"On so short notice!" exclaimed Mr. Webster. "Why I had been many years preparing the substance of that speech. When I was a young lawyer with plenty of leisure, I busied myself with raising every question which I thought could be raised, concerning the interpretation of the Constitution, and with attempts to settle those questions. Among these was the point now made by South Carolina and by Mr. Hayne. That subject has always been kept in mind by me. When the occasion arose for discussing it, I was ready with the preparation of years."

Read the life of Louis Agassiz, who seemed to be one of the readiest of men in scientific discourse. His utterance was so full and fluent that it seemed to come without effort. But the student of his biography will see that he worked with such untiring devotion that his great master, Cuvier, had to warn him that "work kills" if no time is taken for rest.

The popular idea of General Sheridan is that he won his victories by mere dash. But read what Grant says of him, and what the officers on his staff say of him, and it will be seen that his dash succeeded because he had spared no pains in preparing for his attacks.

Dr. Wayland used to quote a saying which he had picked up somewhere: "Nothing will stand up against days' work." Toil, persistent, continuous, unflickering toil is the price that must generally be paid for marked intellectual success. The taste and capacity for hard work, with fair talent, is a better guarantee of ultimate success than great brilliancy of mind without industry. These considerations explain in part why many a man who in college has a high reputation among his fellows for signal ability, fails to justify it by his subsequent achievements, while others, who were not much praised in their college days go to the front. These last had the habit of continuous work. Of course, the combination of brilliant gifts and persistent industry wins the very highest success. The purpose of this paper is to train the young men of brilliant gift against the grand mistake of trusting to those alone for their achievements. Work, hard, constant work, must be accepted as the condition of accomplishing much in the fierce competitions of modern life.—James P. Angell, in St. Louis Republic.

The Retort Red-Hot.

Mr. Hibred—I say, my dear, what did you let the cat out of the bag to Mrs. Gadmore for? She will tell it to the whole neighborhood.

Mrs. Hibred—Oh, don't worry yourself; it does not matter. It was no great secret, anyway.

Mr. Hibred—Well, you do beat all women to keep a secret that I ever saw. You tell every thing you know.

Mrs. Hibred (viciously)—Do I, indeed. But I am not like yourself. I never tell any thing I don't know.—Light.

Not an Expert.

Barber—How is the razor, sir?

Victim—I wouldn't know I was being shaved.

Barber — (feeling flattered) — Glad to——

Victim—I'd think I was being sandpapered.—Boston Herald.

A Little Goes a Long Way.

Mrs. Jason—Just think, Jehiel, there is more money spent for rum in one day than there is for bread in a week.

Mr. Jason—Yes; a little bread—especially such as you make—will go a long way.—Terre Haute Express.

PROGRESS IN SCIENCE.

Wonderful Advances Made in Various Branches of Art and Industry.

In some experiments lately made in England to test the merit of electric welding, a one-and-a-half inch iron bar was welded both by means of electricity and by hand. The former stood a strain of 91.9 per cent. of the strength of the metal itself and the latter 83.3 per cent. The electric weld, however, showed cracks when bent cold at an angle of 66 degrees, whereas the hand-made joint stood 138 degrees of bend.

A new method for ventilating railway carriages and preventing dust from entering with the air has lately appeared in France. The more quickly the train moves the more rapidly the apparatus works. The air is made to traverse a receptacle containing water, which cools it and relieves it of dust, after which it goes through another filtering before entering the carriage.

M. Jablockoff, of electric candle fame, makes a strong argument in favor of going back to chemical reactions for the production of electricity as a motive power. The dynamo machine does not utilize more than 10 per cent. of the fuel, while more than 90 per cent. can be obtained under favorable circumstances in electro-chemical combinations.

The climate in China is said to be growing not only colder, but drier. Animals and plants accustomed to hot, moist regions are gradually retreating southward. Two thousand years ago the bamboo flourished in the forest of North China, but it can no longer be found there.

By means of a Margin projector and the electric arc light on the summit of the Eiffel Tower, observers at a distance of 2,000 meters from the illuminated area were able to distinguish objects the size of a human being six and a half miles from the tower.

It has recently been shown by a series of experiments on dogs that while the alternating current is distinctly more deadly than the continuous, its fatal superiority is far less than some former experiments would lead us to think.

The use of the phonograph among certain Indian tribes leads to the conclusion that the main characteristics of their language can be recorded and permanently preserved either for study or demonstration with this instrument.

A new red glass has been recently produced in Germany. Besides its use for the manufacture of bottles, goblets and vases of various kinds, it is applicable in photography and in chemists' and opticians' laboratories.

A bore hole sunk at Schladeback to a depth of 5,784 feet shows a remarkable uniformity in the increase of temperature, which rose 1 deg. Fahrenheit for each 67.3 feet, the maximum at the bottom being 138.9 deg. Fahrenheit.

A piece of crown glass, 40 inches in diameter and 2¼ inches thick, made in Paris for the object glass of a telescope for the University of Southern California, will require two years' labor to turn into a finished lens.

The kola nut, recently adopted as being extremely nutritious by the German army, is prepared as a beverage in the form of chocolate, and it is said to be more nutritious than either coffee or tea.

At a recent meeting of a committe of the Royal Horticultural Society, a plant was exhibited, proving that a distinct step has been made in the cultivation of the deep-blue primrose.

Since certain sections of the tobacco-growing district in the South have been lighted by electricity, the ravages of the tobacco worm are said to have been greatly reduced.

Duplex telephony, it is now thought, will play an extremely important part in the solution of the difficulties in connection with long-distance telephoning.

Gearing for electric railways made out of rawhide is preferred to metal, as it makes far less noise and wears better.—N. Y. Times.

OLEANING A CARPET.

Lay It on a Green Grass Plat and Beat It as It Lies There.

Perhaps the most thorough way to clean a carpet, especially a Brussels carpet, is to lay it on a clean grass plat, face down, and beat it as it lies there. After being beaten thoroughly it can be dragged by the corners over the grass, which will brush off all adhering dust, and the carpet will be cleaned in the most approved manner. To beat a carpet on a line is but an imperfect way, and the work is not as well done, unless by the most patient beating, besides not being as easy as the first mentioned way. The so-called carpet-beating machines in use in this country, are barbarous in their treatment of choice floor coverings. With, perhaps, twenty others, our carpets are tumbled about in a great cylinder, until they are folded in a thousand ways, and returned, instead of the stiff, firm carpet sent out, soft, limp articles, that have lost half their wearing qualities.

In England, Ireland and Scotland the prudent housewife compeled the carpet-beaters to discard the rotary carpet destroyer, and automatic beating machines are now used, which beat carpets as near like hand-work as is possible for machinery to do it. If living in a city, it will pay to employ men to take carpets out into the country and beat them, as above described. After comparing results, carpets will never be beaten by machinery again.

Again, don't let carpets be cleaned on the floor, as is being practiced in some cities. That slimy compound that is brushed on the carpet is only soft soap, nothing else, colored and perfumed, perhaps, with sassafras. It is true that it makes the carpet look clean, but it is well known that more or less of that soap stays in the back of the carpet, having worked its way through, along the sides and in the corners. A physician, or any one versed in chemistry, knows that this soap which stays in the carpet is resolved into common grease, attracting myriads of flies carpet-bags and insects of all kinds, besides decomposing and filling the rooms with dangerous gases, from this disgusting compound of grease, wool and dirt.—Mrs. Jules Doux, in Good Housekeeping.

STEAMER BLOWN UP

Fifteen Persons Believed to Have Been Killed.

FIREMEN LOOKING FOR BODIES.

Startled Crowds Rushed to the Scene of the Disaster.

One of the Largest Propellers on the Lakes Wrecked—Grand Illumination Caused by the Flames—Officers of the Vessel Cannot Account for the Explosion—The Victims Mostly Stevedores.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The steamer Tioga, of the Erie Transportation Company, was badly wrecked by an explosion while lying at her dock at Randolph street and the river. It is reported that thirteen people were killed.

The explosion was a terrific one, and a column of smoke, shot 200 feet into the air, succeeded a second later by a whirlwind of flame, which illumined bridges, buildings, water and spars in a fearful glare.

The startled crowds rushed to the river banks, docks, bridges, and soon the scene was thronged with an immense crowd. A general fire alarm had been turned in, and soon fifty streams of water from the steamers and fire-tugs were pouring into the hold of the big iron boat through the gaping hole amidships, from which the flames poured in a torrent.

The Tioga, which was one of the largest and finest propellors on the lakes, is badly wrecked, her upper works being nearly blown away, and her wooden work badly burned. The fire was soon under control and the search for the victims of the explosion was begun. Three bodies were soon brought out, blackened and mangled. They were apparently the remains of unfortunate members of the steamer's crew, caught aboard at the time of the explosion.

Firemen are now looking for other bodies and seeking to determine the cause of the explosion.

The men killed were: John O'Neill, boss stevedore, and the following assistants, Henry Alexander, Tom Lewis, John Collins, Tom Collins, Osborn Polk and John Lewis, all colored, and Tom O'Donnell and John Rafferty, all of this city.

George House of Buffalo, the second engineer, is at a loss to account for the explosion. Lamps had just been lighted and taken to the hold, and probably ignited the volatile gas from the oil that escaped from the casks.

Vincent Kirby, one of the engineers who was on the boat at the time, said that when the explosion took place he was standing at the far end of the boat, and upon regaining his presence of mind he ran to the scene, and there found one of the men who had been engaged in unloading freight with his head between two beams. He had been instantly killed.

As soon as the debris can be removed it is believed the list of killed will swell to over fifteen. Several of the officers of the boat are missing. Captain Phelps was fortunate enough to escape without a scratch.

Speculating on the Caucus.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Speculation on the possible action of the Republican caucus to be held to-night or Monday was very vigorous to-day. Republican Senators are divided in their opinions. Some of them do not believe that the change in the rules which, it is conceded, is a necessary preliminary to the passage of the the Election bill, will be agreed to in caucus. A majority of the Senators present at Thursday night's caucus favor such a change and a great many Republican Senators were very positive in the expression of a belief that the Federal Election bill will be passed. The Democratic members of the Senate express the confident belief that the bill will not be taken up. In this vague condition the subject must remain until another caucus is held.

Plan to Suppress Liquor Vendors.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 12.—Harry Dent, agent for a Kansas City liquor house, yesterday opened up at Ottawa, Kan., under the sign "Kansas City Original Package House." A warrant was sworn out for him on the charge of inciting a riot and he was taken before County Attorney Smart, when every effort was made to force him to leave the city, threats of tar and feathers and a hemp rope being made. He agreed to take down his sign and was released. In the afternoon he was again arrested and put under $500 bonds, failing to give which he was put in jail. In the evening two of Dent's assistants were arrested as vagrants and locked up.

Only Lost His Way.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., July 12.—Something of a sensation was caused by the report that William G. Morehead, at one time a partner in the firm of Jay Cooke & Co., had mysteriously disappeared from his cottage at this place. The truth of the affair is that Mr. Morehead, who is well advanced in years, had left his cottage for a walk, and having lost his way failed to return at the expected time, but eventually turned up safe and sound. Mr. Morehead, barring the natural infirmities of age, 80 years, is in his usual health.

Cigarmakers Will be Sent Back.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—The ten cigarmakers who arrived on the Belgenland from Antwerp and were detained on suspicion of being imported under contract labor, were examined before the Labor Inspector, and it was found that they came here to work for M. Vanrecht for $4 per week and board. They will be sent back. Vanrecht made contradictory statements, and finally tried to bribe the inspector with $10 to let the men land. He has, it is said, imported cigarmakers before.

AN INSANE WOMAN'S DEED.

She Murders Her Two Children and Cuts Her Own Throat.

FAIRHAVEN, Vt., July 12.—Mrs. Jane Williams, who resides about two miles east of this place, murdered her two children, a girl 17 years old and a boy of six, set fire to the house and cut her own throat.

The terrible tragedy was enacted about three o'clock in the morning. One other child, a boy of 15 years, who was sleeping up-stairs, escaped with his life. He was awakened by the smell of smoke, and going down stairs found the house full of smoke, and his mother in the doorway screaming for help. There was a great wound in her throat and blood streaming down her dress front. He attempted to get her out, but she was determined to go back, and only by violent efforts was he able to get her safely outside. She was undoubtedly insane.

About two weeks ago her husband was killed in his slate quarry at Hydeville by falling from a considerable height.

SULLIVAN AND MULDOON.

The Champion Pugilist Stirred Up Over His Trainer's Letter.

BOSTON, July 12.—Muldoon's letter concerning John L. Sullivan was shown to Sullivan and, after reading it, he cried: "That snake in the grass has hounded me without reason for weeks. He, a snivelling snipe, a frog, a viper, a scoundrelly blackguard. He calls me a liar. Why his very letter proves him a liar of the deepest dye. When he says he didn't write the letter to the Southern authorities he is a proven liar, as I saw the letter with my own eyes."

Continuing, Sullivan said that his courage had been proven on many a hard fought field, and Muldoon's reflections thereon could not hurt him. He had refused to meet that "little sneak" Kilrain, but if Muldoon could show $2,500 in cash he might be tempted to fight. But Muldoon hadn't 2,500 cents that are properly his own.

The Holy See Reconsiders.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 12.—A cable dispatch brings news from Rome that the Propaganda has arrested the appointment of Bishop Bourke as the bishop of the combined diocese of Omaha and Cheyenne. The importance of the news arises from the fact that it is evidence that the Propaganda will not sanction a Romaa appointment as against the recommendation of a congress of American bishops. The bishops recommended Vicar-General Philip Brady, of St. Louis, and will now recommend him a second time.

Arrested on a Charge of Bigamy.

RED BANK, N. J., July 12.—Charles E. Clark, a foreman in the American Billiard Ball factory, was arrested on a charge of bigamy made by a detective from Worcester, Mass., who alleges that Clark's real name is John H. Sherman, and that he deserted his wife and ran away from Worcester with Annie Newtown, who has passed here as Mrs. Clark. The latter was also arrested. The couple were bound over for the grand jury. Both refuse to talk.

Attacked His Father and Mother.

NASHUA, N. H., July 12.—News has been received from West Wilton that Edward Holt, a milkman, while insane, took his aged father, Wallace Holt, from a sick bed and pounded his head to a jelly upon the hearth. He then badly injured his mother and aunt. Several of the neighbors were also injured while trying to restrain the maniac.

The President Cannot Attend.

CARLISLE, Pa., July 12.—An urgent invitation was sent to President Harrison by the secretary of the Farmers' Alliance requesting him to attend their convention soon to be held in this place. In a letter acknowledging its receipt, the President says he regrets that he is compelled, on account of urgent business, to decline acceptance of the invitation.

Labor Troubles at Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., July 12.—The Knights of Labor Council held a conference with C. W. Varney & Co., shoe dealers. Varney insisted on the acceptance of his entire proposition, but the council would not agree to this and the conference came to an end. There is no change in the Webber Morocco trouble. If it is not settled soon the factory must shut down.

Centenary of Methodism.

BOSTON, July 7.—The centenary of Methodism in Boston was celebrated by a meeting near the site whereon 100 years ago Rev. Jesse Lee preached the first Methodist sermon ever heard in this city. Dominie Lee's pulpit was a table lent him by a carpenter, and his canopy was the old elm on the Common.

The Flint Glassblowers Convention.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 12.—The American Flint Glass Blowers' Union are still hard at work arranging the schedule of prices for the ensuing year. As this is the most important work they have to do, it will take up most of the time for the next three or four days. Rumor has it that the present board of officers will be re-elected.

Sending Gold Abroad.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Foreign bankers ordered $1,000,000 more gold, making thus far $2,000,000 to go by to-day's steamers. It is expected that $10,000,000 will be shipped next week. The movement is understood to be due to the financial crisis in Buenos Ayres.

Frosts in July.

BROCKWAVILLE, Pa., July 12.—Light frosts were noticed on the hills this morning. The frost was not enough to hurt anything but sufficient to be a novelty in July.

THROWN OVERBOARD

Hundreds of People Plunged Into the Water.

A LARGE NUMBER DROWNED.

Four Dead Bodies Recovered and the Search for Others Continues.

A Chain Attached to a Ferryboat Slips Out of Place—The Horror-Stricken Crowd Slide Into the Harbor—A Dozen Men Jumped to the Rescue—Frightful Scenes in the Water.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 12.—The steamer Annex, No. 2, bought in Brooklyn, N. Y., to run as a ferry between here and Dartmouth, across the harbor, arrived last night. She went in at Dartmouth and made fast to the wharf. When she did so the populace flocked to the vicinity, burst open the gates leading to the wharf and rushed down to inspect the new boat.

There were hundreds on the dock, while about a hundred more stood on a bridge supported by two chains, used sometimes to take teams from ferry-boats.

In order to make the bridge perfectly safe and passable it was necessary that the end protruding from the wharf should rest on the vessel's deck.

Forced Overboard.

The forward part of the Annex was a few feet from the bridge, and many persons, all men, of course, leaped aboard the boat, but as they did so the crowd in the rear pressed forward, with the result that at 9 o'clock the chains gave way under the weight it bore, and nearly 150 people, including women and children, were precipitated into the water. Others, who were pushing forward, were also forced overboard.

A quantity of loose timber which was on the wharf was thrown to those struggling in the water, while life preservers from the steamer were also thrown overboard in great numbers. A raft was brought to the dock immediately, and by it the greatest number of those in the water were rescued.

Boats, torches, and grapplings were supplied [illegible] the work of searching for bodies commenced.

Picking Up the Bodies.

The men worked strenuously and were soon rewarded by finding one body, then another, until four were brought to the surface.

It is not yet known how many were drowned, but it is feared that many bodies will be recovered when daylight comes to aid the searchers.

The people from Dartmouth and many from Halifax hovered about the dock all night while the work continued.

The greatest excitement prevails, and it is almost impossible to tell as yet how many were drowned, as a great many persons from Dartmouth come to this city in the evening, and every family, some of whose members have not been seen since the accident, are in hopes that they are in Halifax. At the spot where the accident occurred there was about twenty feet of water, and the fall from the wharf level was about ten feet. Many young men leaped into the water to save women and children, and but for their action the loss of life would have been much greater.

SETTLING THE LOCKOUT.

The New York Cloakmakers Will Probably Return to Work.

NEW YORK, July 12.—It is probable that the cloakmakers will be back at work again on Monday morning. This was the conclusion of Mr. F. N. Masson, secretary of the Cloak Manufacturers' Association, at the conclusion of a conference between the representatives of the manufacturers and the representatives of the locked out cloakmakers.

Both the manufacturers' and the cloakmakers' representatives expressed confidence that the disputes will be satisfactorily settled at to-day's meeting. Should no settlement be reached they have have agreed to submit the disputed points to arbitration, the arbitration to consist of Father Ducey, a representative of the cloakmakers and a representative of the manufacturers.

Highwaymen Baffle the Police.

KANSAS CITY, July 12.—The police of this city are straining every effort to find the highwaymen who committed the several robberies in the public streets Thursday morning. That such a bold affair could be so successfully carried out seems almost incredulous. The highwaymen were masked and strongly armed. Several citizens were stopped in the vicinity of Eighteenth and Dripp streets and robbed of their money and watches. The scoundrels also entered the saloon of R. H. Davis, where they covered the bar tender and half a dozen customers with revolvers and robbed them all.

Mr. McKinley's Opponent.

ORVILLE, Ohio, July 12.—The deadlock in the Democratic Congressional Convention, Sixteenth Ohio District, was broken last night by the nomination of ex-Lieutenant-Governor John G. Warwick, of Massillon. Mr. Warwick, who will be the opponent of Congressman McKinley, is a business man, engaged for many years in extensive milling interests and owner of coal mines. His first and only political office was Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio.

Nominations by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The following nominations were sent to the Senate by the President: Col. A. M. McCok, 6th Infantry, to be Brigadier-General Major; A. C. Robinson, Quartermaster, to be Deputy Quartermaster General with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel; Capt. E. B. Atwood, Assistant Quartermaster, to be Quartermaster with the rank of Major.

To Resist Seizure.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12.—A letter received from Victoria states that the general opinion prevails there that two fleet of sailing craft has been fitted for the Behring Sea, armed and equipped, to aid the British sailing vessels to resist capture by the American revenue cutters.

Middleweights Matched.

NEW YORK, July 12.—A dispatch from San Francisco says the noted middleweights, Mike Lucie of Troy, N. Y., and Joe Ellingsworth of New York, have been matched by the Seattle Athletic Club to fight to a finish under Queensberry rules, five ounce gloves, for a purse of $1,000. August 20 is the date and as they are exceedingly clever men they should fight a long and close battle.

Honors for an American Student.

BERLIN, July 12.—The degree of Doctor of Chemistry has been conferred upon Albert Lincoln Smith, an American student at the Berlin University.

Salt Works Burning.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 12.—A dispatch from Mt. Morris says the salt works there are burning. The loss will be heavy.

TARIFF LEGISLATION

Our Prohibitory Duties Not Relished in England.

SOME TALK OF RETALIATION.

A Member of Parliament Suggests Free Trade Between England and Germany.

Mr. Stanley Recovers from His Illness and Will be Married This Afternoon—A Man Arrested for Having Seven Wives—Italy's Parliament Closed—American Riflemen Thanked.

LONDON, July 12.—In the House of Commons last evening, Mr. Howard Vincent asked, in view of the fact that a free market had been accorded to American imports into Great Britain, while the heavy duties imposed upon British goods had nearly extinguished the National debt of the United States, if the Government would invite America to refrain from enforcing the prohibitory tariff now before Congress, and instead give fair commercial reciprocity.

Sir James Fergusson said that no such representations were likely to be successful.

Sir James was further questioned as to what action Germany proposed to take in the suggested development of free trade between England and Germany, and also between Great Britain and the colonies, as an offset to the hostile tariff in America. He replied that the Government had reason to believe that Germany did not intend to take any action in the matter at present. The joint measures suggested were inconsistent with the fiscal policy of England.

STANLEY'S WEDDING.

The Explorer Recovers from His Illness and Will be Married This Afternoon.

LONDON, July 12.—Mr. Stanley was much better this morning, and if he suffers no relapse will be able to go through the wedding ceremony this afternoon.

The Queen's Gift to Stanley.

LONDON, July 12.—The Queen has presented Mr. Stanley with a miniature likeness of herself, set in diamonds. Accompanying the gift is an autograph letter highly eulogistic of Mr. Stanley's services in the field of exploration, and wishing the explorer a happy wedded life.

A Source of Danger to Germany.

BERLIN, July 12. — The "Frankfurt Journal" publishes an interview with Prince Bismarck, in which the ex-Chancellor says that had he been in office he would not have signed the Anglo-German convention in its present form. The Prince remarked that Heligoland might have been secured to Germany much more inexpensively than has been the case and added that unless strongly fortified, the island might, in the event of war, prove a source of danger to the Empire.

Denies the Rumor.

LONDON, July 12.—Mr. William Henry Smith has written a letter to a Conservative election organizer stating that he has no intention of vacating his seat in the House of Commons, but, on the contrary, proposes to stand for return at the next election. This is the first statement on the subject from Mr. Smith himself, and effectually disposes of the persistent rumors of his retirement from the Government leadership and elevation to the peerage.

Anglo-German Affair to Be Made Public.

BERLIN, July 12.—The "National Gazette" says that a full explanation of the various clauses of the Anglo-German convention on African affairs is being prepared by Chancellor Von Caprivi. The paper also says that the southern boundary of the German sphere in Africa has been moved a degree further north. Germany, acting on the advice of Baron Wissmann, abandons Makura so that tribal unity may be preserved.

Fatal Flames in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURGH, July 12.—A terrible conflagration has occurred at Wasiljerva, Russia, by which 329 dwellings were destroyed and seven persons were burned to death. The fire was started by a spark from the pipe of a drunken laborer, who was himself burned to death.

Italy Favors Arbitration.

ROME, July 12.—The session of the Italian Parliament has closed. Premier Crispi, in the Chamber of Deputies, dwelt upon the necessity of maintaining the peace of Europe and favored the submission of vital disputes to arbitration.

Wilhelm Thanks the Riflemen.

BERLIN, July 12.—Emperor William has sent a letter to Mr. Herman Weber, President of the German-American riflemen, now here, thanking the riflemen for the resolutions adopted by them at their banquet in this city on July 4, congratulating His Majesty.

Had Seven Wives.

BERLIN, Ont. July 12.—Conrad Ortwain, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of having seven living wives, pleaded guilty this morning and was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

A Fiendish Monster.

DUBLIN, July 12.—John Hart murdered his mother at Ballyneale and chopped the unfortunate woman's body to pieces. The monster was discovered lying beside the corpse of his victim and eating the flesh.

Result of a Re-Canvass for Denver.

DENVER, Col., July 12.—A re-canvass of the city places the total population at 135,000.

THE DUNBAR DISASTER.

The Coroner's Jury Return a Verdict Not Satisfactory to the Public.

DUNBAR, Pa., July 12.—The coroner's jury in the case of the Hill Farm mine disaster rendered the following verdict:

"Daniel Shearin came to his death while in the discharge of his duty as fire boss in the Hill Farm mine on the 16th day of June, 1890, by being suffocated with after-damp and smoke caused by an explosion of gas by John Kerwin opening a drill hole in an unlawful manner, under directions and by order of Robert Lang, superintendent, and that said Robert Lang is criminally responsible in causing the death of said Daniel Sherin.

"David Hay came to his death while in the discharge of duty, in trying to rescue his son in the Hill Farm mine on the 16th day of June, 1890, by being suffocated with after-damp and smoke caused by an explosion of gas by John Kerwin opening a drill hole in an unlawful manner, under direction and by order of Robert Lang, superintendent, and that we believe said Robert Lang is criminally responsible in causing the death of said David Hay."

The public feeling is against the verdict. The laboring people say the blame should not be laid on Mr. Lang, who has always been faithful in his duty in looking after the safety and welfare of his employes, and that a similar mistake was liable to be made by anyone under the same circumstances.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The builders' strike at Hamburg has been concluded by the defeat of the men.

The brass moulders in the Portsmouth, N. H., machine company's shops have struck against a reduction of pay.

Parson Clark, Prohibition candidate for Governor of Maine, says he does not think the prohibitionists will retire on account of the adoption of a license plank by the Democrats.

Christie Ackert, foreman of the Morsa Bottling Company's Works in 124th street, New York city, and his son Christie, Jr., were killed by an explosion of a large brass cylinder in the works.

Ex-Sheriff Geo. Lane of Gloucester, Mass., has brought suit in an action of contract for $18,000 against Henry Sellman and Rosenstein Bros. of New York. General Butler will appear for Lane.

A Lancaster, Pa., dispatch says a large number of men are thrown out of employment by the shutting down of the furnaces of the Chestnut Hill Iron Ore Company, owing to the dulness of the market and a large stock on hand.

It is claimed by Boston newspapers that the breaking of the 440-yard running record by W. C. Downes at Beacon Park on Wednesday, is doubted among the athletics, and that the record is disputed by nearly every witness of the run, barring the officials.

The Hotel Buena Vista, at Buena Vista, Va., was totally destroyed by fire during the evening. The fire was caused by a defective flue in the kitchen. The hotel was crowded with visitors. The total loss is about $40,000, nearly covered by insurance.

Ex-United States Senator Thomas S. McCreery died last night at Owensboro, Ky. He suffered a stroke of paralysis in 1873, which was repeated on two or three occasions, and for three years past he has been perfectly helpless. His death has been expected for several days. He leaves a large estate.

Judge A. W. Acheson of Washington, Pa., is dead. He graduated from Washington and Jefferson college in 1827. Judge Acheson was Deputy-Attorney General of Washington County and was presiding Judge from 1866 to 1875. For fifty-eight years he has been employed in the courts of justice of Washington.

Henry Mueller's big brewery at Thirty-first and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, was completely gutted by fire during the morning. The flames originated in the malt mill, and is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion of malt dust. The loss on building and contents is estimated at $100,000; fully covered by insurance. One hundred men are thrown out of work by the destruction of the brewery.

Weather Indications.

—Some needed improvements are being made to the Franklin school building, on West Fourth street.

—The small boy and green apple are now singing that touching duet, "Listen to my tale of woe."

—The fishing season has now fairly opened and it does not promise to be any longer than some of the fish stories.

—The Westfield ball team is contesting with the "Alphas" of Brooklyn, on the grounds of the former club this afternoon.

—At the First Baptist church to-morrow evening, there will be a special musical service under the direction of E. J. Fitzhugh.

—A meeting of the Tribe of Red Men was held in the Hand building, last evening, when business of importance to the tribe was transacted.

—The special committee from the County Board of Assessors visited Rahway, yesterday, and examined the Assessor's books at that place.

—An infant son of Martin Keidling of East Fifth street, received a deep cut on the forehead yesterday afternoon, by a fall. A physician dressed the wound.

—It is understood that the only clerk in John Clark's peanut stand has joined the Clerks' Early Closing Association, which accounts for his place of business being closed so early in the evening.

—The first excursion train over the big bridge of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, spanning the Staten Island sound passed over on Thursday, and proceeded by the Baltimore and New York railroad to Roselle.

—VanEmburgh & White offer for the coming week 5,000 yards of the best dress gingham for 7½ per yard. 'Tis the best bargain in wash goods this firm have offered this season, and buyers will do well to see them.

The Baptist Excursion.

The excursion of the First Baptist Sunday school, to Asbury Park, yesterday, was a grand success. Not an accident happened during the day to mar the pleasure of the excursionists. The bathing was excellent, and many persons took advantage of the opportunity for a dip in the ocean. The excursionists arrived home about eight o'clock, tired out after their days sport.

Thought He Had Wandered Away.

A resident of New street, who is employed as a machinist in one of the shops in the Fourth Ward, suddenly and mysteriously disappeared from home, yesterday morning, and as he did not return for dinner the household became alarmed. The man, however, turned up safe and sound, last evening, and gave a satisfactory explanation for his absence.

Mrs. Snyder Appears for Sentence.

Mrs. Margaret Snyder, convicted on Thursday, for creating a disturbance on West Fourth street, appeared before Judge Codington, yesterday afternoon for sentence. In her case sentence was suspended. Jacob Snyder, her husband, was also convicted for the same offence, but he did not appear for sentence, and the police are now looking for him.

Mrs. Ellis to Speak at Westfield.

Mrs. J. T. Ellis will speak at the Methodist church, Westfield, on Sunday evening, July 20. The address will be in behalf of the Siberian exiles. In the afternoon at 4 o'clock, she will deliver an address at Temperance Hall. All are cordially invited.

Congratulations from Bound Brook.

(From the Bound Brook Chronicle.)

The Plainfield Press will please accept our congratulations on the evidences of prosperity manifested by the fact that it has been compelled to enlarge its size by the addition of several columns.

A Kind Word From Somerville.

(From the Somerville Democrat.)

The Daily Press, of Plainfield, has enlarged by adding two columns to each page. We are glad to see this evidence of prosperity.

Take it in Time.

A man who presents an appearance of debility, whose countenance is anxious, and who is subject to spells of faintness, is liable to sudden death from heart disease. Let him take DR. ## FATS AND THINS STRUGGLE.

An Exciting Ball Game—The Umpire Forced to Protect Himself With a Pistol—Captain Keller Claims the Heavy Weight Championship.

Padded by the oxygen of elation and the wind of egotism, to twice his natural enormity of size Captain Keller announced yesterday on the ball ground at the close of his bloated team's victory over the Plainfield "Thins," that his nine were the city's champs—barring the Crescents—and were open to challenges from all ball teams of the World of their weight.

Three hundred people witnessed the game which had been advertised to be played between the Fats and the Lawyers. The latter, however, broke their faith with the public, and woe is theirs if they ever run for office. A team of Thins was pitted against Captain Keller's nine and an exciting contest resulted. The Fats drew their assortment of meat from the stockyards of Union and Somerset counties. The nine included Gaddis the Bounding Gazelle of Bound Brook, the elephantine Russ of Elizabeth and Smith the clay-bird breaking Hippopotamus. But the Thins could only pick from home—and they were plainly a "picked" lot.

In the first inning the score was tied at 11 to 11. But in the next four innings the Fats added 15 runs to their score with the help of the umpire and by batting two of the Thins' pitchers—Demarest and Runyon—out of the box. Cadmus pitched the remainder of the game thereafter, and held the Fats down to two runs. Another fatal factor in the struggle of the Thins, was the wicked treatment they received from Umpire Marble. He is fat himself, and it was loudly stated by many in the audience, that he gave most of the decisions—close and not close—in favor of his fellow plumps. It was even rumored that he had been subsidized by three Tee Kay cigars and sundry other collateral, to give the Fats the game. But such charge must be untrue, as George Thatcher's nephew played on the Thins and he had his eyes on Marble.

Nevertheless there was much kicking against the decisions of the early part of the game, and to protect himself on three occasions from the indignation of the players and the public, Marble was forced to draw a large navy revolver from his Gordon sash and hold the crowd at bay. At the close of the sixth inning, however, he was compelled to retire from the field; which he did without that pleasant smile that generally widens his 12 benign, mobile (Ala) countenance. The score then stood 27 to 14 in favor of the Fats, but their opponents' opportunity dawned.

A member of the PRESS staff was persuaded to umpire the balance of the game which he did to the satisfaction of everybody—on the thin team. But in spite of all sorts of yellow and rocky decisions against the Fats, the new umpire could only bring the score of the Thins up to 23. Other features of the game were the infield playing of Charley Smith, the batting of ex-Councilman Wilbur and the contortions of Capt. Keller on first bag. The score by innings was:

For The Championship.

Since the organization of the "Middlesex Gun Club," some four years ago, its members have met and vanquished all competing gun clubs of the State who had the audacity to contest with them, earning the proud reputation of "Champions of the State at live bird and inanimate target shooting." About a year ago, a number gentlemen organized themselves into a club known as the "Newark Gun Club," with Jacob Pentz as their Secretary. "Jake" is an all around good fellow, and got the idea in his head, somehow, that the "Newarks" could beat the "Middlesex." One of the rules in their by-laws is to the effect that no member of the "Newark" shall contest with any other club he may belong to, when the "Newark" are contestants. As a matter of fact it must be stated that several crack shots of the State belong to both clubs, having received their education at the traps as members of the "Middlesex," so, in consequence the "Newarks" will take some good shooters on their team from the present club. Nevertheless, the "Middlesex" has lots of good timber, and will produce a team that will paralyze the "Newarks" the 7th day of August next the date set down for the contest, which will take place on the grounds of the "Middlesex Gun Club" at Dunellen, N. J., commencing at 1 o'clock "sharp." The teams of the contest will be 15 members of each club on a side each to shoot at 10 live birds each, losers to pay for birds. It is safe to say this will be the most interesting and exciting contest ever witnessed at the traps in the State of New Jersey.

An Enjoyable Evening Promised.

A regular meeting of the Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will be held in the hall, No. 12 West Second street, on Monday evening, on which occasion Sup. Deputy Grand Regent Feist, and a delegation from Carteret Council, No. 884, of Rahway, will be present. An enjoyable evening is promised, and a full attendance of the members is desired.

Before the City Judge.

Mary Traynor of East Front street, appeared before Judge Codington this morning, to answer to a charge of disorderly conduct. The complainant was Jeremiah Cass, who claimed that the defendant as continually spitting in his face. Mary was fined two dollars.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Ex-Postmaster W. L. Force and wife are at the VanOver House, Lake Hopatcong.

Mrs. Chas B. Peddie and daughter of Westfield, returned yesterday from a two months' trip to California.

Miss Carrie E. Clickener of Bound Crook is visiting at the residence of Andrew Hoff in North Plainfield.

Messrs David French, Fred Obitz and George Steiner, all of North Plainfield, started for Texas today, where they will remain on a ranch for an indefinite period.

Wm. H. Ludlow of North Plainfield, went to Rahway during the hot wave to enjoy the cooling breezes of his old home. He thinks Rahway shows many signs of improvement.

The Westfield Standard says: "Among the distinguished visitors in Westfield to witness the display of fireworks on Saturday evening, were Craig A. Marsh and Judge Codington of Plainfield.

The Union County Board of Registry and Election, of which ex-Senator Livingston, of this city, was appointed a member by Gov. Abbett, will meet for organization, Monday, at Elizabeth.

That clever minstrel, Lew Dockstader, with Mrs. Dockstader, was the guest today of Joseph B. Miller at his hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Dockstader are enjoying Jersey attractions at Kenvil, near Hopatcong.

Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson of La Grande avenue will sail for Europe on Wednesday next, per steamer "Germania," of the White Star line, to make a tour of London, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Paris, etc., and to enjoy the beautiful scenery along the Rhine. They will return about the fifth of September.

The Rev. A. L. Brice, D. D., presiding elder of the Elizabeth District of the Methodist Episcopal church, was to preach here to-morrow morning, but owing to a fall on the sidewalk caused by a banana skin, he will be confined to his home for several weeks. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell will preach to-morrow morning at the Methodist church in his place.

The marriage took place, on Wednesday last, of Miss Hattie Johnson to Irving G. Stelle the booming young liveryman of West Front street. The ceremony was a quiet one and performed at the bride's home, in Dunellen, by the Rev. Mr. Stinson of that place. A host of friends heartily congratulate the young couple on their happiness and bright prospects.

Cross Again.

(Two Items from the Somerville Democrat.)

Somerville's estimated population is 3,525, not as large as North Plainfield There are scores of people who believed it was more. They live in Somerville.—Plainfield Times. Somerville has never claimed a population exceeding 3,500, and if it has 3,625, it exceeds all claims by 125. Some people are not so smart as they think.

The West Ends are playing "great ball." They defeated the Perth Amboys on Saturday, by a score of 23 to 3. The Plainfield public are anxiously awaiting that series of contests promised them—Plainfield Times. A series of contests has not been promised the Plainfield people this year, except by some of the Plainfield papers that knew nothing about it. The West Ends have engagements until the close of the season, and have made no promises whatever to Plainfield.

Plainfield Property Changes Hands.

Changes in real estate were yesterday recorded with the County Clerk at Elizabeth, as follows:

Martin Welles and wife of Westfield, to Cornelius H. Patton of Westfield, land on w s Elm street, Plainfield, 154x231 feet, $1.

Percy F. Phillips of Plainfield, to Frederick Eugene LeCand of Natchez, Miss., land on Madison avenue, Plainfield, e s, 100x148 feet, $1.

Frederick Eugene LeCand to Mary Frances Phillips, same tract in Plainfield, $1.

Why Other Papers Blunder.

Again must the warning be sounded for the guidance of our contemporaries—If you don't see it in THE PRESS it isn't so! Yesterday's Elizabeth Herald contains an account of a runaway in this city Wednesday, and the throwing out on West Front street of "Mrs. John Day and her two little children."

As John Day is a widower, and the one who was thrown out by Wednesday's runaway is a young maiden lady—as was published exclusively in these columns—the blunder of our contemporary was not only stupid but offensive. Don't be a fool—read THE PRESS.

Pushing the Work on the County Roads.

The work on the county road between this city and Elizabeth is progressing favorably. Contractor Wood who built the road between Plainfield and Westfield, expects to reach Cranford with the work today. Some three month's time will yet be required to complete the road to Elizabeth.

During the hot spell on Monday and Tuesday, several of Mr. Wood's men were overcome with the heat, but all but one of them have recovered and returned to work.

How tempting! Something "just as good" is offered when Hires' Root Beer is called for. The reason is plain. The unprincipled dealer makes more profit on imitation goods. The wise ones insist on getting Hires'.

A TRIP TO BOYNTON BEACH.

How the Fanwood Sunday School and Their Friends Enjoyed the Salt Sea Breezes.

On the morning of the 10th, although DeVoe's prediction to the contrary, the day was gloriously beautiful when both the little and big children of Fanwood started out in two rambling, large picnic vans. To say the least they were well crowded, "but not a word" from the little or the big as to the discomfort in close quarters. They were off on a picnic and meant to enjoy themselves. They did so thoroughly because of the untiring efforts of Harry P. Robinson.

On through the Jersey dust—it was certainly very plentiful and it silently and slightly discolored faces as well as garments—but all were philosophical enough to say "not a word." After a drive of a couple of hours they arrived safe; not exactly on foreign shores, although foreign to some, still it was Jersey—you could tell it by the dust.

What a scrambling time there was at the grove to disembark and prepare for luncheon; and what good things they had for the hungry little ones, who were so delighted with the feast spread out before them, not only as regards the eatables but with the big sheet of water which was certainly fascinating with the light sails and row boats skimming here and there. They could bathe and fish if they pleased, and such a pleasant grove, with the merry-go-round, etc., in full swing. They drank it in as they did the lemonade, and other refreshments, and had all that their hearts could wish, from a row-boat up to iced cream.

Everything was done that was possible by the many friends of the Sunday School to give the children a good time, and they had it to the fullest extent. All came home well satisfied with the pleasures of the day and with the idea that after all picnics were very nice affairs. There were no accidents so they will go again.

Dwyer Knocked Out in Three Rounds.

One of the shortest battles that has taken place between professionals this season took place at 6 o'clock yesterday morning at Raritan Grove, on Raritan Bay, between Bill Dunn, of Jersey City, and James Dwyer, of Bound Brook, for a stake of $250 and a purse of $550, $100 of which went to the loser. Dunn easily whipped Dwyer in three rounds.

Dwyer is well known in this city, having been at one time employed at the Scott Press Works.

The Other Man Deceived.

Another paper published a denial by Mrs. Miller of the account exclusively published in THE PRESS, of her being attacked and choked by an ex-convict. The other paper adds that the publishers of THE PRESS were deceived.

We were nothing of the kind! We not only had the whole story correct ourselves, but Mrs. Miller's husband endorsed it before it was published.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Mr. Seely Edsall,
Plainfield, N. J.

In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.

We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.

You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.

Yours truly,

R. S PEALE & CO.

☞Remember that Mr. Edsall is the only authorized agent for Plainfield for the sale of these books at the wonderful low price of $1 50 per volume.

CRUSHED

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

THE RECORD OF THE CRESCENTS.

Wonderful Ball Playing—Plainfield's Team Lead Their Opponents in Every Way—774 Fielding Chances, With but 37 Errors.

The batting and fielding totals and averages of the Crescent League team to date, is given below. Every man's standing as a player is given. The record is a remarkable one, and in the infield is probably not excelled by any of the professional league teams. The following are the explanations of the initials used: A B—times at bat; R—runs; B H—safe base hits; S B—stolen bases; P O—put out opponents; A—assist in putting out; E—errors.

Sociable at Dunellen.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church of Dunellen, was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Carpenter on Thursday evening, and the entertainment was one to be long remembered, particularly by those who took part. During the evening refreshments were served and the following programme was rendered:

Instrumental Duett.
Miss Ella Boice and Mrs. Chas. Carpenter
Soprano Solo.....Miss Maud Benton
Cornet Solo.....Miss Mamie Smith
Bass Solo.....Rev. W. C. Stinson
Recitation.....Miss Louise Apgar
Banjo Selections.....
Robert Carpenter and Wm. Terry
Soprano Solo.....Mrs. M. A. Davis
Cornet Solo.....Miss Mamie Smith
Instrumental solo.....Miss Addie Sutphen
See Saw Waltz, (in costume).....
Emma Marlow, Wm. Carpenter, Bert Apgar, Lila Care, Clarence Marlow.

Y. M. C. A. Campers.

The following persons occupied two tents at the Y. M. C. A. college students conference for Bible study held at the home of Mr. D. L. Moody at Northfield, Mass., during the past ten days: Charles B. Brown, John Lindsay, Alfred E. Holmes, Edward C. Petrie, Charles P. Gelhaar, Grant Hegel, J. H. Manning and John. Bicknell. Reports of the above conference will be given at the Young Mens' meeting at the Association rooms to-morrow at 4:15 P. M. The State Y. M. C. A. Boys Camp had the following representatives from this city: Vincent Rockwell, Charles S. Cook, Arthur Vail, Harry H. Lowrie and Charles Angleman.

A Suit for Damages Settled.

The suit brought by Berne Egel against Abram L. Cadmus, proprietor of the Commercial Mills in this city, for damages for false imprisonment, has been settled in a manner satisfactory to Mr. Egel.

The case of Charles Ramsberger, also for false imprisonment, it is understood is still unsettled.

Settling the Fourth of July Claims.

The Committee having in charge the Fourth of July celebration at Westfield, met last evening and squared up all accounts incurred in connection with the public demonstration. After all claims were paid there was a balance of eight dollars in the treasury, which amount was turned over to the free reading room.

Good Points in a Woman.

A clear bright eye
That can pierce the sky,
A rounded cheek
Where the roses speak,
A chest so grand
That the lungs expand;
A steady brain
That can bear the strain,
A manner bright
And a spirit light.

Who does not wish for these, or having them wish to keep them, yet when sick headache, nervousness, and inflammations attack her, restoration can be accomplished by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a medicine designed for woman's use, and placed with all druggists for their relief. Sold under the manufacturers' positive guarantee of satisfaction, or money refunded.

Westfield Team Beats Plainfield Players.

(From the Mount Arvarat Standard.)

On Wednesday afternoon, July 9th, the remodeled Westfields met the Lindens. The home team had in the new battery O'Neil and McMannus, late of the St. Louis College team, and Wolters, of Columbia made his first appearance on first. The Linden aggregration was made up of four Linden players, two of Rahway's cracks and three Plainfield Crescents (Lufbery, Jones and Martin.) By long odds, it was the strongest collection that Westfield has yet had to face, and the home team was short of its centrefielder, Johnston. It was a case of "anything to do up Westfield," but the visitors make a few miscalculations, and went home without their scalps.

Our new pitcher, O'Neil, proved a puzzle to the visitors, who hit him but a few times, and those hits pretty much scattered. McManus, the new catcher, put up a fine game, and gave a fine show of base-running, stealing second and then third, in spite of Jones, Martin and Lufbery. We are pleased with the battery! Wolters covered first in splendid shape, and made himself many friends by his clever work in all deparments. DeWitt, as usual, carried off the honors on second, and led the batting with three hits, one of which was a three-bagger. Townley made one error, and Stitt and McLaughlin were 'way off. Conkling and Frelinghuysen had nothing much to do.

A Power for Good in Washington Society.

What This Organization Is Doing—An Interesting Feature of the Capital City—Something of Its Work in General.

[Special Correspondence.]

One of the most interesting features of the city of Washington is the Young Men's Christian Association building on New York avenue, near Fourteenth street. It is on the line of four different street-car routes, is centrally located, and easily accessible from all points in the city. Ten or twelve years ago the building was occupied by John Chamberlin, the famous restauranteur, who at that time dispensed the hospitality of his famous club, to its various members. Donn Piatt, George H. Butler, Billy Copeland and all of the famous fellows on newspaper row, as well as the attaches of foreign legations, spent their happiest moments beneath the hospitable roof. It is an entirely different looking place now. It is quiet, home-like, refined, attractive and scarce an hour passes any day when from half a dozen to half a hundred young men may not be found inside reading, talking, or making good use of the gymnasium in the rear. Instead of the songs of revelry by night, the neighborhood is treated to the songs of worship from early morn till dewy eve, from dewy eve till morn. Instead of being open to the blase habitues of bachelordom alone, it is now a pleasant, convenient place for ladies of refinement as well as gentlemen to drop into at any time; in fact, a wholesome, comfortable resting place.

The popular idea throughout the country is that the Young Men's Christian Association is an organization purely for religious work among young men, the members spending their time in fervent interchanges of religious experiences and expressions of mutual horror at the wickedness of the world in which we live. Undoubtedly that was the intention of the founders of the Young Men's Christian Association a number of years ago, but time, which changes all things, has changed the Young Men's Christian Association into something more modern and practical. Of course, Christianity and the inculcation of Christian doctrine is the central thought and motive power of the institution. But the members of the Young Men's Christian Association in the city of Washington are by no means bound down to the limits and circumscribed by the horizon of Christian endeavor. The association is devoted to physical culture, social and mental improvement, literary societies, a reading-room, a library, lectures upon health, Gospel and song services, Sunday-school meetings, where Bible lessons are given by learned men; so that altogether the Young Men's Christian Association as it is now constituted is intended to be a pleasant club home not only for Christian people and devout men and women, but for all who want to do well and be good and are trying to make themselves fit associates of the gentlemen and ladies who maintain the association. There was a time when the Young Men's Christian Association was called facetiously "the bald-headed young men's association," because of the fact that the leading spirits of the association were old gentlemen who desired to do God a service by monopolizing all that there was good in the association and aggrandizing themselves before the people as great reformers. But happily that time has passed.

The house in which the Young Men's Association is located, is not exactly what the association would like, and the directors are working upon plans for the enlargement of the quarters on a scale better suited to the increased membership. The old Lincoln Hall building, down-town, which was occupied by the association prior to 1882, was a model place for them. They occupied one entire floor one hundred feet square for their prayer-meeting room, reception room, library room, and office room. Moreover on the story above there was an immense auditorium, with a stage, from the platform of which many lectures were delivered which not only benefited the hearers, but financially prospered the association. It was regarded as a very unfortunate thing at the time that they were obliged to vacate their quarters because of the contraction of their financial ability; but the association has been so prospered in the old Chamberlin property that all the grim forbodings of that time have long since passed away. The present location has proved to be a wise move, for the tree has grown and blossomed, adding new branches each year, gradually rooting itself so firmly in the affections of the public that none of the winds of adversity can ever harm it again. One feature of the association which has proved to be exceedingly popular and profitable is the gymnasium. This is a building back of the main structure which was added in 1884. It has grown to be perhaps the most popular feature of the work and has undoubtedly been the means of drawing a large number of young men into the fold.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

Notice is hereby given that the co-partnership lately subsisting between John Barton Kline and Stephen O. Staats, both of the city of Plainfield and State of New Jersey, under the firm of Kline & Staats, doing business at the corner of Grant avenue and West Front street in the city of Plainfield, has this day been terminated by mutual consent.

All debts owing to the said partnership are to be received by said Staats at his office, No. 61 North avenue, in said city of Plainfield, and all demands on the said partnership are also to be presented to him at the same place, he being authorized to settle all debts due to and by said firm.

Dated July 11th, 1890. 7-11-6

FORMATION OF PARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned have this day formed a co-partnership under the name, firm and style of J. B. Kline & Co., for the transaction of a general coal, wood and feed business, at the East corner of Grant avenue and West Front street, in the city of Plainfield.

Dated July 11, 1890. J. B. KLINE. J. W. DAVIS. 7-11-6

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. B. COWARD, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., July 7, 1890.

AN ORDINANCE.

An Ordinance to establish the grade of a portion of Belvidere avenue.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That the grade of Belvidere avenue, Southerly and Northerly, from its intersection with Broadway be established to conform to the grade shown on survey and map, on file with the Street Commissioner, marked: "Grade Map of part of Belvidere avenue," dated April, 1890; and the grade of said portion of Belvidere avenue is hereby established, as indicated on said map and survey, to wit:

Beginning at a point in the centre of Belvidere avenue, distant three hundred and fifty-two and five-tenths (352.5) Southerly from the Southerly side of Broadway at an elevation of 101.73 feet above the City base; thence along the centre of said Belvidere avenue, with a descending grade to the Southerly curb line of Broadway, produced at an elevation 100.52 feet above the City base; thence with an ascending grade to a point, distant one hundred and thirty-seven and five-tenths (137.5) feet Northerly from the Northerly side of Broadway, at an elevation of 103.51 feet above the City base; the elevation of the curb line to be six inches lower.

SEC. 2. That the roadbed over said portion of Belvidere avenue be repaired and permanently improved with broken stone, to be laid to grade established by this ordinance, for a width of six to eight feet on each side of the centre line thereof, and for a depth varying from two to six inches, as circumstances may require, under the direction of the Street Commissioner, at the general expense of the City; (property owners having subscribed two hundred and twelve dollars and fifty cents, being one-half of the total estimated expense, towards reimbursing the City) to be paid for out of the moneys raised by taxes for the improvement of streets, as provided by the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize cities to make permanent improvements in the roadbeds of the streets at the general expense;" Approved March 13, 1884.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JOS. B. COWARD, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

To fix and regulate the salary of the Street Commissioner for the year ending the first Monday in February, A. D., 1891.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That (whereas Robert A. Meeker, the present Street Commissioner was asked to accept his said office with the understanding that the salary therefor should be made at the rate of fifteen hundred dollars per annum for the year ending the first Monday in February, A. D., 1891, and the said salary has not been heretofore fixed by ordinance) the salary of said Robert A. Meeker, as Street Commissioner for the year ending as aforesaid, be and the same is hereby fixed at the rate of fifteen hundred dollars per annum, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed, preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. B. COWARD, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., July 7, 1890.

AN ORDINANCE

To regulate the use of bicycles, tricycles and other noiseless vehicles in the public streets.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That every person or persons who shall ride or drive on any of the public streets within the limits of the City of Plainfield between one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise, a bicycle, tricycle, or other vehicle having a rubber or similar noiseless tire, shall on such vehicle at such time or times either carry and display a lighted lantern such as may be plainly seen from all directions, or continuously sound a bell or gong while such vehicle is in motion, which bell or gong shall be attached to such vehicle and give forth sufficient sound to be distinctly heard at least fifty feet from such vehicle.

LOST IN LONDON.

An American Visitor Who Found It Charming.

In Fact, He Says That It Is the Best Way to See the Great City—A Meeting with London Toughs.

[Special New York Letter.]

ONE of the best methods of finding interesting places in London is to lose your way. If you keep to the well-known arteries of trade and fashion you will be entertained, it is true, but you will miss a great deal that is old, historical and fascinating. The guide-books are of very little use, they never are; they tell you to go to the Tower and Westminster Abbey, and Buckingham Palace, and Mme. Tussand's and all the other wax-works, for as a matter of fact, in these latter days, the Tower of London with all its historical associations is decidedly wax-worky. It is a show place, pure and simple, and the strong room with its regalia, the crown and scepter, the globe and coronation bowl, though we know that they are genuine, look gilt and tawdy. The gentlemen warders, the "Yeomen of the Guard," in their absurd clothes, seem to have come out of a cheap comic opera, and the magnificent collection of armor is belittled by its show-like surroundings. Since the dynamite scare the public are only allowed to visit certain portions of the Tower, and visitors are compelled to walk in careful procession closely watched by the "Yeomen of the Guard." I did not take much stock in the Tower. This being elbowed and jostled by prosaic nineteenth century holiday makers destroys the illusion of the fourteenth century surroundings. In Westminster one is continually pestered with guides and non-sympathetic curiosity hunters.

But get lost in London and you are almost certain to stumble over something curious and interesting. There is no real danger in getting lost, because wherever you may go the hansom cab is always with you. These most convenient vehicles meet you at every corner, and a half a dozen hail you in the course of a block. When you get tired of walking you have but to hold up your finger and whistle, and cabby is at the curb ready to whirl you to your destination in one of those "easy chairs on wheels," as an enthusiastic American called them. They thread their way in and out among the carriages and drays of the crowded, narrow streets in the lower part of the city, dash round corners and through short-cut alleys and land you at the place you want to reach in a surprisingly short time. And, contrary to the generally-accepted idea, I have always found cabby to be a good-natured, obliging fellow, rarely given to overcharging and appreciative of a very modest "tip." He is in marked contrast to the Parisian cocher, who is a surly rascal, and who takes his pour boire with the air of one conferring a favor, and is certainly a great improvement upon our American cabman, whose method of charging seems to be to "size up" his prospective customer, guess how much money he has, and then demand all he thinks he will pay.

I was just debating upon the advisability of hailing a cab one day last summer, when as I turned the corner I came upon a most curious-looking old structure. I had been wandering for about an hour through Smithfield and Clerkenwell, having visited Smithfield market, the great meat market of London, looked at the tomb of John Milton in St. Giles Church, in which church, by the way, Oliver Cromwell was married, wandered about the Charter house schoolhouse where Thackeray was educated and where Colonel Newcombe died, and through Grub street, now known by the more euphonious, but less reminiscent, name of Milton street. I had seen enough for one morning, and as I had not the remotest idea of how to get home my thoughts were turning cabwards when I saw the queer old Gothic gate. I had just been inspecting a considerable portion of the old Roman wall of London which still stands in St. Giles church-yard, and I am enough of an archæologist to know that a Gothic gateway has nothing to do with a Roman wall, and this gateway was pure Gothic. It looked like the entrance to some feudal castle, with its round towers and narrow windows and pointed arch.

I applied to a passing "bobby" who informed me that it was St. John's Gate, and further, that if I would knock at a small side door they would let me see Dr. Johnson's chair and table which were preserved in a room over the gate. It is surprising what an old tramp Dr. Johnson must have been. There is hardly an ale house in old London where they do not show you Dr. Johnson's "favorite corner," and his chairs and tables are as plentiful as are Washington's headquarters in the State of New Jersey. These Dr. Johnson relics are genuine, however, I fancy. The old doctor was a good deal of a Bohemian in his day, and he used to write pretty much anywhere that he could find a convenient place.

I knocked at the door which was presently opened by a sleepy-looking youth with a pen behind his ear. He led the way up the narrow winding stairway in the town and into the Gothic chapel-looking room over the gate. There were in it some old pictures, a couple of suits of armor, a dozen or more chairs and a massive oaken table. One of the chairs was Dr. Johnson's, the sleepy youth was not certain which, but, as they were all alike, it did not much matter.

By dint of patient questioning, I learned from the sleepy youth that the gate and the Norman crypt in St. John's Church, a few steps away, are the only relics in London of the once powerful order of St. John of the Hospital, an order older than the Knights Templar, and at one time more powerful. It originated in 1048, in a hospital established at Jerusalem, for the reception of pilgrims to the Holy Sepulchre, and the hospital being dedicated to St. John the Baptist, the members of the order were known as Hospitaller Brothers of St. John the Baptist of Jerusalem. The order increased in numbers and influence; they fought in the crusades and established other hospitals all along that long road, strewn with the bones of enthusiasts, which led from Europe to the Holy Sepulchre. They were, at the zenith of their power, divided into eight languages, or sections—Provence, Auvergue, France, Italy, Aragon, England, Germany and Castile. Each section had several priories, and each priory a number of commanderies.

In England the priory at Clerkenwell, of which St. John's Gate is the visible reminder, was rich and powerful, and the head of the priory had a seat in the Upper House of Parliament and was known as the First Baron of England. In Southern Europe they were driven by the victorious Saracens from one point to another, having for many years their headquarters on the island of Malta, and during this occupancy losing their original title and becoming known as the Knights of Malta, under which name some remnants of the order still exist in Spain and Italy. In England they were slowly shorn of their possessions and power, but they still exist, still hold some valuable property, including St. John's Gate, and, what is most curious, they still support a hospital in Jerusalem. It gives one an idea of the age and stability of British institutions when one comes upon the tangible evidence, the business offices, of this semi-masonic, semi-charitable organization founded in 1048, nearly five hundred years before America was discovered, and still carrying on its work in 1890.

But organized charities are a strong feature of London life. There are societies for every thing under the sun. Societies for the purpose of distributing tracts to the soldiers and societies for reading the Bible to soldiers' wives; societies for the regeneration of cabmen; societies for the reformation of bargees. I was standing in Charing Cross station late one evening when I noticed a rather pretty but rustic-looking girl sobbing bitterly. It was very evident that she was lost and I felt sorry for her. I was hardly in the position to offer her any assistance without having my motives misinterpreted, but I determined to stand around and await developments. Presently one of the station guards spoke to her, went to the telephone, and shortly a pleasant-looking woman in the garb of a religeuse arrived in a hansom and after a few moments' conversation with the girl took her off in the cab. I learned from the guard that there is a society in London, managed by an Episcopalian sisterhood, which takes care of young girls who arrive in London in the evening and who do not know the way to their friends. They have a house where the wanderers spend the night and in the morning they are taken to their destination.

In America such a society might be a superfluity but in England they have plenty of work to do. Young girls come to the great city from the country. They miss a train or friends neglect to meet them and they do not know how or where to go to spend the night. London, which seems a mysterious labyrinth to a fairly well seasoned roender like myself, must possess countless terrors to the young girl, fresh from the country, who sees a great city for the first time and knows nothing of it except the tales of its wickedness. To be sure if they were sensible they would so arrange as not to be left alone in London in such a plight, but then none of us are always sensible.

This organized charity system has been made the butt of humorists for years but it has accomplished a vast amount of good among the poor of London. The People's Palace, that noble monument to Walter Besant's "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," has done a vast work in educating and elevating the poor. I know Whitechapel and "the Mint" in London and I am tolerably familiar with the east side of our own New York city, and I have no hesitation in affirming that for genuine downright filth, squalor, wretchedness and vice New York can give London points and win the game.

I went through Whitechapel and the adjacent slums with a detective, who was detailed for this service through the courtesy of Chief Inspector Shore, of Scotland Yard, to whom I had a letter of introduction from Superintendent Murray, of New York. I visited the scenes of the famous Whitechapel murders. I dove in and out among the narrow lanes and blind alleys, and I scandalized my guide by scraping acquaintance with a lot of "house-breakers," he said, "Why'hos" we would call them in New York, and announcing my intention of "doing the town" under their guidance. He said I would be killed, but I went with them; saw more than he knew, and when I left them I promised, if they came to New York, which I hope they won't, to show them sights in the Mulberry Bend and on the east side of the Bowery which would make their hair curl. There is a vast amount of poverty and vice in Whitechapel, the latter being largely responsible for the former, but there is not the same reckless disregard for human life that we see in similar quarters in New York.

The English tough will kick his victim's face to a jelly—he is an awful brute; but he don't shoot or stab him except on rare occasions, and the English tough has a most comical and wholesome respect for an American. He fancies that every traveler from the States carries a revolver with which he can shoot the spots out of a card at thirty yards and a bowie knife with which to scalp his victim. Read George Sims' "Horrible London," or "Low Life Deeps," by James Greenwood, and you will get a fair idea of the seamy side of London life, albeit something overdrawn; then come to New York, go through the Italian quarter in Mulberry Bend, visit the Polish Jews in their attics in the great dumbbell tenements, and you will see a depth of degradation beside which the worst in London is comparative respectability. I am firmly convinced that this condition of affairs is owing not to the superior character of the British tough but to the persistent efforts of organized charity.

There was one interesting episode growing out of my rather shady Whitechapel connection which is worth the telling. I had explained to the genial house-breakers that I was an American newspaper man in search of material, and they tried their best to furnish it.

One evening I was strolling up Oxford street when I met one of the party. He did look uncommonly tough when in the confines of respectability. He approached me touching his cap.

"Hi beg pardon, sir, but hi think as 'ow there's somewhat you could write hup—hin the 'Op Vine."

"What's that?" I asked.

"Hin the 'Op Vine, the Viscount 'Inton is there," replied the tough.

"The Viscount Hinton? Who may he be?" I asked.

"'E's the nob as grinds the horgan."

I sought the Hop Vine, a large public house, and there, sure enough, was the Viscount Hinton with his piano organ. He is a bright-looking man of about five and thirty. He goes about the city accompanied by his wife and trundles a great piano organ, the front of which bears an immense sign flanked by two coach lamps. The sign reads:

I AM
VISCOUNT HINTON
ELDEST SON OF THE EARL OF POWLETT.
HAVING BEEN CAST OFF BY MY FATHER THROUGH NO FAULT OF MY OWN I HAVE ADOPTED THIS METHOD OF EARNING AN HONEST LIVING.
SEE BURKE'S AND DR. BRETT'S PEERAGES.

I made the acquaintance of the Viscount, not a very difficult matter, and got a good deal of more or less valuable information from him. The remarkable thing about him is that his statements are true, and when his father dies he will come into the title, the estates and will be entitled to a seat in the House of Lords. It seems that when the Earl of Powlett was Viscount Hinton he was a pretty hard case. He married a pretty bar-maid, on a wager, it is said, and subsequently the present Viscount Hinton was born.

The Earl, who, by that time was heartily sick of his bargain, tried to disown all responsibility for the youngster. The mother sued him, and as the child was born in wedlock the courts adjudged the child legitimate, ordered the gay and festive Earl to support and educate the youngster and bring him up as befitted his station. All went well until the low-born mother died and the noble Earl promptly mated with one of his own station. Then other additions to the British nobility began to arrive, but according to English law the eldest son inherits the title and estates. When young Hinton arrived at the age of twenty-one, the Earl tried to buy him off, but the young man would not sell out and he sued his father for an allowance. The suit was denied and they've been squabbling in the courts ever since.

The Viscount is a clever fellow and might easily make a living in some less obtrusive walk in life, but he prefers the piano or organ because it annoys the old Earl. When the old gentleman attends some particularly swell social affair the Viscount is on hand on the sidewalk with his organ and he makes it pleasant for the old man by playing popular airs and passing around the hat with the light of his coach lamps turned full upon the sign. The Earl is engaged in the amiable endeavor of tangling up the estates, which are entailed, to such an extent that Hinton won't have much good out of them, and Hinton is suing to have a trustee appointed to look out for his interests. So you see that even being an Earl or a Viscount, does not insure perfect earthly happiness, a fact which a good many of our ambitious Americans are apt to forget.

AN INDIAN DOLL.

A Specimen of Indian Handiwork—Plaything for Papooses.

This curious child-doll, made by the Sioux Indians of Dakota, is in real Indian costume, sparkling with brightly colored beads on dress, in necklace and in ear-rings. The body itself underneath is carefully made of stout muslin stuffed with cotton, and is the only thing that is not thoroughly Indian.

Her broad, staring, brown leather face is almost perfectly flat, with popping eyes and lips of pale blue beads, cheeks that glow with patches of war-paint, and a nose that is conspicuous by its entire absence. The back of the head is in a single piece of buffalo's hide, the long brown hair of which is parted and plaited into two plaits that reach to the knees. The seam where the front and back of the head are sewed together is covered with a row of white beads. From each of the ears hangs an enormous load of beads, white and blue, that in four double strings extend below the waist. About her neck is a double necklace of beads deep blue in color.

The dress is made of soft dressed hide in two pieces exactly alike—a front and a back. The seams along each side and under the arms are ornamented with a narrow fringe of the same leather. The seam on the outside of the sleeve is covred with a strip of bead-work of pale blue varied with bands of red, yellow and dark blue. Just below this is another band of similar bead-work extending the whole length of both sleeves and across the breast. And there is another band like it on the back. The spaces between the strips of bead-work are stained an orange-color. The effect is very rich. Short strips of hide secured in the middle and stained a brighter orange adorn the skirt itself. A deep fringe of leather that completely covers the hand is stitched to each sleeve, and a similar fringe is sewed around the bottom of the dress.

Just concealed by this long fringe a pair of tiny moccasins may be seen embroidered on the toes with blue and yellow beads. Tall leggins of buckskin, like the tops of a pair of boots, extend above the knee, and are likewise worked with a pattern of white and crimson beads.—Harper's Young People.

WHAT DUKE DID.

How He Saved His Own Life by His Coolness and Sagacity.

"Duke" was a fine setter. When he was a puppy, his master had to go on a long journey, and left Duke with a professional dog-trainer to be cared for and taught during his absence. I am afraid Duke did not fare very well, for when, nearly a year afterward, he came to stay with us, he looked quite thin and wretched, and had a hang-dog air. He soon improved, however, under a generous diet and kind treatment. Duke became especially fond of big brother Ned, and always ran to meet him when he came home, jumping up and licking his hands, and evincing in every way the greatest delight at Ned's return.

One day Brother Ned came home the back way. Now, in a direct line with the fence, and not far from the gate, was a well, said to be more than a hundred feet deep. The water was very low in it at this time, and there was no chain and buckets, for we never used the water from it. But, very carelessly, it had been left uncovered. It was so near the fence, and looked so much like a part of it, that it might easily be overlooked by any one; and, certainly, Duke did not see it. He ran with a joyful bark to leap over the fence, and went—down—down into the water. Brother Ned gave the alarm, and we all ran to the spot; but what could we do to save Duke? As we looked into the well we could see nothing but two eyes, which glowed like coals of fire up through the darkness, and we could hear Duke whine pitifully and scratch the stones at the sides of the well. There were some men working on a house near by, and they ran to help. Taking a long rope and a short piece of board, they attached the board as you would put a seat in a swing, and lowered it into the well, thinking that the poor dog might be able at least to support himself on it until some better method could be devised for hoisting him out.

WHAT COULD MAKE IT SO HEAVY?

But we thought that Duke could do nothing with the board.

We heard him paw the board, and he gave short, sharp little yelps as if to let us know that he understood we were trying our best to help him.

Then one of the men said he would go down, if a stronger rope was brought. So the men began to draw up the swing. What could make it so heavy? They leaned over and peered down into the darkness. The two gleaming eyes were certainly moving about, as the men continued to draw up slowly and steadily. Could it be that the dog was tangled in the line? Carefully, now! Another pull and another, and the board comes into the light. Hurrah! It is Duke! He is hanging on by his teeth to the rope close to the board. We scarcely breathed. Would he be able to keep his hold until they could get him to the top? How dreadful if he should fall back now! No, here he is—safe at last!—cowering and shivering at our feet. We carried him into the house and wrapped him in a warm blanket before the fire, for it was a chilly day in early spring. His mouth and his paws were bruised, from his frantic efforts to gain a hold on the slippery sides of the well.

He seemed conscious of the great danger he had escaped and grateful over his deliverance, for there was a new intelligence in his eyes. He crept nearer to our feet as we sat around him, and he licked the hands reached down to caress him.

Was it through instinct or reason, or was it only by accident, that Duke caught and held the rope?—Helen E. Hastings, in St. Nicholas.

GOING TO THE POST-OFFICE

How a Brave Little Girl Mailed a Letter for Mamma.

One day mamma went to the door and looked up the road and down the road to see if there was any one she could send a letter to the post-office by; but there was nobody around except the children, baking sand-cakes in the sun.

"Dear me!" said mamma aloud. "I wish there was some one to take this letter. It ought to go. Grandma will want to know how Aunt Anne is."

A tangle of brown curls flew back from a bright little face.

"Why, I can take it for you, mamma," said Elfie, jumping up and brushing off her apron, 'and I will!"

Mamma stooped and kissed the round, dimpled face, that was a wee bit dirty, too.

"Dear child!" said she. "But you're too little to go, Baby, unless—can't you go with her, Mamie?"

"O-oh! I don't want to!" said Mamie, beginning to pout. "I want to play!"

"I can go all alone, mamma, des like a mice," said Elfie.

And Mamie was more than six years old, and Elfie was not quite four, and small of her age, besides.

A sorry look came into mamma's face.

"Very well, dear," she said to Elfie, "you may go. Come and let me fix you up," and in a very few minutes the brown curls were freshly combed and the dimpled face clean as water could make it.

"Give the letter and the nickel to Mr Willis," said mamma.

"Yes'm," answered Elfie, "I will."

"And don't stop to play along the road."

"No, mamma," said Elfie, "I won't."

"Walk right in the middle of the bridge, dear!" mamma called once more.

"Yes," Elfie called back, "I will, mamma!"

Then Elfie trudged away, and mamma went upstairs to the window from which she could see the farthest. She watched the wee little figure, just a speck on the dusty road, until it had almost reached the bridge.

Then she began to worry. It was a long mile to the post-office, and Elfie was such a wee bit of a girl to go so far alone. And the bridge was high, and the water was deep under it; and if she should look over and get dizzy and fall—oh, dear! Wasn't this a foolish mamma?

Pretty soon what do you guess she did? Why, she put on her broad hat and went after Elfie as fast as she could walk.

When she got to the bridge she hardly dared look down to the water; but she saw nothing except the little flecks of foam whirling about in the eddies, when she did look. So she hurried on, up the hill and down again, thinking to overtake Elfie any minute. But she didn't. She met her, instead, pretty soon, coming home.

"O mamma!" the little girl cried, "I did give the letter to Mr. Willis, and Uncle Ed was there, and he buyed me a lots of peanuts and oranges. And I'm going to 'vide 'em with Mamie. What did you come for, mamma?"

And mamma sat right down on the grassy bank beside the road and took Elfie in her arms and held her tight, as if she never meant to let her go. And she kissed her.

"I was afraid you might fall off the bridge, dear," said she. Elfie opened her brown eyes wide.

"Why, ain't you a funny mamma?" said she, with a little wondering laugh. "I couldn't fall off when I was right in the middle."

"So you couldn't," mamma smiled, taking the wee hand to go home. "Why, there comes Mamie!"

And so it truly was. She had been crying, too, and the tears made funny little roads down her cheeks, which hadn't been washed after the sand-cakes.

"O Elfie! O Elfie!" she burst forth; "I'm sorry I wouldn't go with you! I will next time, honest sure!"

"I will, too," said Elfie, with a sunny smile.—Youth's Companion.

GEN. FREMONT DEAD

The Old Pathfinder Passes Away Suddenly.

STRICKEN DOWN BY THE HEAT

His Physician and Eldest Son the Only Ones at His Bedside.

His Wife is in California—Sketch of His Early Career—Candidate for President Against Buchanan in 1856—A Gallant Soldier in the War—His Explorations on the Pacific Slope.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Gen. John Charles Fremont died at his residence, No. 49 West Twenty-fifth street, last evening. His death was sudden and unexpected, and resulted from an attack of peritonitis. Dr. Mortin attended the patient, but was unable to afford relief.

The General was out on Friday in apparently good health. That night his physician, Dr. William J. Morton, was called, and on Friday Gen. Fremont's condition was slightly improved, but on Saturday the fatal disorder was developed, and from that time on his case was critical. With him at the time of his death were his son, Lieut. F. C. Fremont, U. S. N., and Dr. Morton.

It was but a few weeks ago that Congress passed a bill placing Fremont on the retired list, with the rank of Major General.

Mrs. Fremont is at present in Los Angeles, Cal., with her daughter Elizabeth. A son, Frank P. Fremont, is at Fort Snelling, Minn.

General Fremont was born January 21, 1813, at Savannah, Ga., his father being a French immigrant. He was graduated at Charleston College, became an engineer in the Government employ in the West, received a commission as lieutenant of engineers, explored the Rocky Mountain region, and gained great fame by his successful penetration to the Pacific coast through almost incredible hardships.

He took a prominent part in the conquest of California, was elected as one of the first United States Senators from that State (1849-1851), was the first Republican candidate for President in 1856, served in the Union Army as a Major-General (1861-1862), was nominated for the Presidency by the Cleveland Convention of 1864, but declined the nomination, and has not since taken an active part in politics, though he was appointed Governor of Arizona in 1878.

Of late years he has been engaged in promoting Southern railway enterprises. His wife, formerly Jessie Benton, daughter of the famous Thos. Benton of Missouri, survives him.

Confess They Were Bribed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 14.—The excitement over the alleged bribery in the Twenty-fifth Congressional District continues to increase in the counties comprising the district—Mercer, Butler, Lawrence and Beaver. John R. Tate, one of the delegates to the Republican convention, has made an affidavit that his vote was purchased in the interest of McDowell, the successful nominee, for $650. Another delegate, Fred Duerr, has confessed and made affidavit that he received $350 to "keep quiet." Thomas Downing acknowledges that he, Shaffer and Tate received $650 each.

Fifty Years a Priest.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 14.—A very impressive religious ceremony took place at the Catnedral of the Immaculate Conception here, the occasion being the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination to priesthood of Right Rev. Louis De Goesbriand, the venerable bishop of the Burlington diocese. Archbishop Williams was present, and the attendance of prelates and priests from all parts of New England was extraordinarily large.

Opening of the Peace Congress.

LONDON, July 14.—David Dudley Field is presiding at the Universal Peace Congress, which opened in London today. Dr. Thomas of Boston will preach to the delegates on Wednesday; the Lord Mayor will give a reception in their honor on Thursday, and on Saturday there will be an excursion to Windsor, the Queen specially permitting the castle to be opened for the benefit of the delegates.

An Exhorter Arrested in Church.

READING, Pa., July 14.—Wm. Thompson was arrested last night in church, where he is an exhorter, charged with inflicting injuries upon Charles Wesley, which are likely to prove fatal. The injuries are said to have been inflicted while Thompson was ejecting Wesley from his house, but Thompson claims that they were received in an accident. Thompson is an ex-Common Councilman.

Death of Major Roys.

LYONS, N. Y., July 14.—Major Charles H. Roys, a life long resident of this village, died at his home last evening, aged 53 years. He was a lawyer, and had risen to considerable distinction in his calling. During the war he was a Captain in the 117th Regiment, rising afterward to the rank of Major. He leaves a wife and four children.

Dismissed by the Governor.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 14.—Private Barton, of Company F., First Regiment, C. N. G., who was tried for disobedience of orders, has been dismissed by the Governor from the service and disqualified from militia duty for life. The sentence is unprecedented in this State.

His Aim Was Poor.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 14.—Asbury Hurley, a young man about 22 years of age, attempted to blow out his brains because Miss Delia Vechten refused to elope with him. Fortunately Hurley's aim was poor and he was only hurt.

OPPOSED TO STRIKES.

The Independent Order of Railway Conductors Meet and Elect Officers.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The first annual session of the Independent Order of Railway Conductors was held yesterday at the Coleman House.

This organization is an off-shoot from the old National organization, which, at its last convention, held at Rochester, N. Y., decided to abolish the clause in its by-laws that forbid its members to participate in any strikes.

C. S. Wheaton, of Elmira, the president of that organization, strenuously opposed the passage of the measure. Upon seeing that he was defeated he resigned and severed his connection with that organization.

At this session of the discordant ones there were thirty-one delegates present, representing the conductors of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, the Grand Trunk and the New York, New Haven & Hartford roads. The only material difference between the constitution of the new organization and that of the old is on the points of the strike clause and in the insurance.

The new order will admit any conductor, who has been one year in the service in the United States, Canada or Mexico. Strikes will not be permitted, and the insurance will be run on the assessment plan, paying $1,000 on death or total disability.

TRAGIC MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A Young Girl Killed by Her Lover in Pennsylvania.

READING, Pa., July 14.—Great excitement was caused at Fagleysville, Montgomery County, by the murder of Miss Mary Brunot, aged 14, by Clinton Schuneck, aged 35, and the sebsequent suicide of Schuneck.

The two had a lovers' quarrel, which was ended by Schuneck shooting the girl, killing her instantly. He then shot himself through the head, inflicting a wound from which he cannot recover.

The girl bore a good reputation, while the murderer was of questionable character.

Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., Recovering.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 14.—Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., has arrived here. She has recovered from the operation to which she submitted two weeks ago, and her leg has been taken out of the splints that were used at the time. The operation was undertaken with the idea of bringing the leg which was so affected with rheumatism down into place. It was some two inches shorter than it should be. The operation was practically successful, and Mrs. Blaine's physicians hope in time that she will be able to walk as well as ever.

A Great French Fete To-Day.

NEW YORK, July 14.—To-day marks the fall of the Bastile, and the event is being duly celebrated in this city for the twelfth time by the French residents under the auspices of the two French societies, l'Union Generale des Francaise and Des Societies Francaise de New York. The houses in the neighborhood of South 5th ave. and Bleecker street are decorated with bunting and the tricolor is the predominant feature wherever a French family is found.

Over Forty Persons Killed.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The latest police report relative to Friday night's explosion on board the steamship Tioga would indicate that over forty persons were blown into eternity. The head officers of the Union Steamship Company are willing to concede that twenty-five were killed, but a careful review of the situation and a recount of the known dead and missing raises the number to more than forty.

Like a Tornado.

SEA ISLE CITY, N. J., July 14.—A terrible wind and hail storm prevailed yesterday afternoon at this place and vicinity, Unusually large hailstones fell, and the wind swept with such force as to carry everything in its path. One house was blown down, and others were unroofed. As far as reported no one was seriously hurt. A great amount of damage was done.

A Cowboy the Latest Patient.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The latest patient to arrive at Dr. Gibier's Pasteur Institute is an Arizona cowboy, who was bitten by a coyote or skunk while sleeping on the ground. His three companions, who were also bitten, have since died. Dr. Gibier inoculated the cowboy, though somewhat doubtful whether his case comes properly under the treatment.

Death from a Rattlesnake Bite.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 14.—The body of Mrs. Marshall Henry, who started out from Foster on Saturday to pick raspberries, was found in the woods last evening, death having resulted from the bite of a rattlesnake. The body was so swollen and discolored as to be hardly recognizable.

Celebrated Her 100th Birthday in Bed.

STRATFORD, Conn., July 14.—Mrs. Dora Lampson of this place, one of the oldest women in Connecticut, celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary recently in bed. She could hardly sit up and receive congratulations. She is totally blind and has been bedridden for years.

Rolling Mills Resume Operations.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 14.—The proprietors of three rolling mills in the Mahoning Valley, two at Youngstown and one at Miles, signed the scale and resumed operations to-day.

IN CONGRESS TO-DAY

The Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill to be Disposed of.

DEMOCRATS TO CREATE DELAY.

They are Determined to Force the Election Bill Over to the Next Session.

A Caucus of Republican Senators to be Held To-Night—The House Considering the Original Package and Bankruptcy Bills—The Letter to the Pennsylvania Grangers a Forgery.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—There is only one thing certain about the programme of the Senate this week, and that is that the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill will be taken up and, if possible, disposed of.

Before adjournment Saturday evening the Tariff bill was made the unfinished business of the Senate, which makes it pretty certain that that measure will be taken up for discussion when the Sundry Civil bill is out of the way. But there is no certainty that the Democratic members of the Senate will permit the Sundry Civil bill to be put through within the week. It is generally recognized as a fact that the Democratic policy in the Senate is to be one of delay until it is determined that the Federal Elections bill is to go over to the next session, or until that measure is passed.

The caucus of Republican Senators to be held to-night will come to a determination on the subject of a programme for Senate action, and when that programme is announced, the Democrats will know how to govern their conduct hereafter. Until the Republicans come to a decision, however, the general belief is that the Democrats will keep the discussion of the Sundry Civil bill going.

What the decision of the Republican caucus will be, is a matter of much doubt. There is no doubt that a majority of the Republican Senators who met in caucus Thursday night, favor a change in the rules of the Senate under which debate can be limited, and subsequently the passage of the Federal Elections bill. But the enemies of this proposition on the Republican side of the chamber, claim that they can muster enough "bolters" to defeat caucus action with the assistance of the Democrats. Senate caucuses are never considered absolutely binding. They are rather advisory, although it is a bold member of the Senate who will repudiate caucus action.

IN THE HOUSE.

The Disposal of the Original Package and Bankruptcy Bills the Programme.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The House this week will probably follow the programme determined on by the Committee on Rules for the week before—the disposal of the Original Package and Bankruptcy bills. Mr. Payson's Land Grant Forfeiture bill is well on its way to final disposition, and he will hardly object to the consideration of the other bills, as he did last week.

While no definite programme has been determined upon, it is safe to say that the Bankruptcy and Original Package measures will have the right of way, with the contested election cases of Langston vs. Venable from the Fourth Virginia District and of Miller vs. Elliott from the Seventh District of South Carolina as possibilities. The Committee on the District of Columbia has the floor to-day for the further consideration of the Atkinson Railroad bill.

THE FORGED LETTER.

A Carlisle, Pa., Man Said to Have Sent the Bogus Document.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—President Harrison says the published letter purporting to be a copy of one written by him, in response to an invitation to attend the National Grangers' Exhibition at Carlisle, Pa., is an out and out forgery. His declination of the invitation was written by Private Secretary Halford, and merely stated that owing to the pressure of public business he would be unable to attend the exhibition.

A dispatch from Pittsburg says it is stated on the authority of R. H. Thomas, secretary of the Pennsylvania State Grange, that the bogus letter, said to have been sent by President Harrison, emanated from W. B. Faber of Carlisle, the same man who originated the report that Charles Henry Lea of Philadelphia had come out for Delamater—a report since denied by Mr. Lea over his own signature.

Again the Election Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A dispatch from Columbus, Ohio, says that Allen G. Thurman will preside at a meeting of citizens, called at the City Hall for next Saturday evening, to protest against the passage of the Lodge Election bill. An address will be made by Alfred E. Lee, a Republican who held a Consulship under President Hayes, and probably also by ex-Congressman G. W. Crouse, a Republican who also opposes the bill.

Drowned While Bathing.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 14.—George Dennis, aged 49 years, whose home was in this city, was drowned while bathing in the river near Scottsville in the morning. His body was recovered shortly after noon. Dennis had been working on a farm near Scottsville during the summer. He leaves no immediate family.

The Ice Trust Advances Prices.

NEW ORLEANS, July 14.—The ice trust of this city has given notice that after to-day dealers will be charged $7.50 per 1,000 pounds for ice. As western ice can be delivered here for about $5 per ton, the probabilities are that these exorbitant rates will be short lived.

COLORED PEOPLE MAD.

They Will Hold an Indignation Meeting To-Night at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 14.—This evening a festival will be held in the African Methodist Zion Church in West Park, a hamlet of colored people west of Asbury Park. The members of the league are arranging to hold an indignation meeting at the festival and denounce Mr. Bradley. They also talk of returning to him the money he donated to the church last year, because Mr. Bradley has been having a portion of the group of bathing houses at the foot of Second avenue arranged for the exclusive accommodation of the negroes.

Asbury Park and Ocean Grove have a larger percentage of colored persons than any other towns of their size in New Jersey, and during the summer seasons the hotels all employ negroes in their kitchens and dining rooms. In the evening as soon as the negroes finish their work they go to the beach and enjoy the broad plaza built by Mr. Bradley and the one built along the beach by the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association.

There are numerous complaints made daily by white people who come here to spend the season and and are annoyed by the many negroes who gather around the pavillion at the foot of Asbury avenue and occupy the seats on the plaza.

Mr. Bradley is a Republican and has been a warm friend of the colored race. He says he is compelled under the circumstances to provide a separate bathing place for the negroes, because the whites refuse to bathe with them. Every year there is some difficulty here over the colored people, and the proposed bathing house for them has already aroused some of them who belong to the Afro-American League. Mr. Bradley says he will not allow the colored people upon the beach at any time, if they cause trouble to-night over the proposed arrangements for bathing. Nearly all the hotel proprietors side with Mr. Bradley, and they threaten to discharge all their colored help, if they raise any trouble here. They say the question as to what shall be done with the negroes must be settled this season, as each year it becomes more vexatious. They say, also, that there would be the same trouble with white help, if they gathered in crowds at resorts especially provided for the guests of the hotels and boarding houses.

RUN DOWN BY A WOMAN.

Her Claim on a Man Who Deserted Her Fourteen Years Ago.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Ex-Judge H. W. Leonard has brought a suit against Adolf Kurtz, an employe of the Singer Manufacturing Company, living at Elizabeth, N. J., for $2,000, on behalf of Elizabeth T. Thatcher. Sixteen years ago, in Berlin, Germany, Kurtz, it is alleged, betrayed Miss Thatcher, who was then a girl of 16, under promise of marriage.

She sued him for support, and the courts awarded her $250 a year. At the end of the first year Kurtz, she claims, left the country, and for fourteen long years Miss Thatcher has heard nothing of him.

Recently, however, she learned that he was living at Elizabeth. She came to this country and has commenced suit for the fourteen years' alimony which is due her.

An Old Man Struck by a Train.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 14.—Jarvis Kimball, an old man about 80 years of age, of Albion, was struck by a Westbound passenger train West of Murray station, last night. He was taken on board the train and died while on the way to Albion. Deceased was at one time a man of means and had bought and sold considerable real estate. For several months past he had wandered about the county and it is the general opinion that his mind was affected.

Shot While Working in the Field.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—A special from Dover, Del., says Caleb Ford, a prominent young farmer near Harkley, was shot while working in his fields by some person concealed in an adjacent swamp. He is thought to be dying. Suspicion falls upon a man named Bodwell, who has been living at Ford's house, and who, it is rumored, had betrayed a female relative of Ford's.

Profitable Journalism.

LONDON, July 14.—Mr. Thomas Power O'Connor retires from the Star with £17,000 as his share of the plant and good will of the paper, of which he has made so phenomenal a success in so short a time. In retiring, Mr. O'Connor agrees not to edit another paper in London, nor to write matter for any London paper for a period of three years.

Mannerchor Anniversary.

UTICA, N. Y., July 14.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Utica Mannerchor commenced to-day and continues three days. Singing societies from New York, Albany, Cleveland, Syracuse, Poughkeepsie, Amsterdam, Troy, Columbus, O., and other cities are present. The city is well decorated with German and United States flags and bunting.

A Priest Dies of Heart Disease.

DENVER, Col., July 14.—Rev. Father Mahoney, well known in Baltimore, Milwaukee and other cities, died of asthma and heart disease at the residence of his sister. He was a cousin of Col. John Arkins, of the Rocky Mountain News. He came here three months ago for his health.

A Large Furnace in Blast Again.

READING, Pa., July 14.—The Joanna furnace, one of the largest in the county, which has been idle since last fall, has resumed operations. Iron men report that trade is improving.

Another Colliery Starts Up.

ASHLAND, Pa., July 14.—The Reading's Keystone colliery will start up to-day after several months' idleness. The works employ 300 persons.

DEATH IN A CYCLONE

The Fate of Thousands of Excursionists in Doubt.

NUMBERS KILLED AND DROWNED

Wires Down and All the News Obtained Brought by Teams.

The Storm Very Sudden—Relief Trains Sent from St. Paul—Three Bodies Were Brought in from a Summer Camp—The Damage to Property is Known to Be Enormous.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 14.—A destructive storm, including a cyclone and ending in a fierce hurricane, swept the country just north of here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, carrying death and destruction in its path.

The storm originated at a point four miles directly north of here and moved northeasterly toward White Bear, covering a country accessible only to teams, and reports come in slowly. It is certain there are at least eleven persons killed and a large number seriously injured.

The storm centre was at Kohlman's Lake at the large stock farm of James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Road, and to these points three ambulances have been sent, accompanied by a force of ten surgeons. Telegraphic communication with White Bear is cut off, and, as thousands of excursionists went out during the day, the stations are crowded with anxious friends.

Three bodies have been brought in from Lake Servais, being those of George Miller and J. H. Schurmier and wife, part of a camp on this lake, who were overtaken and killed while driving. The storm came on with fearful suddenness, and was in plain view from this city.

Race Between Train and Storm.

One of the most thrilling incidents of the great disaster was the race with the Storm King of the regular afternoon south bound passenger train on the St. Paul & Duluth road. As the train drew into Vadnais station a frightful storm was seen raging about two miles northwest. A tremendous cone-shaped cloud was swirling along at a terrific gait and looked like a waterspout. The conductor, seeing the approaching storm, ordered the train to start immediately at full speed. The engineer threw open the throttle, and the cars sped away. The train soon attained an awful speed—at least a mile and a half a minute—and the cars seemed to take great leaps through the air and rocked back and forth like a ship on an angry sea. The cyclone struck the station and smashed it into splinters in less than a moment after the train passed, and the run to St. Paul—six miles—was made in less than four minutes.

150 PEOPLE DROWNED.

An Excursion Boat Capsized by the Storm and Nearly All on Board Lost.

LAKE CITY, Minn., July 14.—A boat, with over two hundred people on board, was capsized in the middle of Lake Pepin. The boat proved to be the steamer Sea Wing, which came down the lake from Diamond Bluff, a small place about seventeen miles north of here, on an excursion to the encampment of the First Regiment, N. G., S. M., which is being held a mile below this city.

The steamer started back on the homeward trip about 8 o'clock, and although there were signs of an approaching storm, it was not considered in any way serious, and no danger was anticipated. The boat was crowed to it's fullest capacity, about 150 men, women and children from Red Wing and Diamond Bluff being on board, and about fifty people on a barge which was attached to the side of the steamer.

When about opposite Lake City the boat began to feel the effects of the storm and capsized, and the scenes witnessed by the few who were saved were horrible. Women and children were crying piteously for help, and persons could be seen on all sides fighting the angry waters until they sank to rise no more.

A full list of the 150 passengers which are pretty certain to have been drowned is not obtainable at this writing.

A large majority of them were women and children, those being saved being nearly all strong men, who were able to swim and cling to the boat after it had capsized.

On the return from the capsized boat with three or four people who had been rescued, one of the rowboats encountered two floating bodies, each with a life preserver attached to them.

Up to this time fifty bodies have been found and laid out.

EXTENT OF THE STORM.

Large Trees Were Broken Like Straws and Six Houses Blown into the Lake.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 14.—Minneapolis and St. Paul almost by miracle escaped the severe effect of the cyclone.

Late reports say that at Kohlman's Lake twenty people are dead, five missing and nine wounded. At Little Canada, also near St. Paul, there were twenty-five lives lost.

The cyclone cut a swath 1200 yards wide, leveling everything before it. The damage to property is great, but it is not yet estimated. Large trees were broken like straws and carried hundreds of yards, and six houses were blown bodily into the lake. All the inmates of one house were killed. Almost hundreds of heads of stock were killed, some being very valuable, as some rich stock farms lay in the path of the storm.

Ruin for Fourteen Miles.

ST. PAUL, July 14.—Reports from outlying towns show that the storm visited destruction upon many places. While the central storm point was at Lake Kohlman, the wind was of the force of a hurricane over all of the territory north of St. Paul, and its track was marked by ruin for a distance of fourteen miles. Beginning at Lake Maccarron, and extending across to Lake Vadnais, the storm left nothing standing in the path. Farm houses were unroofed, all standing grain prostrated and trees uprooted. Vague reports of loss of life are coming in continually. At New Canada it is reported that twenty lives were lost and scores injured. The damage to property is also extensive. White Bear Lake was crowded with excursionists, but it escaped the cyclone, though there was a general scare, a hard blow and a severe hail storm.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Foxes are a pest in parts of Salem County, N. J.

Articles for a fight will be signed to-day by Slavin and McAuliffe, the prize fighters.

The census returns for Maine show that nearly every county has lost in population.

C. H. Marden, proprietor of the Tremont House, at Nashua, N. H., has filed a petition in insolvency.

Mrs. Paran Stevens' diamonds were found under the pillow in her bed at Newport by the chambermaid.

The high tides along Salem Creek, N. J., have broken the banks along the meadows, destroying 1,200 acres of tomatoes, corn and other products.

Rev. Wallace C. Hubbard, of New York, has accepted a call to Trinity Church parish, of Rochester, N. Y., and will enter upon his duties as rector next Sunday.

John Lennan's $3,000 liquor license in Dracut, Mass., has been declared void by Judge Hadley and the accused was fined $50 and costs for maintaining a liquor nuisance. He appealed to the Superior Court.

Buffalo, N. Y., officers found three women lying in a drunken stupor in a dive kept by Johanna Richardson at No. 159 Canal street. One of the women named Mollie Campbell, has since died from the effects of the liquor, and her two companions, Jennie Chambers and Johanna Richardson, are not expected to recover.

Gen. Fisk's Remains Laid to Rest.

COLDWATER, Mich. July 14.—The remains of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk were met at the depot by the G. A. R., W. C. T. U., delegates from the Prohibition Club and a large concourse of people generally. As the funeral services had been held in New York, the remains were taken at once to Oak Grove Cemetery, where the burial service was read, a requiem sung by a choir and the remains laid to rest beside those of two of his children, who died many years ago in St. Louis.

A Merchant Dies of Apoplexy.

GOWANDA, N. Y., July 14.—Harry Hooker, one of the pioneer merchants in that village and vicinity, died at his home in the morning of apoplexy. Mr. Hooker had been engaged in the mercantile business in Gowanda continuously for fifty years.

BY THE WAY.

—The Westfield ball team defeated the "Alphas" of Brooklyn on Saturday, by a score of 14 ot 6.

—At the Police Board meeting on Saturday evening, ex-Captain Carey's conduct was anything but that becoming a gentleman.

—Special Officer Kriney was called in to quiet a disturbance in a house at Evona, on Saturday evening. No arrests were made.

—Alpha Lodge, No. 4., I. O. of G. T., will meet in regular session this evening at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to be present.

—Members of the Royal Arcanum are requested to attend the regular meeting of Plainfield Council to-night at 8 o'clock in Hand's building.

—The sewer basins at the corner of Park avenue and Front street, need cleaning out. The stench arising from them is very obnoxious to pedestrians.

—A runaway accident happened on West Front street, Saturday afternoon, but the name of the owner of the rig or the occupants could not be ascertained.

—Strangers are always welcome at the Young People's prayer meetings held in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church, every Monday evening from 8 to 9 o'clock.

—The Somerset County Board of Registration met at Somerville today, and elected Elisha Coriell of North Plainfield, chairman, and Stewart Huff of Somerville, Secretary.

—The Seventh Day Baptist people again worshipped in the old church building on Friday evening for the first time since the building was removed to its present location.

—The electric light which has recently been located in Exchange alley, is a much needed improvement, and is a great benefit to the people who pass through the alley on their way to and from Trinity Reformed church.

—There will be shooting for a trophy at Campbell's Club House on Wednesday at two o'clock P. M. Many local sportsmen will doubtless avail themselves of this opportunity to be present and participate in the contest for the trophy.

—On Wednesday next the Crescent Avenue Sunday school excursion will leave for Asbury Park at 8 A. M. The second section will start from Grant avenue station. Tickets $1.25. Children 90 cents. Nearly eight hours at the seashore.

—Workmen are engaged in tearing down the frame building on Park avenue, recently vacated by J. Hervey Doane and George Steiner, preparatory to the erection of a handsome new brick building by Joseph B. Coward, the owner of the premises.

—A tournament for doubles will be held next Saturday afternoon, July 19, on the grounds of the Plainfield Tennis club, Central avenue near Eighth street. All entries must be sent in by Friday night to H. D. West, No 43 Central avenue. Entrance fee 50c.

One But Not Two.

It must have been very pleasant and gratifying to Mr. C. Forster, the foreman of the machine shop of The Pond Machine Tool Company, to listen this morning to the many expressions of satisfaction which his final decision has called forth. On Saturday he had decided to resign his position with the above firm, in order to take charge of Mr. Lea's new shop, but quiet reflection on Sunday worked the happy change and this morning we find him in his old position.

This will no doubt greatly modify the loss to the firm of Superintendent Thos. Lea of the same department, who having bought out a jobbing shop in New York city leaves as soon as arrangements have been made for his successor.

A Severe Injury.

On Friday afternoon last while A. J. Winckler was superintending the repairing of a barn on Manning avenue, North Plainfield, the heavy wooden gutter suddenly fell, striking him on the face, cutting his nose, cheek and lips and knocking several teeth loose. Dr. Wm. E Mattison sewed up the cuts and Mr Winckler is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

THE POLICE BOARD MEETING.

Ex-Captain Carey and His Counsel Present—They Present Objections to the Board's Rulings.

The Police Board of the City of Plainfield met at the office of their Secretary, on Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Present—Messrs Roberts, Moffett, Spangenburg and Hubbard.

Ex-Captain of Police Carey and his counsel, Hon. Foster M. Voorhees, were present, in answer to a notice served on Mr. Carey to show cause why he should not be removed from the police force of the city, because of failure or neglect to perform police duty since July 1, instant, under the act of the Legislature of 1886, page 48, which is as follows:

"Provided that any member of the police force of any city, who shall be absent from duty, without just cause, for the term of five days, shall, at the expiration of said five days, cease to be a member of such police force."

In response to a question put by Chairman Roberts to Mr. Carey, as to why he had not reported for police duty on July 1 or since, Mr. Carey replied, that it was none of his(Mr. Roberts') —— —— business; but his counsel stated to the Board that he declined to make any statement.

Officer McCue was sworn and stated that he served the notice on Mr. Carey to appear, and that Carey used very filthy and indecent language about a member of the Police Board.

Captain of Police Geo. W. Grant was next sworn and said that Mr. Carey had not reported to him for duty on July 1 or since then and that the city was short one officer, and he had been obliged to employ special officers; that it was more expense to the city to employ a special officer than a regular.

Mr. Voorhees declined to show any cause or reason why Mr. Carey had not gone on duty. He presented the following written objections:

"Mr. Carey now objects at the close of the case against him, as he did before the opening thereof, to the proceedings of the committee in the matter, on the ground of want of jurisdiction, illegal constitution and irregular method of procedure of the committee so far as the subject matter of the notice is concerned, and the action thereunder, contemplated, and hereby tenders himself as he has heretofore tendered himself ready at all times to perform the duties of his office.

"On behalf of Mr. Carey."

Mr. Hetfield inquired as to what office was referred to, but Mr. Voorhees declined to state.

Mr. Carey was then found guilty by a unanimous vote of the Board, of absenting himself from police duty, and neglecting and refusing to perform police duty since July 1, without any cause shown.

The Board then adjudged that Mr. Carey having absented himself from his post for the space of five days and over, justify his dismissal from the force and decided to so recommend to the Common Council.

AN OLD MAN COMMITS SUICIDE.

"Rene" Soper, a Well Known Resident of Piscataway Township, Deliberately Ends His Life by Taking a Dose of Laudanum.

"Rene" Soper, an old man, who has for a long time past made his home among the farmers of Piscataway Township, committed suicide on Friday night by taking a dose of laudanum.

The man last worked for a farmer named Richards, and on Friday he left home, complaining of feeling unwell, and telling his employer that perhaps he (Mr. Richards) would never see him alive again. He came to this city, purchased a vial of laudanum, and some time during the evening went into an old barn near the flax factory at South Plainfield, where he deliberately drank the laudanum and laid down and died. Soper's body was found about ten o'clock on Saturday morning. Dr. Nelson of New Market was summoned, but life was extinct.

The suicide was noted throughout the township for his profanity. The body of the unfortunnte man was taken to the Piscataway Township poor farm for burial.

Mr. Soper was a man of very resolute disposition. Some time ago he froze one of his toes. It troubled him considerably and caused him great pain. He finally took a chisel and cut the toe off. At another time he cut off, with the same chisel a finger which had been crushed. He was a carpenter by trade and worked at odd jobs through Middlesex county, particularly at South Plainfield. His brother, Ellis Soper, of New Brunswick, was at one time captain of a schooner and he was highly respected. The bottle was found close beside him, with the contents two-thirds gone.

Saturday's Races.

On the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association Saturday's races were as follows:

The first race was between John Osborn's sorrel horse "Colonel" and Nat. Robbin's black horse "Doctor." "Colonel" won both heats. Time 3.00½ and 2.56.

The second race was between John Hayes' brown horse "Andy" and Philip Jenner's sorrel mare "Blanche Warwick." "Andy" won first heat in 2.48 and "Blanche Warwick" the second in 2.46. The concluding heat was postponed on account of the threatening weather until next Saturday.

Charles Brewer drove J. Wesley Johnson's brown mare "Lady Thistle" a mile in 2.47½ and repeated it in 2.42.

—It is reported that a man was waylaid on Putnam avenue, late on Saturday evening, and that six bottles of beer were stolen from him.

A VENERABLE COUPLE'S ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleaver Est Their 60th Wedding Breakfast—He is the Nephew of a Bishop—She the Relative of Highly Honored and Esteemed Public Men—And Both the Parents of a Worthy Son.

Yesterday at the home of their son—the pastor of the First Church of Christ—Wm. H. and Margaret Cleaver, ate their sixty-ninth wedding breakfast, they having been married on a Sunday morning before breakfast at the home of the bride's father, John Darby, Scotch Plains, N. J., in 1821. Mrs. Cleaver is now in her eighty-eight year.

Her uncle, Ezra Darby of Scotch Plains, represented New Jersey in Congress, when the State had but one Congressman. Mr. Darby died at his post, and was buried in the Congressional Cemetery at Washington.

Mrs. Cleaver's cousin, Henry Stanbery, also of Scotch Plains' birth, was Attorney General of the United States, during President Johnson's administration. Mr. Stanbary resigned his high office for the purpose of defending his chief in the impeachment trial which has passed into history as the greatest State case of the age. President Johnson was not impeached.

Mr. Cleaver, who was born in Vermont in 1798, was a nephew of Wm. Cleaver, Bishop of York and later of St. Asaph's. Mr. Cleaver taught the village school at Scotch Plains, seventy years ago. Among those who were his pupils, are the learned A. Coles, M. D., and a well-known official of this city. Mr. Cleaver voted first for Adams, has been contemporaneous with every President of the United States, and has survived all of them excepting three. The minds of the aged couple are still sound.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Emma West of Haverstraw, is visiting Miss Kate Potter of Mt. Pleasant.

Frank Clawson, DD. S., of West Second street, is spending a few days at Asbury Park.

Mrs. J. C. Randall and child of West Front street, have gone to Westerly, R. I., for the Summer.

Ira G. Hulbert and wife of West Front street, will spend the coming two weeks in Upper New York State.

The many friends of Freeholder Vanbeek are glad to see his smiling countenance on the streets again, after an illness of about two weeks.

John Handren's handsome property at Dunellen, has been sold to W. P. Austin of New York city, for $20,000. Mr. Austin is a wealthy New York plumber, who will occupy the place as a Summer home.

Wm. Hegeman of Roseville, Newark, eldest son of B. A. Hegeman, Esq., accompanied by his wife and three sons, spent the Sabbath with Mr. and Mrs. Hegeman, of Sycamore avenue, Washington Park.

In the Adirondacks on Sunday occurred the death of Robert C. Page, only son of James P. and Louise Page. The funeral will take place from the Crescent Avenue church this city, to-morrow afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

There was a large attendance at the First Baptist church, last evening. The Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, the pastor, presided, and the choir, under the direction of Mr. Fitzhugh, rendered beautiful and appropriate music.

The Rev. Dr. Yerkes of the First Baptist church, exchanged pulpits yesterday morning with the Rev Cornelius Schenck of the Trinity Reformed church, and those who were absent on account of the weather, or otherwise, missed a most excellent discourse by the learned Dr. Yerkes on Paul's wonderful revelations, his trials and buffetings, his thorn in the flesh, and the wonders of divine grace and strength, as found in his second epistle to the Corinthians, the twelfth chapter, seventh to tenth verses.

Do You Hear Us, Rahway?

On Saturday, July 5, the Acmes defeated Rahway's ball nine by a score of 10 to 4. One of the papers of that city said, after the game:

Curtis evidently had selected the best team at his control, for in our opinion no stronger combination has played here this year. They were heavy hitters, sharp fielders, good base runners and the battery A No. 1. They played with a vim and energy and were justly entitled to their victory and all the honor of defeating the best semi-professional team in the State of New Jersey! (Do you hear us, Plainfield?)

The same team of Acmes played Plainfield's nine, last Saturday, but after presenting them with five runs in the second inning to encourage them, the Crescents knocked them all to pieces with ease. Yet Rahway classes her team with Plainfield's.

Keep This in Mind.

According to a report of the Postmaster General during the year 1888 there were 377,997 misdirected letters recived; 128,732 were held for want of postage; 19,110 which had been mailed without any address at all; 21,368 letters containing drafts, checks, notes, etc., were received, with the enormous aggregate value of their inclosures of over $7,000,000, which were restored to their owners. About two and a half million letters were destroyed in the office which could not be delivered or returned to the writers. The increase of pieces of mail matter treated in the dead letter office was 17 per cent. over that in 1887.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

OBITUARY.

EUGENE V. LORTON.

At his home on West Fifth street, about seven o'clock on Saturday evening occurred the death of Eugene V. Lorton, one of the best known and universally esteemed residents of the city, aged about fifty years.

Mr. Lorton had been in ill-health for a long time past. He was first stricken with muscular rheumatism, but the physicians in charge succeeded in breaking that up, and dysentery set in. Again the skill of the physicians was brought to bear and the latter complaint was finally checked. His latest illness was typhoid fever which resulted in his death.

Mr. Lorton was a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias, and for the past ten years he has held the position of Grand Keeper of Records and Seals of the Grand Lodge of the State. He was a member of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P. of this city, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He leaves a widow, two daughters and one son to mourn his loss.

Mr. Lorton was, at the time of his death, a member of Grace church, the Rev. E. M. Rodman, the rector, being present at his bedside during his last moments.

Besides holding the distinguished position which he did, Mr. Lorton was a member of Wetumpka Lodge, Knights of Honor, and he was also a member of Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, K. of P. of this city.

Miss Hawkins at Reform Hall.

At the Reform Hall meeting, last evening, President Harper was in the chair, and Mrs. Poole offered prayer. Music was discoursed by the regular choir under the leadership of Mr. King, with Miss Alice Smith as accompanist.

Pursuant to request, Miss Florence Hawkins repeated her reading of last Thursday evening. It was a beautiful and touching selection of the life services of Fanny J. Crosby, the blind poetess and hymn composer, and revealed the grand characteristics of Christian faith and devotion.

Miss Hawkins is an admirable elocutionist, of pleasing manners, and charmed every one who had the privilege of listening to her.

Following Miss Hawkins, ex-Judge Harper spoke on the announced topic of the "Echoes of Independance Day," and after him, Mrs. Poole made a few very appropriate remarks.

At the close of the meeting the President mentioned the coming excursion of the club to Rockaway Beach on Thursday, August 7. He also invited a full attendance at the next Thursday evening meeting; and gave notice that the platform of Reform Hall next Sunday evening would be occupied by the Rev. L. E. Livermore of New Market, an able and interesting speaker.

AN OPEN LETTER.
Mr. Seely Edsall,
Plainfield, N. J.
In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.
We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.
You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.
Yours truly,
R. S PEALE & CO.
Remember that Mr. Edsall is the only authorized agent for Plainfield for the sale of these books at the wonderful low price of $1 50 per volume.

CRUSHED
COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER
FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.
SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.
THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially
FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup
"FRUIT CRUSH,".
And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

AGAIN THE ACMES LOSE.

In Spite of the Visiting Team's Big Lead, the Crescents Bat for Victory and Get There Easy.

In the second inning of Saturday's game, the Crescent League's ball team gave 1,000 of their friends such kaleidoscopic display of yellow ball playing as will probably never be witnessed on the grounds again. The Acmes rolled up a total of five runs without a hit. Even Billy Lee made more errors than he had in all the 16 games together of the year. Martin, also, needed a dose of little liver pills, and Wiegand, too, was way off.

Still that made no difference. Even Gregg did not lose heart when he saw his support all fall apart. He pitched great ball; the infield braced up, and Lufbery, Lee, Wiegand, McIndoe and others, batted out a victory.

Curtis, of the Acmes, the whitest manager in the profession, has a great team but the Crescent League's is greater. Although in their previous Saturday's game with the Rahways, the Acmes got 12 hits, only two of the team hit Gregg. On the other hand the Crescents lined out with ease the left-handed Keeler's curves, for a home run, five two-baggers and five singles.

The Acmes held the lead until the eighth inning when Lee tied the score by his own two-base hit and a wild pitch. In the ninth, Lufbery opened with a two-bagger, Weigand sent him to third with a safe hit and he came home on Jones' fly-out to centre field. The game was thus won with only one man out, Wiegand on second and McIndoe at the bat. The score:

An Old Established Firm Dissolves Partnership.

(From the Mercantile and Financial Times.)

The month of July commences with a long list of partnership changes among influential business houses of this city. In some cases these changes are due to the death of partners, and in some cases to the admission of "new blood" as the saying is. Several of the most notable changes are in connection with houses doing business on the New York Produce Exchange. For instance, it is announced that the partnership heretofore existing under the style of Johnson & Eagles, as wholesale dealers in flour, has been dissolved by the death of James F. Eagles, which occurred on June 23d, ult. It is announced that the business will be continued as before, and at the old address, No. 17 Water street, by the surviving partner, Russell C. Johnson, under his own name. The house will be known to a great many of the readers of this paper as an old established one in this line, having been founded about twenty-five years ago. The style of Johnson & Eagles was taken on in January, 1866. Prior to that time it had been for some years, Pitt, Eagles & Johnson.

Russell C. Johnson, who now becomes the sole proprietor, was formerly a well known resident of North Plainfield. He is a well known and very popular member of the New York Produce Exchange, and has relationships extending pretty much all over the country. He handles a great many standard brands of flour, the production of our largest mills. He has a host of friends to wish him well in his new departure, they though regret the occasion of it.

Giant Lathes to Help Make a Navy.

The magnitude of the job of making the guns for the new navy may be realized when it is said that the lathes alone for turning the gun bores will cost $125,000. The Naval Board awarded the contract to the Pond Machine Tool Co., in this city, and to fulfill the contract the company has had to enlarge its big main building by nearly one-fourth, as already stated in THE PRESS. Plainfield is probably the only place in or near New York where anything connected with the new war ships is under way.

Hooked a Shad.

Jacob O. Field went fishing with his brothers Alfred and Richard, and Louis H. Brown of Broadway, below the dam, Saturday, at Bound Brook. He caught a shad on a hook and line. After a struggle of fifteen minutes he succeeded in landing the fish in the boat. It was a nice specimen of a very unusual occurrence. Mr. Field is a scientific fisherman, but this is the first time he ever succeeded in catching a shad on the hook and line.

MISSIONARY WORK AMONG MORMONS.

The Rev. W. E. Honeyman Tells of Their Manners and Their Customs—An Interesting Sermon in the First Presbyterian Church, Last Evening.

The Rev. W. E. Honeyman preached last evening in Dr. Ketcham's church concerning the Mormons and missionary work among the Mormons of Utah. He said that Salt Lake City was beautiful for situation, and possessed a fine climate, but it was not yet a paradise under Mormon rule. The Tabernacle held 13,000 people, had an organ with 3,000 pipes, and there was a choir of 250 singers, but the services were devoid of all spirituality, and at times positively irreverent. The tithing house brought them in $1,000,000 each year, and the money was used partly to send out 300 missionaries, partly to support the leaders, and partly to keep a lobby at Washington to prevent unfriendly legislation. They taught that the more wives a man had the greater honor he would have in heaven, also that the husband alone could speak the word that would cause the wife to have part in the first resurrection. They placed "revelations" above the Bible, and the leaders had a "revelation" whenever the emergency called for one. Dr. Honeyman said he had seen houses with thirteen doors, each door numbered, and was told that there were thirteen wives in said house. One Mormon married four wives in one day, another married five and still another married six. The women were often treated with great brutality, and several instances of this kind were cited. The backbone of Mormonism, however, was the priestly rule, and disloyalty to Government. Only recently the speaker said twelve out of seventeen jurors refused to take the oath of allegiance to the United States Government, and their leaders taught that the church was above the State.

Missionary work among this people was very difficult and there were many hardships. One minister had to preach with a revolver beside the Bible, another had his house stoned and partly torn down, and the third was threatened with assassination. The young lady teachers, sent out by the Women's Executive Committee of 53 Fifth avenue, New York, also endured much tribulation. One was unable to sleep before two o'clock at night because of mud balls, sticks and stones hurled at her house, coupled with shouts, the blowing of horns, and profanity.

In another case Mormon lads crawled under the floor, and struck the floor with hammers, while others yelled and screamed, or rode up and down for hours firing off pistols and making threats of swift coming evil. In other instances the Bishop forbade his followers selling any edibles, or groceries whatever, so that the teachers were well nigh starved, but they bravely "held the fort," and as a result about 2,000 Mormon children are now instructed, and much good is being accomplished. None were more heroic than these faithful teachers, and they deserve the earnest support of the church.

PLAINFIELD TO THE FRONT.

A New Amusement Corporation in Which Joseph B. Miller is Interested.

Today at Trenton papers were filed in the Secretary of State's office, wherein Lew Dockstader the well known minstrel, and Joseph B. Miller of this city, form the principal stockholders in an organization to be known as "Lew Dockstader's Minstrels," to tour the country for a term of years beginning in the Spring of 1891.

The company is organized with a capital stock of $50,000—$10,000 of which has been paid in as recorded this morning in the office of the County Clerk of Union county, and the Secretary of the State of New Jersey.

Mr. Miller will in person (with the assistance of Mr. Harry Clapham) manage the new enterprise, and with the assurance we have of the certain engagements of artists already secured, and the name of Dockstader at the head and front, there can be little doubt of the permanent prosperity of the organization.

Mr. Miller's hosts of friends in the city are lavishing their congratulations upon his exceedingly good fortune, and predict his success in new fields and pastures green. The signing of the contracts in formation of this company, brings Plainfield to the front, as the two greatest minstrel organizations in the world will be controlled next season by our representative citizens, George Thatcher and Joseph B. Miller.

No Short Cut Through Newark From Fanwood.

President J. R. Maxwell of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was asked Saturday about the hitch between his company, the Pennsylvania and the city of Elizabeth about the abolishment of grade crossings. Certain changes in the original specifications do not suit the Central. Mr. Maxwell said that the Council wanted his company to elevate its tracks higher than was at first intended, and that the expense would be greater than they could stand.

He objected to the Pennsylvania having so many posts to support its elevated structure at the Broad street crossing, and also at the crossings on either side. The Pennsylvania intends to put up seven rows of five mammoth posts each, or thirty-five in all, within a range of several hundred feet. This would greatly obstruct the view, Mr. Maxwell says, and besides would be dangerous. He thinks a compromise will be reached before long. Mr. Maxwell says that the Central has no present intention of an extension through Newark to Fanwood, to be used as a main instead of the Elizabeth route.

ASBESTOS MINING.

Some Interesting Facts Concerning a Wonderful Substance.

Asbestos, popularly known as "mineral wool," is a compound of silica, lime, magnesia and oxide of iron, and is probably the most curious natural product in existence. Being composed of fine fibers, it can be spun and woven into cloth, indestructible by fire, which renders it invaluable in many of the arts

Mining is carried on by cutting down the hills of asbestos-bearing serpentine, much as a farmer cuts down a stack of hay or straw, or by open quarrying on the level.

The rock is blasted out and the asbestos, separate from the containing rock, is "cobbed"—that is, separated by hammering from inferior foreign matter. This cobbing is a comparatively easy matter in the case of the finer quality, as it usually separates readily from the other minerals which the ore contains, but in the lower grades much difficulty is experienced in separating the fibrous matter from the non-fibrous.

At best there is a great waste. Much of the asbestos is in thin and narrow veins, and is wasted, as by the present mode of operating it does not pay to separate this from the serpentine. A machine that will enable these narrow veins to be utilized is needed.

When "cobbed," the asbestos is graded according to purity, color and length of fibre into three grades and bagged for shipment. The finest quality, or "firsts," finds ready sales at prices ranging from $80 to $110 per ton; "seconds" fetch from $50 to $70 per ton, while the "thirds" may be valued at $13 to $15 per ton. In good mines, the yield of asbestos is from 3 to 5 per cent. of the rock quarried, and the cost of mining may be put down at $25 or $30 per ton.

Endurance of the Odor of Musk.

Many marvelous accounts are related in works on pharmacy and organic chemistry, with regard to the extraordinary duration of the scent of musk, and the extremely small loss of substance which a grain or two of this substance, exposed to the air, has been found to undergo in the course of several months, or even years. But an instance of this endurance of the musk odor has come under our personal observation in the following manner. In 1850, at Brussels, three small volumes were presented to us. They were bound in red cloth, and inclosed in a green cardboard case. In this case a very minute quantity of musk mixture, from a sachet, was placed in order to scent the volumes. Since the year 1850, these three little red volumes, in their green cardboard case, have been constantly exposed to the air, on the shelves of a library, as well as to daylight. They have been in constant, almost daily use (for they are standard works of reference), and they have traveled with the writer to Ostend, to Paris, to Frankfort, to Scotland, to the South of England, to various seaside resorts, to London, and many other places; yet, at the present moment, after a period of forty years, and being exposed to many kinds of climates, these little books retain their odor of musk, which is as powerful, especially on warm days, as it was in 1850 when the volumes were received.

Cutting the Lawn.

The labor of keeping the lawn and door-yard in a handsomely-shaved condition has been reduced many times in amount by the modern lawn-mowers; but some owners who do their own cutting make the labor needlessly great—especially so during the recent long-continued rains, which have caused a vigorous growth of the grass which has been allowed to grow too large. The mower is impeded by the tall growth, the machine runs hard, becomes entangled in the grass, which is not smoothly sheared. The difficulty is, too long intervals are allowed between each successive cutting, or a week or ten days, while four or five days are quite enough. The new grass is young, even and tender during the first three or four days, but if left eight or ten days till tall and hard, it impedes the progress of the cutter. We find that the operator will run over twice as much ground in a given time when cutting every four days as when leaving it twice as long, and it is far less laborious. The grass if cut early thickens into a close, smooth mat-like velvet, with a deeper green, when kept cut close, and it has none of the yellow, sickly appearance from a tall, shaded growth. When the wet weather changes to drouth, this care will be less important.

A Balloon with Compartments.

Mr. Andre Mahoudeau describes in Les Inventions Nouvelles a new kind of balloon devised by him, and divided into several compartments, according to the principle applied in navigation. One of the advantages of this system is that a rent in the balloon does not imperil the life of the aeronauts.

Each compartment is provided with a pipe that descends through a central funnel. In this way it is possible to inflate the compartments independently of one another and with gases of different natures.

This arrangement is necessarily accompanied with a certain increase in weight, but this is but 77 pounds for a balloon of 6,700 cubic feet capacity.

Japanese Anemones.

For entrance steps, porch or piazza decoration few plants excel well-grown specimens of Anemone Japonica. A correspondent from Wellesley, Mass., in Garden and Forest, says: Ours are grown in twelve-inch pots, started in a frame during March, which advances them sufficiently in this latitude to bloom toward the end of September. Further south this would be unnecessary. We place five to six strong crowns in each pot in good loam. As soon as the flower stems appear, in August, liquid manure is given. Abundance of water is essential throughout the season; just sufficient staking is done to get good specimens. The best varieties are the white Honorine Joubert and the hybrid pink.—Scientific American.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. B. COWARD, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., July 7, 1890.

AN ORDINANCE.

An Ordinance to establish the grade of a portion of Belvidere avenue.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. That the grade of Belvidere avenue, Southerly and Northerly, from its intersection with Broadway be established to conform to the grade shown on survey and map, on file with the Street Commissioner, marked: "Grade Map of part of Belvidere avenue," dated April, 1890; and the grade of said portion of Belvidere avenue is hereby established, as indicated on said map and survey, to wit:

Beginning at a point in the centre of Belvidere avenue, distant three hundred and fifty-two and five-tenths (352.5) Southerly from the Southerly side of Broadway as an elevation of 101.73 feet above the City base; thence along the centre of said Belvidere avenue, with a descending grade to the Southerly curb line of Broadway, produced as an elevation 100.52 feet above the City base; thence with an ascending grade to a point, distant one hundred and thirty-seven and five-tenths (137.5) feet Northerly from the Northerly side of Broadway, at an elevation of 103.61 feet above the City base; the elevation of the curb line to be six inches lower.

SEC. 2. That the roadbed over said portion of Belvidere avenue be repaired and permanently improved with broken stone, to be laid to grade established by this ordinance, for a width of six to eight feet on each side of the centre line thereof, and for a depth varying from two to six inches, as circumstances may require, under the direction of the Street Commissioner, at the general expense of the City; (property owners having unscribed two-hundred and twelve dollars and fifty cents, being one-half of the total estimated expense, towards reimbursing the City) to be paid for out of the moneys raised by taxes for the improvement of streets, as provided by the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to authorize cities to make pernament improvements in the roadbeds of the streets at the general expense;" Approved March 13, 1884.

ABOUT CORK TREES.

Precious Forests Which Produce Material for Stoppers.

How a Crop of Cork Is Grown and Harvested—Preparing the Cork for Market—Difficulties in the Manufacture.

Many as are the kinds of wood used for mechanical purposes, there is but one, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and it not properly a wood, but a bark, which can be employed for the purpose of stopping bottles. Its employment for this purpose dates only from the past three hundred years, for before that time wine and other liquors were kept in casks or jars, from which large quantities were drawn at a time. But after the invention of glass bottles it became the fashion to employ them for the use of the vinters, and as the packages were small the whole contents of a bottle might be consumed at a sitting, and thus the small flask was a great convenience. At first the bottles were stopped with tow dipped in pitch, then with pieces of wood, and finally with the bark of the cork tree, and in spite of numberless inventions and devices to supercede it this substance has retained its popularity.

The cork tree is a sort of oak, growing 20 to 35 feet in height, and with a beautiful evergreen foliage. It grows most luxuriantly, and produces the best bark in Portugal, the mountains of Spain and France, the higher districts of Lombardy, the mountain plateaus of Algeria and the north of Africa, and throughout extensive tracts of Asia Minor and parts of Turkey. It has been introduced into India with success, and is also grown in Ceylon, Siam and some of the Pacific islands. The disposition of the British Government to introduce into the colonies whatever plants may prove of advantage has led to the planting of cork trees on the high lands of South Africa and in Australia, while American enterprise has induced the experiment of its growth in several of the Southern States and in California. Still, however, the tree flourishes best in Spain, Portugal and France, which may be considered its proper home, and from these districts the best qualities of cork are obtained.

The cork tree will grow anywhere from 500 to 3,500 feet above the level of the sea, and requires a moderately dry climate for its best development; not too dry, for then the growth of the tree is stunted, nor yet too moist, otherwise the foliage will be extremely luxuriant and the bark deficient. These conditions being best met in the countries already alluded to, the result is that

A CORK-CUTTER AND HIS COMPANION.

France, Spain and Portugal have almost a monopoly of the cork business. The cork tree is not a rank grower, and produces edible acorns which in taste resemble chestnuts, and are frequently eaten by the population of the cork districts, but are more useful as food for swine, the peculiar taste imparted to the flesh rendering the pork and bacon of Southern France and Northern Spain a choice dainty in the country markets.

The tree may begin bearing at any time between fifteen and twenty-five years; but the first crop is worthless for commercial purposes, being coarse, knotty and sometimes full of seams and cracks. It is known as "virgin cork," and is extensively employed for roofing, fencing, and the like. The second crop is much better than the first, but is still unavailable for sale, except for the purpose of making the Spanish-black, which is merely the charcoal of cork.

The third and succeeding crops are the true cork of commerce, and the tree will bear ten or twelve consecutive crops. Not, however, in consecutive years, for the bark is of slow growth, and eight to ten years must elapse before the second crop can be gathered from the same tree. When the cork-cutter deems that the tree is ready to be shorn of its bark an incision is made round the trunk near the ground and another just beneath the lowest branch. Vertical incisions are then made through the bark, care being taken not to cut into the tender, living bark beneath the cork, otherwise the tree would be killed. A peculiar knife, having two handles, or an axe made for the purpose, is then employed to remove the slabs of bark from the tree, and if taken off with proper care the plant is not harmed by the operation; on the contrary, the removal is beneficial, for the cork is really a dead bark, and sometimes the cork-cutters prefer, after making the incisions in the tree, to allow the cork slabs to separate themselves, which they do in a few months.

After the slabs have been taken from the tree they are naturally concavo-convex, following the shape of the trunk. They are laid in a ditch, or trench of water, and heavy stones placed upon them to make them flat. After the warp has been taken out they are dried in the sun and charred in fire to render the substance or the cork more compact and to conceal superficial defects, and it must be confessed the cork-growers are clever at this, as manufacturers sometimes find to their cost, for cracks and holes in the slabs are filled up with adhesive earth, and thus a beautifully smooth and even piece will sometimes be found commercially worthless. After charring and again pressing the cork is packed into bales, and is ready either for manufacture or for export.

Until comparatively recent years, all corks were made by hand. The cork-cutter used a knife some six inches long and nearly four in breadth, of the finest steel, very thin and capable of being brought to a razor edge. Holding the piece of cork in his left hand and the knife in his right, with a couple of semi-circular cuts he produced the finished corks, their length and diameter depending upon the thickness of the slab. The cork is never cut from the tree until it is at least three-quarters of an inch thick, and corks cut from the slab vary in length from that to two inches. Great difficulty was experienced by the inventors in perfecting machinery for the manufacture of corks, from a curious and little anticipated obstacle—the impossibility of keeping the knives sharp. It is a singular fact that cork, although so porous and yielding a substance, dulls a knife to an incredible extent, so that hand-cutters are accustomed to sharpen their knives after every stroke; tools for cutting metals do not require a tithe of the attention that must be given to the knife used in cork cutting. But with patience and experience the difficulty has been overcome; a method has been devised to sharpen the knives of the machine after every cut, and corks are now more extensively cut by machinery than by hand.

To ascertain the total yield of cork is by no means an easy matter; but ten years ago the importations into Great

FACING THE CORK SLABS.

Britain from Portugal, Algeria, Spain and France were 7,000 tons of the partially prepared material, valued at $1,000,000, and there were besides 5,638,000 pounds of the manufactured product. Nearly $1,000,000 worth of cork is annually imported into the United States, and, as other countries use the substance in proportion, the total product is estimated at from $12,000,000 to $14,000,000.

Cork has many qualities which adapt it to other uses than that of stopping bottles. It is extremely porous, but the pores do not open into one another, and so it is almost impervious to water; while it is elastic in the extreme, and so buoyant that "as light as a cork" has been a proverb ever since the article was known. Its many good qualities have therefore commended it in the manufacture of other articles than that of stoppers. Cork soles for shoes are impervious to water, and the thick soles of Chinese shoes have for ages been made of this material. Improvements in the machinery for cutting it have enabled slices the 124th part of an inch thick to be cut from the block, and these thin veneerings have been used to advantage in the manufacture of hats and many other articles, while the shavings of cork and the saw-dust from the material mixed with oil form a component part of several floor coverings. As floats for nets, cork has long been used. While in a dry and powdered condition, it makes the best possible stuffing for mattresses, and these on board ship are invaluable for life-preservers.

The value of cork was as well known to the ancients as to ourselves. Pliny speaks of "cork jackets," by which, as he states, those inexperienced in swimming could float on the water as readily as the most clever expert, while its use for the soles of shoes or of sandals was more common in ancient times than today, for the lightness of the material enabled it to be worn beneath the feet with little trouble, and a diminutive Roman belle had but to put an inch of cork beneath her sandals to increase her apparent height.

In countries where the cork tree is indigenous, the slabs of bark are used in many ways which seem extremely novel to us who are accustomed to regard it as a scarce and high-priced product. In Spain bee-hives are made of it, while the French forester, just north of the Pyrenees, employs it to make cups, buckets and even plates. In Lombardy it is used in the ornamental parts of buildings, and even of churches, while the Turks and Algerians, by slicing the bark thin, can employ it to shingle their houses; while in other forms it is used in the manufacture of saddles, of boats and in a variety of other ways.

It Broke His Heart.

"I declare, Tom," said the fond mother, "the baby is the very image of you!" And the papers next day chronicled a "mysterious disappearance."—Judge.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

A SET OF APRONS.

They Are Pretty and Any Ingenious House-Wife Can Make Them.

Mrs. Davis says that her first work after house-cleaning is to make up her aprons for the year. She looks as "dressed up" in her aprons as some women do in their Sunday gowns, and, while I was looking at her patterns, two thoughts popped into my head. The first was that I should make a set of aprons for a wedding present to a friend, who is soon to be married, and the other was that there were readers of the Housekeeper who wore aprons who would be interested in knowing how Mrs. Davis made hers.

Fig. 1 shows a dainty little affair that I tell Mrs. Davis is of no use whatever; but when she puts it on, as she always does just before sitting down to tea, one thinks it a most charming accessory to her toilet. She has made two this year of linen lawn; one is trimmed with lace, and one with embroidery. She also has dainty aprons made without bibs, and some of her "tea-aprons," as she calls them, are decorated with ribbon bows.

The "cook apron" represented by Fig. 3 is made of plain white muslin. She has six of these aprons, for she says she can not eat if she wears a dirty apron while doing her baking. Fig 3 is her kitchen apron, which is always made of strong gingham, or navy blue calico of the best quality.

Her sewing apron is a very fancy affair. It is represented by Fig. 4. It is made of black farmer's satin, forked with yellow silk and trimmed with a fringe which she made of black and yellow silk. It is shirred at the top and tied at one side with strings of yellow ribbon. These aprons are all easily made and are pretty when worn while doing the work for which they were made; but like any other garment, are ridiculous "out of season."

FIGS. 2 AND 3.

POSTAL-CARD CASE.

It Is Easy to Make and Handy to Have Around, Provided You Have Use for It.

Cut a piece of birch-bark a little over twice the width and length of a postal-card. On one-half of the wide side make a deep pointed end, which when turned down serves as a cover (see illustration), and on the other half of the same side, cut out a piece not quite as large as the pointed cover.

Next fold the birch bark across through the center, which will bring the pointed cover over the opening. Overhand the edges of the case together with bright colored silk

Cut a little slit in the bark as seen in the illustration, and a corresponding one in the under side of the case. Pass a narrow, bright ribbon through the two slits, fastening it on one side with a few fancy stitches, and having the other and longer end loose.

When the package of postal-cards is put into the case, it will carry down the ribbon with it to the end of the case, and when the ribbon is drawn up, the cards will be drawn into view with it. Leave the ribbon long enough to tie with a bow and ends, when the case is closed

The case can be made of Whatman's rough water color paper and decorated with some sketchy designs, if birch bark is not to be had; or it may be made of cardboard, covered with any pretty silk. —Youth's Companion

ARE NOT CANNIBALS,

But Have Keen Delight in the Taking of Human Life—A Strange Tribe in the Interior of Africa Which Has Many Curious and Hideous Customs—Queer Way of Settling Quarrels.

Herbert Ward, in the interesting series of African articles now appearing in the New York Ledger, says:

Situated about six hundred miles in the interior from the mouth of the Congo, is a fine, fertile country, well-wooded and watered, where every kind of game to be found in this latitude of Western Africa abounds. Elephants, buffaloes, hippopotami, antelopes, wild pigs and guinea fowls, red-legged partridges and quail among the birds, are to be met with in abundance on the grassy plains or among the forested hills of this district, which is known as Bolobo, and is populated by a large and influential tribe of keen traders. These people, although not actually cannibals, are beyond doubt one of the most cruel races met with in this part of Central Africa.

They seem to take the keenest delight in the sacrifice of human life, and the execution of their slaves is considered an advertisement of their wealth. As this is a thickly-peopled country, some dark deed of barbarism is taking place almost every day, in connection with their inhuman ceremonies. Sometimes slaves are decapitated upon the death of a chief, so that their spirits may accompany that of the deceased potentate into the other world, to add prestige in the form of a spiritual retinue. At other times a slave is brutally slaughtered by an enraged master for some slight act of disobedience. In that case the offender is pounced upon, hurled to the ground and his head hacked from his body.

One of their most cruel ceremonies is that in connection with the settlement of long standing disagreements. It often happens that two sections of a tribe for some family reason entertain a bitter grudge against each other. This bitterness lasts until perhaps one or more of the influential members die, when the rest of the community, weary of the feud, decide amongst themselves to come to a settlement. A council of inquiry is accordingly held, and the most influential chiefs of the surrounding country are invited to attend, and the representatives of the two parties at variance have then the opportunity of stating their case, and receiving a verdict at the hands of the assembled chiefs, who decide which party is guilty, and inflict a fine according to the nature of the case. And when this has been satisfactorily concluded, some incident is required by both parties to remind them of the covenant. Very often, on these occasions, a slave is purchased; the bones of his arms and legs are broken; he is carried to some open, well-known road, generally a cross-road; a hole is dug, and he is placed in it, the earth being filled in and well trodden down around him, so as just to leave his head above the surface. Any person found giving him either food or water is liable to be served in the same way, and so he is left to die a lingering, painful death.

He Wasn't Allowed to Sentimentalize.

Apronstrings—After all, Henpeck, what a world of meaning in those sad, sad words: "It might have been."

Henpeck—Say, Apronstrings, did you ever go home at two o'clock in the morning and find your wife waiting for you?

Apronstrings—Yes. Why?

Henpeck—Well, for genuine sadness, "It might have been" doesn't begin to compare with "Where have you been?" —The Jury.

She Agreed with Him.

Emerson Waldo (of Boston)—I do so despise petty personal remarks. There are so many lofty and elevating subjects on which cultured minds may converse—literature, art, science and the broad field of metaphysics. Don't you agree with me, Miss Platte?

Miss Platte (of Omaha)—You bet I do, Mr. Waldo. But do look at Mrs. Laker over there; she walks as if she had corns.—Light.

WHAT NEXT?

Leather Tanning by Electricity Is Now an Accomplished Fact.

A French firm (MM. Worms & Bale) has succeeded, after long endeavors, in applying electricity to the art of tanning in such a way as is claimed to accelerate the process. We are now able, says the Electrician, to give some further information as to the method adopted, and although our knowledge of the art does not enable us to offer any opinion as to the precise value of the invention, yet we are very hopeful that it will ultimately afford an important outlet for electrical apparatus. What is actually done is very simple. The rawhides are placed in large cylinders which revolve upon horizontal axles. Provision is made for passing a current through the drum, the electrolyte being a decoction of tannin. (Further electrical details are at present wanting.) The drum is kept slowly revolving until the process is complete. The time required varies with the nature of the hide. Light calf-skins, sheep and goat-skins, which used to require from four to six months, are said to be completely tanned in twenty-four hours. Horse and ox hides require from seventy-two to ninety-six hours, while by the old-fashioned bark process they would have taken twelve months or even more.

As to the quality of the leather, several French leather merchants have stated that it is above the average in strength and has all the solidity and suppleness of the best samples. Specimens of harness, etc., made from this leather will be shown at the Paris exhibition. Furthermore, in addition to the economic value of the immense saving of time, it is stated that the working cost per pound of dry leather will be only 3½ to 4 cents, as against 7 to 8 cents per pound, which is the figure now reckoned by the Bermondsey tanners. The number of hands required is said to be only about one-fifth, and the capital expenditure is largely reduced. It is evident that if only half this be true, there is, to say the least, "something in it."

As to the scientific aspect of the question, the exact nature of the role played by the electric current is not at all clear. Prof. S. P. Thompson, who has examined the process, suggests that the effect may be in some way to open the pores of the hides and so permit a more rapid access of the tanning solution, and also that its chemical activity may be increased by the electrolytic action. Mr. A. Zwierzchowski thinks that the current renders the gelatine more soluble, so that it is able to combine more rapidly with the tannin.

M. E. Leonardi, in a recent number of the Revue Internationale de l'Electricite, mentions several schemes of this nature, all of them failures, the earlier ones necessarily so, from the lack of an economical means of producing current while others suffered equally from a lack of electrical knowledge on the part of the "inventors."

SCIENCE SCRAPS.

A LOCOMOTIVE to be operated solely by electricity is being constructed at Rome N. Y.

GALVANIZED iron is merely ordinary iron which has been dropped in molten zinc and retains a surface coating of the zinc when removed.

A BUNDLE of spider webs, not larger than a buckshot and weighing less than a drachm, would, if straightened out and untangled, reach a distance of 350 miles.

THE danger to life and property from sparks emitted from electric wires has been so well recognized in London that it is recommended that the city authorities take the matter in hand and see that the wires are properly insulated.

THE British Museum has received information that a tomb, believed by archæologists to be that of Cleopatra, has just been found on the site of a recent excavation in Egypt. The sarcophagus was covered with exquisite carving, and was found in a chamber ten feet long, by two and one-half feet wide, and of corresponding height, and at a depth of twenty-five feet.

A LIGNITE sugar refinery has been established in Philadelphia for utilizing "black strap," the refuse of molasses. Hitherto this substance has been used in making rum, but the product has always been in excess of the demand. The inventors claim that the process will revolutionize the sugar industry. It is clarified through pulverized lignite.

A PROMINENT medical journal calls attention to the growth of the "naphtha habit" among the female employes of rubber factories. The inhalation of naphtha fumes produces a peculiarly agreeable inebriation. Naphtha is used to clean rubber; and is kept in large boilers, to the valve of which the employes obtain access and breathe the fumes. The habit was introduced from Germany, and is chiefly found in the New England States.

THOSE living in localities where mosquitoes are troublesome may make a trial of the following recipe for expelling these pests from the house: Take a piece of gum camphor, in size about the third of a hen's egg, and slowly evaporate it by holding it in a shovel or tin vessel over a lamp, taking care that it does not ignite. The smoke will soon fill the room and expel the mosquitoes, and it is said that they will not return, even though the windows should be left open all night.

Artificial Gutta-Percha.

Dr. Purcell Taylor, of London, claims to have succeeded in making a new insulating material, having all the properties of gutta-percha but with a higher dielectric resistance. The new substance, which is to be called "purcellite," is, according to the writer, very tough and elastic. A piece of iron covered with it, he states, was hammered out flat then bent and twisted until it broke, without even cracking the covering. The cost, it is added, is only about 1-40 that of gutta-percha. It may be made any color, and either flexible or rigid.—Scientific American.

FINDING THE DEAD

Sixty-One Bodies Recovered at Lake City, Minn.

WRECK AND RUIN ON ALL SIDES

Two Steamers Trying to Draw the Sunken Vessel Asunder.

The Estimate of the Loss of 115 Bodies Will be Verified—The Officers of the Ill Fated Steamer Were Under the Influence of Liquor—Sisters of Mercy Caring for the Wounded.

LAKE CITY, Minn., July 15.—The latest report from the scene of the disaster shows that remarkable work is being done in recovering dead bodies.

Doubtless there are many that will never be found, as it is almost impossible to get into the cabin of the sunken boat. It seems that that is where many of the unfortunates took refuge, and it necessitates considerable cutting and tearing of timbers to obtain even an entrance to the cabin. The work of the boys of the First Regiment, who came down from their camping grounds, is a marvel.

There are two steamers working at the wreck trying to draw it asunder in hopes that the bodies confined may be released.

The nearest report that can be gathered is that there were 174 on board the fated steamer when she went down. Captain Witheren, in command of the steamer, appeared in the morning, and the report that he had fled, owing to his indiscreet conduct, is of little worth. It seems that the officer was overcome completely with fear, and when he turned the steamer about she sank.

The general opinion is that the estimate of the loss of 125 lives will be verified. The sixtieth body proved to be that of Miss Alice Palmer. Another body, that of a young girl, is just being removed, making sixty-one.

It is now reported that the officers of the ill-fated steamer were more or less under the influence of liquor when the boat started from Lake City on the home journey. The number known to have been saved is now estimated at about seventy-five, which leaves about 115 people thought to have perished in the wreck. This number will undoubtedly be diminished as full returns come in from those who have escaped.

Despairing Grief.

As rapidly as recovered the bodies are conveyed here for identification and then forwarded to their homes. Cries and shrieks follow rapidly the recovery of each body, showing the identification of the dead by their distracted friends. A heart of stone would be touched by the despairing grief that clouds every countenance and tells of the family through which death has swept.

An Awful Scene.

The steamers succeeded in pulling off the cabin, and then the stoutest hearts grew faint at the scene disclosed. Here a young man's body is cold and stiff, with the form of his sweetheart clasped close to his heart. A mother with two children at her bosom floated by next. Girls and boys, even babies, were locked together in the rigid embrace of death, some with faces portraying the sad struggle in which they died, and others with placid features. Nearly fifty bodies were in the cabin, and others had been dragged down to the machinery of the lower deck.

RUIN AND DESOLATION.

Caring for the Dead and Alleviating the Sufferings of the Wounded.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 15.—The shores of Lake Gervais, once dotted with the summer cottages of wealthy residents of St. Paul, are now the scene of utter ruin and desolation. A death-dealing and devastating storm swept over a strip of territory two miles wide and eight miles in length, in the center of which is miniature and picturesque Lake Gervais, killing at least five persons, injuring more or less seriously probably thirty others, and destroying thousands of dollars worth of property. So far as known the dead are:

George Miller, paying teller First National Bank, St. Paul; J. H. Schurmier, millionaire, of St. Paul, and his wife; Peter Gresen, John Goetschki, Mrs. John Mullaney and family of four children, Charles Schurmeier.

Caring for the Dead and Wounded.

The citizens are doing everything possible under the distressing circumstances in properly caring for the dead and alleviating the sufferings of the wounded. At the Coleman House every room up stairs and down is filled with cots upon which the sufferer is laid, and a corps of doctors there in attendance, setting and amputating limbs and dressing wounds.

The black-robed Sisters of Mercy are flying about and seem to be everywhere, administering comfort and assistance in the work of relieving pain and distress. A corps of assistants were kept busy making bandages, tearing up great rolls of linen and tearing it into strips of the requisite dimensions, which the doctors put to almost immediate use.

GEN. FREMONT'S FUNERAL.

Arrangements Completed for Unostentatious Services To-Morrow.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The arrangements for the funeral of Gen. Fremont have been completed. The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning from the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Ignatius, on Fortieth street, between Fifth and Sixth avenue.

The services will be of the most simple nature. There will be no military display, and in deference to wishes of relatives of Gen. Fremont, certain features peculiar to St. Ignatius, which is a ritualistic church, will be omitted by the pastor, the Rev. Arthur Ritchie.

After the services at the church the body will be temporarily placed in a vault in Trinity Cemetery. Its final disposition is not yet decided upon.

CAPTURED THE STOCK YARDS.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company Secures Control of the Corporation.

TRENTON, N. J., July 15.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has, it is announced, gained control of the Chicago Stock Yards.

The Chicago Junction Railways and Union Stock Yards Company has been incorporated here with a capital stock of $13,000,000, of which $25,000 is paid in. The principal incorporators are W. J. Sewell, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and John Hoey, of the Adams Express Company.

The business of the company is to buy and sell and otherwise deal in the capital stock of the Chicago Union Stock Yards and Transit Company.

The Cloakmakers' Trouble Nearly Over.

NEW YORK, July 15.—At the meeting of the cloakmakers and their employers the two points at issue were further discussed, and the one concerning pay for time lost by the strike was settled by a concession in wages sufficient to make up the loss in time. The other point, namely, the discharge of non-union men who had taken strikers' places, is not quite settled, but it has practically been agreed that the non-union men must take their chances of continued employment.

Bank Wrecker Faulkner Still in Jail.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 15.—James Faulkner, ex-president of the defunct First National Bank of Dansville, who has been confined in the Rochester jail awaiting trial on the charge of wrecking that institution, was brought to this city and taken before Commissioner Hirshbeck and held in $20,000 bail, which he has not yet secured. He will be tried at the September term of the United States Court in this city.

A Bogus Matrimonial Agency.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 15.—Miss Georgiana Cockroft, a waitress in Sutton's Weybosset street restaurant, was arrested by U. S. Deputy Marshal Black of Binghamton, N. Y., charged with using the mails fradulently. She, with one Coen of Binghamton, who claims to be her husband, has been conducting a bogus matrimonial agency. Men in Montana claim that they sank $150 in the agency but obtained no wives.

He Went Over Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 15.—A man jumped from the parapet wall at Prospect Point and passed directly over the falls. He was a man of about 25 or 30 years of age, and came here from Buffalo. As he jumped upon the parapet wall he stopped long enough to regain his balance and shout: "Good-by, boys; I am going over the falls." The body has not been recovered.

Four Girls Seriously Injured.

BOSTON, July 15.—An old barn on Otis street, Cambridge, in process of demolition, fell during the morning, burying four girls, who were gathering kindling wood, in the ruins. Nora Grady had her hip dislocated and was badly bruised; Mary Sheehan and Mary Courtney were badly bruised about the head and shoulders, and Celia Quinn was injured internally.

Dockstader's Minstrels Incorporated.

TRENTON, N. J., July 15.—The Law Dockstader Minstrel Company has been incorporated here with a capital of $50,000, of which $10,000 is paid in. The incorporators are Joseph B. Miller and W. H. Egbert, of Plainfield, Lewis Dockstader and Mrs. Dockstader. They propose doing a general minstrel business in Europe, the United States and Australia.

Boilermakers Win Their Fight.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 15.—The strike of the boilermakers in Pittsburg and Allegheny is practically at an end. Of the ten shops, eight have agreed to the nine hours per day proposition. The others will doubtless give up the fight. Master Workman Evans states that by Thursday work will have been resumed in all of the shops.

Death on the Rail.

ONEIDA, N. Y., July 15.—During the morning the mangled remains of John Nettles, a sign-writer, were found on the N. Y., O. & W. tracks near the beach. Nettles had been working at Sylvan Beach for a few days past. He came here from Utica, but said his home was in Erie, Pa. He was about 30 years of age.

Consul Schooley Arrested.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 15.—Richard H. Schooley, United States consul at Port Rowan, Canada, and whose residence is in this city, has been indicted by the grand jury of Monroe County for conspiracy and embracery in the Lynch-Stoddard shooting case. Mr. Schooley was released on bail.

Slavin and McAuliffe Will Fight.

NEW YORK, July 15.—A special cablegram says that Frank Slavin and Joe McAuliffe, with their backers, met at the Ormonde Club and formally ratified the agreement for their fight for the championship of the world.

SENATORS IN CAUCUS

Devising Means to Pass the Federal Election Bill.

CHANGE IN THE RULES FAVORED

The Matter Postponed for Several Days and the Tariff Bill to be Taken Up.

Opinions of Democratic Senators—Flags at Half Mast for General Fremont—The Silver Bill Signed by the President—A Movement for a Statue in Washington to General Putnam.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Republican Senators to the number of 31 met in caucus last night to receive the report of the committee appointed at the caucus held last Thursday to consider a change in the rules of the Senate by which debate can be limited for the purpose of passing the Federal Election bill. The committee, through Senator Aldrich, presented a proposed modification of the rules under which, when a measure has been under discussion for three legislative days, a majority of the Senate could order general debate closed; after that thirty minutes to be given to each side for debate, no Senator to speak more than once.

Objection was made to this rule on the ground that it would look to the country as though the Republicans were proposing under it to hurry the Election bill through the Senate in three days.

After some debate, it was determined to change the proposed rule so as to have the debate closed after a reasonable time instead of three days. In this form the rule was referred back to the Caucus Committee to be revised and reported to a future caucus. The vote taken on this proposition showed a decisive majority of those present in favor of a change in the rules and the passage of the Federal Election bill.

The next caucus may not be held for several days. In the meantime it is understood that the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill will be disposed of, and the Tariff bill taken up; but it is the understanding the the Tariff bill will be laid aside temporarily to take up the River and Harbor bill in the near future.

MR. BLAINE'S TARIFF IDEAS.

He Says Our Foreign Market for Breadstuff Is Growing Narrower.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—There is much comment here on a letter sent by Secretary Blaine to Senator Hale and just published. Democrats say it is a slap at the McKinley bill. Mr. Blaine says:

"I do not doubt that in many respects the Tariff bill pending in the Senate is a just measure and that most of its provisions are in accordance with the wise policy of protection.

"But there is not a section or a line in the whole bill that will open a market for another bushel of wheat or another barrel of pork.

"If sugar is now placed on the free list without exacting important trade concessions in return we shall close the door for a profitable reciprocity against ourselves. I think you will find some valuable hints on this subject in the President's brief message of June 19, with as much practical wisdom as was ever stated in so short a space.

"Our foreign market for breadstuffs grows narrower. Great Britain is exerting every nerve to secure her bread supplies from India, and the rapid expansion of the wheat area in Russia gives us a powerful competitor in the markets of Europe. It becomes us therefore to use every opportunity for the extension of our market on both of the American continents. With nearly one hundred million dollars' worth of sugar seeking our market every year, we shall prove ourselves most unskilled legislators if we do not secure a large field for the sale and consumption of our breadstuffs and provisions. The late conference of American republics proved the existence of a common desire for closer relations.

"Our Congress should take up the work where the International Conference left it. Our field of commercial development and progress lies south of us."

What Democratic Senators Think.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—It is stated by several Democratic Senators that the fight in the Senate will be made on the proposed change in the rules, and that the Republicans will be able to make this change by some arbitrary ruling, under which Democrats who desire to debate the proposition will not be recognized.

Flags at Half Mast for General Fremont.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Harrison sent a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Gen. Fremont, and directed that the national flag be displayed at half mast upon all the buildings of the executive departments in this city until after the funeral shall have taken place.

Appropriation for a War Claim.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—A favorable report has been ordered by the House Committee on War Claims on the bill for the Relief the Creditors of the Bank of Louisiana, which is in bankruptcy. The bill appropriates $12,000 to make the payment.

The Silver Bill Signed.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Speaker Reed and President pro-tempore Ingalls signed the Silver bill. It was sent to the President for his approval, and was signed by him at once.

Approved by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The President approved the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill and the Agricultural Department Appropriation bill.

Forgets the War is Over.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—A dispatch from Dover, Del., says: Dr. G. Beattie, a former resident of Virginia now living near Succasunna, has for some time past had a Confederate flag flying from a staff on his house. Dr. Beattie has received threatening letters bearing upon the matter, but says he does not propose to be frightened so long as he violates no law. He says the flag was not raised with the intention of affronting anybody.

Two Men Killed by the Cars.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 15.—Two men were killed on the railroad near here. Joseph Matthews, conductor of a Delaware & Hudson construction train, was struck by his train and killed. He leaves a widow and four children at Whitehall. Herbert Allen, aged 17 years, of South Corinth, fell under a freight car while setting a brake and was crushed under the wheels.

Assaulted by Two Men.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 15.—Mrs. Amy E. Thomas was assaulted in a lot near Benedict Pond by two men. One of them threw carbolic acid at her, striking her breast and burning her very badly. Her assailants escaped.

Vote to Accept a City Charter.

MARLBORO, Mass., July 15.—Marlboro voted—1,870 to 26—to accept a city charter. The first election will be held in December. The event was celebrated last night by fireworks, salutes, music, etc.

CHOLERA SPREADING

The Disease on the Increase in Valencia, Spain.

THE FACTS BEING CONCEALED.

Thirty-five New Cases and Ten Death Reported.

David Dudley's Speech Creates Surprise at the Peace Congress—Salvador and Guatemala on the Verge of War—The Report of Mr. Gladstone's Illness a Hoax—A Rich Lady Arrested.

LONDON, July 15.—The Madrid correspondent of the News says that the cholera is spreading to more towns in the province of Valencia. There were thirty-five new cases and ten deaths reported yesterday, one death occurring in the city of Valencia.

The authorities of Castello de Rugat concealed the fact that the disease raged there for a fortnight. It has been learned that fifty cases occurred at that place, seventeen of which proved fatal. The fact that the disease was prevalent was not made known in order to avoid the isolation of the place.

A suspicious case has been received at the General Hospital in Madrid. The authorities of Valencia refused to admit to that port an American steamer which had on board the body of a seaman who had died of yellow fever.

Forty-four Deaths from Cholera.

BOMBAY, July 15.—Forty-four deaths from cholera have occurred among the members of the battalion of Ghoorkas stationed at Dharmsala in the Punjaub.

MR. FIELD'S SPEECH.

America's Great Lawyer Creates a Sensation at the Peace Congress.

LONDON, July 15.—The address delivered by Mr. David Dudley Field at the opening of the Universal Peace Congress created a veritable sensation, both in respect of the manner of the speaker and the matter of his speech.

Mr. Field cited the United States as the most conspicuous example of sovereign powers living together in perfect peace and harmony, and ascribed their entirely amicable relations to the principle of arbitration vested in the general Government, and so universally accepted as to render resort to it most infrequent. He regarded the modern willingness of the powers to submit their disputes to arbitration as one of the most hopeful signs of an era of peace. He honored the wisdom which had directed the settlement of the African dispute between England and Germany, a settlement which had set an example for the world.

During the century, he said, sixteen shillings of each pound sterling of debt throughout the civilized world had been expended in the maintenance of armies and the prosecution of wars.

READY FOR WAR.

Salvador and Guatemala on the Verge of Hostilities.

LA LIBERTAD, Salvador, July 15.—The Government to-day issued a proclamation declaring the country in a state of siege and announcing that passports will be required in order to travel from one town to another.

War with Guatemala is imminent. Nearly twenty thousand men are stationed along this side of the frontier. Great enthusiasm prevails.

Mr. Gladstone in Good Health.

LONDON, July 15.—A report was in circulation that Mr. Gladstone was ill and his absence from the sitting of the Procedure Committee lent to it a strong semblance of truth. On the strength of the rumor hundreds of reporters and friends called at Mr. Gladstone's residence to obtain information as to his condition and express their sympathy. Mr. Gladstone in his usual good health and spirits attested the falsity of the report and the callers retired satisfied and pleased that they had been mildly hoaxed.

A Wealthy Widow Arrested for Theft.

LONDON, July 15.—A wealthy widow named Hatchard, was sentenced by a magistrate to two weeks' imprisonment for theft. Mrs. Hatchard was a guest at a reception, and shortly after her departure it was discovered that a number of silver spoons and other articles were missing from the collection of presents exposed to view, despite the fact that the articles were guarded by a detective. The stolen articles were traced to Mrs. Hatchard, and her arrest followed.

Another Arrest for Bank Wrecking.

NEW YORK, July 15.—James A. Simmons has been arrested charged with aiding and abetting President Claassen of the Sixth National Bank in the embezzlement of $600,000 in bonds at the time of the late bank wrecking operations. Simmons was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields and held in $25,000 bail for examination.

Railroad Collision—Two Men Killed.

RICHMOND, Va., July 15.—An eastbound passenger train ran into a freight train at Gladstone, 120 miles west of this city, killing two men and injuring four others. The cause of the accident was a misplaced switch. The killed are Fireman W. H. Holt, of Richmond, and a negro tramp who was riding on the trucks of the baggage car.

Prohibitionists Nominate a City Ticket.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Prohibitionists last night nominated a city and county ticket, headed by W. Jennings Demorest for Mayor; W. T. Wardwell, for Comptroller; Charles E. Maniere, for District Attorney, and Prof. John McMullen, for Sheriff.

BACKSLIDING CELESTIALS.

A Chinese Bible Class Fined For Playing Fantan and Smoking Opium.

LOWELL, Mass., July 15.—Nearly all the Mongolians of this city have been devout members of the fold of the First Baptist Church for quite a time. They were under the charge of Miss Hattie Morris, who had about convinced the other church members that she had the whole number converted.

The Chinamen gave tom-tom concerts before the church people, and told how much better they felt for being converted, and how sorry they were for their fellow Celestials who played fantan and smoked opium. On the way to and from the church the moved in a body and advertised their new religion for all it was worth.

For quite a while Miss Morris has been suspicious of her flock of yellow birds. She noticed that they were surely corrupting the rest of the Sunday-school. In a quiet way she did a little detective work, and the result was that last night she put the police on to her Bible class playing a quiet game of fan-tan and smoking opium. One Chinaman jumped under a bunk and yelled: "Me no smoke opium; me no see game; me dlunk like Melican man." He was pulled in with eight others, and in court the Bible class was heavily fined, while Miss Morris stood by and aided the prosecution.

Cruelty to Livery Horses.

NORWALK, Conn., July 15.—Wm. B. Lockwood, Jr., a wealthy sporting man, drove a team of livery horses from Bridgeport to Norwalk, thirteen miles, in 47 minutes, 27 seconds, on a wager of $50. The horses are ruined. The Humane Society has obtained a warrant for Cockwood's arrest, and the owner of the horses proposes to sue him for damages.

The Mare Allen Maid Sold.

BOSTON, July 15.—The fast pacing mare Allen Maid, has been sold to western parties for the sum of $4,000. She will quit the track and be driven double on the road by her new owner. She is said to have won more money and races this year than any trotter on the turf.

Schooner and Crew Reported Lost.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 15.—It is reported here that the schooner William Rice one of the Iceland Halibut fishing boats is missing, and the supposition is that she collided with an iceberg and went down with her whole crew of fourteen men.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Secretary Blaine has returned to Bar Harbor from a visit to Senator Hale in Ellsworth, Me.

John B. Hendley, a well-known citizen and a prominent Grand Army man of Salle Village, N. H., committed suicide by cutting his throat.

The threatened lockout of the New York city clothing cutters did not take place. All the cutters went to their respective shops and signed a paper stating that they belonged to no labor organization. Then they went to work as usual.

Thomas Kiley, a brakeman on the New York Central Railroad, while coupling cars at Troy, N. Y., fell, the train passing over his body, cutting him in two. He was thirty years of age and was to have been married next week.

Hanlan, Teemer, Hosmer and Wise have decided to accept the challenge of the Eries of Buffalo to row them a four-oared race for five thousand dollars and the championship of the world a scop as the details can be arranged.

Neil Adams, an American, shot and killed Carlos Largue, a waiter at the National Theatre restaurant in the City of Mexico. The murder was a most heartless one. Adams was drunk and became exasperated because Largue would not wait upon him. Adams is under arrest.

At Sherman, N. Y., the south side of Main street was destroyed by fire. Among the buildings burned were the postoffice, Excelsior Hall, Peck's clothing store, Strong's hardware, Thompson's drug store, Grave's Hotel, and Leonard & Reynold's grocery store. No estimate of the loss has yet been made.

The strike of the men employed at N. Weber's morocco factory at Lynn, Mass., is considered settled. The calf colorers struck for 40 cents per dozen in place of 35 cents. Mr. Weber has proposed to pay 37½ cents per dozen for coloring glove calf and 40 cents for Dongola calf. The men are willing to accept this proposal and the new prices will probably be adopted.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—For New England: Fair; southwesterly winds; warmer, except in Western Massachusetts stationary temperature.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Warmer; fair; southerly winds.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Fair; southerly winds; warmer in Western New York; cooler in Western Pennsylvania.

BY THE WAY.

—A spacious new piazza is being added to the A. C. Vail residence at Eighth street and Madison avenue.

—Netherwood Park is progressing Three walks six feet wide have just been laid across it. Plainfield should feel ashamed of herself.

—The members of Wetumpka Lodge, Knights of Honor, will meet to-morrow morning at nine o'clock at their rooms, to attend the funeral of E. V. Lorton.

—Cuff, Somerville's catcher, and the only man who has been found able to hold Harkins, signs with the Newarks today. The West Ends will have trouble replacing him.

—The United Tea and Coffee Growers Association make a special announcement today, which the readers of THE PRESS would profit by following out the instructions therein contained.

—The Sunday schools of the Methodist, Baptist and Episcopal churches of Westfield, will go on a joint excursion to Lanelton Grove on Long Island Sound, on Tuesday, the 22d instant.

—Engine 175, attached to the 8 A. M., New York way train, was detained about fifteen minutes at Plainfield, this morning on account of the disarrangement of some part of her eccentric machinery.

—Alex. Thorn has caused an iron lamp post to be erected on the corner of Somerset street and Craig place. It will be lighted with gas, and our obliging postmaster has promised to hang a letter-box on it.

—The Young Stars defeated the Young Bostons in a game of base ball yesterday afternoon by a score of 14 to 3. The battery for the Stars was Winn and Heffern; for the Bostons, Mattis and Conneely.

—J. H. Fosher has received another car load of fine Western horses, and he is selling them at popular prices. Call and see them at his stables, corner Grant avenue and Fourth street. You will find him an honorable dealer.

—The amount raised at the recent strawberry and iced cream festival held in Hope chapel under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the chapel, after all expenses had been paid, was $104.19 which goes toward enlarging the chapel.

—Don't fail to go with Alpha Lodge on their picnic to Boynton Beach, Saturday. Stage; will leave the corner of Park and North avenues at 8 A. M. The committee in charge promises to carry every one comfortably. All those who wish to go should have their tickets by Thursday as the lodge holds a special meeting on that evening to ascertain exactly how many is going.

A Change May be Expected.

Wm. F. Agate of the World was in Plainfield yesterday. Probably called here by the righteous complaints of the people, over the outrageous manner in which the news of this city is misrepresented, and the World used by its correspondent here—whoever he is—to vent his own spite or revive such dying deals as he may be personally concerned in. THE PRESS can assure the people that when the World learns all this, it will be immediately remedied. One newsdealer returned his entire order of 160 Worlds, Sunday, July 6, without a sale.

Wetumpka Lodge, 3401.

Members of Wetumpka Lodge, 3401, Knights of Honor, are requested to meet Wednesday morning, July 16, at nine o'clock in their lodge rooms, to attend the funeral of Brother E. V. Lorton, Past Grand Dictator of New Jersey.

H. J. MARTIN, Dictator.
F. P. HAFFNER, Reporter.

This Must be Stopped.

Complaints reach this office frequently that the employees of the Electric Light company are "trimming" people's trees to suit themselves and provide uninterrupted course for their wires. On Eighth street, recently, a lineman cut a big hole through the thickest foliage of a handsome maple.

Green Bowlers Practicing.

About twenty members of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club on Saturday went to Dunellen, where the local club and the visitors combined and played interesting practice games. There were four teams using the two rinks. It was an enjoyable day's outing.

Thousands of cures follow the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. 50 cents.

THE PAREGORICS WILL PLAY THE FATS.

Indignant at Captain Keller's Raise, Captain Miller Calls Him.

Captain Tee Kay Eller's bombastic challenge to play any Plainfield ball team except the Crescents, and his fat team's claim to be the bloated champions of the World, have aroused the ire and fire of Captain Drug Joe Miller's Paregoric nine. The result is that when the two captains met in Horton's furnishing goods store, there were words, and a match was immediately arranged.

Papers duly drawn up, signed and witnessed, provide for the playing of a game on Wednesday, July 30. This agreement is signed by both captains and witnessed by ex-Councilman Coriell. The players are to be selected from the following lists:

Fat men—Keller, McMurray, Smith, McCloud, Russ, Gaddis, Wilbur, Bowman, Gordon, Evans and Moro. Paregorics—Miller, Horton, Duckworth, Trust, Vanderbeek, Rogers, Winn, Sebring, Force and Beerbower.

The losing team binds itself to tender a supper for 22 to the winners.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Mr Richards' sermon entitled "The Classes for the Masses," will appear in full in this week's issue of the Central Times.

J. W. Gavett of Third place, has leased a cottage in Washington Valley for the season, and his family are now enjoying themselves there.

J. Frank Mundy, one of Plainfield's self made young men, who is now general agent for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York, is spending his vacation in Plainfield.

A New York paper Sunday, published cuts of the homes of H. P. Talmadge, Geo. H. Babcock, Alex. Gilbert, C. W. McCutchen, the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Mrs. Kate Marsh, Supt. W. H. Moore and E. B. Day.

OBITUARY.

ROBERT C. PAGE.

Robert C. Page, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Perley Page of this city, who died of consumption at Paul Smith's in the Adirondacks, Sunday, as announced in these columns yesterday, was one of the youngest members of the New York Produce Exchange. He was only twenty-three years of age, yet had been a member of the Exchange since Feb. 4, 1887. He developed unusual ability as a grain broker and was a great favorite on the board. He was a member of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, and the Seventh New York Regiment. Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 4:15 in the Crescent Avenue church.

Trying to Hide Their Cowardice Behind Falsehoods.

The Sporting Times of New York, published the following lie in its last Sunday's issue:

"The Hackett, Carhart & Co., team went to Plainfield Saturday and were not only robbed of the game by an incompetent umpire, but the club officials refused to pay the guarantee after their playing eight innings of great ball. The Hacketts had made 4 runs and 8 hits with a total of 12, while the Crescents had made but two hits and no runs off Tierney's pitching. In their half of the eighth the home team made three hits, and on an error scored three runs.

"Over 2,000 persons were present and the excitement was intense. "Butch" Weigand was declared out at first on an assist by Second Baseman Barry, making two out, with Lufbery on second. Weigand stepped off to the coaching line and immediately returned to the bag when the umpire's back was turned, despite the protest of the first baseman. Catcher Kraus noticed the trick, and stepping in front of the batter called to Tierney not to pitch. The latter already had the ball in position, but did not deliver it. Umpire Bowman called a balk, sent Lufbery to third and, to the consternation of the Hacketts, sent the batsman to first. Naturally enough there was a kick at this direct violation of the rules of the game, and the Hacketts refusing to continue unless the batsman returned to the plate, Umpire Bowman gave the game to Plainfield, 9 to 0."

Alpha Lodge Meeting.

Alpha Lodge, No. 4, I. O. of G. T., met in regular session last evening in their hall, corner of Park and North avenues. A report from the Chairman of the Picnic Committee was adopted. There was no initiations, but two were proposed for next meeting night. Among those present in the lodge room was State Deputy, Mr. Robertson, who afterwards entertained the members with a reading entitled "How to make meetings interesting." After songs and recitations, which were rendered by several members of the lodge, the meeting adjourned.

Such a Project Would Only Have Three Votes.

It is unnecessary to tell the people that there is no possibility of the Council buying the Hand building for a City Hall. The people haven't seen it in THE PRESS so they know it isn't so. All stuff written to the effect that such a scheme is probable, is as false as its grammar and merely the vagary of a flighty brain.

Ayer's Hair Vigor has long held the first place, as a hair dressing, in the estimation of the public. Ladies find that this preparation gives a beautiful gloss to the hair, and gentlemen use it to prevent baldness and cure humors in the scalp.

MORE AMMUNITION FOR THE ENEMY.

The Republican "Times" Still Continuing its Foolish Course of Furnishing Powder For the Democrats.

(From the Hunterdon Democrat.)

A Plainfield republican who desires a position in the New York custom house and made known his wishes to the collector, was told the other day that there were five or six places to be filled by Jerseymen and Mr. Sewell had the naming of the candidates. He was advised to send a petition to that gentleman, and he is preparing to do so. Such is bossism in the little State of New Jersey. There ought to be a stop put to such a scandal on the Republican party.—Plainfield Times.

It is shameful, that's a fact; but as Boss Sewell has both hands under what can be done? Sewell is, to all intents and purposes, the Republican party of New Jersey. His will is law, and all power comes through him. His hand is seen in every political appointment under the Harrison administration, and the party behind him dares to make no move until he is first consulted and his consent obtained. Such servility has never before been witnessed since the organization of political parties. To be independent of Sewell is to sacrifice every chance of securing an office of either great or small importance. He rewards only those who bend the knee and swear allegiance to him. But it is of small concern to us. If the Republicans enjoy such a low condition of slavery let them help themselves.

The Order of the Grand Chancellor.

To the Officers and Members of Subordinate Lodges of this Jurisdiction:

DEAR SIRS AND BROTHERS: At the hour of 6:30 P. M., July 12, inst., Brother Eugene V. Lorton, Grand Keeper of Records and Seal of this State, departed this life. His death reminds us of the departure of a loyal Pythian, a true man and sincere friend of the Order of Knights of Pythias His long devotion to the Order of this State, and the zealousness and faithfulness with which he conducted his office for many years past, is known to every member of our Grand Jurisdiction.

It would be but just and fitting that as many officers and members of the Grand Jurisdiction of this State who can possibly attend his funeral do so. To this end you are fraternally invited to meet at the Lodge room of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K of P., located on Second street, West of Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, on Wednesday, July 16, inst., at 9 A. M., to accompany his remains to their last resting place.

Fraternally yours in F., C. and B.,
DEWITT C. BOLTON,
Grand Chancellor,
K. of P., of N. J.

Paterson, N. J., July 14, 1890.
Pythian Period XXVII.

Mr. Hunt to Succeed Mr. Goodrich.

There was a special meeting of the Board of Education held last evening, at which were present Trustees Kirkner, Murray and Probasco. A communication was read from E. S. Hunt accepting the position as teacher of the High school senior class, left vacant by the resignation of Mr. Goodrich.

The Board decided to remove the fence in front of the Stillman building, and it was voted upon and adopted that the Board divide the contract of coal awarded to Cook Bros., by giving half the amount to C. H. Rugg.

The following bills were presented and ordered paid when found correct: William Hand, $5; W. R. Mattox, 10; W. L. Force & Bro., 15.50; Spencer Conway, 2; Plainfield Gas Light company, 3.60.

They Mourn a Fellow Member's Death.

At a meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, held last evening, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS: We have learned with deep sorrow of the death of Robert C. Page, who has been a member of this club since his residence in Plainfield.

Resolved, That we sincerely lament the death of our late member and that we tender our heartfelt sympathy to his family in their sad bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes and published in the Plainfield papers.

If They Keep Coming They'll Go Next Year.

A week ago Sunday was the day for the giving out of tickets to the scholars who will go on to-morrow's excursion. The attendance at Bethel chapel—Sup't Ginna's colored mission—was consequently swelled. Over a hundred new scholars were present, but they were notified from the platform that tickets would be given only to those who had been regular attendants of the past.

To-Morrow's the Day.

To-morrow the excursion of the Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue church to Asbury Park, will leave here at 8 A. M. Returning, leave Asbury Park at 5:30 P. M.

The Ocean Grove Assembly will be in session. If it is desired, dinner may be obtained at the West End, Ocean and other convenient hotels.

Quality Requisite for Membership.

The new vocal society which was told about in these columns some time ago, is growing. Over 40 applications for membership have already been received, and some have been accepted. Leader Chapman first tries and passes upon the voices of the candidates before they are admitted.

Words cannot express the gratitude which people feel for the benefit done them by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Long-standing cases of rheumatism yield to this remedy, when all others fail to give relief. This medicine thoroughly expels the poison from the blood.

The Visitors Entertain Their Entertainers.

Plainfield Council Royal Arcanum received a visit from a delegation of Carteret Council, Rahway, last evening. They accompanied Supreme Deputy Grand Regent Fiest, ex-Postmaster Gilbert Lindsey and the Rev. Mr. Hull.

Regent Conklin, of this city, presided. The visitors entertained all present with a programme of singing, speech making, etc. Later an adjournment was had for supper.

Society's Whirl.

An unidentified correspondent requests the mention of the following: "Mrs. James McFadden, of West Fourth street, has gone to visit her daughter, Mrs. McCarthy, of Tarrytown, formerly of New York city."

A Bad Jump.

Charles Post of 117 South Second street, who works at the stone cracker at Scotch Plains, made a jump from some of the machinery and falling on a shovel, his tongue and lower lip were badly cut. Dr. Simpson dressed the wounds.

Fired Three Bullets Into His Head.

OLEAN, N. Y., July 15.—John Lindsay, aged about 50 years, an employe of the Pierce Tannery, fired three bullets from a revolver into his head, one from each side, and the third into his mouth. It is stated that several years ago, before he became addicted to drink, Lindsay was a Methodist minister but fell from grace. He died immediately after the shooting.

Vented Their Spite on Sheep.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 15.—Enemies of the Misses Moore, residing on a farm near New Salem, placed blue vitriol in a field in which some sheep were at pasture. Nearly all of a flock of forty-three have died, and the others are expected to follow. An attempt was recently made to poison their cows. There is no clew to the perpetrators of the outrage.

Three Miners Arrested for Murder.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 15.—Thomas Martin, John McNulty and John McDonald, miners at Pittstown, were arrested here for the murder of James Hughes of Oregon, who died after a beating inflicted by the three men a few days ago.

A Blank Cartridge for Carnot.

PARIS, July 15.—When President Carnot was about to enter the Elysee Palace on his return from Longchamps a man, standing near by, fired a revolver in the air. He was promptly arrested. He had been out of employment for some time and wished to attract the attention of the President and the public to his case. The police say the revolver was loaded with blank cartridges.

Crop Outlook in Ireland.

DUBLIN, July 15.—The official report of the Irish crops shows the prospect for the potato yield to be very fine. There are, however, some signs of blight in the counties of Limerick, Cork and Kerry. Oats and barley are promising and turnips are doing well The growth of wheat is somewhat retarded.

O'Donovan Rossa Will Visit Cork.

DUBLIN, July 15.—The "Freeman's Journal" says that the sentence of outlawry passed upon him by the government expiring during the coming winter, O'Donovan Rossa will visit Cork in January.

To Aid the Locked Out Men.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 15. — A strike has been inaugurated at the shoe factory of the Hatheway, Soule & Harrington Company. One hundred workmen, members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union, quit work because the locked out treers had not been reinstated.

A Drover Killed on the Rail.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 15.—James D. Ward, a drover, was thrown from a freight train near Wilmer and terribly mangled. He died within a few minutes. He formerly belonged in Chicago. He was en-route to Philadelphia.

Summary Vengeance.

Magistrate—Who is this man?
Policeman—A variety theater singer, sir, charged with murder.
Magistrate—Murder! This is a serious case. Who was the victim?
Policeman—Little Annie Rooney.
Magistrate—Six months for both of you.—Munsey's Weekly.

Save Your Hair

BY a timely use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation has no equal as a dressing. It keeps the scalp clean, cool, and healthy, and preserves the color, fullness, and beauty of the hair.

"I was rapidly becoming bald and gray; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—Melvin Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. H.

"Some time ago I lost all my hair in consequence of measles. After due waiting, no new growth appeared. I then used Ayer's Hair Vigor and my hair grew

Thick and Strong.

It has apparently come to stay. The Vigor is evidently a great aid to nature."—J. B. Williams, Floresville, Texas.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. It is all I could desire, being harmless, causing the hair to retain its natural color, and requiring but a small quantity to render the hair easy to arrange."—Mrs. M. A. Bailey, 9 Charles street, Haverhill, Mass.

"I have been using Ayer's Hair Vigor for several years, and believe that it has caused my hair to retain its natural color."—Mrs. H. J. King, Dealer in Dry Goods, &c., Bishopville, Md.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Mr. Seely Edsall,
Plainfield, N. J.

In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.

We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.

You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.

Yours truly,
R. S. PEALE & CO.

Remember that Mr. Edsall is the only authorized agent for Plainfield for the sale of these books at the wonderful low price of $1 50 per volume.

CRUSHED

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

THE NEW REGISTRY LAW.

The Commissioners of Registration Organized.

As exclusively stated in THE PRESS of Saturday, the county commissioners of registration, appointed by the Governor under the new election law, met at the court house, Elizabeth, yesterday morning, and organized.

The commissioners are Hon. William Chamberlain of Rahway, and E. C. Woodruff of Elizabeth, Republicans; and Judge James T. Wiley of Elizabeth, and Hon. Robert L. Livingston of this city, Democrats.

Mr. Woodruff was absent. Judge Wiley was elected President, and Mr. Woodruff permanent secretary. The commissioners then adjourned until August 13, when they will meet to receive the nominations from the county executive committees of the men who are to compose the election boards in the various districts in the county. The commissioners have power to reject the names of any persons whom they find not competent.

To Be Seen at Moy's Pharmacy.

The "fast time" between Brighton and London made by the mail coaches of the olden day has been the mark which English cyclists have been having a shy at during the past few months. The record of the best coach time for the 108 miles is 7h. 50m., and the coach was driven by the celebrated James Selby.

On March 30 four Brighton men placed at the regular relay houses managed to cover the distance from London to Brighton and return (same route as the coach record was made on) in 7h. 32m., thus beating Selby's time by eighteen minutes.

On April 15 four Catford men—J. Blair, E. R. Scantlebury, W. A. Scantlebury and W. W. Arnott—on the "relay system," did the round distance of 108 miles in 7h. 25m. 15s., thus beating the Brighton men's time by 6m. 45s., and the old coach time by 24m. 45s. On each of these trials each of the "relay party" used one machine, and each man had to cover an average of 27 miles.

The coaching record has also been beaten by a single Catford rider, by 14 minutes.

Lamp Lighter Pangborn's Successors in Hard Luck.

The Committee on Street Lights, of the Borough Council, expressed to W. N. Pangborn at his home last evening, their appreciation of his faithful and satisfactory service as lamp lighter for the past two years and a half. They also stated that in their opinion his removal by the N. J. Globe Gaslight company, was an outrage, and they would seek at once a way to light the streets themselves and decline to renew their contract with the company.

The Italians who have been put in Mr. Pangborn's place, have already proved their incompetency. One of them burned up a lamp last night, and another almost burned up the side of his face.

Arrivals at Hotel Netherwood.

The following are the arrivals at The Netherwood during the past week:

W. B. Crane, E. R. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Jenney, Mrs. S. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Gildersleeve, P. R. Bonner, H. Y. Stillman, H. L. Eaton, Thomas H. Cullen, Miss Florence Taylor, J. B. Ryer, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lattin and child, Ira Perego, Miss E. L. Perego, Miss G. E. Perego, Miss Fannie Whitehouse, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Balch and children, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Williams and child, of Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sanford and J. W. Sanford, Jr., of Plainfield.

Plainfielders at Asbury.

The following residents of the city and borough are registered at Asbury Park:

Bristol—Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., Ray and Gladys Biglow, Mrs. Thos. Rafferty, Mrs. Samuel J. McCutchen, Wm. M. McCutchen, Lester M. Daniel, R. M. Stelle. Metropolitan—Mrs. L. M. French and Miss French, J. A. Jackson, Leadley—Dr. D. U. Adams and family, Mrs. J. Honeyman, Mrs. J. M. Hatfield and child, J. L. Marshall and family. Brunswick—C. N. King. Sunset Hall—Max Munger. Minot House—Henry Beals.

Local Base Ball.

The Young Crescents of this city defeated the Unions of Grant avenue, in a game of base ball on the Sixth street ball grounds, Saturday, by a score of 19 to 2. The Young Crescents knocked three of the Union's pitchers out of the box. D. Guinne the pitcher for the Young Crescents proved himself a good one by striking out five of the Unions. Following is the

A Good Show—Everybody Delighted.

As will be seen by announcements, Walter L. Main's Great International Shows exhibit here this evening. Concerning this entertainment the St. Clairsville, (Ohio), Chronicle of May 17, 1888, says:

Walter L. Main's show is one of a superior order of excellence. Everything about it was bright and clean. All the features were good. The tent was packed and everybody was greatly delighted. This show is now consolidated with the great VanAmburgh show, but the admission price remains the same.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

A MOVE FOR SHORTER SPELLING.

Resolutions Adopted at the National Editorial Association's Session of 1890.

Resolutions with regard to spelling-reform were introduced at the fifth meeting of the National Editorial Association, held recently, and referred to a committee, with the following recommendations in regard thereto by the committee on resolutions: "In relation to the resolution relative to the adoption of a reformed orthography, your committee would respectfully refer the resolution back to the Association for consideration and discussion. We recommend that, in view of the radical nature of the proposed changes, a paper should be prepared on the subject to be read at our next meeting; that the person selected for the labor should consult a philologist, educator and members of the Association, and embody in complete form the salient points of this important and progressive reform."

WHEREAS, The present style of American orthography is illogical, inconsistent and misleading; and

WHEREAS, It is very desirable to encourage the tendency to simplification in the spelling of words, and believing that it would be the part of wisdom to make some practical reforms in orthography; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend to the journalists of America that, on and after the first day of ——, 1889 [1890], they adopt and put in force the following rules for amended spelling:

First.—Drop ue at the end of words like dialogue, catalogue, etc., where the preceding vowel is short. Thus spell demagog, epilog, synagog, etc. When the preceding vowel is long, as in prorogue, vogue, disembogue, retain final letters as at present.

Second—Drop final e in such words as definite, infinite, favorite, etc., when the preceding vowel is short. Thus spell opposit, pretext, hypocrit, requisit, etc. When the preceding vowel is long, as in polite, finite, unite, etc., retain present forms unchanged.

Third—Drop final te in words like quartette, coquette, cigarette, etc. Thus spell cigaret, roset, epaulet, vedet, gazet, etc.

Fourth—Drop final me in words like programme. Thus spell program, oriflam, gram, etc.

Fifth—Change ph to f in words like phantom, telegraph, phase, etc. Thus spell alfabet, filosofy, fonetic, fotograf, etc.

Sixth—substitute e for the dipthongs œ and æ when they have the sound of that letter. Thus spell eolian, esthetic, diarrhea, subpena, esofagus, atheneum, etc.

N. B.—No change in proper names.

Resolved, That the journalists of the United States be recommended and requested to use their influence to secure the adoption, in Congress, of the resolution offered by Hon. Frank Lawler, at the last session, providing for the enforcement of the foregoing rules in the Government Printing Office.

The Elizabeth Railroad Crossing.

It is said that the Central Railroad company will refuse to ratify the agreement arranged between it, Elizabeth city and the Pennsylvania railroad company, by which the two railroads were to elevate their tracks and thus abolish grade crossings. The Central company is said to be dissatisfied with the changes which were made in the original plan by the City Council. Should the Central company withdraw from the agreement the entire scheme will fall through and the dangerous grade crossings be worse than ever, as the Pennsylvania Railroad has everything in readiness to lay an additional track, and the Central will follow its example, which would make eight tracks intersecting each other, instead of six as at present.

Excitement About Dogs in Rahway.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

There is considerable excitement in Rahway over the poisoning of dogs. Seven were put to death on Thursday night and several since. Some of the dogs were very valuable, and there is much indignation on part of the owners.

There is some scare about the dogs running unmuzzled in the city, and several persons have been recently bitten. One day in the latter part of last week a son of Mr. David Hetfield was badly bitten, and yesterday Harry Gibbons was crossing a street near his home, when he was attacked by two hounds and torn by them. His hands and cheek were badly lacerated by the teeth of the brutes.

Honest Words From an Honest Source.

The Christian Intelligencer of the 2d inst., said: "Amid the storm of obloquy falling from some sources upon Governors Hill and Abbett, it is pleasant to notice one good thing in each. Our Governor signed the bill exempting religious and benevolent institutions from the collateral inheritance impost, which was simply a mean and needless tax on charity. The Governor of New Jersey, despite earnest solicitation to the contrary, refused to sign the bill licensing gambling on the race courses. It is a pleasure to speak favorably of dignitaries when they do well, and both of these officials deserve well of their constituents in these respects at least."

Spasms and Convulsions.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY, in spasms and convulsions, is a specific which acts upon the irritated brain through the general circulation, by its action upon the heart. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

TIPS ON TABLE TOPICS.

FORKS are used with the right hand, and are pointed toward the mouth no more directly than is necessary to put food between the lips.

SPOONS with tea, coffee, chocolate and bouillon remain in the saucer when not conveying liquid to the mouth. They are correctly placed at the right of the cup whenever not in use.

LAY your knife and fork parallel with each other and obliquely across a plate that is to be removed for the coming of another course. To forget this increases noise when an attendant is gathering them together.

IT is in bad taste to lay a napkin over the breast. At elegant tables the napkin is only partly shaken from its folds, and is then dropped in the lap to use for wiping the lips and fingers. It is supposed that those who have refined table manners do not scatter crumbs or drop food.

IF olives are served with tongs, or a spoon, or fork, use the same to lift the fruit to your plate, but eat it with your fingers. If there are no spoons, tongs, or forks, with which to serve yourself, take the olives with your fingers and not with your own fork or spoon. Do the same with cut sugar.

MOST food is eaten with a fork, the knife being only its preparer, except when cheese that is neither grated nor creamy is partaken of as an ever-respected part of a dessert. Here it is that knives retain their grip on ancient custom and bring it down to modern tables. Cheese is eaten with a knife.

AN attempt has been made to introduce the wearing of gloves at table. This plan is too absurd an innovation, and will never become a custom. Gloves are worn to the table by women always, and a few men prefer to wear them; but they are removed by both men and women as soon as they are seated.

DO NOT pass to another a plate that has been sent to you by a host or hostess, because it disturbs the plan of your entertainer. It is silently taking an exception to his sense of fitness or courtesy and substituting your own in its stead. Of course this applies only when competent service is at hand. In its absence, with the approval of a host, to aid at table is obligatory.

NEVER bite off a piece from your dinner bread. Do not cut the bread served you at any time. If it is to be buttered take a small bit, not more than two mouthfuls, and spread it. A slice of buttered bread is much too suggestive of the nursery to please fastidious fellow guests. All warm bread should be torn apart, or broken, and never cut. If it is served in large pieces break it for your neighbor also.

FORKS are laid for such dessert as are not wholly liquid, these instruments being used to sop broken bits of pudding in its sauce, thus banishing the spoon whenever possible. Ice-creams are eaten with forks, but water ices with spoons, and good form does not tell us why. Its commands are not often thus arbitrary. Strawberries are eaten with forks, unless their leafy tips have a stem, in which case it is proper and graceful to take each with the fingers, touch it to the sugar lying upon one's plate, then half dip it in cream and place it to the mouth. The same service of sugar and cream is performed by a fork when strawberries are not served with their stems.

TRANSPIRING OF LATE.

A RATHER remarkable feature of a literary society's picnic at Ringing Rocks near Pottstown, was the rendition of "Home, Sweet Home," which music was extracted from rocks as they lay imbedded in the ground.

A VERY ancient Egyptian papyrus recently discovered at Kahun was evidently part of a medical treatise, and contained this prescription: "Treatment of a woman who is pained in her legs and in all her limbs, as one who is beaten. Do with regard to her thus: Let her eat grease until she is cured."

A MIGRATING flock of birds which was passing over Cedar Rapids, Ia., one night recently encountered a terrible rain and thunder-storm, and, attracted by the electric lights, gathered about them on the streets and attempted to fly into the stores. Over one thousand birds fell dead in the streets from coming in contact with the wires.

A FIRE company at Winsted, Conn., being unable recently to get any but a small stream from the hose, made an examination, and found about eight inches of an eel's tail sticking out of the nozzle of the hose pipe. The pipe was unscrewed from the hose and the astonished firemen fished a live eel out of the pipe that weighed nearly three pounds.

A CITIZEN of Little York, Cortland County, N. Y., has been annoyed for some time by strange and unaccountable noises about the house. It was the source of much annoyance and mystery until he tore off some clapboards near the eaves and found a family of one hundred and seven bats. He buried them in the garden and now sleeps undisturbed.

A RAISER of fancy poultry at Hartford, Conn., was surprised the other day in looking over his young chicks to see six little strangers running about, crying piteously, as though they had lost their mother. An inspection showed that they were quail, having strolled in from an adjoining hay field for a friendly call on the chickens. The parent birds did not show themselves, neither were they heard. After a stay of about two hours the little fellows disappeared in the long grass of the field.

AN eccentric old gentleman recently knocked out a whole graduating class in a Western college. He got the boys together the day before commencement and told them that he would give ten dollars to every man who would answer correctly two plain, every-day questions. The questions were as follows: What is the origin of the common phrase, "To hope against hope?" and: Why is the human ear shaped as it is, instead of being flat? Not a man answered the questions correctly, and the old gentleman went away declaring that colleges are a failure.

INDUSTRIAL AND SCIENTIFIC.

CANADA does an extensive business in homemade cheese. In 1888-9 its exports amounted to 89,169,021 pounds.

A NEW disease called photo-electric ophthalmia is described as due to the continual action of the electric light on the eyes

MORE than a million acres in the Northwest are annually planted with flax, chiefly for seed, of which some 13,000,000 bushels are produced every year.

IT is said that the hop vine is the best substitute for rags in the manufacture of paper. The vine pulp possesses great length, strength, flexibility and delicacy.

AUSTRALIA is the "banner" sheep-raising country of the world. The exports of wool last year amounted to 231,000,000 pounds, against 123,000,000 pounds from South America.

IT has been suggested that the phonograph shall be used as a cash register. Every sum the cashier receives might be called in the phonograph, and then recorded as a check on the accounts.

BESIDES being much more expeditious in its workings, the electrical tanning process turns out leather having seventeen per cent. more tensile strength than that tanned by the ordinary process.

THERE is a firm in Cincinnati which each year beats 21,000 gold dollars into gold leaf, and as each dollar can be beat into a sheet that will carpet two rooms 16½ feet square, some idea may be formed of its tenuity.

THE principal manufactures of Boston in 1796 consisted of rum, loaf sugar, beer, sailcloth, cordage, wool and cotton cards, playing cards, pot and pearl ashes, paper hangings, hats, plate, glass, tobacco and chocolate.

IN a water telephone recently patented in England the apparatus employed for the collection of sound transmitted through water between ships has been improved by constructing the apparatus so that any pressure caused by the increased density of the water has no effect upon it.

AN instrument has recently been exhibited in London by which a photograph can be taken of drops of water in the course of their formation. It consists of a lantern and lenses, by which a water-trough, the source of the drops, can be strongly illuminated, together with a lightning camera having a revolving disk with one perforation.

EXPERIMENTS made in Sweden by M. Sandberg on the strength of iron rails during winter have shown that steel rails containing over four per cent. of carbon are apt to break in cold weather. In fact, the result of his investigation points to the use of rails having less carbon than this—say, three per cent.—in countries as cold in winter as Norway and Sweden.

THE annual catch of fish on the European and North American coasts is computed by a German statistician to amount to 150,000 tons. A ton of fish corresponds with twenty-five sheep in weight, and with twenty sheep in nourishing power. Therefore, the total European and North American catch equals in number 42,000,000 sheep and in nourishing power 30,000,000.

NEW applications of the electric motor are being made daily. There is a flavor of the grotesque in the fact that it is now being used for massage. The enterprising practitioner is a doctor in Louisville, Ky., who found that, however satisfactory the pounding and pummeling of the process might be to the patient, it was no joke to him. In a happy moment he bethought himself of the Briarean electric motor, and now all he has to do is to hitch on his adjustment and keep an eye on its accurate and never-tiring operations.

RURAL BREVITIES.

SYSTEMATIC selling is as necessary as good production.

TRY to keep your farm productions above the average in quality. There is money in it.

ENGLISH shepherds find cut cabbage preferable to beets or turnips for sheep. Lambs in early winter are especially fond of it.

THE money value of a draught horse that has been trained to walk four miles an hour is full one-half more than one that will not go more than two and a half or three.

A NOTED Western cattle breeder says that "breeders have passed the time when they aim to grow steers first and then fatten them." They feed to grow and fatten all along the line.

UNRULY cattle on a farm are very troublesome, but the cause is not hard to find. It is, almost invariably, poor pasture and semi-starvation. Why shouldn't a hungry animal jump fences or push them down?

IN building a wire fence set your posts and turn a furrow against them on each side. This lessens the space between the bottom wire and the ground and indicates to animals the presence of an obstruction.

A MULCH in dry weather prevents the sun from extracting the moisture the plants need. To keep an inch of the surface stirred is the same as to haul on leaves, straw or other mulch. The loose soil is a mulch to that below it.

GOOD ventilation at all times—by night and by day—is highly essential to the health of our poultry stock. Much of the disease which the birds are afflicted with from time to time may be traced for its origin directly to a neglect to ventilate the fowl-houses.

TALK over the farm management with the boys, and get their opinions. As a rule, parents do a great deal of thinking and planning for the boys that it would be much better to let them do themselves. Responsibility should be placed upon them, just in proportion as they are able to bear it.

IT is the most natural way to manure melons in the hill. The general idea is that the melon gets nourishment only from its original roots. But during the season secondary roots are formed on the branches, and these contribute largely to the growth of the fruit. The whole ground should therefore be made rich, and if possible the year before being planted with melons or other vines.

POETRY OF THE PRESENT.

Took No Risks.

The knot was tied, the pair were wed,
And then the smiling bridegroom said
Unto the preacher: "Shall I pay
To you the usual fee to-day,
Or would you have me wait a year
And give you then a hundred clear,
If I should find the marriage state
As happy as I estimate?"
The preacher lost no time in thought,
To his reply no study brought,
There were no wrinkles on his brow;
Said he: "I'll take three dollars now."
—Merchant Traveller.

To-Day.

I am at peace with all of life to-day—
(So long I've sailed a troubled, angry sea!)
O, precious thought! can I have found the way
Will lead me back to sweet tranquility?
Lost faith, lost hope, lost love am I to find?
If this be so then surely God is kind.

A strange new strength seems to my spirit born,
A subtle something—child of tear and sigh—
That came as quiet as the rose at morn
Unfolds its petals to a troubled sky.
Serene amid the elemental strife—
So waked my soul unto a fuller life.

The summer skies were never half so blue,
The birds sang never half so sweet a lay—
So long, so long the time, if e'er I knew
A joy so tranquil as I know to-day.
I wonder if 'tis so with other men,
Or have I only come to live again?

"God knows the heart," ah! pitiful to view
That seething furnace of misdeeds must be,
Where passions still their horrid race renew—
Hot-fingered imps that weave man's destiny—
But He to-day upon my heart has laid
A soothing hand and I am unafraid.

A life of worldly pleasure unrestrained,
Compared to this To-day of peace, were naught.
So long my heart has struggled, overpained,
So long my soul a quiet refuge sought—
Supernal bliss! in this new day I find
Sweet recompense for all that lies behind.
—Charles Eugene Banks, in Arkansaw Traveler.

An Untimely Accident.

In a hammock slowly swinging,
Where the fireflies are winging,
Underneath the trees,
Sit a youth and maiden slender,
And with conversation tender
Warm the evening breeze.

He is telling her his passion—
Urging her in lover fashion
To become his wife.
She is listening, coy, unwilling,
But she doesn't miss a thrilling
Word, you bet your life!

So when, certain of his bliss, her
Lover forward bends to kiss her,
And will not desist—
With his arm around her stealing,
And his brown eyes so appealing,
How can she resist?

But he misses the sweet token;
For before the words are spoken
That will seal his bliss,
Snap! the hammock rope is parted,
And the lovers, broken-hearted,
Feel too mad to kiss.
—N. O. Picayune.

Day Dreams.

If I were fair as some young eastern queen,
If love's sweet music throbbed in every tone,
If every day, and all glad hours between,
I claimed by right of beauty for my own
The hearts of men who bow before one shrine
Of golden curls, and fathomless, sweet eyes,
White throat and crimson lips, could these be mine,
Oh love, be sure that I would only prize
The gift when it would make me fair to you;
And if you would not kiss my throat and hair,
And lend your head to see my eyes were true,
And smile to see your image ever there,
And if perchance you touched my finger tips,
Your pulses would not faster ebb and flow,
Ah! worthless then were curls and crimson lips,
And violet eyes, and brow and throat like snow.
—Lois Marshall Deen, in Atlanta Constitution.

Quiet Ways Are Best.

What's the use of worrying,
Of hurrying,
And scurrying,
Every body flurrying,
And breaking up their rest,
When every one is teaching us,
Preaching and beseeching us,
To settle down and end the fuss,
For quiet ways are best?
The rain that trickles down in showers
A blessing brings to thirsty flowers;
Sweet fragrance from each brimming cup,
The gentle zephyrs gather up.
There's ruin in the tempest's path;
There's ruin in a voice of wrath:
And they alone are blest
Who early learn to dominate
Themselves, their violence abate,
And prove, by their serene estate,
That quiet ways are best.

Nothing's gained by worrying,
By hurrying
And scurrying;
With fretting and with flurrying
The temper's often lost;
And in pursuit of some small prize
We rush ahead, and are not wise,
And find the unwonted exercise
A fearful price has cost.
'Tis better far to join the throng
That do their duty right along;
Reluctant they to raise a fuss,
Or make themselves ridiculous.
Calm and serene in heart and nerve,
Their strength is always in reserve,
And nobly stands each test;
And every day and all about,
By scenes within and scenes without,
We can discern, with ne'er a doubt,
That quiet ways are best.
—N. Y. Evangelist.

The "Original Package" Again.

She sat and she penned to her lover a note—
This Miss who would soon be a Mrs.—
And she kissed the white paper upon which she wrote
And marked with the pen all the kisses.

He got the sweet note from the girl he would wed,
Unloaded the love and the "smackage,"
But he kissed for the two lips, responsive and red,
The dainty "original package."
—Columbus Dispatch.

Which?

Two seeds by the sowers were dropped as they passed—
The one grows daily with noble increase,
The other but molders and rots away;
The one bears foliage, flowers and fruit,
The other a loathsome, dank decay;
Yet round each one was the warm earth's rest,
And the sheltered dark, where things grow best.
Which seed, O sower! did your hand cast?

Two thoughts by the speakers were uttered broadcast—
The one is aglow with purity, strength;
The other a foul and blighting breath.
For the one is Love, true, tender, divine;
The other is Sin, whose harvest is death.
In the dark of a heart each one was born,
The light of life, and the lie forsworn.
Which, tonight, O speaker! through your lips passed?
—Hannah Coddington, in S. S. Times.

Do You Know Him?

He takes offense at what you say,
Although you say it well;
It seems he always thinks you may
Mean more than words can tell.
He frowns and colors if you laugh,
Looks puzzled if you sigh;
He won't a fellow you can "chaff,"
He's such a mighty "I."

'Tis plagued hard to talk at all
To such a man as that;
He makes your mildest jokes look small
By wondering who they're at;
He finds in every word that's said
A something that can hit—
Because his world contains one head,
So every cap must fit.
—Eva Lovett Carson, in Judge.

FASHION'S FADS.

What the Queenly Dame Will Wear for Summer.

Gowns Light and Cool—Hats That Are Poems of Loveliness—Jackets and Wraps—Masculine Shirt Fronts All the Rage.

[Special New York Letter.]

Cotton gowns of new design and coloring are made up with as much care and originality as was formerly expended on the summer silk. Ginghams and zephyrs of fine quality and uncommon patterns are trimmed with real Irish point and Maltese lace—batiste comes in stripes and flowered patterns, and is draped to the figure over a silk lining with the artistic elegance and simplicity that betokens true skill. Foulards have somewhat lost their popularity—like every thing else in this country. A fashion can not be the exclusive right of "the lady born and bred." They have become too cheap and common to retain the position they have held for so many years. But in its place we have many beautiful and equally serviceable substitutes.

Washing surah with pale fine stripes and figures; real Chinese washing silk; genuine seersuckers; light-toned Louis XVI. silks in dainty pompadour designs, and sicilliennes and bengalines of rare beauty.

ZOUAVE JACKET.

Black lace, net and grenadines have made their appearance in full force. Fish-net is quite passe, and Brussels net in various qualities is in much better taste. Plain net is trimmed with broad black velvet ribbon, and for evening wear looks well with fine gold passementerie. Plaited or shirred skirts to hang plain over a silk underskirt finished with a foot-plaiting to protect the lace is the generally-accepted fashion.

A Zouave or Figaro jacket is a very useful little garment. It is simple and easily made. Very expensive ones are to be had, made of metal passementerie, gold braiding and jetted net, but pretty ones can be made at home at small cost.

With a lace or net skirt and several fancy blouse or surplus waists, a zouave jacket gives variety to the costume, in fact entirely changes its character. The one illustrated here is black velvet patterned with silver braid and worn over a gray benjaline blouse and skirt. As we all know the regular summer styles by this time perhaps it will be acceptable to devote some space to a few of the novelties and finishing touches of our costumes.

Deep lace ruching and embroidered frills of lace are made up into boas (with a smaller ruche at the top) and furnished with strings to tie at the neck. As the dress collar is cut low this season there is really some sense in this fashion borrowed of midwinter. It does not look well to go into the street with too much neck visible, and this dainty trifle is easily adjusted and is moreover becoming to most women.

SUMMER HATS.

The summer pereline is also a useful wrap. A yoke of guipure lace extends in one piece into a standing collar. Armure silk is shirred into this and then laid in loose plaits to fit the figure. Passementerie of Tuscan straw is used to trim some of the silk toilets sent from Paris; also russet-brown silk with veinings of gold are seen, but garnitures of fine cork deftly cut and dyed in delicate tones is, perhaps, the greatest novelty of all.

For young ladies there is a pretty fancy for the unlined blouse waists of Brussels net in black or dotted Swiss in white, to be worn over a low-necked and short-sleeved slip-waist. The net extends up to the neck, where it is shirred into a frill; the same at the wrist. The effect is very simple and girlish. The most fashionable hats are fragile, airy creations—transparent, allowing the hair to be seen through a lace work of stems, tulle, net, braid or passementerie or an entirely open crown. The brims are also fragile, being either left unlined altogether or faced with finely-shirred tulle or lace to carry out the filmy effect.

Horse hair twisted into fancy plaits is much used and fancy straws and chips are dyed peculiar and novel shades.

Flowers are superabundant. Hats seem overflowing with these dainty reproductions from nature. Two pretty models are shown here—one a flower bonnet showing the twists of hair on the crown, and the other a stylish hat of entirely new shape.

The masculine looking shirt front that hailed from the other side early this spring—came, saw and conquered the public taste to such an extent that every other woman one sees on the street has arrayed herself therein, and well dressed ladies have had a few times wear out of the imported article, and then left it severely alone, for her less exclusive sister. Of course as a habit shirt and for certain sporting costumes hey will remain in use, but when the

SUMMER PERELINE

"rage" commences a fashion loses whatever of piquancy it may have originally possessed.

The sailor hat is still with us, and I am glad for what it lacks in grace it makes up in utility—if only women who have reached the age where they are "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet" would know enough to put away childish things and not make themselves look ridiculous by wearing their daughters' headgear. If any thing is likely to call forth the inward derision of the multitude it is to see a woman, "fair, fat and forty," strutting along in a sailor hat. And yet we see it every day.

Why don't they borrow the baby's pinafore too, and call a little attention to their wrinkles and passe complexion and figure.

Ill-natured remarks, you say. Well, perhaps they are; but if you don't have to view old mutton masquerading as spring lamb every day of your life, be thankful that you can keep your respect for the judgment in dress of women of "uncertain age." F. P. B.

Washington's Future.

When Prof. Goldwin Smith was recently writing up his impressions of Washington, he said: "A wonderful change has come over the city during the last twenty years. It used to be nothing but the meeting place of Congress, but now it is becoming the favorite place of residence for people unconnected with politics or the Administration, and a corresponding change has taken place in its outward appearance. It is blossoming out into a gay and beautiful city. It is becoming the dwelling place of a very cultivated, and thoroughly catholic society, which seems likely to draw to itself much that is choicest in the United States." Prof. Smith is perfectly right, and the truth of his statement will become more and more apparent, and very rapidly, too, as the years go by. When the National Library building opposite the Capitol is finished so that the students from the Methodist University, Columbia University, Catholic University, and Georgetown University, as well as the various law and medical schools, can have access to that great inexhaustible storehouse of knowledge, Washington will become a great literary center which will surprise the old world as well as the people of this Republic. This country is yet destined to produce many eminent men in the field of letters, who will come from all parts of the Republic to the National Capital and step forth into fame on the banks of the Potomac.

From Sire to Son.

An old college president says: "I have seen pupils graduate, receive congratulations of friends, and then drop out of sight. Years afterwards, I have been struck with the similarity of features of some new pupils, and often forget myself and call them by names which were familiar to me many years before. They are the children of those who had gone out from under my control in the long ago. It is wonderful to see, not only the transmission of form and feature, but the similarity of acquired habits which are conveyed from generation to generation." Instances were related also, showing that the written records of the children are almost identical with the records made many years before by their parents. There are more things to be learned concerning our race, and its characteristics, than any of us have yet dreamed in our philosophy.

Our Aid to Ireland.

A distinguished Irish-American, recently visiting Washington, said to a correspondent: "It is no wonder that the Irish are friendly to the Americans, and worship them almost. Within the past fifty years over $100,000,000 have been sent into Ireland by the friends and relatives of the Irish in North America. The sums annually sent have increased every year since 1878. The United States Government is prayed for every night and morning by many an Irish peasant. The rent of many a farm in Ireland is regularly paid by members of the family who are solving the problem of life in America, while the old folks remain at home on "the ould sod."

Sad Accident.

Mrs. O'Coork—Arra worra, an' so poor little Teddy do be dead. Phat happened 'im?

Mrs. McQuirk—Poor angel! It wor an accidint. You know how the broth av a bye wud amuse hisself breakin' Chinymin's windies, an' t'rowin' bricks at the haythen?

Mrs. O'Coork—Yis; bliss th' dear choild's sowl.

Mrs McQuirk—Wull, this avenin' he t'rew a brick at a Chinymin, but he made a mistake, poor bye, an' hit an Otrish leddy. She kilt 'im.—Puck.

Shifting the Responsibility.

Giles—What will you do if she doesn't like the lines you have written in her album?

Tubbs—Enclose them with quotation marks.—Life.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows.

Dolph—I'm awful sorry hot weather is coming

Uncle—Why?

Dolph—'Cause I shall have to wear such thin pants.—Munsey's Weekly.

LITERARY ODDS AND ENDS.

In France the copyright of an author is for life.

Dr. Smiles says: "I never studied the art of composition. I read a multitude of the best books, and from that I suppose I learned to compose."

Mrs. Caroline Atherton Briggs Mason, who wrote the popular song, "Do They Miss Me at Home?" died recently at the Worcester (Mass.) Insane Asylum. She was born in 1833.

Who is ready to pay $3,000 for a set of books? That is the price put upon each of the few existing sets of John Gould's "Birds." The forty-three volumes of each set are elegantly bound and fitted into carved cabinets.

George Macdonald observes: "If a man has any thing to say he will manage to say it; if he has nothing to communicate, there is no reason why he should have a good style any more than he should have a good purse without any money, or a good scabbard without any sword. For my part I always scorned the very idea of forming a style."

Will Carleton is reported as having recently said: "Other writers of verse have laid great stress on the artistic faculty which many of them have possessed in an eminent degree, but with me the aim has always been first and last to reach the heart of the peoples and to say those things which should both entertain and make better. I hope I have not altogether failed in my efforts. I would rather appeal to the heart of a man than to his intellect."

Some juvenile efforts of Browning's which were lately sold in London, were accompanied by this letter from his father:

Bank, March 11, 1843.

"He has not the slightest suspicion that any of his very juvenile performances are in existence. I have several of the originals by me. They are all extemporaneous productions, nor has any one a single alteration. There was one amongst them 'On Bonaparte,' remarkably beautiful—and had I not seen it in his own handwriting I never would have believed it to have been the production of a child. It is destroyed."

Monsieur Biossi, a contemporary of Voltaire, wrote a great number of pieces for the theater, most of which were so loosely written that they were compressed by the performers into farces or pieces of one act. Biossi was much hurt at such treatment, and one day when a full piece of his was cut down from three acts to one he could no longer refrain. "Zounds, gentlemen," he cried, "if my plays are to be hacked and hewed in this manner, what shall I do to have a piece represented in five acts?" Voltaire, who was behind the scenes at the same time, replied: "Write it in eleven, and perhaps you may succeed."

Before Stanley left London on his last expedition Sir John Pender gave him a copy of Burns's poems. Sir John in recently writing to Mr. Bryce, says: "When I met Stanley in Egypt in the spring I had not been in conversation with him many minutes before he reminded me of the little copy of Burns' poems, and he said it had been a great source of comfort to him; he had read it many times over, and he believed there was no better thumbed book in existence than that little volume. He said that Burns was such a child of nature, and that he was so much in sympathy with him, that many times he was not only deeply touched, but greatly encouraged by the perusal of the poems."

FREAKS OF NATURE.

A census enumerator discovered a family of ten children in San Francisco who were all club-footed.

Franklin, Pa., has a child who sleeps every other three days. The case baffles the physicians. The child is in perfect health.

An Indiana cow five years old has given birth to eight calves. At three years she gave birth to quadruplets, and the two following years to twins.

A pet doe at the Missouri penitentiary gave birth several days ago to twins. This is said by those who are up in natural history to be of very rare occurrence.

A Macon (Ga.) man has a frying-size chicken with not a feather, excepting a few on its wings. The chicken has been featherless ever since it was hatched and enjoys perfect health.

There has been discovered in Augusta, Ga., a wonderful spring which cures any kind of nausea and other stomach troubles. Its cures are pronounced immediate and remarkable.

A radish is on exhibition at a store in Tennille, Ga., which, with slight deformity, bears a perfect resemblance to a human hand with five fingers. It was grown on the plantation of E. B. Cullins, who died about three weeks ago, and it is said by folks who visited Mr. Cullins during his last illness that the radish is a perfect likeness of one of the old man's hands just before he died.

William Martin has a curiosity in the shape of a gosling at his home in Eoton township, near Tunkhannock, Pa. This little "farm bird," about 1 month old, has two feet, but one of them is a perfect chicken's foot; the other is a natural "web" foot, and when placed in the water it goes around much like a top. This freak of nature is a new one, and we doubt if there is another like it in existence.

A farmer of Switzerland County, Indiana, has on his farm there a lamb, which walks on two feet, and in an upright position. The fore legs are perfect, but the hind ones are only stubs and of little use in walking. So his lambship, when he desires to go up hill, just stands up on his fore feet and moves off. He presents a ludicrous appearance while on a jaunt about the farm for his morning constitutional, and is withal a remarkable freak of nature.

One of nature's strange freaks may be seen on a farm, four miles north of Flora, Mo. It is a colt, not unlike other colts, except a mark in its face. Beginning on a line with the lower part of the nostrils and extending to a point just below the eyes, is a perfect outline of a rattlesnake. Its mouth and eyes are perfectly formed. On its tail seven rattles and a button may be distinctly seen, and stranger still, the outline of the snake is raised, being about as large as a lead pencil, and not a hair on it.

FOREIGN FRAGMENTS.

London consumes over one hundred million pounds of butter a year.

The chef de cuisine in charge of Queen Victoria's table is a Mohammedan.

The Government of Chili, it is said, has decided to purchase fourteen Krupp batteries at a cost of $500,000.

Lord Brassy and Lord Grosvenor, backed by a syndicate, will turn Brussels into a seaport by building a canal and three immense basins large enough to admit ships of 1,000 tons.

A statue of Emperor William I. is to be erected opposite the imperial castle in Berlin. It will represent the Kaiser on horseback. The design is to be decided by a competition open to all sculptors.

The Russian War Department, it is reported, is considering the advisability of acquiring the sole right to a new shirt of mail, which is said to be extraordinarily light, impervious to bullets or saber thrusts, and cheap to manufacture. A Russian General is the inventor.

A Kulin brahmin ten years old is reported to have married in India recently eighteen wives. These included six aunts, four sisters and eight daughters of a fellow-brahmin, and they varied in age from fifty years to three months, the youngest bride being brought in on a brass plate.

Meissonier's painting of Napoleon, known as the "1814," has just been sold in Paris for $170,000. This is believed to be the largest amount ever paid for a painting during the lifetime of the artist. It was upon this picture that Meissonier worked, according to the story, out of doors in a snow-storm, before a mirror, so as to catch the exact effect he was after.

An amusing little episode occurred during the visit of the Duchess of Teck to Exeter Hall, where she went the other day to distribute the prizes given by the Ragged School Union. A regular programme of songs, recitations, etc., had been arranged for the entertainment, and first on the list stood the "Hurrah!" chorus, by which the Princess was to be welcomed. Most unusual thing, however, for her, she was very late, and the chairman, Lord Kinnaird, was obliged to begin before her arrival. The chorus and a song had already been sung before she appeared; the children rose to welcome the duchess with the next song on the list, which, by a queer chance, happened to be entitled: "Wake up, Mary."

The Bengal police have published the following extraordinary warning to passengers at all the stations on the Eastern Bengal railway: "Passengers are hereby cautioned against taking any thing to eat or drink from unknown persons, as there are many who live by poisoning travelers. They first of all court acquaintance with passengers in a sarai or some other place, and then gain their confidence on the plea of being fellow-travelers going to the same place. When they reach a place convenient for the purpose they poison the water or food of the passengers, who become insensible, and then they decamp with all the property. They also at times poison the passengers' water when being drawn out of wells, or sweetmeats brought from the bazar, or food when being cooked."

CHILDREN'S CHATTER.

Teacher—"And now, children, you have heard the story of Ananias. What lesson should we learn from his fate?" Willie—"Never to get caught."

"Grandma," said little Tom, "they have got awful nice tumblers at the circus." "It used to be the same way years ago, Tom—filled with red lemonade, ain't they?"

Grandma—"I should like to know if that slip I set out four weeks ago has rooted." Little Bessie—"No, grandma, it hasn't got a root. I've pulled it up every day and looked."

Six-year-old—"Grandpa, we have come to wish you many happy returns of your birthday. And mamma says if you give us each a gold dollar, we are not to lose it on our way home."

Jimmy (who has just returned from a party)—"Oh, mamma, I do wish I'd worn my overcoat!" Mamma—"Why dear?" Jimmy—"Because I could have eaten a great deal more ice-cream."

"Why, Archie, you're not at the jam again and only punished for it an hour ago?" "Yes, mar; I heard you tell auntie you thought you had whipped me too hard, and I thought I'd even things up."

"How long did it take Noah to build the ark?" asked the teacher. "Dunno," came the answer. "Why don't you?" inquired the teacher sternly. "'Cause," replied a five-year-old youngster, "I wasn't there."

Teacher—"Freddy, you may go to the principal's room and see if he is in, and then come and tell me." Freddy (on his return)—"He ain't there." Teacher (severely)—"He ain't there?" Freddy (correcting himself)—"He is went out."

Reverend Primrose—"You are the strangest little boy I ever saw. While other children of your age are light-hearted and thoughtless, you are always sad." Little Johnnie—"That's 'cause the other fellers ain't got a cross-eyed mother who can see when you make faces behind her back."

Mrs. Rambo—"Is your mother at home, Thomas?" Tommy Dodd—"No, ma'am; she's out." Mrs. Rambo—"How unfortunate! Tell her I shall call again to-morrow, will you?" Tommy Dodd—"Yes'm. I'll tell her; but it won't do any good. I heard her say she was always out when you called."

A kindly old lady was cross-examining a class of Sunday scholars some time ago. She sought to impress upon her youthful audience the importance of maintaining through life a good name, and reminded them that Solomon had declared a good name to be better than riches. "Now, boys, tell me what you would rather have when you grow up to be men. And please think before you answer." Up came several hands; but the first one called stopped any further inquiry. "Please, ma'am," shouted the little urchin, "I'd rather have whiskers."

POWDER EXPLOSION

Thirteen Hundred Kegs Blow Up in an Ohio Town.

TEN PEOPLE REPORTED KILLED.

A Large Number Injured and Property Wrecked and Burned.

The Kegs Were in Cars and a Collision Occurred—A Brakeman Blown to Atoms—Fifteen Girls at Work in the Cartridge Factory Crippled—Workmen's Cottages Shattered.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—A terrible explosion occurred at King's powder mill on the Little Miami railroad, 29 miles east of this city. Ten persons were killed and a dozen seriously wounded.

Two empty freight cars were being rolled on to a side track where a car containing 500 kegs of gunpowder was standing. As the cars struck, there was a terrific explosion, and immediately afterward another car containing 800 kegs of gunpowder exploded, making 1,300 kegs altogether. William Frauley, a brakeman in the service of the Little Miami, was standing on one of the empty cars when the explosion ocurred. His body must have been blown to atoms. No trace of it has yet been found. Five other persons, supposed to be employes of the powder company were killed.

The King Powder Company and the Peters Cartridge Works have works on both sides of the river along the railroad. The explosion occurred on the south side, and the destruction was enormous. There are a number of cottages occupied by workmen in the powder factory and close to the track. These were shattered by the explosion and their inmates injured.

Twelve or fifteen girls at work in the cartridge factory were crippled by the explosion. The railway station and the freight house belonging to the Little Miami Railroad, together with all the adjacent buildings, were burned. The track and ties are fairly torn out and a great hole ploughed in the ground. The Peters cartridge factory was burned. Nothing but a mass of blackened rdins remains to mark the spot where the building stood.

MARTINIQUE'S DISASTER.

Further Particulars of the Terrible Fire at Fort La France.

PORTLAND, Me., July 16.—J. H. Hamlen & Son, of this city, have received a letter from their representative at St. Pierre, Martinique, dated June 27 and giving later particulars of the great disaster at Fort La France.

The fire began about 7:30 a. m., June 22, spread highly before a high wind, and by the following morning had ravaged along the sea shore from the western side of the Savannah to the Riviere Levassor. More than 1,700 buildings were destroyed, and with the exception of a very small portion, the antique city of Fort La France is in ruins.

Many people perished, and twenty-five bodies have been recovered.

The quarters of the thickly populated area of the city is destroyed, and seven-eighths of the people, numbering from 6,000 to 7,000, are homeless.

The demand made upon the charity of those who were spared has reduced them to almost the same state of destitution.

Money must be had immediately, or the distress at Fort La France will become absolute starvation.

Gaudalonpe has sent the steamer Alayon laden with food. The Bank of Gepe has remitted 5,000 francs as the first instalment of a relief fund from the sister isle.

The letter makes an appeal for help to generous Americans.

A STRONG MARKET.

Londoners Purchasing Stocks on Account of the Signing of the Silver Bill.

LONDON, July 16.—The signing of the Silver bill by President Harrison, although it was looked upon as a foregone conclusion, had a very stimulating effect upon prices on the Stock Exchange.

Bar silver was of course the first to feel the influence of the President's confirmation of the silver legislation of Congress, and at once rose to fifty pence an ounce, a selling price it has not attained for several years.

American securities also took on a degree of sympathetic activity, and increased orders to buy were cabled to New York. The increase in the price of silver is by no means to be regarded as permanent, however. The practical effect of the new American Silver law has been pretty thoroughly discounted, and the opinion is general that the present activity in silver bullion will not continue long, and that the price will gradually recede to a point little if any above the figures which have ruled for the last year.

The Pope Outside the Vatican Grounds.

ROME, July 16.—For the first time since 1871, the Pope was seen outside the Vatican grounds. Pope Leo in an ordinary carriage, escorted by two of the Guardia Nobile, quitted the Vatican by the Fordamenta gate and drove to the Musei gate, through which he reentered the grounds of the palace. The sentries at the mint presented arms as the Pontiff passed and the workmen knelt.

Hotel Men in Session.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 16.—The New York State Hotel Men's Association in annual meeting here re-elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, W. D. Harrison, New York; Vice-President, W. G. Leland, Binghamton; Treasurer, R. J. Rockwell, Warren County; Secretary, W. A. Rosekrans, Albany. Saratoga was selected as the place of meeting next year.

LAKE PEPIN'S TRAGEDY.

Thirteen More Bodies Found Between the Decks of the Sea Wing.

RED WING, Minn., July 16.—All day funeral processions were passing into the City of the Dead, and stricken parents brothers and sisters wept over their sleeping friends as they looked out upon cruel Lake Pepin, where rippling waves seemed to be laughing in mockery over the appalling disaster of Sunday evening. The city was draped in mourning, and the constant tolling of the bells added to the solemnity of a day which will never be forgotten. Twenty-three residents of Red Wing are still missing, and the anguish of their intimate friends has driven some of them to their beds. The bodies of some of the lost may not be recovered for several days, as they have doubtless floated down the Mississippi.

The hull of the wrecked Sea Wing was again fully examined to-day. The boat was beached in shallow water by tugs. The craft was literally pulled to pieces by fastening stout cables to the upper works attached to tugs, which put on a full head of steam and hauled in different directions. Thirteen bodies were found between decks. The names of all of these were given in the list of 88 dead sent yesterday.

TERRIFIC THUNDER STORM.

Wilkesbarre Has a Small-Sized Flood and Property Badly Damaged.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 16.—A terrific thunder cloud burst over the Wyoming Valley last evening, and in a few minutes the low land for miles around was covered with water.

The Pennsylvania tracks were washed out, delaying passenger trains, while the Jersey Central was obliged to bring their trains into the city on the Lehigh Valley tracks. The Market street crossing of the Jersey Central was completely submerged, the water surrounding the station.

The streets in the lower portion of the city were flooded to a depth of six inches, and every cellar on Canal street was flooded. The damage will reach several thousand dollars.

YELLOW FEVER RAGING.

Fifty New Cases a Day Are Reported in Havana.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Passengers arriving on the steamer Orizaba from Havana state that yellow fever of a violent type is raging in that city. They say that 150 new cases a day are reported, and that foreigners are leaving the city as fast as they can get away.

The weather is very hot and the sanitary condition of the city is bad.

Veteran Sailors Dissatisfied.

BOSTON, July 16.—There is considerable dissatisfaction among the veteran sailors who are members of the various naval organizations of the United States because they have been assigned to the extreme left of the big parade on August 12. There are 16 naval veteran associations in the country and also a dozen grand army posts, and the Kearsarge Association of Boston is now making arrangements which it is expected may result in a special parade of naval veterans.

Accidentally Shot.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., July 16.—A special from Fultonville says Aurie Dunlap, aged about 15 years, while out with some other boys shooting birds with a small calibre rifle, accidentally discharged the gun, the ball striking the collar bone of one of his companions, named Alexander Horning, and passing down into his heart. Horning's comrades attempted to walk him toward home but the boy was obliged to lie down. He expired in a few minutes.

Tells How She Murdered Her Children.

RUTLAND, Vt., July 16.—A statement has just been made by Mrs. Williams, who last week killed her two children. She says she cut the children's throats with a razor and then set fire to the house. She says she wanted to join her husband who was killed a few weeks ago and did not want to leave her children. She says she intended to cut the throat of her boy Victor, but did not dare, as he was stronger.

Buried Under a Fall of Sand.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 16.—Mike Egan, foreman; Alex. Murphy and John Hanlon, laborers, were buried under a heavy fall of sand in a cellar they were digging on Smithfield street. Eagan received fatal injuries. Murphy was also badly hurt, but will recover. Hanlon's injuries were slight.

Railroad Freight Depot Burned.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 16.—At 2 a. m. a fire broke out in the store of J. E. Hallett, at Bellville, and before assistance could be obtained the building was burned to the ground. The fire spread to the Erie Railroad across the street, and the freight building was destroyed with nearly all the freight in the depot.

More Pressure for the Irish Editor.

DUBLIN, July 16.—Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien have just been presented, as the joint donation of sixty Members of Parliament, with a massive silver inkstand, a pair of costly silver candlesticks and a large collection of rare books.

Suits for Libel.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The Granite State Provident Association has begun suit for $20,000 damages against several New York and Brooklyn editors and reporters for causing articles injurious to the association to be published.

Big Purse for Jack Dempsey.

NEW YORK, July 16.—A London cablegram says that the Pelican Club offers a purse of £600 for a match between Jack Dempsey, the "Nonpareil," and Jack Burke, the "Irish Lad." Dempsey will be allowed £100 for expenses.

SERIOUS NEGRO RIOT

Whites Aroused by the Killing of Two of Their Number.

BLACKS ARMED WITH RIFLES.

A Company of Soldiers Ordered to the Scene of the Trouble.

Only Meagre Reports Received—The Situation of the Place is Isolated—A Small Riot in the Coal Region—Imported Italians Attacked by Strikers—Sheriff's Guarding the Property.

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 16.—A conflict between whites and blacks is reported to be in progress in Barnwell County, South Carolina. Reporters have started for the scene of the rumored trouble, which is not accessible by wire.

One report says that two negroes were killed by whites and this gave rise to the trouble. Another report had it that the whites were aroused by the killing of two of their number by negroes.

Both reports agree in the statement that three hundred negroes, armed with new rifles, surrounded twenty-five whites. The sheriff with a posse of twenty left Barnwell for the scene of the trouble.

The Graham Guards were ordered out, and responded, taking one hundred rounds of ammunition.

The situation of the place is isolated, and the chances are that the accounts are very much exaggerated.

RIOT IN THE COAL REGIONS.

Imported Italians Go to Work and Are Attacked by Strikers.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., July 16.—Reports from the Smithton region are to the effect that a small riot has occurred there, and there are indications for a larger riot.

Two deputy sheriffs are already on the ground, protecting the property of the Waverly Coal Company, where the men have been on strike for over three months.

Fifty Italians were imported there yesterday to replace the Waverly strikers. The new men all went to work, and this so enraged the strikers that when the Italians refused to quit work they made an assault. The strikers are badly worked up and bloodshed would cause no surprise.

Protestant Irishmen Become Catholics.

CORK, July 16.—A dispatch has just been received in this city from Skibbereen that a large number of members of the congregation of the Rev. Mr. Hopely, a Protestant clergyman, have renounced their faith and joined the Roman Catholic Church. They appear to have been prompted to the change by the fact that Father Crowley was recently convicted of intimidation on the testimony of Mr. Hopely, who is unfavorable to the Irish National cause. Father Crowley exercises great influence over the inhabitants.

New Jersey Prohibitionists.

TRENTON, N. J., July 16.—The Prohibitionist State Central Committee met here and raised $2,500 by subscriptions of $25 each for the use of the State Committee. They denounced the new ballot reform law as a scheme of all parties to freeze out independent voters, and appointed a committee of seven to consider and report recommendations to the members of the party as to what course to pursue under it. They propose to have a convention in every Assembly district next fall.

Pension Obtained by Fraud.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 16.—Oscar Nicholson, a well known lawyer here, was held by the United States Commissioner to answer for securing fraudulent affidavits in the case of John Heibish, who died from the effects of an assault committed by fellow prisoners while in Wilkesbarre jail, but whose widow procured a pension on the ground that death resulted from injuries received during the war.

Explosion of an Oil Stove.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., July 16.—F. Dowd of Medina was repairing an oil stove at the residence of L. Adler at that village. It dropped from his hands to the floor, exploding and setting fire to the house and nearly destroying it. The flames communicated to and partially destroyed an adjoining building. Dowd was badly burned about the face by the explosion of the oil stove.

A Large Warehouse Burned.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 16.—The large seven-story warehouse of the Security Company was entirely destroyed by fire together with its contents. Spontaneous combustion was the cause. The upper floors were filled with agricultural implements and on the fourth floor were 500 tons of binding twine.

Refused to Admit the Will.

GENESEO, N. Y., July 16.—Judge Nash has refused to admit the will of the late Gen. Lester B. Faulkner to probate. From the testimony taken it was evident that another instrument had been executed a few days previous to Faulkner's death and had been spirited away. The will offered for probate left all the General's property to a Mrs. Brown, with whom he had lived, and almost entirely excluded his widow.

Steam Engineers Adjourn.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The Supreme Council of the American Order of Steam Engineers adjourned last night. Its annual meeting has been a secret one. Jefferson Young, Jr., of Brooklyn, was elected Supreme Chief Engineer; A. W. Radley of Utica, N. Y., Senior Master Mechanic; George B. Simeallie of Amsterdam, N. Y., Trustee.

A Blow at the Baltimore Club.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 16.—The decision of Chief Judge James McSherry in the case of Manager William Barnie, of the Baltimore Baseball Club, puts a stop to professional Sunday baseball playing in this State. The Judge, in his opinion, concludes that baseball playing by men who are under contract at rated salaries is "Sunday work" and therefore comes within the purview of the prohibitory statute.

Collieries Resume Work.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 16.—Work was resumed in the Maltby Colliery. This mine has been idle for nearly six years. It will now give employment to over 800 men and boys. The Fuller Colliery, which has been flooded for over a year, is being pumped out and will probably resume operations soon.

THE PENSION ROLLS

Salaries of Clerks Who Pay Money to the Veterans.

TOTAL NUMBER OF PENSIONERS

More Disabled Soldiers in Ohio Than in Any State in the Union.

Personalities Indulged in at the Breckinridge-Clayton Hearing—The New Silver Notes to be Circulated This Week—Republican Senators to Hold Another Caucus.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—A letter from the Commissioner of Pensions was sent to the Senate in response to a resolution of inquiry as to the number of pensioners paid at each agency and the allowance for clerk hire during the past and the present fiscal year.

As shown by the statement of the commissioner, the Columbus, Ohio, agency pays the greatest number of pensioners, 55,560, and receives an allowance of $24,200 for clerk hire during the fiscal year 1891, an increase of $6,000 over last year's allowance.

Indianapolis comes next, with 49,750 pensioners and $25,000 clerk hire allowance, an increase of nearly $9,000.

Chicago ranks third, having 44,157 pensioners to pay and $20,000 for clerk hire.

New York has 25,916 pensioners on its rolls and an allowance of $15,000, which is the amount allowed Philadelphia, with nearly 5,000 more pensioners on the rolls.

San Francisco brings up the rear with 8,394 pensioners and $3,500 for clerk hire.

The total number of pensioners at all agencies was 532,479 on May last, and the allowance for clerk hire this year is $236,920, as against $177,850 last year. The Appropriation act provides that the allowance for clerk hire shall be proportioned as nearly as practicable to the number of pensioners paid at each agency. The commissioner says many other things must be taken into consideration, such as the cost of living at the various cities in which agencies are located, and the number of personal payments to be made.

A LIVELY HEARING.

Personalities Indulged in Over the Breckinridge-Clayton Election Case.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Concluding arguments in the Clayton-Breckinridge contested election case have begun before the House Committee on Elections. Judge John McClure, of Arkansas, appeared for the contestant, Col. Clayton, who was assassinated soon after he had served notice of his intention to contest Mr. Breckinridge's seat.

Judge McClure spoke at length concerning the statements made by Mr. Breckinridge, in which he attributed the contest of his seat to McClure and not to Col. Clayton. Judge McClure said thrt he could see no purpose in these insinuations, except that Mr. Breckinridge wanted to incite his partisans to do with him as they had done with Clayton.

At this point Representative Crisp of Georgia, a Democratic member of the committee, appealed to the chairman to prevent the utterance of such personalities. Mr. Crisp said he would leave if more language of this tenor were indulged in.

Chairman Rowell cautioned Judge McClure to avoid personalities. Judge McClure then went on to try and prove that other murders committed in Arkansas bore some relation to the murder of Clayton. He argued at length that the murder of Clayton was political but exonerated the people of Arkansas from complicity in it. The politicians were responsible, he said.

Judge McClure continuing his argument, insinuated that Mr. Breckinridge had countenanced the stealing of ballot boxes, and that by countenancing a corrupt political movement he was morally responsible for the death of Clayton. He quoted from the charge of Judge Cunningham to the grand jury, called to indict the men accused of stealing the Plummerville ballot box, and discussed the vote of each precinct in Mr. Breckinridge's district in which fraud was alleged to have been perpetrated. He referred in sarcastic terms to the theory that Thomas Hooper was the murderer of Clayton.

Mr. Breckinridge, who was present, said that at midnight last night he had been given an elaborate brief prepared by his attorney, Mr. Garland, and he would read it before the committee.

The New Silver Notes.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The new silver notes will be placed in circulation inside of three days. Secretary Windom has had the engraving done in advance. The first notes issued will be those of ten, one hundred, and one thousand dollar denominations, and the others will follow as soon as possible. The vignettes will be of Stanton, Farragut, Morrill, McPherson, General Thomas and President Harrison.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 16.—A West Shore freight ran into a freight train on the W. N. Y. & P. at 2:15 a. m., which was standing on a side track with the engine across the West Shore line. Engineer Harris, of Fort Erie, and Fireman Collopy, of Hinsdale, both of the West Shore, jumped when they saw the approaching danger. The engineer was instantly killed and the fireman received injuries from which he died at the hospital here at 9 o'clock. The engines were badly wrecked.

105 Degrees in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 16.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season. The thermometer registered 105 degrees at 3 p. m. Several persons were overcome by the heat and sent to the hospitals.

FIGHTING FOR THE SCALE.

A Big Strike in Progress at Ex-Mayor Hewitt's Steel and Iron Works.

TRENTON, N. J., July 16.—Considerable excitement exists here over the strike at the New Jersey Steel and Iron mills, which are owned by ex-Mayor Abram S. Hewitt, of New York city.

The firm is rushed with orders, and have been running day and night.

The Knights and the Amalgamated Association have secretly organized the works which have been non-union for years.

A week ago last Friday the heaters in the twelve-inch room struck against certain rules and asked Superintendent Stokes to sign the Amalgamated scale of wages.

The superintendent said he had no power to sign, but he took the scale and promised to present it to the proper authorities. The men went back to their work on the superintendent's promise that the matter would be all right in a few days.

Days passed and the shop committee again called on the superintendent, but got no satisfaction. Monday morning, before they would go to work, they asked whether or not the scale had been signed and were told that it had not been. They then resolved to quit work that night.

The men in the twelve-inch room, the rolling mill, the bar mill and the puddling mill and their many laborers and helpers left the works together.

The leaders of the Knights of Labor and the Amalgamated Association met in Hartman's Hall and resolved not to return to work until the scale is signed.

Mr. Hewitt is in ill health and traveling in Europe, and there is no one here who can authoritatively sign the scale asked by the men.

CONTRACTORS' MANIFESTO.

Will No Longer Recognize the Journeymen Free Stone Cutters' Association.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 16.—The Free Stone Contractors' Association met here and issued a manifesto to the Journeymen Free Stone Cutters' Association of Boston stating that, as the latter had refused to submit to arbitration the differences between the two organizations, the former could not recognize the latter organization, but had been forced to promote the establishment of a new society of journeymen, formed upon principles of justice and honor, and that journeymen stone cutters can obtain employment of the contractors on the terms agreed upon by the joint committee of the Freestone Contractors' Association of New England and the Progressive Association of Journeymen Stone Cutters of New England, and upon no other.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The census of 1890 gives Gettysburg, Pa., a population of 3,051, an increase of 137.

Mrs. James Kearns, wife of a prominent hotel proprietor of Trenton, N. J., was seriously injured by the explosion of a gas stove at her residence.

Runaway cars at the slope of Waddell's Colliery in Luzerneborough, Pa., struck and killed John McCartese and fatally injured Anthony O'Boyle.

The young man who jumped into the rapids and was carried over Niagara Falls Monday has been identified as Alex. A. Wippert, aged twenty years, of Buffalo, N. Y.

George W. Childs and A. J. Drexel have purchased 130 acres of land at Point Pleasant, N. J., where they will construct a park, erect cottages, and build a mammoth hotel.

The sale is announced of the works of the Columbia Iron and Steel Company, and of the shops of the Pennsylvania Construction Company, situated at Uniontown, Pa. Price not mentioned.

Charles W. Dempsey, the last of the New York city boodle exiles of the 1884 Board of Aldermen, returned from Montreal and surrendered to the District-Attorney. He gave bail in the sum of $25,000 and was released.

A Constantinople dispatch says that the recent fire in the Stamboul quarter of that city destroyed one thousand houses, and burned a vast amount of timber, whose owners, comprising 125 timber merchants, are ruined. It is feared that there has been heavy loss of life, but nothing definite can yet be learned.

Dr. John Edwin Ensell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., shot himself during the morning in a fit of despondency over financial losses in betting at race tracks. Physicians pronounce the wound of a fatal character. Dr. Ensell who has a wife and fifteen-year-old son, has had a fair practice for some years past.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—For New England: Showers in eastern, fair in western portions; slightly cooler; northwesterly winds.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Cooler; fair weather, except in New Jersey, extreme Southern New York and extreme Pennsylvania showers; northwesterly winds.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Cooler; fair; northerly winds

BY THE WAY.

—The Bricklayers and Masons Union will hold their semi-monthly meeting in Jr. O. U. A M. Hall, this evening, at eight o'clock.

—Desirable building lots in charming Netherwood within a short walk of the Park, are offered for sale elsewhere in this issue.

—Refrigerators and gasolene stoves are now in season, and J. P. Laire & Co., has the best assortment in the city. See advertisement to-morrow.

—The work of painting the addition to, and "fixing up" the office of The Pond Machine Tool Company's Works, has been awarded to Ferdinand O. Smith.

—The members of the Holy Cross church choir are today enjoying themselves at Boynton Beach, having been driven there this morning by John E. Yose.

—Packer, Plainfield's popular furniture dealer has made a big cut in the prices of baby carriages and Summer furniture. Secure a bargain while the assortment is large.

—The Auditing Committee of Plainfield Lodge, No. 305, Order of Tonti, met in F. A. Dunham's office, recently, and audited the books of the Secretary and Treasurer for the past six months.

—Money orders and postal notes can now be obtained at the Dunellen, N. J., post office. This will supply a want long needed in the borough of Dunellen. The department order went into effect on July 7.

—The detailed records of the Crescent ball players, published in last Saturday's PRESS, which created so much interest, were compiled by John W. Murray, Jr., who is the greatest authority and possessed of the best judgment on ball playing, in this vicinity.

—Cuff, the only man who can hold Harkins' curves, played his first game with the Newark League team, yesteday, and made two errors probably due to nervousness. His loss to Somerville's team is a serious one.

—It is reported that a well-known resident of Plainfield avenue, whose for word and veracity is unquestioned, killed a black snake, while fishing at South Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, which measured six feet, nine inches.

—The Warner Ironolithic Stone Paving Company had just completed a handsome curb for Job Male, one hundred feet on Second place and around the corner extending one hundred feet more. This curb has the appearance of rubbed granite. It is the best and hardest substance made under the sun, and is especially adopted for all kinds of building work in any shape and size and is unexcelled for flagging.

—If everybody who is talking about it goes with the Methodists on their excursion Friday to the sea there will be a large and happy throng. The arrangements made insure convenience and comfort on the road, and as it promises to be fair weather and bathing will be good, a day of rare pleasure may be confidently expected by all who take the trip. See advertising columns for particulars.

—The next excursion from Plainfield to Ocean Grove and Asbury Park after the Methodists of this city and Dunellen, on Friday next, July 18, will be that of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday school on Wednesday of next week July 23. The committee in charge promises to make it as enjoyable as possible to all who join them. Plenty of cars have been engaged and every one will be provided with a comfortable seat, and as the excursion does not leave the Grove until 7 o'clock, a delightful cool ride home will be the result of a full day's enjoyment.

Ho For the Ocean's Roar and Spray.

Eager to enjoy surf bathing and cool breezes by the sea, a large number of Plainfielders left town this morning to spend the day at Asbury Park. They were the excursionists of the several Sunday schools of the Crescent Avenue church, and it took fourteen cars to hold them all.

They Beat the Jersey City League Team.

Make no mistake about the "Allertons," who play the Crescents next Saturday afternoon. They have defeated the League team of Jersey City, besides the "Stars" of New York and other of the strongest semi-professionals.

THE FUNERAL OF E. V. LORTON.

Knightly Brethren From All Parts of the State Attend the Obsequies.

AS large a body of society brethren as ever before attended a funeral in Plainfield was present at the ceremonies over the remains of the late Eugene V. Lorton in Grace Episcopal church this morning. Knights of Pythias and Knights of Honor from various cities joined with the local lodges, and with the non-society mourners completely filled the church.

The leading Grand Pythian officers of New Jersey, of whom Mr. Lorton had been one, were prominent among the visitors from other places. The local lodge, of which he had been a member, sent floral emblems, including two broken columns, one from Unity Lodge and one from Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, a crescent from Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, a combination of pillow, anchor and star from the State Grand Lodge, a scroll from the Knights of Honor, and an upright cross from the ladies of Grace church.

The committal service of the Episcopal church was conducted by the Rev. E. M. Rodman, and was followed by the ritual service of the Knights of Pythias, conducted by Prelate VanEmburgh of Unity Lodge, assisted by S. E. Flower. The music was of a high order, and was rendered by Arthur Freeman, organist, and a special choir consisting of Mrs. Mumford, Miss Morgan, Staunton Smith and Harold Runyon.

The pall bearers were L. B. Woolston and J. F. Buckle of the Plainfield Knights of Pythias, C. W. Kilbourne of New Brunswick, Grand Prelate, D. N. Messler of Somerville, editor of The Jersey Knight, and T. O. Doane and L. R. Blackford of the Plainfield Knights of Honor.

The remains were conveyed by train to Orange, for interment in Rosedale cemetery. The chief mourners accompanied the body to its last resting place.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. A. H. Lewis and family are enjoying a rest on Long Island.

Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson leave for Europe today on the "Germanic."

Stephen Affleck, the popular Mystic Shriner, spent last night with friends in this city his former residence.

Mr. Stillman of Westerly, R. I., spent Sunday and a portion of Monday with his cousin, Geo. E. Stillman of West Fifth street.

Dr. T. S. Davis, wife and mother, accompanied by Master Charley and the Misses Davis, will sail for Europe and a short trip abroad, on Wednesday, August 6.

John M. Crane of Central avenue, the loquacious New York Manager of the Union Mutual Life, returned from a Southern trip yesterday, and reports Philadelphia hotter than—Plainfield.

L. W. Ross of LaGrande avenue, sailed for Europe to-day on the "City of New York." His trip will be mainly a business one for the firm he represents—the largest importers of gents' furnishings in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Day and daughter of Madison avenue, started today for the coast of Maine, where they will probably spend two weeks. Mrs. Day will then return to Massachusetts for a month's visit among relatives.

At the regular monthly meeting held by the Camera Club last evening, Mrs. Geo. H. Babcock, Mrs. J. E. Greenleaf and Mrs. Wm. H. Lyon, Jr., were elected members. The club purposed extending every facility to its lady members, and hopes to number all the ladies in Plainfield who are interested in the art, upon its roll.

The Funeral of Robert C. Page.

United by one common bond of sorrow, a large number of distinguished people from New York, Brooklyn, Plainfield and other cities assembled in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon to pay tribute to the memory of the late Robert C. Page. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. W. R. Richards. An eloquent eulogy was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Yerkes.

The floral display was probably the richest ever seen at a similar occasion in Plainfield. The most conspicuous of the offerings was a broken column, over six feet in height, fashioned of roses of choicest bloom, encircled with wreaths of evergreen, and twined with rare Jerusalem leaves. This was from the New York Seventh Regiment, of which Mr. Page was a member. Another broken column was surmounted by doves.

The remains, incased in a costly flower-bestrewn casket, were placed in the tomb to await interment.

Two Plainfielders Fail Again.

John H. French and Arthur H. Boughton, both former residents of this city, composing the firm of French & Boughton, dealers in boys' clothing, at 44 West 14th street, New York, made an assignment yesterday to Wm. B. Filer. The Sheriff previously took possession of the store on executions for $2,910 in favor of Scheur, Bloom & Simon. The assignors bought out King, Hinckley & Co., January 1, 1889, Mr French being the capitalist of the new firm. They claimed to carry a stock of about $20,000.

A Lawyer's Absence Postpones a Case.

Chas. Greader was to have been tried this morning on the charge of illegal liquor selling, but as Borough Counsel Chas. A. Reed, Prosecuting Attorney, was out of town, the case was postponed.

HIS FAMILY HONOR AT STAKE.

The Injured Husband of a Borough Scandal Adds to His Own Troubles.

Jacob S. Jones of North Plainfield believes himself to be a greatly wronged husband. Disgraceful rumors deeply affecting the honor of his family are said to have been afloat a long time past. After suffering in silence till the accusations and taunts of others became unbearable, he sought out the man whom gossips had implicated in the scandal, and demanded satisfaction. The object of his wrath was Henry Phillips, an employe of R. W. Rice & Co., and, failing to reach an understanding through conversations on the street, he invited Mr. Phillips the alleged culprit and Mr. Rice as a sort of arbitrator, to his home, to seek, through amicable adjustment, to put an end to the scandal.

Those present at the resultant interview were Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Rice. Mr. Phillips denied accusations which were made, and Mr. Jones became so incensed that he struck Mr. Phillips and ordered him out of the house. A war of angry words, emphasized by an occasional tussle, followed. Mr. Phillips was moderately calm, and used no profanity, but Mr. Jones gave vent to most objectionable language, and when the row reached the sidewalk the neighbors had to listen to much that cultured ears dislike.

Because of the foul language and the blows Mr. Phillips had Mr. Jones arrested, and a trial was held before Justice Hardy in Warren engine house, last evening, when all these facts were produced in testimony.

A crowd of citizens stayed away from the circus and for two hours sweltered in the heat of the crowded room to listen to a review of the delectable details of the case. Justice Hardy, in laying down the law, told Mr. Jones that when Mr. Phillips entered the Jones domicile as an invited guest, Mr. Phillips was entitled to the same rights and privileges possessed within those walls by Mr. Jones, and it was the duty of Mr. Jones not only to refrain from doing him injury but to protect him from harm at the hands of others.

There were, however, said the Court, mitigating circumstances which would tend to lessen the degree punishment. Mr. Jones had believed—whether justly or not—that Mr. Phillips had done the honor of his family an irreparable injury, and it was therefore easy for Mr. Jones to lose his temper and chide and fight.

Mr. Jones was fined five dollars and costs, which, however, was afterwards remitted.

TO COST OVER $20,000 UNFURNISHED.

The Union County Country Club Will Begin at Once the Erection of a Magnificent Club House and Casino at Seventh Street and Arlington Avenue.

In response to notice by Secretary Wm. T. Kaufman, the members of the Union County Country Club—which has grown out of the suggestions for such a club published in THE PRESS of over a year ago—met in special meeting at the home of Pliny Fisk, chairman of the building committee, last evening at eight o'clock.

The plans for the proposed club buildings by a celebrated New York architect, were submitted and met at once with the approval of everybody. A full description of these plans will appear in these columns later. Suffice it to say that the buildings will contain everything desired in a Club, besides a concert hall in the Casino that will accommodate 600. There will be private dining rooms, and a competent chef and steward on yearly salaries. Bowling alleys, baths, billiard and card rooms will be provided, besides a barber shop, buffet and cigar counter for members only.

There is now in the treasury of the club $30,000 that has been received for bonds, and work will be begun at once so that the Club's quarters may be open for use at the beginning of the coming season. This $30,000 is to be expended only for the grounds and buildings. The furnishings and fittings are to be paid out of the initiation fees of $50 each. The property consists of 40,152 square feet at the corner of Seventh street and Arlington avenue—formerly the Arnold estate—which cost the Club $7,250, and an adjoining lot 168 by 47 feet, giving additional depth on Arlington avenue, which cost $1,200. This leaves a balance of over $20,000 for the buildings. They will be Plainfield's greatest architectural ornament, which is saying a good deal.

A Minstrel Trust Completed.

H. J. Sayers and Harry Clapham, managers respectively for Thatcher's and Dockstader's minstrel companies, met in Plainfield yesterday by appointment, coming one from Hartford and the other from Wilkesbarre. They entered into an agreement dividing the territory of the United States so that there would be no interference or competition between them, after the plan originated, and so successfully carried out by Barnum and Forepaugh.

By this arrangement the two leaders of minstrelsy have assured to themselves the enjoyment of the entire profits of their line of business in the country for the season of 1891-92 and thereafter. Other organizations will trail along like the pony shows behind the two only great circuses, and eke out a living off the crumbs that fall from George's and Lew's tables.

The Population of This County.

The population of Union county has increased in ten years from 55,571 to 80,000.

He Was Treated as Though He Was a Gentleman.

Members of the Police Board request THE PRESS to state what its reporter who was present knows is the truth, that policeman Carey's alleged statement that he was subjected to "nagging" and "leering" when he appeared before the Board Saturday evening, is false in every particular. Carey was treated with the greatest courtesy in spite of his rowdy conduct and lack of appreciation of his presence among gentlemen.

Martial Law in Salvador.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Advices received from Salvador announce that the individual guarantees accorded by the constitution have been suspended and martial law has been proclaimed. Numerous arrests have been made and the people are appealing to the Provisional Government to respect foreigners and their property.

Republican Senatorial Caucus.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—It is now stated that another caucus of Republican Senators will be held to-morrow evening to further consider plans for debate on the Lodge bill. It is believed that the proposition agreed on Monday night will be finally approved.

Appraisers to be Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The Senate Committee on Finance has reported favorably the nominations of the customs appraisers of merchandise, including Messrs. Sharp and Jewell, against whom there were objections. The nominations will be confirmed.

Will Not Go to Cape May.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The Washington Light infantry has decided to abandon its summer encampment at Cape May, which had been contemplated. It will encamp at Fort Washington, on the Potomac River, instead.

Purchased a Saratoga Hotel.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 16.—John D. Hayes, collector of internal revenue, and Counsellor James Brusnihan, of this village, purchased the Adelphi Hotel, one of the leading hotels of this village.

Steam Tug Capsized.

ELY, Vt., July 16.—The steam tug Pearl was capsized and sunk in Fairlee Pond during a severe storm, and Capt. Frank Brown, aged 33, was drowned. Several other boats were upset, but their occupants escaped.

Entertaining Naval Officers.

BATH, Me., July 16.—The officers of the naval fleet were entertained at a clambake at Foster's Point. To-morrow there will be a parade of sailors and marines. The fleet will probably sail for Bar Harbor to-morrow.

Mr. Stanley Improving.

LONDON, July 16.—The fever from which Mr. Stanley has been suffering has abated. Mr. Stanley was able to take a long carriage drive yesterday evening.

A Minister Arrested for Forgery.

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 16.—Rev. W. Mitchell, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, has been arrested on a charge of forgery, the amount involved being $2,500. He was unable to procure bail, and is locked up.

THE DISCONTENTED MAN.

Even the Glories of Heaven Did Not Satisfy His Fault-Finding Soul.

Truly was he an honest gentleman, but hard to live with, and much given to discontent and fault-finding. So it came to pass that tradesmen were little inclined to sell him wares. The tailor would have his doubtlet turned back on his hands because of a seam, or, belike, because the cloth of the cape was not of Flemish dye, and with his shoon and hosen he never was satisfied. The cook because the meat was too much or too little roasted, or the sauce not to the master's taste, was sorely troubled, and the groom was often roundly held to task on account of the hides of the horses. My lady's stomachers and farthingales caused him much vexation of spirit, as did his children's garters. And when he died he went to Heaven, and St. Peter took from his own stores a halo and bid him wear it, but, being as over-particular in Heaven as he had been on earth, quoth my fine gentleman: "Prithee, is this the last fashion hereabout? It does not fit me. See you not it falleth down over my ears? The gold of the halo wants refurbishing. It looketh for all the world like unto brass. I fear me it is not of the Tower stamp. I deem some low person hath worn it before and shabied it, and I came not here to wear what is second-handed." And so he went on complaining sore.

To stop his clatter, which was unseemly in Heaven, St. Peter said unto him: "It is well, thou man hard to please. Thou shalt have thy earthly frippery." And so the bonnet he had worn when he was alive was brought unto him and he was made to don it, and a pitiful sight was he, for in time his wordly habiliment became old and tarnished, and a sorry saint did he look like.—The Stranded Humorist.

He Was Right, Too.

"What do you think of it?" asked an old member of a secret society of a newly initiated one.

"O, it's all rite," was the reply.—West Shore.

Talmage's Texas Rival.

There is an old negro in Austin, Tex., named Uncle Nace, who is a regular attendant at the church of Rev. Whangdoodle Baxter. Meeting his pastor the other day, the latter said:

"You seems to enjoy my sermons mightily, Uncle Nace, considering you am so hard ob hearin'," shouted the clergyman.

Uncle Nace nodded understandingly.

"Kin yer heah me when I preaches?" bellowed the colored prelate in Uncle Nace's ear.

The old man shook his head.

"Whaffor, den, does yer come ter de church?" howled Baxter.

"Bekase hit 'muses me ter see you cut up dem monkey shines and saw de air wid yer arms."—Texas Siftings.

Five Days Enough in That Lockup.

Patrick Ageny was fined $10 and costs by Justice Hardy, this morning, for being drunk and disorderly. It was testified that the accused would have killed his wife if the Marshal had not captured him in time. Ageny refused to pay and was committed to the Borough lockup for five days.

The Sewers of Paris

Are one of the modern wonders of the world. That marvelous network of underground streams, over which the tourist can travel by rail and in boats, constitutes the bowels of the gay capital. This labyrinth of streams is kept with scrupulous care; for any obstruction in the flow of the sewage would be attended with serious results to the health of the inhabitants of the city above. The sewers of the human system are the liver and bowels, and in order to keep disease out of the wonderful city of which they are a part, they must be kept always free and unobstructed. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the best laxative and cathartic known for the purpose. Tiny, sugar-coated granules, in vials, always fresh.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION.

Notice is hereby given that the co-partnership lately subsisting between John Barton Kline and Stephen O. Staats, both of the city of Plainfield and State of New Jersey, under the firm of Kline & Staats, doing business at the corner of Grant avenue and West Front street in the city of Plainfield, has this day been terminated by mutual consent.

All debts owing to the said partnership are to be received by said Staats at his office, No. 41 North avenue, in said city of Plainfield, and all demands on the said partnership are also to be presented to him at the same place, he being authorized to settle all debts due to and by said firm.

Dated July 11th, 1890. 7-11-6

AN OPEN LETTER.

Mr. Seely Edsall, Plainfield, N. J.

In view of the adverse decision which has just been rendered by Judge Shipman against the Henry G. Allen & Co., of New York, on account of certain copyright articles which appear in the Encyclopædia Britannica, many inquiries are coming to us as to how this decision will effect our publication; whether we will be able to complete the work, etc.

We therefore hasten to assure all who are interested in our edition, that this is a matter which has already been carefully considered and provided for. We have made arrangements by which we shall not come in conflict with publishers of the original edition, and our edition will not be subject to suit for infringement of copyright. You can, therefore, inform your customers that we shall complete the work as promised, without liability to delay or stoppage.

You will readily see that a decided advantage comes to you through this decision, since it will naturally cause people to hesitate to either sell or purchase the Funk & Wagnell's or Allen's Editions until this suit is finally decided.

Yours truly, R. S PEALE & CO.

Remember that Mr. Edsall is the only authorized agent for Plainfield for the sale of these books at the wonderful low price of $1 50 per volume.

CRUSHED

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy right.

Town Gossips Blaming Him Because R. P. Moore's Rooster Took a Night Out.

R. P. Moore's game rooster seems to have passed through an unusual experience, and the mystery of the matter is the occasion of much gossip in the little village of Fanwood where all parties concerned reside. It is much to be regretted however, that the good name of Abner P. Downer is connected with the affair in a way that casts a doubt upon that gentleman's assertive claims of innocence.

The rooster, which has been the winner of many prizes and battles, is always kept and tended in a box stall especially erected and arranged for his royal nibs. Mr. Moore's own hands prepare the rooster's food and trim his spurs. Somebody—and there's where Mr. Downer's name has been brought in—took the rooster off the other night, and after either running the bird through Colonel Moore's stone cracker or fighting cats with him, left him to wander home alone.

He arrived a sight. His feathers were all gone though the quills remained. But why Mr. Downer should be blamed, is not apparent. A PRESS reporter interviewed a number of representative and otherwise townsmen of Fanwood, this morning, and although some confessed that Mr. Downer had grown stouter and his skin fairer since R. P. Moore had begun to breed fowls and Spring chickens had ripened sufficiently to pick, yet no one would consent to be quoted as authority for the rumor that Mr. Downer knew more than was guiltless about the strange fate of the game rooster.

The One Well-Breed Man Was From Plainfield.

The Prohibition Central Committee, which met at Trenton yesterday, expelled all newspaper men from its sessions.

Secretary W. W. Winans of Plainfield, representing Union and Somerset counties, met the knights of the pen afterwards and apologized for the ill-breeding exhibited by the cold-water men from the thirteen other counties. He said his fellow-Prohibitionists were disgruntled because they had been misrepresented at their last meeting.

Mr. Winans is engaged, with Plainfield as his headquarters, in tabulating various statistics concerning the Prohibition party in New Jersey.

They Are the Sole Agents Here.

The new piano handled by Messrs Vanderbeek and Sattels of Park avenue and made by Bush & Gerts of Chicago, is without doubt as fine as can be. The cases are of solid wood and not veneered thus doing away with the great fault of most pianos, "the varnish checking off."

The action is by Wessel, Nickle & Gross, who are well known as the best action makers in this country. The carvings are simply works of art and altogether the piano is strictly first class and equal to any while the price at which they are sold places them within the reach of all. Musicians are invited to call and examine.

Jim Babbitt's Captive.

A diminutive dog handicapped by a growth of long black hair surrendered himself captive, after a desperate struggle, to James Babbitt, dog catcher, this morning. When led by stout hempen bonds the canine dwarf trotted submissively along by the side of Mr. Babbitt, who elevated his proud crest in triumph and with a pleasant Napoleonic expression on his countenance marched gaily off towards the pound. The spectacle afforded entertainment for several hilarious groups of idlers.

Northfield Reports Next Sunday.

There was a large audience of men at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, last Sunday afternoon, at which time reports of the College students conference for Bible study were given by representatives of the Association who had been in attendance upon its sessions. Further reports will be given at the meeting next Sunday. The meeting will begin at 4:15 sharp and close promptly at 5 o'clock.

He Died Because His Brother Did.

George, one of the nine-months-old twin boys of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Whitely of North avenue, died last night, after a short illness from cholera infantum.

The other boy who was perfectly strong and healthy at the time of his brother's death, at once sickened and failed so rapidly that he was dead at five o'clock this morning. The saddened parents are greatly to be sympathised with.

Another Company to Start From Here.

Plainfield seems to be considered the minstrel's mascot. Thatcher lives here, Dockstader sought his backing here and now Gorman's company are coming for a week to rehearse, try on their new clothes, give their opening performance next week Thursday, and start on their season's tour.

Who Was It Meant For?

A large bullet was shot through the window of the Plainfield Gas Light company's office on East Fourth street, the other day. It broke the glass and imbedded itself in the wood-work a few feet from the chair that stands in front of the desk of Treasurer Harry G. Runkle.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

A BIG PAPER PUT TO BASE USES.

The "World" Rising Higher Every Day in the Contempt of Plainfield.

The World of this morning is again held up to the contempt of the people of this city, by its perfidious Plainfield correspondent. Again is evidenced the truth of the statement THE PRESS was called upon to make yesterday—the columns of the World are now at the mercy and service of some one who misuses the privilege and power for the villification of those against whom he has a personal spite, and for the upholding of an insubordinate and profane petty officer now in disgrace.

The public know these facts: Captain Carey was reduced to the ranks and suspended from the police force of this city for three months, for the use of obscene language to his superiors including the President of the Council and the President of the Police Board.

The Council by a unanimous vote have demanded of him an accounting concerning a sum of $200 he has drawn from the City treasury. This he failed to do, and the Council have unanimously instructed the Corporation Counsel to begin proceedings to recover the money.

At the close of his term of suspension, policeman Carey did not report for duty, and after waiting five days as provided by the ordinance, he was notified by the Police Board to appear and show cause, if he had any, for his insubordination. Upon the service of this notice he returned a filthy answer to the Secretary of the Police Board, Councilman Hetfield. And when Councilman Roberts, President of the Board, asked him courteously why he had not reported for duty, Carey replied: "None of your ——— business!" At its next meeting the Council will expel him in disgrace.

In view of these truths, and many other facts as damaging to his reputation and his case, the disgust of the people with the World is natural when it publishes an article so false in complexion as that in its columns this morning, headed:

PERSECUTING THE CHIEF.
AN OFFICER PUNISHED FOR ENFORCING THE LAW.
The Citizens Pay His Wages.

MRS. HETTY GREEN AGAIN.

She Wins in the Suit Over Valuable Land Located at Chicago.

Judge Blodgett, in the Federal Court at Chicago, Monday, dismissed the bill of John E. Cornell against Mrs. Hetty Green for so many years a resident of this city. It sought to redeem from foreclosure three pieces of property which have increased in value until they are now worth in the aggregate $1,000,000. They are the former home of George W. Gage, which has a frontage of 80 feet on Michigan avenue, between Harrison and Polk streets; the Gage farm of 400 acres, formerly the Tremont Gardens, at Sixty-first and Western avenue, in the town of Lake, and half a block on Greenwood avenue, between Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets, in the most fashionable part of Kenwood.

All this property was originally owned by George W. Gage, who, in 1873, borrowed $150,000 from Mrs. Green, giving a mortgage on the land to secure the loan. Only a small amount of interest and none of the principal was paid. In 1876 the mortgage was foreclosed and Mrs. Green bought the property in and has held it ever since. The property had in the meantime been transferred to Cornell, who brought the suit, alleging flaws in the foreclosure.

Minstrel Dockstader's Backer.
(From the New York World)

Joseph B. Miller, proprietor of Laing's Hotel, at Plainfield, who is embarking in the minstrel business with Lew Dockstader, is going to retire from the hotel business and devote his whole attention to the management of the new venture in which he is the chief stockholder. He furnishes $9,700 out of the $10,000 with which the company will begin business. Mr. Miller is quite popular in Plainfield, where the news of his intended retirement from thh hotel business will be received with regret. The Miller-Dockstader troupe will open in Plainfield.

Mr. Flagler, the Most Extravagant Man in the World, Draws the Line Somewhere.

The current issue of The Journalist states that in about six weeks a new daily newspaper is to be established in New York city by H. M. Flagler, John D. Rockafeller and others, of the Standard Oil groups. A column of detail concerning the enterprise is given, and everybody in Newspaper Row is talking about it, and believes it true. For once, however, The Journalist seems to be mistaken. J. C. Salter, Secretary to Mr. Flagler, writes to THE PRESS that there is no truth in the report.

Realty Changes.

The following transfers in Plainfield real estate were recorded yesterday:

Randolph Marsh and wife of this city, to David H. Groendyke of North Plainfield, strip land, 1 foot front on Southwest side Plainfield avenue, by 107 feet deep, $50.

Charles H. Hand and wife, of Plainfield, to Aaron D. Thompson of Bridgewater, N. J., land on Southeast side of Third street, 51x177 feet, $450.

He Had a Good Eye.

At the circus, yesterday afternoon, a wise looking Jassack was told to pick out the handsomest man in the audience. He searched carefully, then stopped and made a bow to Officer Cooney. All the girls present said, "That's so!"

DRUDGERY IN LITERATURE.

Ceaseless, Patient Work the Price of Literary Success.

Whether one shall find drudgery in literature or not, depends partly on temperament or circumstances and on the work one desires to accomplish. If a writer be content to let essays and stories bubble up easily from his mind, on such themes as may please him at the moment, or if he be in a position to stay his pen when he is tired and do nothing more until he is again inclined to work, then, no doubt, he may pursue the profession of literature without drudgery. All are not so lucky or indifferent or gifted as to be able to do this.

Walter Scott turned off his inimitable "copy" in a few hours each day, with people and dogs making noise around him. But Dickens had to drudge to such an extent that his health was imperiled, even before he tried to carry out his ambition of being a country gentleman. Thackeray confessed that he never set himself to the task of novel writing at his desk without a terrible effort, and that he always laid down his pen with a sense of glad relief.

Notwithstanding the delicious "literary gossip" paragraphs, which assure us that four or five hours a day will suffice for the production of masterpieces, George Parsons Lathrop says, in the New York Independent, most of the authors whom he has known are obliged to work hard for twelve or sixteen hours a day at least, which leaves them very little time for leisure or pleasure. They are compelled to do this even at times when they would rather rest or sleep, or eat and drink and be merry. "I, myself," says Lathrop, "have often bowed to this necessity of working continuously without sleep or meat or amusement; and should long since have concluded that it must be owing to my own stupidity, but for the fact of discovering that other authors, who are much more in the world's eye, have to do the same sort of thing. I love my kind of work, I revere the art which I serve as earnestly as any one can; but when my fingers have clutched a penholder for eight or ten hours at a stretch, and the whole of such brain and nerve power as I possess has been brought to bear during that time, I confess that a due regard for veracity will not allow me to assert that the process has not involved drudgery. A redeeming and inspiring charm there always is, even in such arduous labors. I have found comfort in toilsome hack work, because it is always satisfactory to perform even obscure service thoroughly and to the best of one's power, and because by such work I could earn time to do higher and better things, which were quite certain not to win for me that cash compensation whereby the mortal part of a man is kept going. But, simply on the ground that there is a great and enduring delight in the severest literary exertion, to spread a notion that the professional author need not undergo drudgery, seems to me mischievous. It arouses false hope in young aspirants who have not yet measured the tremendous problem of performing the best work under endless discouragements and at the cost of ceaseless, patient toil."

A RUSSIAN TRAGEDY.

A Mother and Five Daughters Put Themselves to Death.

The Moscow police were notified by a woman who cooked for the Dobroveroff family that she had been unable to enter the house, and that all day no one had been seen coming out. The door of the Dobroveroff apartment was accordingly broken open, and in the first room entered, the dead body of a woman about sixty-four years old was found stretched on the bed. It was the body of the mother of the family, who had been dead several days. On a table near the bed stood the image of a saint.

The door leading into the next room was closed, and all cracks were carefully filled with small pieces of cotton. When this door was broken open a ghastly sight was revealed. On the floor were stretched five dead women; four had laid themselves along the wall, placing cushions under their heads, while the fifth had thrown herself in the middle of the room at the feet of her sisters, and lay with no cushion under her head and with a handkerchief covering the face.

They were the five daughters of the woman in the first room. Their ages ranged from twenty to thirty-two years. The youngest is said to have been very beautiful, and there were evidences that she was not as reconciled to her fate as were her other four sisters. On a trunk near by was a note signed by the five sisters. It read: "We beg that no one be accused of our death."

Four names were written in a firm and steady hand. The fifth betrayed emotion. It was the name of Amelia, the youngest sister. Two sealed letters addressed to woman friends contained thirty roubles to pay some small debts owed by the unfortunate sisters. The cause of death was apparent: In the room was too heaters, in the bottom of which still smoldered a few pieces of charcoal.

Another sorry sight was revealed in a third room, where lay twenty dead bodies—seventeen were cats, three dogs. The pets had all been dosed with strychnine to prevent their falling in the hands of inconsiderate masters.

The pitiable story revealed at the inquest was that the daughters, when told that their mother's disease was incurable, placed forty roubles in the hands of a friend, whom they asked to attend to the last rites of their beloved dead. It would be too harrowing, they said, to look after all the details themselves. It was near the Easter season, and they filled a basket with provisions, cakes and eggs, and asked to have them distributed among the poor.

From the time their mother died the daughters touched no particle of food, but, buying a quantity of brandy, they induced the cook to drink herself tipsy, and then allowed her to go to the theater with her lover. While she was away they deliberately prepared themselves for death. Each was dressed in a white chemise and a black skirt.

The only reason given for their suicide was their abject misery.—Berlin Letter

LOTS OF QUEER FISH.

The Census Bureau Provides a New List of Very Funny Ones.

For the first time in the history of census-taking in this country the bureau which conducts that important work finds itself now compeled, by an act of Congress, approved last March, to produce statistics regarding the fishes that inhabit the waters in and about the United States. The superintendent's first contribution to this branch of human knowledge has just been published in the shape of a list merely giving the names of "aquatic animals sought by fishermen." However, this list is surprisingly interesting to peruse, so very many queer fishes there are in it, or, at all events, fishes with exceedingly queer names.

To begin with, it would appear that nearly all of the animals found on dry land have namesakes in the watery depths, fresh or salt. Poking around among the unfathomed caves of ocean, following the beds of running streams, or far down the fluid crystal of the lakes, you will find the sea-hog—an insulting name for the sportive porpoise—the sea-lion, the sea-elephant, the sea-cow, which suckles its young, the porcupine-fish, the sea-horse, the goose-fish, the toad-fish, the parrot-fish, otherwise known as slippery-dick, the squirrel-fish, the pig-fish, the buffalo-fish, the tiger-shark, the cow-fish, otherwise called the grampus—Sam Weller's favorite though disrespectful designation for his father—the wolf-fish, the sea-robin and the flannel-mouthed cat. Even the fabulous beast that is supposed to cherish against the lion such a moral enmity, though never found on the earth, is discovered in the sea-unicorn.

Besides these, if you are sufficiently industrious in your search beneath the waters, you will come across a sun-fish and a moon-fish, a devil-fish and an angel-fish, a cigar-fish and a pipe-fish, a surgeon-fish and a doctor-fish, a king-fish and a queen-fish, a silver-fish and a gold-fish; also a Jew-fish, a bug-fish, a cutlass-fish and a saber-fish, and last, but not least, a puffing-grubby.

Such lots of crabs there seem to be—more kinds than ever you or I would have imagined—to bite your toes that wading, after all, might not be a safe amusement or pleasure, even though one were able to find all these curious fish. Just a few of the available crabs hereabout are the fiddler-crab, the oyster-crab, the rock-crab, the Jonah-crab, the red-crab, the hermit-crab, the Joe-rocker or green-crab, the lady-crab, the sand-crab, the blue-crab, the sea-crab, the kelp-crab and the spider-crab. Of all the unpleasant things in Mr. Porter's list, such as the many-armed cuttle-fish, the medicinal-leech and various bugs, perhaps the less said the better.—Washington Star.

AN UNDERTAKER'S TALK.

Metallic Coffins That Cost From Fifteen Hundred to Three Thousand Dollars.

"A new style of coffin is becoming very fashionable, if the term can be used in this connection," said Fred Klaner. "Some of these new styles are made like a box, square in shape, but they are beautifully trimmed in colors—in drabs, tans, purples, ashes of roses, pink, lavender, steel gray and red. The material used is broadcloth or plush, and they are ornamented with cords of the same color in festoons. These coffins are quite expensive, but there is a decided demand for them. The bronze coffin is covered also with these colored goods if desired, but as the cost of the metalic coffin is from $1,500 to $3,000 they are used only in exceptional cases. The advantage gained by the use of this latter coffin is that before final burial in the earth they are sealed so as to be absolutely air-tight, and as a result there is not likely to be any decomposition of the remains for years to come. I think that at present there is a tendency toward private burials. A good many people object to the pomp and display of the conventional affair and prefer a ceremony that is more quiet and more in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion. Many people attend funerals who will not sit in the same room with the corpse, and for many reasons like this it has become quite the thing to conduct funerals in a private way. Besides this, it is a great saving in the funeral expense.

"Do I often have calls for coffins from people who can not pay? Oh, yes. Such requests are occasionally made. There are many poor people who will not allow the remains of their relatives to be interred by the county authorities in the cheap and rude fashion that marks those pauper burials. So they come to me, state their circumstances and ask me to furnish them with a coffin and wait until they can pay. I generally oblige them and take my chances on getting the money. Sometimes they call afterward and settle, but in many cases they never pay me. But my failure to get reimbursement was not the result of any deception, and so I am perfectly willing to accept the situation without complaining. I have the consciousness of having done a kind deed to console me and compensate me for the financial loss."—Chicago Evening Post.

TEXAS LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Lone Star State.

The Biggest State in the Union—Burning of the Spring Palace—Miraculous Deliverance of Thousands of Women and Children.

[Special Correspondence.]

Texas is in some respects the most remarkable State in the whole Union. Enormous in area and wonderful in the variety of its products, it is receiving recognition from investors and speculators such as no other State in the Union has had in many years. The single fact that in the last ten years the assessed valuation of Texas has grown from $304,000,000 to over $800,000,000 tells the story of its wonderful growth.

The traveler who made a tour of this State ten years ago, yes, five years ago, would be astonished at what he sees and hears during a visit at the present time. It is only a year and a half ago that I made a journey through Texas, looking upon it then, as a majority of the people in the North do, as the lone and lonesome State of the Union, thinly settled, unattractive, with an unbearable climate, and a not too hospitable people. I left the State after my flying tour with my opinions greatly changed, and, during my present trip, in which I have devoted considerable time to a study of conditions, especially in the northern part of Texas, including Dallas, Sherman, Denison, Ft. Worth and Gainesville, I have been struck by the enterprise and the generous hospitality of the people.

CITY HALL, DALLAS, TEX.

A UNIQUE EXHIBITION.

Nothing that this country has ever had in the way of an exhibition or fair has surpassed the wonderful and unique exhibition at the Spring Palace in Ft. Worth. Why it was called "the Spring Palace" I do not know. The building was a massive, wooden structure, with many turrets and an enormous central dome, said to have been the largest ever built of wood on the American continent.

The structure was inexpensive, covering an area of 60,000 feet. I believe it cost less than $30,000, for the builder's work. But the decoration of this extraordinary exposition, both inside and outside, was expensive, artistic and peculiar. Corn seems to be king here, and ears of corn split lengthwise, cut crosswise, corn stalks and corn husks were used with skill and remarkable effect. At a little distance it looked as if skillful painters had been at work, blending their colors most harmoniously, and as one approached and discovered that the red and yellow and mere shadows of green and white were simply the colors of corn, the stalks and the husks carefully fastened to the exterior, he was amazed, not only at the ingenuity of the work but at the wonderful patience required for its performance.

CORNER OF HOUSTON TRAVIS STREET, SHERMAN, TEX.

A GREAT STATE.

The interior had the most amazing display of the products of Texas. I was astonished to think that a single State could produce such a variety of products, minerals, coal, iron, salt, lead and copper, a great variety of hard and soft woods, some of them capable of a most beautiful finish, nuts of all kinds, cotton, a variety of corn, wheat, oats and other cereals, sugar and molasses, gigantic fruits, peas, potatoes and other vegetables—every thing that the North or South produces was displayed with lavish hand. I noticed one pear that weighed thirty-four ounces, sweet potatoes weighing twenty-five pounds, wheat that had been raised to the extent of sixty bushels to the acre, cotton grown at the rate of a bale to the acre without difficulty, with little tillage and without the use of fertilizers.

PECULIAR EXHIBITS.

One of the unique exhibits was a sealed cask of wine labeled "Tell the truth" on one side and "Grover Cleveland" on the other, and inscribed on the top "Not to be opened until another Democratic Administration, or until Texas casts the largest vote in the electoral college." Another relic was the picture of a man in the Confederate service, who fired the first gun on the secession side at Fort Sumter, who was wounded in the battle at Petersburg in 1864, and under his photograph were fastened several bones taken from his wounds.

A SERIOUS LOSS.

The loss by fire of the Spring Palace was a serious blow not only to Fort Worth, but to Texas. Thousands from every part of the Union, and many from abroad, had opened their eyes at the unexpected revelation it made of Texas' fruitfulness and resources. I was in the Palace when the fire broke out that consumed it literally into ashes within five minutes; but I will not dwell on the agonizing scene, the mad rush of men, women and children to the exits, the trampling of women, the piercing wail of the babies, the agonizing cries for help, and all the frightful scenes that turned mirth and music into the wails of despair, and transformed what seemed to be a beautiful palace of industry into a very hell of woe.

The people of Fort Worth, with true Texan grit, have resolved forthwith to rebuild the fair Spring Palace, and no one can see as he walks through the streets any diminuation of the tireless energy and buoancy of its population.

BOOMING EVERYWHERE.

In each of the cities which I have thus far visited, Dallas, Fort Worth, Gainsville, Sherman, and Denison, I have seen nothing but a boom on every side; strangely enough, however, it is not called a boom by the people, and it does not bear the aspect of what is ordinarily called a speculative boom in western cities. Rapid as has been the rise in real estate, that rise covers several years past, and it has been steadily progressing without drawback. In Sherman it looked as if prices were lower than elsewhere, but this is one of the richest small cities in Texas and many believe that is on the eve of a great rise in property values. The best evidence of the permanence of the rise is the fact that the dwellings and business places are fully occupied, and those who have property are expending large sums for its improvement. Hurley Bros., for instance, of Fort Worth, are just finishing a magnificent office building, to cost $150,000. It is the first seven story building in Fort Worth, but several others are already contemplated, the foundations of some have been laid and, within twenty months, Main street will be marked by several magnificent rivals to that erected by the energetic Hurleys. These young men, by the way, came from the East about five years ago with less than $10,000 apiece. They are not worth to-day a penny less than a quarter of a million dollars. Their story is a common one of the people of Dallas, Fort Worth, Sherman, Gainsville, and Denison, and I presume of other growing parts of the State.

RUSSELL HARRISON IN TEXAS.

The son of the President, Mr. Russell B. Harrison, is to-day in the northern part of Texas. He came on the celebrated car, the May Flower, built especially for the use of Madame Patti. Mr.

HOME OF HON. R. Q. MILLS, CORSICANA, TEX.

Harrison is the partner of Mr. W. J. Arkell (the noted New York publisher and financier) in the publication of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. He has with him in the car the editor of that paper, Mr. John A. Sleicher; the manager of the Western agency of the paper, Mr. T. G. Palmer; the head of the Western art department, Mr. George E. Burr, and a large staff of writers, artists and solicitors. They are doing up the State very thoroughly, and expect to print several Texas editions, illustrating the Lone Star State from end to end.

At Dallas, Sherman and Gainsville splendid receptions were given the party, and particular attention was paid to the President's son. He conducted himself with becoming modesty. A decidedly good impression was made at Dallas, which is one of the oldest and liveliest manufacturing centers of the State, with a wonderful future before it. Mr. Harrison's party were also entertained at Fort Worth, and he was complimented for his heroism at the time of the burning of the Spring Palace. He refused to leave the burning building until he had assisted a number of struggling women to make their escape; in fact, he was one of the last to leave the building, and it was rumored at one time that he had been lost.

MONEY POURING IN.

The amount of money that is coming into the State seeking investment, especially in the places I have mentioned, is enormous. The railroads have worked a revolution for Texas, and emigration has been the second feature in its progress. Capital alone was needed to make a combination of circumstances calculated to create a tremendous rise in values on every hand. I have seen the effect of this influx of capital, and in conversation with some of the many Northern men who are locating here, I learned that they had all found plenty of excellent openings for investment and speculative enterprises. Texas affords a hospitable welcome to young men who wish to strike out for themselves.

RUINS OF TEXAS SPRING PALACE, FORT WORTH.

A Wise Precaution.

Jamser—What a wonderfully old man De Tanque is for a man who has always been a drunkard.

Flamser—He is somewhat advanced in years, but the cause of it is plain.

Jamser—I don't see it.

Flamser—They're afraid to admit him to the next world for fear he'll swallow all the spirits.—The Jury.

Economy.

Ferguson—Why did Richard III. offer to give his kingdom for a horse?

McCusick—I don't know, unless he had once paid cab hire in New York, and thought it would be cheaper to own a horse, no matter what he paid for it.—Texas Siftings.

Only Temporary.

Tom—You are such a modest, good girl, Jenny, that I'm afraid I'm not worthy of you.

Jenny—Don't let that worry you, Tom; it's only temporary.—Texas Siftings.

PEOPLE WIDELY KNOWN.

THE Russian pianist and composer, Rubinstein, has a pension of 3,000 roubles from the Czar.

SIR MORRELL MACKENZIE, who gained his chief notoriety as the physician of Emperor Frederick, is coming to America to lecture.

MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND'S inheritance from the real estate of her grandfather at Omaha is said to be one-sixteenth of $800,000.

EXPLORER STANLEY'S medal is the first special medal which the British Geographical Society has ever given under such circumstances. It was presented by the Prince of Wales in person.

GLADSTONE and Salisbury differ in politics, but they agree in one thing—they both detest smoking. So do Parnell and John Ruskin, the poet Whittier and George W. Childs.

SECRETARY TRACY has sight in one eye only. When young he taught school in Northern New York, and an unruly pupil threw a slate at him, striking him in the eye and destroying the sight.

SENATOR STANFORD owes his first step to great wealth to a fire that destroyed his law library while he was practicing in Wisconsin, and drove him out to California at a time when he struck a tide that led on to immense wealth.

GENERAL SHERMAN is an inveterate theater-goer. If he likes a play, he enjoys seeing it a dozen times over, and no "first night" is complete without him. In evening dress, with his aquiline face and close-cropped, snow-white beard, he is a very noticeable figure.

MR. GEORGE W. CHILDS, of Philadelphia, who began life with nothing, and has become one of the richest and best known "newspaper men" in the world, says that the source of the greatest pleasure in the world is doing good to others, and that "being generous grows on one, just as being mean does."

JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL'S home in Cambridge is one of the historic houses of New England. It is a large, square, roomy mansion painted yellow, and was built over one hundred years ago in the colonial style of architecture. It was once the house of a Tory family, but for many years it has been the Lowell homestead. During the greater part of Mr. Lowell's residence in England the house was occupied by Ole Bull's family.

SHORTLY before his departure from Berlin Prince Bismarck visited a restaurant keeper who had been his cook for many years. Sitting at one of the little tables he ordered a cup of coffee, and then, making his old cook sit down at the same table, he told him that the coffee tasted all the better for being made in so big a cup; "especially," he added, "since I have been forbidden to drink any coffee at all!"

GENERAL VON CAPRIVI is described as a just man, thoughtful and almost tender toward subaltern officers in their straits. Simple and unassuming, as men of merit mostly are, he soon found himself beloved by the navy, although never concealing his preference for the army in general, and the Guards in particular; and popular in Parliament, although disdaining the use of even the slightest ornament in his speech.

EMPEROR WILLIAM seriously objects to being stared at, particulary at church. He has issued a Cabinet order in which he says that "from the moment I enter church until I leave hundreds of eyes are, to my great annoyance, fixed on me. I desire at least to be able to isolate myself for a few moments at divine service Sundays. All those who desire to look at me can do so during my daily rides and drives in the Thiergarten or 'Unter den Linden.'"

LIGHT AND LAUGHABLE.

"WILL you marry me, Ethel?" said the youth. "My family is all that one could wish for." "Then why do you want me?"

CONDUCTOR—"Those people in this car who monopolize two seats apiece with their bundles are notified that hog cholera is raging in the next town we stop at."

THOSE Kentucky editors are good fellows. One of them published an editorial, another stole it, and the first one republished it and gave the second credit for it.

"HAVE you any thing to offer the court before sentence is passed?" asked the judge of a recently convicted man. "No, your honor, my lawyer took my last farthing," replied the prisoner.

"CAN you forgive me and love me still," said the new-made bride, "when I confess that my teeth are artificial?" "Thank goodness!" cried the groom, as he snatched off his wig, "now I can cool my head!"

WHAT a contrast there sometimes is between the adjective and the adverb. Reflect, for example, on the wide difference that exists between the man who is constant in love, and the man who is constantly in love.

LIEUTENANT—"Have you tried your new horse, yet, mam'selle?" Lady—"Yes, and the rascal acted as if he wanted to run away with me." Lieutenant (sighing deeply)—"A very natural feeling, mam'selle. I'm not surprised in the least. I'd feel that way myself."

"WHO is that handsome young man standing over there?" inquired an old gentleman of a rich old lady at a party. "That's my son-in-law. He's a very brilliant young man—made a large fortune by the law." "Indeed!" said the old gentleman. "How's that?" "The law made him my daughter's husband."

"SIR," said a little, bustling chap to a gentleman whom he derided for keeping his shop closed on Saturday; "I say, sir, to what sect do you think I belong?" "Well, I don't exactly know," replied the other, "but to judge from your make, size, and appearance, I should say you belonged to a class called the insect."

DINER—"Here waiter, what on earth have you given me here? I called for tripe, but this is the stringiest stuff I ever encountered!" Waiter (after critical examination)—"Just as I expected. That cook of ours is terribly near-sighted, and instead of tripe, she's served up a piece of Turkish towel. Perhaps you'd like something else?"

CAPITAL LETTER.

Some Interesting Localities in and About Washington.

A View of Pennsylvania Avenue Looking East from the Capitol—Houses with Histories That May Be Seen from the Street-Cars.

[Special Correspondence.]

An afternoon on the street-cars in Washington, even to an old resident, reveals many things new and novel. Accompanying a visiting friend to the Navy Yard his admiration was excited as we sped down Pennsylvania avenue from Georgetown. Things common to our daily observation were sources of admiration and amazement to the stranger. The old houses west of Rock creek, houses which look as though they were there before or immediately after Noah's flood, are peculiar in appearance, from their buried condition. By the grading of the street the entire first story of each house is lower than the sidewalk. Observation develops the fact that these damp, abhorrent places were once the abodes of the rich and proud old families of the original commercial mart of the upper Potomac. They are builded of excellent material and will last for many years to come, unless removed to be replaced with structures more modern. Crossing the dividing line between old Georgetown and old Washington, Rock creek, the cars glide over smooth tracks laid between wide stretches of asphaltum pavement, and on either side of the broad avenue are many ancient houses which were occupied by "the best families" of the celebrated West End in the days of Jackson, Polk, Clay and Webster. Upon a high hill stands the splendid residence of Mr. Mullett, the architect and builder of the great Treasury Department building. It was left on an eminence, just as the Georgetown houses were left under ground, by necessary street grading.

As we round the Washington Circle, at the intersection of Twenty-second street, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania avenues and K street, peering through the thick foliage we gaze upon the equestrian statue of Washington, by Clark Mills, the great artist and sculptor of a recent generation. On our left are the seven buildings, looking very rusty, dusty and ancient; yet the wealth, beauty and intelligence of Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia used to gather there, when those hospitable roofs covered the families of Senators and Cabinet Ministers of gay administrations. Out Twentieth street we can see in the distance the old O'Neill farm building, a large frame dwelling now unoccupied, to which General Jackson often walked, and on the veranda of which he drank pure spring water, pure milk, pure whisky and smoked pure tobacco from a pure wooden pipe.

PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE LOOKING EAST.

The great State, War and Navy Department building stands on one side of us and the Corcoran Art Gallery on the other side as we cross Seventeenth street. Before we have had time to take in the gorgeousness and beauty of either building we are passing the White House. The broad lawn is smooth mown, the fountain playing and the trees waving in the breezes like plumed knights surrounding and guarding the palace of our uncrowned King; but, on the other side of the avenue, as we quickly turn our heads we see LaFayette Park, with the rearing equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson in the center of it, while workmen are busily engaged in preparing the pedestal for the recently-finished statue in honor of LaFayette. Our local rulers are worried about having two statues in this one park; but we can not worry with them for the horses are going right along and carrying us past the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department.

That brown stone front building, occupied by the Attorney-General with the employes of the Department of Justice was once the Freedmens' Bank building in fact it was erected by that corporation which swindled and made poor so many of the confiding race but recently liberated and citizenized. The Treasury is getting old and dingy, its columns need scraping and pumicing, as well as soaping and watering. They do say, however, that the marks of time upon the great imitation of Greek temples must not be removed, as they give to the edifice and through it to the country, that respectability which comes of old age. Howbeit, we are a young Nation, a Nation of youngsters, and our strength and vigor are such as to warrant us in taking pride in our youth instead of aping the distinctions of monarchies with their accompanying decrepitudes.

As we descend the hill on Fifteenth street, passing the Corcoran building on the left, looking down F street we can see the entablatures of the Patent and Post-office Departments in the distance. But here we are on the avenue again, passing the celebrated old hostelrie, Willard's, where General Grant and many other distinguished gentlemen have rested on their journeys through life.

The entire block of ground between Eleventh and Twelfth street, has been selected for the site of our new city post-office building. This is but a start in the direction towards which the public mind has been trending for a score of years. In a short time now, the entire south side of the avenue will be occupied by Government buildings, and then it will be unquestionably the handsomest street in the world.

Here we are at Seventh street, and every thing looks like business about us. Our sleepy old town is pricking up its ears and commencing to live. From the Potomac river to boundary on Seventh street, a distance of three miles, we have cable cars. Out New York avenue we have electric cars running to the old home of Kate Chase; but everywhere else, we must go on the horse cars. Well, as we roll down the avenue, between First and Sixth streets, we find ourselves flanked on either side by doggeries, vile saloons and viler laundries. Here is the National disgrace to which the attention of our temperance and prohibition people should be called. Right under the nose of the Goddess of Liberty on the dome of the Capitol; right under the eyes and daily observation of our statesmen; on the main thoroughfare of the city, along which all of our wives, daughters and sweethearts must promenade, are the most disreputable drinking places you ever saw. The oasis in the desert of crime is the immense stretch of ground occupied by the Botanical Gardens between First and Third streets, on the south side of the avenue. Well, we have no time for further philosphy, but ride past the Peace Monument, around the Capitol grounds, and up the hill. The landscape gardening all around this tremendously big and wonderfully beautiful building is the finest on earth. Art has been applied to nature and perfection attained.

Going down Pennsylvania avenue east we see on our left long rows of high derricks, looking like the masts of so many ships. Within that inclosure, an entire block of ground surrounded by high board fencing, Brigadier-General Casey, chief of engineers, the man who completed the Washington Monument, is erecting a structure for the great Congressional Library. It will be one of our grandest public buildings.

From here all along the avenue there is nothing of interest to be seen. The buildings are old or they are small and cheap. It was the intention of the civil engineers who platted the city that the principal portion of the Capital of the New World should be built upon this elevated plateau, called Capitol Hill. But the Carrolls and others of that day held their land at such extravagant figures that the population was obliged to go over to the West side and take root there. As a consequence, Capitol Hill is not yet, and will not be for some time to come, a consequential part of the city. As we round the curve at Eighth street and go south we see before us the immense portals of the Navy Yard in the distance. On our left is the Marine Barracks, an old, yellow-painted affair, covering a block of ground. Here a battalion of marines is always stationed, and here is the home of the celebrated Marine Band. The handsome parade ground in the center is used for drilling the men, while one end of it is kept neat, tidy, clean and grassy, for the families of the officers. In the middle of this beauty spot every Thursday evening the Marine Band gives a concert for an hour or more, and many people in the city are invited to enjoy it with the officers and their families.

Here we are at the end of the route, with the great Navy Yard before us, its gate guarded by a marine. We must take another time to enter and see this official wonderland.

SMITH D. FRY.

Like Bubbles on the Water.

General Nathaniel P. Banks, of Massachusetts, who was Speaker of the House of Representatives before the war, this afternoon said: "The tenure of a seat in the House of Representatives is precarious, and few there be who succeed in long maintaining it. Although I have not been in politics for a long time, I must say as a casual reader of the daily papers that I have noticed the changes annually occurring in the House of Representatives. The men who were leaders here thirty years ago are now practically forgotten. Every four or six years the entire membership of the House is changed and very few men continue in service long enough to be known to the entire country. Ex-Speaker Carlisle is comparatively a new member and so is Speaker Reed. Mr. Kelly and Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, each served for a generation. Moreover," he added very pathetically, "it is very noticable that Representatives are soon forgotten in Washington when they are gone."

No Wonder She Was Afraid.

A Galveston (Tex.) man is in the habit of getting up early and going in swimming in the bay before breakfast. One morning his wife remarked at the breakfast table:

"George, I am so anxious while you are away bathing in the morning that I can't sleep a wink until you get back."

George felt very much flattered that his wife cared so much for his safety, and being desirous of allaying her apprehensions, he said:

"Don't be alarmed. I know how to swim, and there is no danger of my getting drowned."

"I was not thinking about your getting drowned. That never entered my head; but I am afraid that some thief, knowing that you leave the house early in the morning, may sneak in while you are away and steal the silver."—Texas Siftings.

The Woolly West.

Eastern Man—You have no railroad here yet, I believe?

Native—Wal, no; they's plenty o' rails, an' plenty o' roads, an' we sometimes give a feller a ride on a rail along a road, but we ain't got no steam cars hyar yet, if that's what you mean.—Light.

It Was Evidently True.

Tangle—I see in this morning's Scarer that poor Binks was run over on the railroad yesterday and killed. Sad, isn't it?

Cooley—Dear me, is that so? Why, I met Binks just now, and he never told me any thing about it!—West Shore.

LAKE PEPIN'S DEAD

Thirty-One Victims Recovered Since Midnight.

BODIES FLOATING ON THE WATER

Coming to the Surface Too Fast to be Cared For.

A Large Number of People Still Missing. Twenty-Six of the Thirty-one Found Identified--The Captain of the Ill-Fated Vessel Arrested--Exonerated from Blame by Survivors.

LAKE CITY, Minn., July 17.—The close watch of the men who have been on duty since Monday in the hope that some of the bodies of the victims of the recent disaster would come to the surface was rewarded during the day by the finding of a total of 31 bodies since midnight last night.

The gasses which usually form in the human body, after lying about three days in the water, were sufficient to give them the necessary buoyancy to bring them to the surface and during the forenoon the number of remains recovered has been increased almost hourly.

Bodies have been coming to the surface in the vicinity of the wreck almost too fast for them to be properly cared for. Twenty-four have been found floating on the surface of the lake by 11 o'clock, and after 12 o'clock seven more men were found. The bodies were placed in boxes and packed in ice as fast as they could be taken to Central Pointe.

At noon the twenty-four secured were taken to Red Wing, and as soon as the steamer could return the remaining seven were sent up to the place. It is stated that twenty-six of the thirty-one found have now been identified. The list of their names is obtainable only in Red Wing. Two of the bodies were found to be those of parties whose names were not among recently published lists of missing ones.

A dispatch from Red Wing says that there are still nine people missing from that city. Others are still missing from Diamond Bluff and Trenton, Wis. Nearly all the watches found on bodies recovered stopped at an average time of 8:35 p. m., on Sunday night, so that it is thought that the wreck occurred about 8:30 p. m. Eight members of the First Regiment, N. G. S. M., are detailed for all night duty in the vicinity of the wreck. The estimate made yesterday of 115 lives lost by the disaster will probably be verified.

Arrested by His Friends.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 17.—The captain of the ill-fated Sea Wing is under arrest, having been arrested last night at the instance of his friends, who considered him to be in danger of his life from the friends of the victims of the Lake Pepin disaster. He is said to be in jail at Ellsworth, Wis., just across the river from here.

Exonerated from Blame.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 17.—The more prudent now seem to think that even if there was carelessness on the part of Captain Wethern he is sufficiently punished by the death of his wife and child. Warren Sparks, Hugo Herder and several others who were rescued from the wreck, said: "We fully exonerate Captain A. Wethern from all blame in the lake disaster from which we were saved."

CHAPLEAU'S GOOD LUCK.

Gov. Hill Commutes His Death Sentence to Imprisonment for Life.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 17.—Gov. Hill has commuted the death sentence of Joseph Chapleau to one of imprisonment for life, thus leaving Kemmler the first person to be electrocuted. Chapleau was to have been executed some time next week.

The Governor says: "This application for executive clemency is based upon a petition signed by many of the leading citizens of Clinton County, including nearly all the county officials. The county judge strongly favors the application. The district attorney does not oppose it. The twelve jurymen who rendered a verdict against the defendant unanimously unite in asking for a commutation. While the evidence clearly establishes the killing by the defendant, yet there remains some doubt as to the degree of his guilt and the extent of his responsibility for his acts at the time. It must be conceded that a verdict of murder in the second degree would have been a safer and more satisfactory verdict."

Billy Myer After Another Fight.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 17.—Billy Myer has again made up his dispute with Alf Kennedy, of this city. The latter has issued a challenge to match Myer against Andy Bowen or Jack McAuliffe, to fight for the Police Gazette champion belt, $2,500 a side, and the lightweight championship of America. Meyer will fight Bowen again in New Orleans if the Audubon Club will put up a purse.

Death of Henry Blodgett.

BOSTON, Mass., July 17.—Henry Blodgett, who was active in the anti-slavery movement nearly half a century ago, an earnest advocate of temperance and prominent in other reform movements in association with the late Willard Sears, is dead at his home in Newton, aged 89. Mr. Blodgett was one of the founders of the Boston Young Men's Association.

Electric Light Shops Burned.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., July 17.—The shops of the Anglo-American Light Company in Kensington were destroyed by fire. Loss unknown.

AN EXCITING BLAZE.

Several Building on Fire at Once in Fall River, Mass.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 17.—A destructive fire originated in the junk store of Crowley & Co., and in less than five minutes one of the most extensive conflagrations seen here in many months had begun.

The rags in the junk store gave out flames that went into the air to the height of 60 feet. Dense clouds of black smoke accompanied the flames. In a few moments the roofs in all sections of the city below Main street and bounded by Pocasset and Spring streets, were on fire.

The Godley property corner Annawan and Summer streets, the Guinea property corner Brady and Annawan streets, the Fall River Manufacturing Company's property between Pocasset and Union streets, the McMahon House, a large flat roof tenement, the Presbyterian Church and a host of small sheds, barns, etc., were on fire at once.

Most of the mills on the stream from Pocasset street, west, were engaged in running out hose, and the section presented a sight unlike any seen here in a generation.

The junk store was licked up in less than fifteen minutes, and the interest centered in the tenement property east of it which gave signs of burning rapidly. The whole police force was called out to keep back the thousands of citizens. The new hook and ladder trucks recently purchased by the city were turned into water towers, and with them the firemen did effective work. After two hours hard work the fires were under control.

Crowley's loss is estimated at $10,000 to $15,000; Godley's loss is $2,000, and the loss on the Guinea property, $1,000. On the McMahon House, Presbyterian Church and other property in the section the damage is chiefly by water.

POWERFUL BACKERS.

A Big Scheme on Foot to Develop a New Oil Territory.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., July 17.—It is reported on good authority that a gigantic scheme to develop the oil territory in this State is under headway, with J. G. Blaine, S. B. Elkins, Senator Camden and the Standard Oil Company behind it.

The intention is to sink a line of wells from Mannington across the State through the West Virginia oil fields to Eureka. Over 100 wells have already been put down, and the Standard is to erect the tanks, with a total capacity of 300,000 barrels and a pipe line. Nearly $1,000,000 has already been expended in the preliminary work."

Andy Bowen's Challenge to McAuliffe.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Jack McAuliffe has received a challenge from Andy Bowen. Bowen objects to any 20-round affair, but wants to fight to a finish for the championship belt. If McAuliffe is willing he will come to New York and meet him before the Puritan in September on the above conditions. If McAuliffe fears a finish fight in New York Bowen offers to meet him before one of the clubs for a $2,500 purse, winner to take all.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

RONDOUT, N. Y., July 17.—George H. Robinson, a married man 28 years of age, has been arrested and held for the grand jury on a charge of committing an assault upon Eva Smith, the 12-year-old daughter of William Smith, at Freedom Plains. The affair has created great excitement in the neighborhood, and had not Robinson been arrested he would undoubtedly have been lynched.

Killed in a Freight Wreck.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 17.—Two men were killed and several cars demolished by a freight wreck at an early morning hour on the Philadelphia division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near Harford station, between two freight trains coming south. The dead are D. A. Wendall, fireman; W. T. Furr, brakeman.

The Heat Killed Him.

NEWARK, N. J., July 17.—Edward Simon, founder of the great trunk manufacturing firm of this city, died suddenly at his home last night from the effects of the heat. Mr. Simon was born in Prussia sixty-two years ago, and has been in this country forty years. He leaves a family.

A Boy Finds $15,000.

LYNN, Mass., July 17.—On the Willow road, Nahant, Charles Jackson, of Marlboro, eight years old, who is visiting, picked up a pocketbook containing nearly $15,000 in gold, gold certificates and checks. The property was returned to the owner, Captain Robinson, of Stoneham, who lost it from his pocket.

Mangled to Death.

MORRISTOWN, Pa., July 17.—Daniel Kline, flagman at Royersford, for the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, attempted to stop a runaway team, when he was knocked under a passing coal train, and was mangled to death. He leaves a large family.

Congressman Kerr Selected.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 17.—Congressman Kerr, of Clearfield, was unanimously selected as chairman of the Democratic State Committee at a meeting of the committee in this city. The new chairman made a speech accepting the chairmanship.

Block Burned and Firemen Injured.

GARDNER, Mass., July 17.—Mansfield's new block was partially burned in West Gardner, and several tenants sustained considerable loss. Two firemen were seriously hurt by falling from a ladder.

Died of Hydrophobia.

LOWELL, Mass., July 17.—William Johnson, aged 16, who was bitten by a dog three months ago, died of hydrophobia last evening.

BASEBALL COUNCIL

A Meeting of the Players' League Being Held To-Day.

WYE IT WAS CALLED A MYSTERY

The Officers Say They Have No Knowledge of Contemplated Changes.

A Claim That the National League is Giving Away Tickets--Very Light Attendance at the Games--Both Brooklyn Teams Win--Boston's Brotherhood Club Give the Buffaloes a Bad Beating.

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—A meeting of the Players' League is being held here this afternoon.

It was called by President McAlpin, and Secretary Brunnell and others here declare that they do not know its object. They have no knowledge of any contemplated changes.

Secretary Brunell said he did not think the meeting was called for the purpose of combatting the alleged free ball policy of the League. "That the National League is playing free ball in some cities I am certain, said Secretary Brunell. "Why out in Chicago they are giving away free passes by the hundred. They are using Sam Morton's old Western League tickets for complimentaries. Besides this both Spalding and Anson have come out in the newspapers and said they would give free ball if the Players' League continued to live much longer."

President Addison, of the Chicago Club, said he did not know the object of the special meeting. "What I do know," said Mr. Addison, "is that the National League magnates have proved false prophets. All the prophecies they have made about the Players' League have failed of fulfillment. They gave dates to their prophecies and they have all gone wrong. We made but one prophecy, that we would live, and we are still living and we will live. I think we have the National League on the run."

The Vanderbilts Were Fooled.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The news of the purchase of the controlling interest in the Chicago stock yards by the Pennsylvania Railroad syndicate, was a big surprise in financial circles in this city and Chicago. The Vanderbilts and their allies were certain for two weeks past that they were masters of the situation, but while the arrangements for reorganization were in progress the Pennsylvania people slipped in and secretly purchased huge blocks of the stock at prices away beyond anything that had previously been offered.

IS HE THE MURDERER?

Joseph Dunn Arrested for Killing Annie Leconey.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 17.—The Leconey tragedy is again revived. Mrs. Anna Durham, a colored woman, accuses her son-in-law, Joseph Dunn, with being concerned in the murder of Miss Annie Leconey about one year ago.

Mrs. Durham says under oath that about a week previous to the murder Dunn informed her that Chalkley Leconey, who was acquitted of the murder of the girl, owed him some money and that he proposed to get it, for he knew where the Leconey family keep their savings from the products of the farm. According to Mrs. Durham's story, Dunn disappeared and did not return until a week after the Leconey tragedy.

She further says that when he came back he had a new suit of clothes and plenty of money. He then said to her: "I have got at the money, all but what has been paid to them who have got to hold their tongues."

When Dunn was visited in the county jail by a reporter he denied the story of his mother-in-law.

Chalkley Leconey, who was acquitted of the murder of his niece, was engaged on his farm when a reporter related the story to him. He said he did not desire to say anything until he had a conference with his friend, County Clerk Burrough.

Mrs Dunn, the wife of the prisoner, says her mother's mind has been affected for some time past and that she has concocted this story in order to be revenged on Dunn for some grievance she has against him.

ELOPERS RUN DOWN.

A Syracuse Woman Finds Her Recreant Husband in Ontario.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 17.—A couple giving their names as Mr. and Mrs. George Rivers arrived in this city a week ago and engaged rooms at a boarding house.

Yesterday Philip Docker, an elderly German contractor of Syracuse, N. Y., arrived, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Henry King. They called on the police and said that Mrs. King's husband, a barber in Syracuse, had eloped with a married woman named Sarah Wadman, alias Kate Sprague.

The Rivers couple were identified as the elopers and they were arrested.

Mrs. King had an interview with her husband, and he agreed to return home and was discharged from custody.

Another Blow in the West.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 17.—Reports of a cyclone at Stillwater prove unfonded. The force of the storm was spent at Marine and New Richmond, Wis., to which points no wires are yet in operation. In North St. Paul the works of the Acme Chair Company were blown down. Considerable damage to property is reported in Anoka County, but so far as known no lives have been lost.

Testing Military Balloons.

BERLIN, July 17.—Two Austrian officers, who yesterday went up in a military balloon from the Prater in Vienna, were carried to Bruezkow, in the province of Posen, in Prussia. Thence they were driven by the currents to southern Sweden, and finally were carried by other currents back to Prussia. All the distance of their aerial journey was covered in 11 hours.

Trust Money Not Accounted For.

BEVERLY, N. J., July 17.—H. C. Thompson, a wealthy citizen of this place, who recently attempted suicide in the Jersey City depot, is now, it is said, accused of being a defaulter. He has held trust funds for the Weyman estate of which $17,000 is not yet accounted for, and has also had charge of funds of other estates. An investigation is being made.

The Teutonic's Quick Trip.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The steamship Teutonic, just arrived here, made the run from Roche's Point by the long route, 2,888 miles, in 5 days, 12 hours, 55 minutes. This is equal to or better than the 5 days, 19 hours, 18 minutes trip of the City of Paris, the latter coming by the short route, 2,788 miles.

Two Children Burned to Death.

NORWICH, Conn., July 17.—Two children, between four and five years old, belonging to Timothy Sullivan and John Brull, of Colchester, set fire to the barn of Patrick McCarthy, on Gillett's Hill, in that place, while playing with fire, and perished in the flames.

Not Guilty of Murder.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The jury, in the case of John McGuinness, for the murder of Daniel Lyons, his brother-in-law, in Brooklyn on February 12, returned a verdict of not guilty. They found that McGuinness shot Lyons in self-defense.

Cut in Two by the Cars.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 17.—Fall Brook train, No. 41, ran over W. J. Daniels, a brakeman, at Dresden, cutting him in two. This was his first trip. His residence was at Tioga, Pa.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The House Refused the Behring Sea Documents.

THE PRESIDENT CANNOT COMPLY

To Make the Papers Public Would Increase the Present Feeling of Irritation.

The River and Harbor Bill May be Abandoned--Senator Sherman to Retire After His Present Term--Opposed to Ex-Confederates Holding Office--Two Important Appointments.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The President held a long conference with Representative Hitt of Illinois, Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, with relation to the Behring Sea correspondence called for in Mr. Hitt's resolution. Representative Dingley of Maine, a member of the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries, and a close student of the Behring Sea controversy, also called on the President and conferred with him on the subject of the House resolution.

It can be stated without violating the confidence of any one that the President has indicated clearly that he does not, at this time, regard it as a wise move lay the correspondence before House of Representatives, and so make it public.

The President bases his objection on the ground that the threat made by Lord Salisbury regarding the protection of British sealers in Behring Sea by British war vessels must necessarily be confirmed by the publication of any material portion of the correspondence, and that such confirmation would tend to increase the present feeling of irritation, and possibly defeat the purpose of the negotiations now again in progress.

This idea urges itself the more strongly on the President by reason of his great reluctance to make public any part of the modified instructions to our revenue cutters in Behring Sea. It would require the publication of these instructions to show conclusively that they have been rendered so inoffensive that Lord Salisbury will doubtless never have an opportunity to carry out his threat.

THE TREASURY DEFICIT.

The Senate May Abandon the River and Harbor Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The apparent deficit in the National Treasury, which Senator Allison has figured out, is being severely criticised by members of Congress. The Senator had omitted a number of important items, which should have been included on the credit side of the accounts. Among the items is one of $58,000, which will come in under the operations of the Silver bill, and $40,000,000, which will come from the gold reserve.

A prominent member of the House said that in order to cut down the expenditures it is contemplated for the Senate to quietly abandon the River and Harbor bill and to take the bull by the horns and restore the duty on sugar that has been reduced by the McKinley bill, and to throw the proposed sugar bounty overboard. The sugar proposition will, of course, be antagonized.

Senator Sherman to Retire.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The determination of John Sherman, of Ohio, to retire from public life at the end of his present term—March 3, 1893—is the subject of considerable comment around the Capitol. He will be 70 years old at the expiration of his present service. He has told his friends that he is tired of public life and wants to retire to his old home at Mansfield, Ohio, and spend the remainder of his life with his family. Senator sherman has been in Congress more than thirty years, serving three decades already in the Senate.

Editors Call on the President.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The members of the Pennsylvania Editorial Association, with their ladies, now visiting Washington, were given a special reception by President Harrison. The party numbered more than 150 persons. The reception took place in the East room, the introductions being made by Col. R. H. Thomas, secretary of the association. The party left for Norfolk and Virginia Beach, where they will remain several days.

Opposed to Ex-Confederates.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The Maryland Republican Association passed resolutions demanding that all ex-Confederates in the Government departments appointed during Cleveland's administration be dismissed from office, and that their places be filled by ex-Union soldiers who are Republicans.

Two Important Appointments.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The following nominations were sent to the Senate by the President: A. B. Nettleton, of Minnesota, to be an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; James Russell Soley, of Massachusetts, to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Population of Chicago.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Superintendent Porter has received from Supervisor Gilbert the final figures of the population of Chicago, which place the population of that city at 1,101,263. In 1880, the official count showed a population of 503,185 in Chicago.

Ohio Republican Nominations.

CLEVELAND, O., July 17.—The Republican convention nominated Hon. Daniel J. Ryan for the position of Secretary of State by acclamation. Judge Thaddeus A. Minchin was nominated by acclamation for the Supreme Judgeship.

THE BRIDE DROWNED.

The Authorities Suspect Foul Play and Arrest Two Men.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., July 17.—Mrs. Maggie Maguire, of Philadelphia, was drowned while bathing in the Delaware river, near the mouth of Big Timber Creek, at the lower end of Gloucester Beach. Just where the drowning occurred cannot be determined, because the eye-witness seem to be unable to correctly describe it.

Mrs. Maguire, it appears, was on a sailing excursion in a cabin yacht from Camden in company with Miss Maggie O'Neil, Miss Maggie Sanders, both of Philadelphia, and Samuel Cousins and William Hare, of Camden. The men are locked up in Camden and the girls are in jail here, and the public prosecutor has ordered that all be kept in custody pending an investigation.

Mrs. Maguire was a young woman and had been married but four weeks. The spot where the drowning is said to have occurred was unsuccessfully dragged. The authorities suspect foul play.

FIGHT IN NEW FOUNDLAND.

Rumors of Fresh Trouble of a Most Serious Character.

HALIFAX, July 17.—There are rumors open that fresh trouble, of a most serious character, has broken out between the French and English on the Newfoundland coast.

It is said that the Newfoundland cruiser Fiona fired a shot across the bows of a French fishing brig, which had refused to obey the cruiser's signals to lay to, the French vessel having been discovered taking bait on the South coast.

The story has not been confirmed, but color is given to it by the hurried departure yesterday of H. M. S. Bellerophon and two other men-of-war.

Adopted the "Rebate" Plan.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The cigarette trust, known as the American Tobacco Company, has adopted the "rebate" plan of dealing with jobbers. This is the scheme by which the Whiskey Trust binds the wholesale whiskey dealers to its interests. The cigarette jobbers are much dissatisfied at the prospect of having to pay thirty per cent rebate as a guarantee of dealing only with the trust, but it looks as though they would have to submit.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Gottfried Keller, the German poet, is dead in Berlin in the 71st year of his age.

Silver has advanced in price in Amsterdam from 84 to 86 guilders per kilo.

H. M. Johnson, America's champion sprinter, is lying at death's door in Grass Valley, Cal.

Adams Dobleur, a shoemaker of Boston, aged forty years, was probably fatally stabbed by his wife during a quarrel last night. He received four wounds.

There is a decided improvement at Buenos Ayres in the financial situation and negotiations will be resumed for the securing of a sterling loan.

The strike which has been on at the shoe factory of James H. Winchell & Co., at Haverhill, Mass., since June 5, has been declared off and the men have returned to work.

Census returns make the population of the 14 largest cities in Vermont 84,076, a gain of 17,609 since 1880. The entire State is expected to show a population of 310,000.

Negotiations are pending at Buffalo, N. Y., for a race against time between the two great trotters, Belle Hamlin and Sunol. The rider is to trot them each separately, with a running mate if desired, the mare making the fastest time to take first money.

Hathaway, Soule & Harrington's shoe factory at New Bedford, Mass., has started up but only one striker returned. The firm say all departments but one are in operation and that one will be within a few days. The strikers voted to stand firm.

Keeper McNaughton, of Auburn State Prison, has written a letter to Deputy Sheriff J. C. Ceiling, of Buffalo, N. Y., enclosing a series of sketches drawn by Kemmler and presented to Ceiling. Keeper McNaughton says that Kemmler requested him to write that he (Kemmler) is in good spirits and healthy, and expects to die like a man and a Christian.

Accidentally Killed By His Brother.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 17.—Little Freddie Rappold, the son of Jacob Rappold, a baker, at 717 Myrtle Avenue, was shot in the right eye and almost instantly killed by his seven-year-old brother George. Freddie obtained a revolver from a trunk, which George took from him. Pointing it playfully at Freddie he asked him to look into the barrel and see if it was loaded. While in the act of doing so the pistol exploded and the ball entered Freddie's right eye.

Indicted for Manslaughter.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 17.—The grand jury indicted Frederick A. Hale, of Hinsdale, for manslaughter. On May 4 Hale killed his brother Henry with a whiffletree during a quarrel. The boy's father committed suicide a few days later. Hale pleaded not guilty.

Bitten by Cats.

CONCORD, N. H., July 17.—Luther Clough, 72 years old, of Bow, was bitten through the hand by two cats about a week ago. He soon became ill, suffering greatly from his wounds, and it is expected he will die.

Respited by Governor Campbell.

COLUMBUS, O., July 17.—Gov. Campbell respited "Brocky" Smith, who was to be hung, in order that the Supreme Court may look into an alleged error in his trial.

BY THE WAY.

—Yesterday's PRESS was the best newspaper without question, that was ever issued in this city.

—The regular mid-week meeting of the Plainfield Reform Club will be held in Reform Hall this evening at eight o'clock. All are invited.

—Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Greader, of North Plainfield, who is to be tried before Justice Hardy for illegal liquor selling, has demanded a jury.

—Arthur Scott and wife of this city, yesterday transferred to Frederick C. Johnson, a lot Northwest side of Elm street, 300 feet from Rock avenue, 64x152 feet, for a consideration of $100.

—Miss Margaret Sullivan has opened an intelligence office for the engaging of first-class servants of all kinds. She has taken the place at 53 Park avenue, formerly occupied by Mrs. Cairncross.

—At Pope's dry and fancy goods store, corner of Front and Somerset streets, you can secure special bargains for a few days. He is having a remnant sale, and goods are selling at one-half their value.

—The regular meeting of Franklin Council, 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be held as usual this evening. A large number of the brothers are requested to be present as business of importance to the Order is to be transacted.

—The Saratoga News says that "Hotel Netherwood, Netherwood, N. J., is on the heights, only forty-five minutes from New York," and adds that "the business men of Gotham cannot find a better place for his family outing."

—The quality of this paper, so far as its material is concerned, is very bad. An apology is due our readers. The cause is that the last order on the mills was so large a one that it has taken an unusual time to complete. The new lot is expected every day.

Protection for Building Associations at Home.

Secretary Kelsey should receive his due meed of praise for his efforts to protect the people of this State from the so-called national building associations now "flourishing" in the West. If they are to trade in New Jersey the Secretary wants from them an accounting just as is now required of other companies who do not hesitate to give him such information as assures him they are doing an honest business. The people need all the protection possible to give them in these days when all sorts of organizations and other devices are set on foot to rob the innocent of their savings.

There's No Cause for Alarm.

The story that an iceberg has escaped from the fastnesses of the Watchung Mountains, has swept through the Feltville dam, and is on its way down Green Brook to devastate this city, need not occasion any alarm in the breasts of timid Plainfielders, or especial joy in the hearts of hot ones.

Mr. Tier says that his lake is big enough and strong enough to hold any Feltville berg, and adds that the Tier lake region is cool enough any way. Besides, haven't two men on horseback dashed off to investigate!

Where Were the S. P. C. A. Members?

A crowd of people gathered in front of a Plainfield store this morning and entertained themselves by gazing at two large gray squirrels, captives from their cool and native woods, panting with the fierce heat and tormented by scores of flies. All had been complaining of the sweltering weather, but no one suggested that it was hot weather to coop harmless wild animals in close quarters for the amusement of the city's populace.

Barbers Want the Law Put on Them.

At the next meeting of the Council a petition will probably be presented signed by most of the boss barbers of the city, asking the enforcement of the law requiring them to keep their places of business closed on Sundays. This is all right. The best will willingly close, and the others should be compelled to for the protection of the rights of the former.

A Tumbling Tumbler's Deed.

A glass tumbler fell from a top shelf in Neis' bakery on Liberty street, this morning, and a piece of the glass struck Mr. Neis in the eye, inflicting an ugly wound. Dr. Paul is in attendance.

BLACKMAILING YET.

The Clerks Have Discovered the Secret of a Pretended Friendship.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Will you kindly publish the enclosed article, written for the evening news referring to an article published in their columns a few nights before. But they refused to print it on the grounds that the party referred to in it, did not advertise in their paper, and they did not propose to give him a free add. This may be a way to gain advertising matter, but I think not, when he offends one of the Clerks' Association, he offends all. He may think they do not amount to anything but time will tell. Here it is, as near as I can remember it:

To the Editor of The News:—I was glad to see in your columns an article signed by one of the clerks, thanking the merchants who so kindly responded to the clerks call for early closing. And will you kindly add to the list the name of one of our largest dry goods stores, S. H. Whitney, who last night came into the ranks. It will only be a matter of a short time when all our leading stores will close early. They would do it at once if they would only stop to consider, that they must sell as many goods in the shorter hours, if all in their line were closed, and that they would save their gass bills which would be quite an item, besides have their evenings at home. And Mr. Editor if you will let me suggest, I think it would be a good idea as well as interesting to many readers to publish a standing list of the early closers, and each night add the new ones that come into line.

ONE WHO HAS BEEN THERE.

OBITUARY.

DANIEL T. VANBUREN.

Gen. Daniel T. VanBuren, one of Plainfield's best known citizens, died at his home, 27 East Ninth street, at a late hour last night. He had suffered a long time from heart trouble, which was greatly aggravated by the death of a favorite son, Francis, fifteen months ago.

Daniel T. VanBuren was a son of the famous jurist, Judge VanBuren of Kingston, N. Y., which was the home of the General's boyhood. When about twenty years of age, in 1843, he entered the Military Academy at West Point, and was graduated four years later, entering the United States Army July 1, 1847, as Second Lieutenant of the Second Artillery. He was promoted to First Lieutenancy Feb. 14, 1849, and served until his resignation, March 31, 1855. At the outbreak of the war of the Rebellion he volunteered for service, and was mustered in August 3, 1861, as Major Assistant Adjutant General. He became Colonel Add'l Aide-de-Camp June 1, 1862, and Brigadier-General of Volunteers March 13, 1865, and was mustered out of the volunteer service March 20, 1866, having served with great distinction through the war, and still holding himself in readiness for engagement in the regular service. A large portion of the Rebellion period he spent as aide and adjutant-general to General Dix. He was with Gen. Dix throughout almost his entire campaigns, including the engagements at Fortress Monroe and Norfolk.

After the close of the war the General retired with a most honorable military record, to private life. Acting under medical advice, he refrained from active business pursuits, and surrendered himself to a well-earned enjoyment of his wealth and family happiness. His wife, one of the most cultured of women, is a member of the Gouverneur Morris family, a direct descendant of the famous statesman. One of his warmest personal friends was Col. Wm. H. Sterling. The later days of the General were often spent in reminiscent talk, with the Colonel, of memories of boyhood days and war-time.

OLIVER RUNYON.

Oliver Runyon, who left Plainfield about thirteen years ago, died yesterday in San Francisco, aged 75 years and 23 days. He leaves a wife and one son, Wm. M. Runyon, who are living at 108 East Front street, the late home of Randolph Titsworth, M. D., deceased, whose daughter is the wife of young Mr. Runyon.

Oliver Runyon was a life long resident of this vicinity up to the time of his departure for the West, and was engaged in the business of undertaker and furniture dealer. He has two sisters living, Mrs. Juliett Runyon of Central avenue, and the widow of David Manning of South Plainfield. The former is the widow of Mrs. Oliver Runyon's brother—sisters and brothers having married one another.

Prize Winners at The Netherwood.

Sixty couple in evening dress filled thirty tables in the parlors of Hotel Netherwood, last evening, upon the occasion of the first progressive euchre party of the season. The orchestra discoursed charming music while the card players struggled with and against one another for an excess of golden stars that would win the hundred-dollars' worth of elegant prizes that Mrs. James R. Plum had selected from New York's richest emporiums.

The first prize, one of Tiffany's latest creations, a solid silver iced cream cutter, was won by Mrs. H. A. Lattin; the second prize, silver toilet bottles, by Miss Fanny Whitehouse; third prize, silver candelabra, by Mrs. G. W. Crossman; consolation prize, a Royal Worcester jar, by Mrs. McCabe.

The men winners were: L. Armstrong, a pair of field glasses; F. L. Ellis, an order on Knox for a hat; W. J. Eaton, a smoker's set; and Harry Martin, the consolation prize, a silver key chain.

Ayer's Hair Vigor has long held the first place, as a hair dressing, in the estimation of the public. Ladies find that this preparation gives a beautiful gloss to the hair, and gentlemen use it to prevent baldness and cure humors in the scalp.

FIFTY YEARS OF WEDDED BLISS.

Mr. and Mrs. Doane Celebrate Their Golden Wedding Day.

The golden milestone in the wedded life of Mr. and Mrs. S. Osborn Doane, of 45 East Fourth street, was reached yesterday, and the event was appropriately celebrated last evening, when the bride and groom of a half century received at their home a limited number of invited friends.

Most of those present at the golden wedding were relatives, and of these six were Mr. and Mrs. Doane's own children and fifteen their own grandchildren. Mrs. M. E. Sargeant of Brooklyn, a sister of Mrs. Doane, and Thomas Bagot, an uncle of Mrs. Doane, both of whom witnessed the original wedding in New York city fifty years ago, were also among the guests.

The children and grandchildren presented the host and hostess with a purse of gold, and other relatives and friends made appropriate gifts. The husband's gift to his wife was a massive plain gold wedding ring.

The evening was very happily spent. Music and refreshments were provided, and everyone was royally entertained. A feature of the event was a christening service, conducted by the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, who was present with Mrs. Mitchell. The children christened were Maria Rogers Doane, age two and one-half years, and Franklyn Clyde Doane, age four months, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Doane.

The following suggestive verses, sent by a relative, were read by the Rev. Mr. Mitchell to the assembled guests:

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING DAY.

Just fifty years ago, dear wife,
Since you and I were wed.
Today's our golden wedding day,
Where can the years have fled?
Am I that shy and awkward youth?
Are you that maiden fair?
With silver threads among the curls
That once was golden hair?

I never can forget the day
That made you all my own.
Your lips like tempting cherries ripe,
Your cheeks like roses blown,
Your sweet eyes shining bright as stars
In fancy yet I see;
And you that day than all the world
Were dearer far to me.

And yet, dear heart, I know that I
Love better far today
Than e'en I loved that maiden fair
The wife that's old and gray.
And I will pray that you and I
May walk life's golden sands,
Until we reach that better place,
The house not made with hands.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Walz will go to Lake Placid for a season.

Miss Boulah Ketcham will spend the balance of the Summer at Long Lake.

James W. Jackson, of Crescent avenue, was at the Metropolitan, Asbury Park, yesterday.

Miss Ella Serrell and Miss Edith Harold leave to-morrow for Ingleside House, Beach Heaven.

The Rev. J. P. Taylor and family, of Park avenue, have gone to Sullivan county, New York.

Counselors Reed and McClure have just returned from Barnegat with rosy fish-stories and hoses.

William VanDeventer and son Clarence, of West Fourth street, are spending their vacation at Lake Hopatcong.

The family of ex-Councilman G. Warren Watson of Plainfield have a suite of rooms at one of Saratoga's large hotels.

Mrs. Fred. Horr, baby and nurse of Bay street, are spending the Summer at the Seabright Inn, Seabright, N. J.

Ex-Commissioner of Appeals, Jasper G. Cadmus, is not so well today, and is again confined to his room in Force's Hotel.

Mrs. Frederick Mead, of this city, recently received a check for $25,000 which was one company's insurance on her husband's life.

The following Plainfielders were registered at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, yesterday: Mrs. A. C. Moore, Mrs. J. A. Powlison and Miss M. L. Kurman.

The two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Richter, who died on Monday night of whooping cough and cholera infantum, was buried in Hillside cemetery today.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. B. Osborne and daughters, and Samuel B. Underhill, leave today for Washington Valley where they will be the guests of Mrs. J. W. Gavett.

The wife of Johnathan Dayton, of Piscataway, is dead. Mr. Dayton is one of the old citizens of this section, and both he and Mrs. Dayton were well-known to Plainfielders.

Miss Nellie Sherwin, sister of Horace M. Sherwin, and a graduate of the Plainfield High School and Wellesley College, has been offered and accepted a position as tutor of Greek and Latin in one of the New England colleges.

L. V. F. Randolph, the best Mayor Plainfield ever had, has returned from Spring Lake. He says that if maidens' kisses—in the original packages, of course—were as plentiful as the fish he caught, young men would be forever fully satisfied.

What Perseverance and a Little Fly Can Do.

W. H. Carmer, the Dunellen butcher, stopped at Taylor's Hotel this morning. He tied his horse and went inside for his usual orders. While gone the horse, bothered by an attentive and persistent fly, slipped its bridle, run around the post, dished the wheels, upset the wagon, threw out the meat and—that's all.

—The Bricklayers and Masons Union held their semi-monthly meeting in Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, last evening, at eight o'clock. A very short session was held owing to the intense heat.

THE CONVICT'S OFFER.

A Brooklyn Woman's Story of a Negro Burglar and His Wealth.

"Some years ago my father rented a house in Wethersfield from Captain Willard, who was then warden of the Connecticut State prison. He was afterward stabbed to death, as you may remember, by one of the prisoners, who was hanged for the murder," said a Brooklyn lady. "My father's family was very large, but so was the old house, and there was plenty of room for us all. The grounds were spacious, and required a good deal of care, and five or six colored gardeners were often working on them. These men were all convicts, hired by my father from the prison, which was about a quarter of a mile from our house. Captain Willard said they were a dangerous lot, and warned us to watch them closely, and advised my father not to allow any of us girls to speak to them, or to go near them alone. I can not say, however, that any of the gang allotted to us ever misbehaved—unless, indeed, it was the one about whom I am going to speak.

"This was a big, good-natured fellow, very black, a capital hand with the banjo, and about forty years old. His wife and children went to see him in the jail every visiting day, and they all seemed to be very hopeful of the future, for the prisoner was serving a term of only five years. He was suspected of having participated in a number of burglaries, but was convicted of but one, the robbery of a jewelry store in Hartford. Very little property was found with him when he was arrested, and, though the store had been completely emptied of its valuables, it was supposed that he had played but a very small part in the raid upon it, and his sentence was light.

"But one day this man, to whom my father had been very kind, told him confidentially that he had been entirely alone in his last robbery and a dozen others, and that the day before he was taken into custody, knowing that his arrest was imminent, he had buried all his booty, amounting in value, he thought, to close on to $50,000, in an unfrequented place. He offered to tell my father where the treasure lay and share it equally with him if he would unearth it, turn it into cash, and hold it until his term of imprisonment had elapsed. Of course, my father refused to listen to such a proposition, and tried to worm out of his informant where the wealth was hidden; but the prisoner was too cunning for him. He detected his object and became very reticent.

"About a month after the man had been released my father received by express a package containing fully $300 worth of jewelry, in the shape of ladies' rings and bracelets. There was no letter with the bundle, but there was no doubt about the accuracy of the address. The things were shown to the jeweler who had been robbed, but he said none of them had ever belonged to him, so we kept them, subject to an original owner's claim.

"Late last winter I was in New Orleans with my husband, and one afternoon an elderly colored man accosted me as I was walking in the street. He was dressed in the most fashionable material, cut in the latest style, and he literally twinkled with diamonds; but I easily recognized our old Wethersfield gardener. He was, evidently, quite rich, and I asked him when and how he had acquired his wealth.

"'Missy,' he said, forgetting that I was an elderly married woman, 'it was befo' I went to prison. I done tole yer pa all 'bout it, but he give me de cole sholdah.'"—N. Y. Sun.

A Little Goes a Long Way.

Mrs. Jason—Just think, Jehiel, there is more money spent for rum in one day than there is for bread in a week.

Mr. Jason—Yes; a little bread—especially such as you make—will go a long way.—Terre Haute Express.

Words cannot express the gratitude which people feel for the benefit done them by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Long-standing cases of rheumatism yield to this remedy, when all others fail to give relief. This medicine thoroughly expels the poison from the blood.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

CRUSHED

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

HOLY CROSS CHOIR PICNICS.

Their Annual Outing at Boynton Beach as Great a Success as Ever.

The third annual picnic of Holy Cross church choir to Boynton Beach occurred yesterday and was a repetition of the former successes. The party consisted of nearly fifty persons and the time was delightfully spent in boating, riding, bathing and athletic pastimes. The principal event of the day was a base ball game between two teams of the choir, christened respectively "Decani" and "Cantoris."

The "Decani" nine, captained by Wm. Hardy, was made up as follows: Hardy, p; Mackey, c; T. Spencer, 1b; H. Spencer, 2b; W. Spencer, 3b; Sutphen, ss; Talamy, lf; H. Dencklau, cf; Westervelt, rf. The "Cantoris" team was captained by William Martin and consisted of Perry, p; Vail, c; Holmes, 1b; Taggart, 2b; Williams, 3b; Martin, ss; Schutt, lf; C. Dencklau, cf; Kellogg, rf.

The contest was an exceptionally interesting one and abounded in good batting and bright fielding. The "Cantoris" team started out heavily handicapped by the lead their opponents secured in the first inning, but they put up a plucky uphill game and came off victors as is shown in the score:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Decani | 5 | 0 | 1 | 2 | 1 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 1 | —12 |
| Cantoris | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 2 | 2 | 1 | 3 | 3 | —13 |

Umpire—Israel Jones. Scorer—Ed. N. Neilson.

Notaries Ineligible as Election Officers.

At the request of Governor Abbett, Attorney General Stockton has just rendered an opinion that Notaries Public appointed and commissioned by the Governor under the act concerning promissory notes, bills of exchange and notaries public approved March 1, 1874, hold a public office within the meaning of the new election law, and they cannot, consequently, be appointed as members of any board of registry and election. This has the effect of disqualifying all public officers such as constables and other higher in power from serving as election officers.

A Word to Plainfield Correspondents.

The Sun says that a reporter should do nothing inconsistent with the susceptibilities and methods of a gentleman. Every newspaper man will say amen to this. Some of the metropolitan dailies have trained up a lot of young men to act as detectives, sneaks and cheats in order to manufacture cheap sensations for a gullible public. The Sun has stood against such practices, and can proudly boast that none but gentlemen are employed to gather its news, and no paper gets more news or any better in quality. The public demands the news as it is, not as it is manufactured.

The Surrogate to Take Testimony.

The will of Lucy H. Burlingham of this city, came up in the Orphans' Court in Elizabeth before Judge McCormick yesterday. The will is contested by the children of Mrs. Burlingham's sister. They have filed several caveats against admitting it to probate. Mrs. Burlingham died without issue and left property estimated at about $15,000. A hearing will be had next week before the Surrogate for the purpose of taking testimony.

Central Trains in a Wreck.

There was a wreck yesterday afternoon on the Central Railroad at Springtown, near Easton. A coal train collided with a freight train with disastrous results. Both locomotives were upset and smashed, and a large number of cars were derailed and shattered. The train hands and engineers escaped by jumping. No one was hurt. The tracks were completely blocked, and no trains reached this city for over four hours.

A Hot Berth.

Special Officer Hope noticed six young men sneaking into an empty and open oat-car on the siding near Richmond street, last night, about eleven o'clock. He shut and fastened the door until five o'clock this morning, when the almost suffocated inmates readily promised to get out of town if he would let them. He did.

Sat Up Nights but Couldn't Save Him.

One of J. Fred. MacDonald's most valuable horses is dead. It was somewhat overworked during one of the hottest days of last week, and peritonitis set in. The best of veterinary service was secured and the horse was tended day and night, but he eventually died after much suffering.

Struck by a Piece of a Railroad.

A gang of men on the Central Railroad were at work on the tracks in the suburbs of Plainfield, yesterday, when one of the men was struck in the face and severely cut and bruised by the end of a steel rail projecting from a moving hand-car. He was taken to his home.

Fans His Patrons by Electricity.

H. P. Reynolds is the first to make use of electricity as a motor in this city. His pharmacy is equipped with fans that run by electricity through these humid evenings. Fred. S. Dunn, the electrician, put the motor in.

"Progressive."

(From the Messenger of Somerville)

That progressive journal, The Daily Press of Plainfield, has been enlarged by the addition of eight columns—two on each page.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

PLAINFIELDERS BADLY TREATED AGAIN.

Somerville's Base Ball People Growl at Their Patrons From This City, and Hustle Them About.

The West End ball team at Somerville, yesterday, played its seventh contest in the league that has been arranged between itself and three clubs who are its inferiors in every way. The contest is a ridiculous one. There will be no glory in winning it, and it is a losing league financially. Yesterday's visiting team was the Bayonnes, and the West Ends won by a score of 8 to 3. The record now stands:

| | Won. | Lost. |
|---|---|---|
| West End | 5 | 3 |
| Iroquois | 4 | 3 |
| Perth Amboy | 4 | 3 |
| Bayonne | 1 | 5 |

There were less than 100 paying patrons present, almost half of whom were Plainfielders who will go a long ways to see Harkins' wonderful pitching and to enjoy the fine playing of Conkling on first, short stop Bergen, second baseman Carboneil and the phenomenal Williams. All were much pleased with the strong and brilliant game of the Somervilles and united their applause to that of the West End rooters. Although there were low murmurs all around to the effect that the West Ends could shut out the Crescents, and the Plainfield people were a lot of rowdies, and the Crescents stole the game from the Hacketts, yet the visitors were not molested until they started to leave the field.

To reach the gate all occupants of the grand stand must go behind the catcher on the outside of a wire netting. As the Plainfield party passed along that way in full view of everybody on the bleachers and grand stand, they were shouted at to "Go on!" "Get Out of That!" "We don't want you there!" etc. Councilman O. L. Jenkins, Dr. Charles R Thiers, Messrs Lyman, Hallock, Kenny and others of the Crescent League members walked on without a word, but some of the hotter-headed Plainfielders were inclined to resent the uncalled for and discourteous treatment they were subjected to. Thereupon a man called "Cal McMurtry" left his seat at the scorer's stand and announced that if they didn't get out he'd put them out.

This unpleasantness, however, was soon forgotten by the Plainfielders when they remembered what a contrast it was to the genial and generous treatment they had received when they arrived, at the hands of Manager Mack. He showed himself a gentleman in every way. As to "Cal's" action, a number of the Somervilles tried to explain it away afterwards. A. W. Demarest, the former fielder of the Crescents, was told that the Somervilles did not want the Plainfielders to get behind the catcher and watch Harkins' curves. Such a silly excuse, however, served no purpose, because they could not take the curves away and besides they could be told of such a rule without being shouted at in a body from fifty feet away to "Go on out!" They were simply insulted because they came from Plainfield. The writer was told by a man with a red neck: "We know who you are and I know who I'm talking to; and I ain't talking to much." But neither the managers of the West Ends, nor the Somerville people, are to blame for such a man's talk.

What Two Boys Found in the Passaic.

The boys living in and around Belleville, N. J., are beginning to think that the Passaic River, which flows back of North Plainfield, contains things better worth fishing for than eels and perch. A few days ago, as three of them were diving for white stones that they had thrown in, one, Richard Morrisey, brought up from the bottom a silver dollar encrusted with rust, and bearing the date 1792 He sold it for its face value.

A little later a dozen boys were diving from a disused dock opposite Belleville into about ten feet of water. They were grubbing in the mud for shells, which are not plentiful, and trying who could bring the most to the surface. When it came to Bert Lyons' turn to dive he remained so long under the water that his companions supposed that he had either gone down to stay or that he was gathering an astonishing number of shells. When at last he came, gasping and sputtering, to the surface, the astonished lads on the bank saw that he was holding in his hand a solid silver double case Waltham watch and chain. The watch had stopped at 7:20, but Bert has been assured that when the water has been pumped out of it, and it has been soaked for ten days in oil, it will be as good a timepiece as it was before its immersion.

Left Wife, Rent and Grocery Bill.

It is said that a man by the name of Clark who lives at Dunellen and was employed in the Central Railroad switch-tower near the Singer Works, drew his wages yesterday, sent his wife five dollars and a letter telling her to "go home," and then left. Three month's rent unpaid and a grocery bill on the books, are a part of his liabilities.

The Sewers of Paris

Are one of the modern wonders of the world. That marvelous network of underground streams, over which the tourist can travel by rail and in boats, constitutes the bowels of the gay capital. This labyrinth of streams is kept with scrupulous care; for any obstruction in the flow of the sewage would be attended with serious results to the health of the inhabitants of the city above. The sewers of the human system are the liver and bowels, and in order to keep disease out of the wonderful city of which they are a part, they must be kept always free and unobstructed. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the best laxative and cathartic known for the purpose. Tiny, sugar-coated granules. In vials, always fresh.

THE ROMAN MODEL.

How an Ambitious Girl Earned Enough to Buy a New Hat.

Here is the experience of a young girl who was waiting for a situation and at her wits' end for money. She had confided her trouble to the lady with whom she was boarding, and had gone to her room to read the newspaper advertisements for female help.

On the same day an artist was walking the streets and avenues looking for a model with a Roman head. She happened to know the woman where the young girl in search of a situation was boarding, and called on her with a vague hope she might know some one with a Roman caput.

The boarding-house keeper was not familiar with the type required, but she remembered that the girl who had confided in her was peculiar looking, with a copper bronze skin and midnight hair, short and tously, and she at once sent for her.

The artist looked her over, asked her to turn her head this way and then that.

"I think you will do," she said, with a satisfied air, "but I want you at once. The class is waiting."

"I will go," said the girl, promptly, and soon the two were on their way to the studio.

"Have you ever had experience as a model?" asked the artist.

"No," said the girl, beginning to walk slower. "What am I to do?"

"Wear an old gown, turn your head in a certain position and keep it in that pose until we are done with you."

"Is that all? I can do that easily enough," answered the girl, with a fine Roman scorn.

But it was not as easy as she assumed it to be. When she was clad roughly in a ragged dress, her head was nearly twisted off its base by the artist, who finally settled it in a most uncomfortable side turn. Then she took the measurements. The model wanted to see the class, but dared not disturb the Roman pose, which was that of a profile silhouetted against the wall. She listened to the pupils talking about her with the teacher, as if she had been a block of wood, instead of a living woman, and her ears burned with indignation, but she thought of the money she was earning and maintained her pose. At the end of an hour she was glad to rest. But the five minutes came to an end too soon.

The next hour was more uncomfortable than the first, and the third was almost unbearable. When the clock struck twelve she sprang to her feet.

The artists were surprised. They pleaded for another five minutes.

"Not a minute," said the tired model, "that is not in the bargain."

"Will you be sure to return at one o'clock?"

"I will not fail," she answered, thinking to herself that it meant more to her than it did to them.

At one she resumed her pose and kept it for three hours, with the hourly rest of five minutes. At four she was released for that day, and the sum of three dollars was laid in her small brown palm. Her eyes twinkled.

"What will you do with it?" asked the teacher, laughingly.

The merry maiden was pinning on her shapely head a last winter's toque.

"Buy a hat to cover my Roman head," she answered.—Detroit Free Press.

ST. PAUL'S, NORFOLK.

A Quaint Old Sanctuary Which Contains Some Curious Things.

Symbols of peace and war have curiously met in the outside brick wall of quaint old St. Paul's Church in this ancient town. The church is one hundred and fifty-one years old. In the revolution the British playfully sent a small cannon ball skipping over the town. An angle of the church which juts out toward Church street was in the line of trajectory and the cannon ball was stopped by it. It half buried itself in the brick, half way up the roof and close to the cornice. It is still there. Ivies have crept over the walls of the old edifice, forming an impenetrable green mat, through which not a square foot of brick is visible except in a little circle about the iron ball. In the luxuriant ivy a thousand English sparrows nest and fill the neighborhood's ears with their shrill chatter. The cannon ball is a handy thing for them to sit on. Not less than half a dozen cling like bees to it in the warm sunshine constantly.

So thrifty is the ivy it is hard to restrain it from encroaching on the space about the cannon ball, but the sexton is thrifty, too; he knows the money value of the relic to him, for many people visit the church to learn its history. The sexton's little black-eyed daughter leads the way into the cool, dusky, low-ceiled sanctuary. High backed and narrow are the unpretentious seats, and there are many plunging and cramped little gallery lofts. The sexton's daughter has two recitations for the sanctuary. She halts before one of the pews that flank a side of the alter.

"This is the pew Robert E. Lee occupied when he was in Norfork for a few months," she says. "It is pew No. 15."

There is a curious tenderness of tone in the way they pronounce the name of General Lee, as if it might be the name of a sweetheart. No Virginian says General Lee as a Northerner calls Grant General Grant, but always says Robert E. Lee. To Virginian children Robert E. Lee evidently is what Abraham Lincoln is to Northern children. In another part of the church is a queer old-fashioned chair in which no one sits.

"This is the chair," says the child guide, in an odd recitation tone, "in which John Hancock sat when he signed the Declaration of Independence. It is the property of the parish."

It is a common, old-fashioned, armless chair of hardwood frame, with stuffed seat, and covered with a fading crimson cloth like plush.—Norfork (Va.) Cor N. Y. Sun.

WESTERN VOLCANOES.

Underground Forces Which Are Not Down on the Maps.

Examination of a geological map of the Rocky Mountain and Sierra Nevada region shows the entire country to be dotted and splashed with streaks of red, denoting the rocky remains of former volcanic vents. No active volcanoes are known to exist within the boundaries of the United States at present, but a number of investigators believe that they have discovered signs that there have been genuine volcanic eruption at several points in that region since man first took up his abode on the Pacific slope.

In fact, in one place in Plumas County, Cal., some sixteen years ago, discoveries of pumice stone and lava were made near an extinct volcanic cone, so situated in connection with the trees then existing in the neighborhood as to give evidence that an eruption had taken place within less than fifty years. Traditions of the trappers also seemed to bear out this interesting supposition.

In Oregon and Washington there are numerous giant volcanic mountains, among them Mount Shasta, Mount Hood and Mount St. Helen's. These have never been in eruption within recent times. But both north and south of the United States there are very active centers of volcanic disturbance with which the California and Oregon volcanoes, though they are supposed to be instinct, are connected almost uninterruptedly. Alaska has a number of volcanoes, the greatest of which is Mount St. Elias. The Aleutian Islands are also entirely volcanic, and there have been a number of eruptions in their area during the past century. The islands join the volcanoes of America with those of the old world in Kamtchatka, Japan, the Philippines, the Indian archipelago and Australasia.

South of the United States, too, lie the great volcanic belts of Mexico, Central America and the South American Pacific slope.

There have been a number of instances where a volcanic region has remained dormant and the subterranean forces had become extinct, apparently, for immense periods of time, and then, with scarcely a warning beyond a rumbling earthquake or two, the crater has suddenly broke forth into activity, overwhelming the country for great distances around with ruin and death. Thus it was with Mount Vesuvius, which was apparently dead for ages previous to the great eruption which destroyed Pompeii and Herculaneum. Within the past week or two reports have been received that the sacred mountain of Japan, Fusiyama, which has exhibited no signs of activity for over a century, has again started in on an eruption, causing great consternation throughout all Japan.

With these examples in mind it can not be said definitely that the volcanoes of the United States Pacific slope are extinct. The subterranean forces are still alive, though they may sleep long. That they exist is proved by the seismic disturbances so often reported from the Pacific coast. When they will break forth terribly again, or whether they will ever do so, is a question which nobody can answer.—St. Paul Globe.

THE USE OF MONEY.

Why Children Should Be Taken Into Confidence By Their Fathers.

No father ought to rear his children in utter ignorance of his own life, his aims and resources. If he does, they have nothing by which they can gauge his ability to grant them what they ask. If they are given the money asked for, or less, they take all they can get and spend all they take, whether it be five dollars or a hundred. They have no means of knowing the essential difference to him, or whether there is any. It is not enough to tell them, in a general way, things can not be afforded, for they can see no difference whether father affords any thing or not, except that they have to work a little harder to get it.

If fathers took their children into their confidence and explained to them that a certain amount of money could be spared them each year, or quarter or week, as the case might be, and no more, and they then economized on it and came out with a surplus, they would learn more of the value of money, and see something of the order and beauty of economy; they might rise from economy to sacrifices, and often prove helpful burden-sharers instead of burden-makers.

How different the son or daughter feels towards the father when they know the particular, definite burden he is carrying and realize why the thing can not be afforded. How it develops the manliness or womanliness of a child when it feels father's load after being made personally acquainted with it from father's or mother's lips—not in a fault-finding, complaining way, but in a straightforward, confidential manner, that draws the child and parent into very close relationship.

Making a confidant of a child in this way educates it to the comprehension of relative money values and gives a knowledge of finance not otherwise obtainable. The child would thus be better prepared to meet either poverty, competence or wealth. But above this it would know its father and the family, and be educated in social sympathies and in executive power.

A man who instructs his wife and children to be economical, giving them no standard of what economy is relatively to his possessions, blunts perception, represses self-knowledge and self-control, and fails to find out the good qualities and helpfulness of those who ought to be, and would be if allowed, his best and most cheerful helpers.

Fathers do not know what there is in their children till they give them an opportunity of knowing their financial conditions.

If poverty is your lot, the children should be taken into your confidence to help you; if competence or wealth, that you may help them to know the worth of money by being made to make certain allowances supply their wants and not them a surplus. In either case they learn the use of money.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

CONCERNING RABIES.

Dr. Gibier Discusses the Practical Treatment of Hydrophobia.

Dog-Killing Is a Blunder—How to Act After Being Bitten—Strength of the Virus—In Its Last Stages It Kills Quicker Than a Mad Dog's Bite.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

WHILE in this country on a professional mission during a part of the years 1888 and 1889, my attention was frequently attracted to publications in the newspapers stating that hydrophobia had occurred at certain places and that the persons who were the victims had been bitten weeks before by animals not then known to be rabid. The story was invariably the same: The dog summarily killed, the wound either roughly cauterized or neglected, and the fatal sequel. It was the frequency of these cases that first suggested to my mind the idea of establishing in this country an institute modeled after that of my old teacher, the distinguished Pasteur, in Paris.

Returning to France I passed several months there, where I studied with M. Pasteur the question of establishing an institute in America. On December 1, 1889, I again came to America, the institute project now fully matured in my mind. My first care was to take this house, and, strangely enough, on the very day I was installed I was prostrated by la grippe, and was for fifteen days my own patient. The institute furnished, I next established a laboratory, a task that occupied much time. My instruments I had long ago. They are of Pasteur's own invention and have been used in the work a long time. The chief delay was in the time consumed in making the preparations for inoculation. I found it necessary to spend two months in the preparation of the virus, in its various cultures and different degrees of strength. In February the institute was formally opened.

Soon patients began to come in from New York City and Long Island. At the beginning of March one from Maryland came to be treated. In all I have treated at this institute fifty-one patients since its opening. In addition to these I have inoculated five others, none of whom have been bitten—my two assistants, my servants and myself. This was purely a measure of precaution; for there is serious danger of accidental inoculation during the manipulation of the virus, and it would be a very easy matter to contract hydrophobia while treating others. A little scratch, touched accidentally by the virus, would be sufficient. The disciples of Pasteur should show their confidence in the principles of the master by applying them to themselves.

The largest number of patients in the institute at one time was twenty-four. There are now twenty-two under treatment. Thus far there have been no failures and no deaths have occurred among those who have been treated. But I am very differently situated from Pasteur in one respect. The patients come here much later than those who go to the Pasteur Institute in Paris; many of them arrive fifteen or twenty days after having been bitten, and I have one who came after thirty-five days had elapsed. Such cases I treat by a special method—a very strong one—which I have inaugurated according to the personal advice of M. Pasteur, with whom I consulted on the subject. These late cases were a matter of serious consideration, and for such he was at the trouble to give me special instructions.

In the beginning of the treatment for ordinary cases, the virus is very weak, having been made so by a method which it would be tedious to explain. The first inoculation could not give rabies even to a young mouse. But after two or three days, the virus used increases in strength, and it could then perhaps give hydrophobia to a young mouse. After five days it could give rabies to a small rat, but not to a big one. A fortiori, it would be impossible to give it to a man. Gradually the body becomes accustomed to the virus as the strength increases, and when the last injection is given, the virus is quite virulent. Being injected in large quantity when weak, it gradually reaches the nervous system, the brain, the medulla, which are affected specially by hydrophobia. As the nerves and brain become accustomed to the weak virus, the latter is abandoned and the stronger quality used. When this point has been reached, the virus of a rabid dog is weaker than the virus I inject. With the virus of a dog I can kill in twenty or twenty-five days; the virus I inject at the last stages of the treatment would kill, with all the true symptoms of hydrophobia, in ten or twelve days. But the nervous system, having already become accustomed to the virus in its various degrees of strength, receives it harmlessly and is fortified by it against rabies, just as those who have been inoculated with coupox—which some scientists hold to be another form of smallpox—are enabled to resist the attacks of smallpox itself.

Age makes no material difference in the treatment of patients. Possibly the young take the inoculation slightly better than adults do. All the patients take the treatment well. This is especially true of the small children.

I have had patients from many States—from Texas, Missouri, Maryland, New Hampshire, New York and even from Canada. Many of them are "poor patients." For such cases, when they come from distant points, the cities usually pay; but here in New York the treatment is gratuitous.

No rule can be laid down for telling whether a dog has true hydrophobia or not in the early stages. A dog is dangerous five, six or eight days before he begins to show the symptoms of rabies, and even at that stage he can communicate hydrophobia. Cases have been known where experimentalists have inoculated some dogs with hydrophobia with the syringe or lancet, and after two or three days their saliva has been tried with a view to determining its virulence. Sometimes it was demonstrated that even before they began to show any evidences of hydrophobia the saliva contained the deadly germs of rabies.

When a person has been bitten by a dog, the sore should not be cauterized. The cautery sometimes makes bad wounds, which are difficult to heal, and it produces inflammations. The wound should be washed out freely with plenty of water and treated with antiseptic dressing. It is a blunder to kill the dog; such a course is revengeful and brutal. Some people I have treated only because they have killed the dog, when perhaps it was not really mad. The doubt, however, remains and in such cases makes treatment imperative. The popular fallacy which leads to the slaughter of the dog is due to superstition and most people still believe that with the death of the animal the venom dies also. I can not qualify such foolishness. A few days of waiting would have shown whether or not the dog was really mad—the wound being dressed meanwhile as I have suggested—and if, after being watched, the dog showed signs of hydrophobia, then the treatment could be had without further delay. It is only a trifling burden for fifteen days, when it is all over.

As an illustration of the scepticism this institute has had to encounter I might mention one case in point. Judge Masterson, of Texas, was bitten, and by the advice of some friends, came East for treatment. Here he met other friends, some of them in the profession, who gravely urged him to go to Pasteur at once. Still in doubt he cabled to Paris, and the reply he received from Pasteur was: "Go and be treated by Gibier."

When this institute was established a few months ago I knew not whether it would be successful or otherwise, but the system has met with encouragement beyond all expectation. There are some people who have urged me to make a business of the institute; some who want to make it a hospital, to receive patients and board them and charge stated prices, but I will not make it a business. There is another view, however, and it refers to the philanthropic aspect of the question. There would be no objection raised to the establishment of an institution on a scale and plan that would contemplate a purely-philanthropic basis of operations, giving to this country the same benefits that the people of France derive from the institute in that country. To such an enterprise I would gladly contribute the benefit of my experience and would aid in every possible way in counsel and direction to secure its permanency and success.

With regard to the system itself, it is worthy of remark that among the physicians of the very highest standing the proportion of those who are against it is diminishing every day. Among those who remain in the opposed school, although they are many of them learned and distinguished men, there is no one who is an experimentalist. The leaders among the opponents of the system are for the most part distinguished merely as theoricians or clinicians, and not experimentalists in pathology. But among the higher men of the profession who work experimentally, and don't make medicine as some men make religion, and who will not believe where they don't see, there is no one who is opposed to the method. It is gaining ground steadily among the progressive men in the profession. The few who are still opposed to it are to be found among the reactionaires or conservatives. They recall the saying of Hippocrates, concerning his critics, that they held that a thing could not be so because they did not think it could be so! They invariably have perfect confidence in their own judgment and believe it can not be wrong by any possibility. On the other hand, the experimentalists, too, have perfect confidence, because they have tried and investigated for themselves.

It is my fortune to meet the most progressive men among the profession in this country and all take the liveliest interest in the system. The State Medical societies in this State and in New Jersey have given it a cheerful welcome. These are the practical men—the workers of the profession, some of them men of the highest distinction.

PAUL GIBIER, M. D.

HOUSEHOLD BREVITIES.

—Varnished furniture, mahogany or rosewood, if kept carefully dusted, requires only an occasional rubbing with chamois-skin or thick flannel to retain its polish perfectly. Soap should never be used on varnish.

—Gooseberry Jelly.—Prepare the berries as for jam, and when very soft strain through a jelly bag, and to each pint of juice add nearly a pound of sugar. Boil the juice ten or fifteen minutes before adding the sugar, then boil the two together until it stiffens upon trial. When done put into glasses and seal.—Orange Judd Farmer.

—Soda Foam.—Two pounds of white sugar, whites of two eggs, two ounces of tartaric acid, two tablespoonfuls of flour, juice of one lemon and two quarts of water. Boil two or three minutes. To use, dissolve half a teaspoonful of soda in half a glass of cold water, stir in two tablespoonfuls of the acid and drink while effervescing.—The Home.

—For a basic substance for most plain fruit sauces and jellies, rhubarb is invaluable. It is, however, as it receives and retains all flavors without imparting much of its own. So when the supply of fruit is likely to be scant it is well to can this for use later on. It can be mixed with any or all jellies and preserves to a considerable extent without its presence being detected, even by an expert.—Christian At Work.

—An eminent physician says: "The best remedy for bleeding at the nose is a vigorous motion of the jaws, as if in the act of mastication. In the case of a child a wad of paper should be placed in its mouth, and the poor child instructed to chew it hard. It is the motion of the jaws that stops the flow of blood. This remedy, he says, is so extremely simple that many will feel inclined to laugh at it, but it has never been known to fail, even in severe cases.

—Devilled Mutton.—Melt in a clean frying-pan two tablespoonfuls of butter, and one of red currant jelly; when it simmers put into it slices of the cold mutton, cut evenly, and not too fat. Heat slowly, turning several times, till they are very hot, but not until they begin to crisp. Serve the slices on a hot platter, cover and set over hot water. To the liquor left in the pan add three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a small quantity of made mustard, and a pinch of salt; let it boil up and pour it over the meat on the platter.—Ladies' Home Journal.

NOVELTIES IN JEWELRY.

Pretty Things That Have Found Favor in the Public Eye.

A black diamond circled with alternate rubies and brilliants forms an odd scarf pin.

An exceedingly pretty gold bonbon box has a spray of enameled lilac inserted in the cover.

Several goblins sporting on an open pair of scissors form a silver paper weight of unique design.

A scarf pin with the moonstone head of a cherub having silver wings extending from the sides is an attractive novelty.

A queen chain pendant of gold, representing an oyster holding between the shells a fine white pearl, is unique and pretty.

A jewel box of repousse work in the shape of a crescent, and having a saucy-looking cupid perched in the center, is a masterpiece in silverware.

An exceedingly artistic lace pin, suitable for seaside wear, is formed of a turquoise heart in the center of a wreath of enameled forget-me-nots resting in the center of a golden wishbone.

The "swagger" costume at present much affected by the ladies has induced several manufacturers to produce studs of various designs to be worn in the shirt front. One representing a miniature star is made of white gold and contains a small diamond. Link buttons to match this ornament are also seen.

A unique stamp case that was made recently for presentation to a youth at college was of satin finished silver, and represented an envelope with the young man's name inscribed on the front. In the upper left hand corner was an enamel reproduction of a postage stamp canceled with the date of the recipient's birthday.

A large, oddly shaped speckled pearl was recently found in a Wisconsin river and was subsequently purchased by a New York manufacturer. For some weeks he puzzled his inventive mind as to the best manner to mount it, and at last decided on forming it into a crab with gold extremities and two small fancy colored pearls for eyes. The ornament is set as a lace pin and exciter much admiration.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Remarkable Ceremony in India.

Invitations were recently issued to all officers and other European and native residents to witness a festival known as "Agni Kund," which literally means walking over a pool of fire, at the residence of the Rani of Coorg, says a letter from Benares. The invitations were largely responded to, and all the European spectators were astonished at seeing the natives walking over a pool of living coals. The place where the fire was placed was about twenty feet long, four feet wide and two feet deep. At one end of this was situated the god of fires, made of kneaded flour, and the great god Mahadeo was conveyed around the fire three times in a grand palanquin borne by priests, amid great singing and dancing (something after the fashion of the Indian war dance and song). After the third turn one of the priests, with a drawn sword, severed the head of the god of fires, which they said had the effect of "cooling the fire." After the defeat of the god several natives, young and old, of different castes, walked across the fire with bare feet. None of them complained, but repeated their walks.

A Married Martyr.

Uncle—Now, sir, tell me candidly. Are you married or not?

Nephew—Yes, I am married—but I don't live with my wife.

Uncle—Why not? Can't you support her?

Nephew (indignantly)—No—but that ain't the worst of it; she can't support me—Once a Week.

DISPATCH BOXES.

Plenty of English Notices in New York, But Nothing of This Sort.

"No, thanks, I detest jewelry, and have already had four card cases, a silver toilet set, two gold fillets, a whole cargo of books, and one of those new enameled orchids given me. There is but one solitary thing for which my soul yearns, and that is a dispatch box."

"You shall have it," he replied, transported to find some special gift to bestow upon his best girl on the eve of her departure for England. "I'll get it if it breaks the bank—but—would you mind, dear, explaining just what the thing is like?"

"Don't you know!" she returned. "Why, a dispatch box. The kind English people use to carry about and keep all their jewels, love letters, certificates and bonds in. I can't understand how you ever read one of their novels without making acquaintance with such an all important part of their luggage."

"I suppose I am stupid and all that, but when a man spends his life chasing fortune all day and worshiping beauty all the evening, he has precious little time to waste in finding out what Britishers do with their private papers."

"Nonsense," and without deigning further notice of his cogent excuse, she went on: "Surely, you remember when the crisis was reached, and haughty Lady Imogen, with one superb jesture, waved the shrinking girl from her presence; how the old lawyer suddenly appeared on the scene, produced the late Captain Cyril de Courtney's lost dispatch box, and behold there lay the license and marriage certificate, right as a rivet! The sobbing widow was tenderly assisted to the arms of her now loving mother-in-law, and amid the fumes of curry and plum pudding the curtain fell on the first volume of 'Harold Dare, or, the Child Widow.' Well, that is precisely the style of thing I want."

Next day they wandered up town and down, vainly searching the big city of New York for this interesting article of English manufacture. After unavailing inquiries in dozens of shops, and after no end of offers of lawyers' satchels, doll trunks, tin bandboxes, and every variety of dressing and jewel case, they sought an authority and laid their needs before him. The clerk knew right away what was wanted, but said that not a single specimen was to be had in the house.

"It is curious," he explained, "that Americans are so very slow in taking up some really clever English ideas and yet go daft over a stupid lot of foreign affectations of luxury. No more secure or convenient way of carrying one's treasures can be found than in one of those English traps. Several years ago, when William Waldorf Astor was appointed Minister to Italy, Tiffany made him a gorgeous one. It held his official as well as private papers, and was a triumph in combined beauty and convenience. Of the softest, costliest leather, richly finished and embossed, the price was some hundreds of dollars. Since then a number of Mr. Astor's friends have ordered dispatch boxes, but the fashion is not yet pronounced enough to make it worth while keeping them in stock. You have never seen the genuine article? Well, they are usually fourteen inches square and eight inches deep, bound in Russia leather, topped with a heavy silver plate, having name and address engraved in full. You use a short silver key, press a spring, and the raised lid discloses a velvet lined interior, with a couple of trays, receptacles for jewels, lots of rubber bands, leather and satin pockets, in fact, the completest arrangements for order and security."

After listening to this description, the quest was abandoned as hopeless. The shoppers turned away and in a sportsman's shop compromised on a decent looking bait-box.—N. Y. Sun.

RUSSIAN CENSORSHIP.

Thought Can Not Be Killed, Buried or Annihilated.

What does the Russian Government hope or expect to accomplish by "blacking out" articles that aim simply to tell the truth with regard to Russian affairs and by throwing into prison every man in whose possession such articles may be found?

The Russian author Prugavin, in a book that was inadvertently sanctioned by the press censor, but that was afterwards seized and burned, asks this same question, and says: "Can an idea be choked to death? Can thought be killed, buried or annihilated? Are not truth and love and justice and freedom immortal? It is the most terrible of mistakes to suppose that ideas can ever be crushed. People have perished—men have died in chains and casemates, their bodies have decayed, their graves have been lost, and their very names have been forgotten; but their ideas and aspirations live on. Washed in the blood of suffering, such ideas and aspirations have become the dream of every man in whose brain a thought stirs and in whose breast a heart beats."

The press censor, when he burned Prugavin's book, thought that he had destroyed for ever its "pernicious" influence; but the "ideas and aspirations" of the gifted author "live on;" and his words, although burned by order of the Government in Russia, will appeal to hundreds of thousands of sympathetic hearts in England and the United States.

Some time in the far-distant future the free Russian patriot, no longer blinded by the censorship of the press, will look over the pages of his national history that record these attempts to gag public opinion and strangle human thought, and will wish from the bottom of his heart that so humiliating and shameful a record might be "blacked out."—George Kennan, in Century.

—Sunday school teacher—"What is it that stingeth like an adder?" Little Tommy (who remembered a wood house experience)—"I guess it's the snapper on dad's whip."—Richmond Recorder.

—We don't suppose there ever was a man who did not envy the freedom with which a barefooted boy gets around or a rainy day.—Atchison Globe.

THEY BEG FOR PRISON.

Siberian Exiles Prefer Stone Walls and Bars to Savage Hunt.

To be condemned to reside at Vilinsk, in Siberia, is in itself a terrible punishment. The climate is exceptionally rigorous, the soil sandy and sterile. Here and there, when the summer is favorable, a little barley can be grown on or near some marshes. Small shrubs and pines are the only vegetation, and there is scarcely any population.

Villages worthy of the name are scattered at distances of two or three hundred miles from each other. These villages are connected with one another at every ten miles or so by jurtas, or sleeping huts; but there is nothing north of Vilinsk except a real desert stretching on to the ocean.

The only communication possible with the outer world is by the Yakoutsk road, and this is practicable in summer and autumn to good riders. Even in the best season the traveler may be drowned in the marshes, or lose his way in the midst of thick forests, or be devoured by the bears that abound in this district.

What has given historical importance to so inaccessible a place is the construction of a political prison on its outskirts. This was built to receive Polish prisoners captured during the insurrection of 1863. When these Poles had died, or had been removed to other parts of Siberia, the celebrated Russian author Tchernichevsky was incarcerated in this jail for thirteen years, but he did not die there. Tchernichevsky was ultimately sent elsewhere, and died at Astrakhan in October, 1889.

Vilinsk is so small a place that the political exiles, though not numerous, have great difficulty in obtaining lodging with the inhabitants. In 1889 there were only seven exiles at Vilinsk. Consequently the exiles are sometimes obliged to ask permission to live in the prison.

The authorities, probably because it is less troublesome and less expensive, prefer sending them to live in various oulous. This is the name given to the little villages inhabited by the aborigines, which rarely consist of more than ten huts. To live in an oulous the exile must take with him provisions for at least one year, as nothing whatever can be obtained on the spot.

There is often a scarcity of black bread, and white bread is an unknown luxury. Isolated amid these nomad Yakoutsk savages, men of education and refinement have to live for years away from all civilization.

Yet the authorities seem to think that a few political exiles scattered in these far-off districts are capable of menacing the security of the State, and can even at Vilinsk render themselves guilty of a "State crime."—N. Y. Journal.

RAN FOR HER LIFE.

How a Fat Woman Got Out of the Way of a Cavalry Charge.

With their sabers flashing and their horses going at a gallop, fifty-four cadets of the United States Military Academy chased a fear-stricken woman from the parade ground the other evening, says a West Point dispatch to the New York Times. They didn't mean to do it, but they were trying to execute an order given by their commanding officer, and the woman, who was not a good runner, and who evidently thought cavalry never charged except in battle, happened to be in the way. Her life was spared, but she will never forget the experience of this day; neither will her husband. This is how it happened:

The members of the first class of the academy, all expert riders, gave an exhibition of the cavalry company and battalion school a short time before sunset on the parade ground. Captain Dorst, of the Fourth Cavalry, the officer in charge of cavalry instruction at the academy, was in command, and just as the cadets came charging down the parade from the further end, their horses thoroughly warmed to their work, they were ordered to wheel. In an instant the line began to sweep toward that portion of the ground which was occupied by several hundred people, and a general scattering ensued. A short, portly woman of middle age stood with her husband, who was smoking a cigar, placidly gazing at the column. They were some distance from the other spectators, and by the time they realized that the programme was not being strictly followed all the others were out of danger and watching them. The poor woman didn't utter a word, but she started bravely for the nearest shelter. Fear and a desire to make quick time left their imprint on her face, and the artist who could have caught her expression as she bore down on the safety line would have won imperishable fame. Fast as she could go, the horses gained rapidly, and it really looked at one moment as if she would be run down. By a superhuman effort she managed to get out of reach and then fell against a bystander, who considerately supported her until she had recovered her strength.

Her husband stood near where she left him, and the cavalry swept past him on either side, giving him the biggest fright of his life. Altogether it was a very exciting episode, due to a slight miscalculation of time, distance and the running ability of unprofessional spectators.

—A man once went to his pastor and said: "O, I'm dead, dead, twice dead, and plucked up by the roots!" "Well, I'm glad to hear you say so," replied the minister. "I heard a cry the other day, 'Johnny's in the well!' Before I could reach the spot I heard it said, 'Johnny's dead!' Leaning over the well I called out, 'Johnny, are you dead?' 'Yes, grandpa, came from the bottom, 'I'se dead!' I was glad to hear it from his own lips. People who are really dead don't report themselves."—Exchange.

—Two young men in Iowa dressed up as ghosts and made a call at the house of a man who had always said that he believed he should drop dead at the sight of a spook. Queerly enough, however, the effect was exactly contrary, and he pitched into the boys and hammered them almost to death before he discovered that they were flesh and blood.

SWEPT BY A STORM

Destructive Gales in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

SEVERAL BUILDINGS UNROOFED

Many Persons Killed by Lightning and Much Property Damaged.

Terrific Wind Storm at Trenton, N. J.,—Crops Destroyed at Norristown, Pa.—A Regular Cyclone Visits the Lehigh Valley—Several Fires Near Bethlehem, Pa.—Scores of Persons Injured.

EASTON, Pa., July 18.—Last night's wind, hail, and rain storm was the worst that has ever visited this section of the Lehigh Valley. The new agricultural works at Hellertown were blown down, and John Freeman, of Freemansburg, was instantly killed by flying timber. Superintendent Barbara of the agricultural works was seriously injured by falling timber. The roof of the Lutheran Church at Hellertown was blown off and lots of other damage was done.

Two passenger trains on the Lehigh Valley Railroad encountered the storm between Bethlehem and Allentown, and both narrowly escaped being wrecked. One of the trains struck a telegraph pole and the headlight and smokestack of the engine were crushed. Both trains had to feel their way along, frequently stopping to allow telegraph poles and trees to be removed from the track.

FORTY HOUSES UNROOFED.

A Small Cyclone Sweeps Over Trenton, N. J., and Killed Two Men.

TRENTON, N. J., July 18.—A terrific thunder storm, with a gale of wind, swept over the city last evening, unroofing 30 houses, prostrating 200 trees and doing much other damage. Hail of a remarkable size fell in great quantities, smashing countless skylights and window panes. The roof of Maddock's pottery was torn off and thrown into the canal.

Louis S. Schlagel and Michael Corcoran, who were in a boat on the Delaware, and sought shelter under a tree on the Pennsylvania side, were struck by lightning and killed.

A Number of Accidents.

CHESTER, Pa., July 18.—The storm which passed over this city last evening was unusually severe. Lightning burned out most of the telephones and did considerable damage to trees and buildings. A large stable on the farm of Nathan Pinnell, about a mile below here, was struck and burned to the ground. A large tree on Sixth and Market streets was struck and shattered. In falling it struck and broke an electric light wire; the horses of a passing street car stepped on the wire, one of them was instantly killed and the other stunned.

Fires Caused by Lightning.

LANSDALE, Pa., July 18.—A terrific thunder and hail storm passed over this borough last evening, flooding the streets to an impassable condition. Lightning struck the barn of John Clemmer and the flames entirely destroyed it. Several other fires were in sight in various directions. Passengers on trains from Bethlehem say they observed four fires between that place and Lansdale.

Struck by Lightning.

FAR ROCKAWAY, L. I., July 18.—A young man, known as Bert, employed as driver by Contractor Pearsall, while driving on the Reed property was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The horse which he was driving was also killed. Another driver and two horses at the same place were stunned but they recovered from the effects of the shock.

Passengers Terrified.

BRISTOL, Pa., July 18.—The steamer Columbia in coming from Philadelphia was struck by the storm on the Delaware river last evening. The passengers became very much terrified, but were all landed safely, the only damage done being the breaking of some of the steamer's window glass.

Terrific Hail Storm.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., July 18.—A terrific rain and hail storm commenced here about 6 o'clock last evening and lasted fifteen minutes. Hail fell in great quantities. The damage to crops and window glass will be quite heavy.

Two Wives Elope.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The disappearance of the wives of Edward Hunt and John Horton of Lamberville has occasioned wide comment in that part of New Jersey. The two women had evidently carefully planned to desert their husbands, as they took all their baggage with them. Mrs. Hunt also left behind her four small children, the youngest being but six months old. Mrs. Horton has no children.

Two Drowning Cases.

COHOES, July 18.—Abraham Spencer, a well-known spinner who was assisting the tender at lock 18, fell from the running board and was drowned during the morning. The body was recovered. The remains of an unknown man was found floating in Lock 14 during the morning. The body had been in the water some time.

Machines Supplant Strikers.

BEVERLY, Mass., July 18.—Masters & Walkers, whose lasters struck for an increase recently of from $2.20 to $2.55 per case, have put in four lasting machines, which are now doing the work. The goods on which the lasters tried to increase the price were made in small quantities by this firm.

RUN DOWN BY A STEAMER.

A Pleasure Yacht on Alexandria Bay Meets With an Accident.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., July 18.—The steamer St. Lawrence returning at 10 o'clock last night from an electric search-light excursion, ran down the steam pleasure yacht Cathlene, with ten passengers on board from Bradford, Pa. Five are missing.

The missing are Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Pemberton, Mrs. W. D. Hart, and Miss Maggie Henry, all of Bradford, and John Sencal, the fireman of the Cathlene.

The yacht was crossing diagonally over from Alexandria Bay to Grenadier Island and was making directly across the track of the St. Lawrence when the crash occurred.

Captain Beaupre of the St. Lawrence says that Captain Joseph Senecal of the Cathlene, blew his whistle to take the right and then took the left hand course.

A HUSBAND'S REWARD.

Tied to a Chair by His Wife and Shot at by a Farm Hand.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., July 18.—William Chandler and Charles Lewis, his farm hand, had a quarrel last night and shots were exchanged. Lewis was arrested here, and Chandler was also held.

About six weeks ago Mrs. Chandler and Lewis tied Chandler to a chair in his house in Jackson Township and then fled to Cortland, N. Y., taking some of Chandler's property. Chandler had Lewis arrested on the charge of grand larceny. Mrs. Chandler, however, induced Chandler to withdraw the charge and returned home. Lewis soon followed the Chandlers to their home and was again employed by Chandler.

It is supposed that the old quarrel was renewed last night, which nearly ended in the death of one of the men.

IMPRISONED HER CHILD.

Confined for Six Years in a Kitchen With Closed Blinds.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 18.—The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children caused the arrest of Eliza Steckler, a German woman, charged with imprisoning her nine-year-old daughter and allowing her none of the advantages or privileges of life.

For six years past the child has been confined in a kitchen with closed blinds, except occasionally an airing was given in the yard. The woman was insane from trouble.

The child was almost as great an imbecile as the mother from her long confinement and could scarcely speak a word. The mother was sent to the almshouse and the child to the children's home.

The Cloakmakers' Trouble Not Ended.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The cloakmakers' lockout seems to be yet far from an ending. The contractors' union is inclined to repudiate the agreement with the manufacturers which was signed by the contractors' representative, Julius Gottlieb. The cutters went to work but they are dissatisfied over the question of reimbursement of wages for the time they were locked out. They refuse to accept a small increase in wages, and now ask for an outright reimbursement. The manufacturers seem unwilling to concede this, and it is thought the cutters will again strike.

Ex-Mayor Hewitt's Puddlers Strike.

TRENTON, N. J., July 18.—The 800 puddlers, roughers and heaters employed by Cooper, Hewitt & Co., struck last night because of a refusal to grant a ten per cent. advance in wages. The mill, employing 2,000 hands, will shut down to-morrow. The strike at the New Jersey Steel & Iron Works, owned by the same firm, is still on, 300 men being out because the firm refuses to recognize the Amalgamated Association.

Wants a Divorce.

MEDINA, N. Y., July 18.—Divorce proceedings have been begun by Mrs. Louisa F. C. Filkins, M. D., of this place, against her husband, Stanley E. Filkins, well known as a lawyer and politician all over Western New York. The complaint is based on the statutory ground, and the affair has made a big sensation, which promises to grow as the case proceeds.

A Fighting Texas Member.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—There was some excitement in the House press gallery over the appearance of Congressman Crain from Texas, looking for the correspondent of a western paper with the announcement that he intended to shoot him on sight. The correspondent is not in the city and the Texas member returned to the floor of the House without doing any damage.

Real Estate for the President's Family.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Several deeds have been recorded at Rockville the county seat of Montgomery County, Maryland, within the past few days, of property bought at a suburb near here on the Potomac river by members of the President's family. One piece of property is in the name of Mrs. Harrison, and the consideration named is $21,783.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The President has appointed O. L. Spalding, of Michigan, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, vice George C. Tichenor, resigned. He was formerly a member of Congress, and is now a special agent of the Treasury.

The President at Cape May.

CAPE MAY POINT, N. J., July 18.—President Harrison arrived here at a quarter past nine last evening on a special train consisting of a locomotive and Superintendent Bannard's private car [illegible].

WASHINGTON TOPICS

A Reported Conference of Republican Senators.

CHOOSING A CANDIDATE FOR '92.

An Agreement to Work for the Nomination of Allison or Cullom.

The President's Family Purchasing Property in Maryland—A Long Session of Congress—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Appointed—Official Count of the Population of New York.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—An evening paper here published an article concerning an alleged conference of Republican Senators to boom Senators Allison and Cullom for the Presidency. It states that an agreement was made that each of these gentlemen, together with his friends, should prosecute a vigorous campaign, the one showing the greatest strength to be the candidate of both.

Senators Cameron, Plumb, Teller, Allison and others from most of the Western and Northwestern States, except Wisconsin, were said to have participated in the mysterious consultation.

The Senators said to have been present at the conference, though admitting that both Allison and Cullom are candidates for the nomination in 1892, disclaim knowledge of any agreement whereby they and their friends are to work together.

THE PADRONE SYSTEM.

Dr. Verdi of Washington on the Subject of Italian Immigration.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The House Committee on Immigration heard a statement by Dr. Verdi, of this city, himself a native of Italy, upon the subject of the padrone system. His statement was mainly in refutation of those made by preceding witnesses respecting the existence of a system of Italian slave labor in this country. He said that he had lived for forty years in the United States and had never yet found an Italian laborer who worked under a padrone. The Italians were not fools, and were not to be gulled so easily into surrendering themselves voluntarily into slavery.

In 1887 the Italian Government had appointed a commission to examine the emigration system, and as a result a law had been passed which, while recognizing personal rights, guarded against unrestricted emigration assisted by unworthy persons for personal gain.

Italy needed all of her citizens and was doing all she could to keep them. If there were evils existing under the padrone system the law could reach them. If Italian or any other people made voluntary contracts to render service he could not be called a slave. As a matter of fact there was a good deal of jealousy felt toward the Italian laborers because of their sobriety, intelligence and skill. New York was hardly the best place to secure an accurate estimate of the character of the Italian immigrant.

Naval Officers Feel Sore.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The nomination of Prof. Soley to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, is so displeasing to naval officers that a strong effort will be made to defeat the confirmation. This is in part a revival of the old strife between the line and staff of the navy. The nomination will be opposed on the ground that the law provided that the appointment should be made from civil life and that the spirit of the law was violated when Mr. Soley resigned his commission in the navy for the purpose of accepting this appointment.

Population of New York City.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The rough official count of the population of New York city, just completed by the Census Office, shows that the population is 1,513,501, which is an increase of 25.46 per cent. over the census returns of 1880, and an increase of 28 per cent. during the decade. Superintendent Porter says that this is the only estimate ever made by the Census Office of the population of New York.

A Long Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Every one now concedes that this will be a very long session. President Harrison before his departure for Cape May Point said so to a friend, and Senator Gorman, who, as leader of the Democratic Senators, is mapping out the campaign against the Election bill, expressed the same opinion. It will certainly be the end of September, and very probably the middle of October, before Congress adjourns.

Killed by a Mule.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 18.—Burk Rodgers, aged 18, was thrown from a mule which he was riding to water at Kyle's coke works. The mule took fright and he, becoming entangled in the harness, was dragged some distance and had his brains kicked out.

Nominated for Supreme Court Judge.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., July 18.—Hon. S. A. Kellogg was nominated for Supreme Court Judge, receiving the entire vote of the Judicial Convention. He is to succeed Judge Fish, who was retired on account of his age.

Sudden Death of a Hotel.

NEW YORK, July 18.—H. H. Tremor, general passenger agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company, died suddenly in the rotunda of the Continental Hotel, of heart disease. He was 60 years of age and leaves a family.

THE PLAYERS' MEETING.

The Brotherhood Will Strengthen the Weak Clubs.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The Brotherhood meeting was held with closed doors and Secretary Brunnel gave the press representatives all the news of interest to the baseball public. He said a committee of three—Messrs. Johnson, Shire and Brunnel—was appointed to visit every town represented in the Players' League and investigate the standing of each club, and if any were found that needed assistance, such assistance was to be given them, both financial and otherwise.

The question of weak clubs was then brought up, and Buffalo being found to be in a crippled condition, it was decided that they get four new men—an outfielder, and infielder and two pitchers. The men who are negotiable are not yet decided upon, but the infielder is to be capable of filling the position of captain.

A question of capital arose, and after considerable argument a motion was made and adopted that each club be assessed $2,500 as a campaign fund.

HUNTING NIHILISTS

Russia Engages a Number of Leading Detectives.

NEW PLOTS AGAINST THE CZAR

Nihilist Groups Said to be Located in New York and Chicago.

An Inquiry About President Harrison Made in the House of Commons—A Conspiracy Against the Sultan of Morocco Discovered and Several Arrests Made—Too Many Italians Leaving Italy

LONDON, July 18.—Ten of the leading detective agencies of this city and Paris have been retained by the Russian Government as a result of the belief that the chiefs of the Nihilists have made their headquarters in those cities and are arranging new plots against the Czar and his councellors.

It is said that recent developments make it a certainty that the head centre of the Nihilists is located in London; that he has ample funds at his disposal and that he is in continuous correspondence by cipher with Nihilists groups in Rome, Vienna, Berlin, New York and Chicago, as well as throughout Russia.

It is also known that at least two conferences of Nihilists' delegates have taken place in this city since April for the purpose of considering measures calculated to spread terror throughout the Czar's dominions.

THE PRESIDENT'S MOTIVE.

An Inquiry in the House of Commons About the Seal Trouble.

LONDON, July 18.—In the House of Commons last night Mr. Edward T. Gourley, Liberal member for Sunderland, inquired what degree of truth there was in the published cablegram to the effect that President Harrison had declared the intention of the United States Government to deal summarily with British sealers in Behring Sea.

Sir John Gorst, Parliamentary Secretary for the India Office, replied that the Government had not received a report of such a statement having been made by President Harrison. Negotiations on the Behring Sea matter were still in progress.

Mr. W. H. Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, intimated that the negotiations with France in regard to French rights in Zanzibar were marked by a friendly spirit on both sides.

Too Many Italians Leaving Italy.

ROME, July 18.—Statistics of immigration for the past year issued by the Italian Government show an increase in the number of departures from Italy so large as to cause much uneasiness in regard to the country's available material for military augmentation in the event of an emergency demanding a large addition to the army.

The Reported Trouble Confirmed.

MONTREAL, July 18.—A private despatch received here last evening confirms the report telegraphed from Halifax Tuesday night to the effect that a New Foundland cruiser had fired on a French fisherman. The man-of-war Cornus sailed hurriedly from Halifax after the report had been recieved to reinforce the fleet in New Foundland waters.

Reception to American Riflemen.

BERLIN, July 18.—Last night the American riflemen arrived at Bingen from Oberlehnstein in the midst of a heavy thunder and rain storm. They were nevertheless met at the station by a large and enthusiastic crowd. The city was handsomely decorated and brilliantly illuminated in honor of the vicitors.

A Rich German Count Killed.

LONDON, July 18.—Advices have been received here that Count Conrad Stolberg, heir to one of the richest of German landowners, was accidentally killed while duck shooting.

Conspiring Against the Sultan.

TANGIER, July 18.—Numerous prominent citizens of Fez have been arrested for complicity in an attempt upon the life of the Sultan of Morocco.

A FIEND'S VICTIM.

Burial of Louisa Brunst, Who Was Assaulted and Murdered.

READING, Pa., July 18.—Over 1,500 people attended the funeral of Louisa Brunst, aged 13, who was assaulted and murdered in her parents' house by Clinton Schenck, who is now in the Morristown jail. Six girls of the deceased's Sunday school class, were the pallbearers, and a neighbor and his five children sang the funeral hymns in the church.

Rev. Kline preached a sermon. He drew a very pathetic picture of how the young girl had been brutally attacked during the absence of her parents by the hired man, Schenck, who had shot her dead for fear she would tell on him.

The villain was surprised before he could escape, and he shot himself in the pigstye. He may recover.

Meeting of the Atlantic Association.

NEW YORK, July 18.—A special meeting of the Atlantic Baseball Association was held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night. All the clubs were represented and the prospects looked much brighter than was generally expected, the Jersey City Club being the only one to show signs of distress. The directors of that club were ready to quit but the Association promised to help the Jerseymen out for a time at least. The circuit would be badly broken in case of Jersey City's retirement. Harrisburg will take Jersey City's place in case that team disbands later.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

Seven People Perish in the Flames at Quebec.

QUEBEC, July 18.—Shortly after midnight fire was discovered in a warerooom on St. Joseph street, owned by Delamore & Colette. The flames made such rapid progress that the whole house was soon ablaze.

The fire brigade arrived promptly and bent its energies to saving the surrounding property, unaware that the occupants of the upper part of the burning house were roasting to death.

It was only after the flames had been extinguished that they came in sight of the bodies of a family of five persons who had perished.

The family consisted of Pierre Miranda, his wife and three children, who had lately returned from the States intending to settle in their native city where they had found employment.

It is thought more people have perished as the Mirandas were lodging several visitors from the country.

While searching in the ruins later the bodies of two sailors were found.

Interest Will Be Withheld.

BOSTON, Mass., July 18.—The Fitchburg railroad company notifies the holders of the Troy & Boston issue of preferred stock that the dividend upon the same will be withheld by the company until the termination of the suits of Daniel Robinson and Robely D. Cook, instituted to enjoin the sale of the stock held in trust as indemnity for payments made on account of the Troy & Boston debt exceeding $3,000,000.

The Dartmouth Inquest.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 18.—The inquest on the victims of the Dartmouth disaster has been concluded. No new facts were elicited as to the cause. The Jury's verdict was "accidental death," but had the gate at the head of the wharf been securely fastened the accident would not have occurred.

New Jersey Defeats Winnipeg.

BERGEN POINT, N. J., July 18.—The Winnipeg cricket team was defeated by a score of 66 to 61 by the New Jersey club.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The wrecked schooner Maud before reported lost has arrived at Provincetown, Mass., in tow of two tugs.

John M. Wever was nominated by acclamation for Congress from the 21st New York district by the Republicans.

Evelyn Abbott, of Boston, Mass., accused of baby farming, has been arrested on a default warrant and delivered to the Superior Criminal Court.

Miss Annie Thomas, of Philadelphia, became exhausted while bathing at Asbury Park, N. J., and was rescued by the bathing master at a perilous moment.

Martin Houck, of No. 937 Lombard street, Baltimore, shot and killed his young wife. The couple had only been married five weeks. Jealousy was the cause. Houck escaped.

The examination at Albany, N. Y., of Lewis M. Gray, who was arrested for conspiracy with Whitney in the City Bank case, has been adjourned until next Tuesday. Gray is still without bail.

The Common Council of Chicago passed the ordinance granting the use of the Lake Front Park for World's Fair purposes. The ordinance, however, is so loaded down with amendments that there is little chance of the directors accepting it, in which event the Fair will, it is generally believed, be held in Jackson Park.

A careful canvass of the hay crop in New England places it at fifteen per cent above the average in amount and thirty per cent above the average in feeding value, as the crop is of extra quality and is being secured in an unusually good condition. The poorest returns are received from Vermont, where a crop of only a fair average is reported.

The rumored case of leprosy in Mott street, New York city, is unfounded. The Chinaman Jan was found by the police, and a physician who examined him later declares that the Chinaman is in a good state of health save for a sore lip. There was not the slightest trace of leprosy. The other tenants in the house, who are mostly rich Chinamen, were not in the least concerned over the reports of the disease.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—For New England: Fair; except showers near the coast; northwesterly winds; slightly cooler.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Fair weather, preceded by showers near the coast and in New Jersey; northwesterly winds slightly cooler.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Slightly cooler; fair weather; northerly winds.

BY THE WAY.

—The Plainfield Seminary will open for its next term, on Thursday, September 18; and the Kindergarten on Wednesday, October 1. Terms and full particulars may be obtained by addressing Miss Kenyon.

—Plainfield Methodists and their friends filled ten passenger coaches this morning and left town to spend the day at Asbury Park. The train left at an early hour, and the excursionists will have had a long day of pleasure when they return this evening.

—The arrangement of patent medicine advertisements in the columns of the daily papers sometimes results in peculiar combinations. One journal has in one column the heading "Our friend the bedbug," and directly opposite, in seeming continuation, "take it in time."

—The regular meeting of Franklin Council, 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., was held as usual last evening. A large number of the brothers were present, and a very interesting report of the institution of the new Council at Cranford, last Monday evening, was given. The initiation of several new brothers and business of importance was transacted by the Council.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. E. D. Clark of Boston is the guest of C. P. Rogers and W. C. Hubbard.

Fred. J. Kuhne and family, of East Ninth street, have gone to Point Pleasant for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wheeler, Jr., and family of LaGrande avenue, are at the Brunswick, Asbury Park.

Mr. George P. Dupee and family will spend the coming six weeks at Cascadeville, Essex county, New York.

The condition of W. A. Coddington's mother is today not improved, and new complications in her illness have begun.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis being on a visit in Rhode Island, his pulpit will be occupied to-morrow morning by the Rev. Mr. Dilts.

The Rev. Father O'Hanlon, formerly pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, is visiting among his old parishioners.

Mrs. Ernest L. Walz, of LaGrande avenue, Miss Walz, Mrs. J. H. Evans, Miss May L. Evans, and E. Louis Walz, went to Lake Placid today.

Esther V. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Bird of North Plainfield, died Wednesday at the age twenty-three months. The funeral occurred today.

Stanley Fisher Kimball, the infant son of Prof. Arthur L. and Lucilla S. Kimball, died at Mantoloking, Wednesday. The funeral services were held in Plainfield today.

The funeral of General Daniel D. Van Buren will be held in Grace church, to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock. The pallbearers will be the Vestrymen and Wardens, at their request.

Among those who dined at the Coleman House, Asbury Park, Wednesday, were Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Currie and family of Westervelt avenue, the Rev. W. R. Richards, S. A. Ginna and Henry Squires.

Charles Wann, who brought electric lights and the telephone service to this city, was in Plainfield Wednesday with the project in view of introducing such a system of fire alarm telegraph as Councilman Spangenberg, Chief Doane and others are considering favorably.

Tracy Moved Again.

Constable Moffett set Tracy, the shoemaker, out of doors again, yesterday. Tracy had been occupying the rear part of the second story of the building that backs on the railroad at 26 North avenue. For a short time he paid his rent, but lately failed to do so and although M. M. Dunham, who has charge of the property had rented Tracy's quarters to another, he could not get the recalcitrant tenant out until the constable stepped in.

Little Girls Give Poverty a Helping Hand.

A very pretty lawn fair was given by Miss Nellie Martin, assisted by the Misses Emmons, the Misses Needham, the Misses Williams, and Miss Arnold, yesterday afternoon. The threatening weather interfered considerably with the patronage, but the little Misses cleared nearly ten dollars, which they will give to a needy Plainfield family.

SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.

BURNED OUT A MILLION DOLLARS.

A FIRE PROOF BUILDING ONE SHEET OF FLAME.

Had It Happened an Hour Later, Hundreds Would Have Perished Like Rats in a Trap.

(From the Press' Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 18, 12m.—The upper stories of the Western Union Telegraph Building are entirely gutted by flames and all floors and business offices below are flooded by water.

The building is entirely "fire-proof." There is no wood about except simply the door and window trimmings. But a sheet of flame has swept through its distributing and operating rooms, totally destroying thousands and thousands of dollars worth of property, and so quickly that many of the employees were only rescued after great difficulty.

More strange, however, than this burning of a fire-proof structure, is the fact that the offices on the lower stories are flooded with constantly descending water although the floors between are over two feet thick of solid concrete laid between iron beams.

On the upper stories where the fire burned, were thousands of tons of duplicate messages, accounts and other documents in hundreds of pigeon-holes built in tiers against the side walls. The fire started where two electric wires crossed. During last night's wind the insulation was rubbed off, and where the bare wires touched, fire resulted.

Had it been an hour later when the 700 hundred day operators were on duty, many lives would have been lost before all could have been rescued.

The greatest loss is the switch board which cannot be replaced for probably $10,000, and all transfer of communication from one point to another through New York is thus cut off. Scores of boys are now at work trying to fill the switch board's place by transferring the messages by hand to the Jersey City, Brooklyn, and other offices now pressed into service to supply some of the great city's enormous demands.

The loss in dollars and cents is, of course, beyond any reasonable estimate at this time.

LATER.

NEW YORK, 2:30 P. M.—Two engines are still playing on the building. The loss will possibly reach nearly a million dollars, over half of which will be for switch boards, instruments, wires and batteries.

LIGHTNING LET LOOSE.

It Almost Kills a Young Woman and Tears Open a Roof Opposite.

Cassie McDavitt, a young servant girl in the employ of Dr. T. S. Davis, had just closed one of the windows of the house, last evening, during the worst of the storm, and had her hand on the metal catch, when a vivid flash of lightning and a deafening clap of thunder dazzled and startled everyone in the neighborhood.

Dr. Davis heard something fall and hurrying to the spot found the girl lying on the floor. She was insensible. After much effort the Doctor succeed in reviving her. No serious permanent results are feared. Today she is almost entirely recovered although her arm is still somewhat benumbed.

At the same time the above casualty occurred, the home of Mrs. A. D. Lansing directly opposite Dr. Davis' at the corner of Park avenue and Sixth street, was struck and a large hole torn in the roof.

DEATH OF MRS. OVERBAUGH.

Injuries Inflicted in the Recent Runaway, Terminate Fatally.

Mrs. Kate M. Overbaugh died at Muhlenberg Hospital, last night, of injuries received in a runaway accident Sunday afternoon, July 6.

The runaway was caused by the breaking of the harness while Mrs. Overbaugh, Mrs. Amos P. Gray and two children were returning from a pleasure-drive to Washington Rock. The horse dashed down the mountain-side and threw out all the occupants of the carriage. Mrs. Overbaugh had a leg fractured, both ankles dislocated, a knee-pan laid open, her collar-bone fractured, and her spine injured. She lingered in great suffering, despite medical skill, and death seemed a welcome release.

They'll Open in Plainfield.

George Gorman, the wonderful versatile comedian, in conjunction with his brother John, whose eccentric comedy has made him so popular, will appear the coming season in a new burlesque opera written by James Gorman. It is a parody on Gilbert & Sullivan's Gondoliers, and the Brothers Gorman are elated with anticipatory thoughts of the success it will bring them.

In addition they have surrounded themselves with a company so strong artistically and numerically, that they are assured of an able and successful rendering of their new productions, all of which are absolutely original. A great treat is in store for lovers of minstrelsy, who may witness the delightful entertainment provided by The Gormans for the coming season. Not only one, but many, new and radical departures will be introduced, enhancing the attractiveness and lending a charm to the performance that cannot be attained by any other similar company. They will appear here at Music Hall next Thursday evening. Seats are now on sale.

BEATEN BY HIS CAPTOR, HE SAYS.

A Borough Citizen Charges an Officer With Outrageous Assault.

Shameful injuries inflicted on the body of Patrick Ageney of North Plainfield are said to be the work of Louis Conrad, a Borough Special Marshal, whom Ageney accuses of having beaten and kicked him brutally.

Ageney, as told in THE PRESS, was recently arrested by Conrad for drunkenness, was taken before Justice Hardy, and sentenced to pay a fine of five dollars or go to jail for five days. At first he refused to pay the fine, but after a consultation with his counsel, Craig A. Marsh, he decided to part with the money and seek redress. In an affidavit he told a story greatly differing from that of Conrad, and on reading the affidavit Justice Crossley issued a warrant for Conrad's arrest on the charge of assault.

Ageney claims that when arrested by Conrad, the officer without any provocation whatever, beat and kicked him unmercifully, and the physician who has since attended Ageney will testify to the seriousness of the injuries inflicted.

Ageney will proceed against Conrad on the criminal charge of assault and will sue for damages besides. He is still lame and well-nigh helpless, and cannot move without great pain. He says that Conrad was most unmerciful to him, and he considers that the case is aggravated by the fact that the alleged assault was committed under pretense of authority.

Conrad claims that he used no more violence than was necessary to subjugate Ageney. Ageney claims that there was no justification whatever for the beating.

Special Marshal Becker, to whom Ageney's injuries have been shown, says that he was once run over by a heavy wagon but was not nearly as badly hurt as is Ageney.

Conrad charges that Ageney, when arrested, was one of the most abusive of prisoners, fought, kicked and lay down in the street and forced the Marshal into violent methods. It is further alleged that the beating which Ageney received is no worse than the one which he inflicted on his wife just before his arrest.

A SOCIETY GIRL'S PLIGHT.

She Has Occasion to Tell Some Nice Young Men They're Horrid.

An awkward predicament happened to a young lady well known in Plainfield society, last evening. She and her sister were anticipating callers, and were arranging for a quiet little surprise for their friends, in the dining room, where they were arranging with their own fair hands seasonable refreshments. One of the damsels was bending over the dumb-waiter. The other stood near the door, surveying with satisfaction the dainty "spread."

Suddenly the door bell pealed, and simultaneously a crash of thunder sounded. The timid creature at the dumb-waiter screamed and gave a nervous feminine jump, just as her alert sister sprang for the vestibule, to admit by her own sweet self the welcome guests. Just as she opened the door she heard muffled cries from the dining room, and by instinct divining what had happened sought to persuade the valiant young men to wait till she had gone to her sister's rescue.

The gallant swains were too willing, however, and in blissful ignorance rushed into the dining room. Crimson with blushes, they hurried out again, and with abject apologies told their one hostess that they guessed the other hostess wanted to see her more than she did them. The girl who had fallen headlong into the dumb waiter stopped struggling and kicking and permitted her sister to help her out, and tearfully confronted the young men and told them they were horrid. Then they all sat down and ate iced cream and behaved themselves. The dumb waiter will never hold so precious a load again. It is ruined beyond repair.

TO-MORROW'S STRUGGLE.

The Crescents Will Fight Till the Last Inning to Win if Possible.

The Allerton base ball club, proprietors of Allerton Park, Hoboken, where most of their celebrated games are played, have been persuaded at some cost to come to Plainfield to-morrow afternoon and give the Crescents a lesson in professional ball playing and heavy batting. They expect to knock Modest Michael Gregg's curves all over the county.

Sworbach, the renowned pitcher of the Wilmington league team, will be in the box for the Allertons, and "Lightning" McGowan will catch him. The other members of the nine are fine fielders and well known as heavy hitters. The club was organized April 25, 1879. Among its incorporators are W. H. Holbar and W. H. Becammon, members of the Metropolitans, who were once champions of the United States.

The team's present strength is undoubted. They have this year beaten the Jersey City league team, the celebrated Hudsons, Gorhams and other big clubs, but the Crescents won't give up the game unless they have to, while they will keep the fight up to the last inning and try for a win. The following, many of whom are the most noted of ball tossers, will compose to-morrow's batting order of the visiting team:

Warner, rf; Murray, ss; Roberts, 3b; Lever, cf; Demlein, 1b; Kinzie 2b; Green lf; Sworbach, p; McGowan, c.

—The regular meeting of Easter Lodge, 3,542, Knights of Honor, will be held next Monday evening, when there will be initiation and installation of officers.

A Doctor Killed by the Cars.

BRIDGPORT, Conn., July 18.—Dr. Eugene E. Falkner, while on his way to visit a patient, was instantly killed at an unprotected crossing on North avenue by a train on the Housatonic Railroad. He leaves a widow and five children, who are at their summer cottage in the Adirondacks.

A Minister Dies Suddenly.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 18.—Rev. Henry Bernard Carpenter, pastor of the Liberal Christian Church, Boston, died suddenly in the morning while dressing. He had been troubled with lameness but his general health had been good, and he gave a recitation the previous evening in the hotel parlor.

Mormons Lose the School Board.

SALT LAKE, Utah, July 18.—The Utah Supreme Court has accepted the resignation of Frank H. Dyer, Receiver of Church Escheated Property, and appointed Henry W. Lawrence in his place, fixing his bonds at $300,000. The canvass of the school election of Monday was made yesterday by Secretary Sells. The election was for the Board of Education consisting of ten members and comprising two for each municipal ward. The Mormons elected both members in the third and one in the fourth. The board will therefore stand seven Liberals to three Mormons.

The Soda Water Trust a Failure.

NEW YORK, July 18.—It is officially announced that the scheme whereby all the soda water and beer apparatus interests in the United States were to be amalgamated into a trust and sold to English capitalists has fallen through, the broker who was engineering the deal having cabled from London his failure to organize the necessary combination there, owing, it is said, to the high price demanded by the sellers.

Poucher's Application Denied.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 18.—Attorney-General Tabor has handed down an opinion in which he refuses the application of William H. Poucher to bring an action quo warrant against William Wood and Douglass H. Teats, Excise Commissioners of Red Hook, Dutchess county, for failure to take and file the constitutional oath before entering upon the duties of the office.

Farmers' Candidate for Governor.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 18.—The Farmers Alliance nominated S. M. Owen for Governor on the third ballot.

A CONVICT'S REFORM.

It Is Effected by the Recollection of His Mother's Words.

Apropos of the movement to furnish books to the prisoners in Auburn jail a Norwegian lady, resident in Auburn, tells in her picturesque way an episode which occurred in Charleston, S. C., says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal. Years ago a mother took her five-year-old boy into prison when she went to see his father, committed for some trifling offense. The little fellow stepped into the adjacent cell, having over it the number 68. To tease him the warden shut the door, but quickly opened it at the little fellow's screams. His mother soothed him, saying: "Nobody shan't ever, ever shut my little boy up in a dark prison." Years passed. The boy's father and mother died. His uncle helped him and gave him money to get to New York. He fell in with bad company, squandered his money, and in sheer desperation attempted to commit burglary in his uncle's house. That relative was so enraged he handed over his nephew to the authorities. Looking at the number of his cell, to his horror he saw "68," and knew that it was the self-same cell that had inspired his boyish terror. When his mother's words came back: "Nobody shan't ever shut my little boy in a dark cell," and he wept as he had not since her death, for he had loved that mother. The warden's wife had found him in a melted condition. He told her his story and she gave him the utmost sympathy and kindness during his long term, shortened by his good behavior. As he left his cell and took a last look at those terrible numbers "68," he determined he would make a man of whom his mother should be proud. By his trade, learned in prison, he pursued an honest and lucrative trade, and his taste for literature, also formed by the warden, provided for leisure hours. Ten years afterward he called on the warden's wife, and she could hardly believe that it was he who had occupied "68."

Poisoning in India.

The Bengal police have published the following extraordinary warning to passengers at all the stations on the Eastern Bengal railway: "Passengers are hereby cautioned against taking any thing to eat or drink from unknown persons, as there are many who live by poisoning travelers. They first of all court acquaintance with passengers in a sarai or some other place, and then gain their confidence on the plea of being fellow-travelers going to the same place. When they reach a place convenient for the purpose, they poison the water or food of the passengers, who become insensible, and then they decamp with all their property. They also at times poison the passengers' water, when being drawn out of wells, or sweetmeats brought from the bazaar, or food when being cooked."

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

MISPLACED SYMPATHY.

Judge Bartine Sets Aside Justice Hardy's Bail as Excessive, and Releases the Candy Store Thieves.

(From the Unionist-Gazette.)

On Sunday, July 6, Mrs. Hall, who keeps a candy store in North Plainfield, caused the arrest of three boys: Edward Prentiss, aged 10 years; Cornelius Splaine, aged 9 years, and Charles Bartron, aged 14, on a charge of stealing a box of candy and three pies, valued at $4, from her store. The boys were committed to the borough lock-up until Monday, when they were committed by Justice Hardy to the county jail in default of $300 bail each, to await the action of the September grand jury. The parents of all the children are poor; the Prentiss boy's father is a laborer at Short Hills, near Summit; Splaine's father is a coachman for Mr. Ross of Plainfield; Bartron's father is a mason. The combined efforts of the three parents failed to secure the required bail of $900.

The children were locked up in the upper part of the jail, where they spent the time in sobbing and moaning. They saw no one but Jailor Wilson until Friday afternoon, when the attention of a Unionist-Gazette representative was called to their case by J. N. Schenck of North Plainfield. A visit was made to the jail where the children were seen. They at once confessed, with tears running down their cheeks, that they were guilty of the act. The youngest of all had secured a key to the back door of the store and they had taken the candy, pies and soda water, with which they started a store of their own along the street, selling the stuff to each other for pins and pebbles. They managed to eat and drink all the articles, and, boy-like, supposed it was a smart thing to do.

On Saturday Judge Bartine was seen, who expressed himself very forcibly concerning the action of a justice in requiring such a large amount of bail, and also of compelling boys of that age to languish in jail for two months to await trial. He said he would release them in $50 bail each. The Unionist-Gazette telegraphed to the parents, and Mrs. Prentiss and Mr. Bartron came up, and on their recognizances the children were released. An idea of how poor the parents are may be had from the fact that they had not enough money to pay the children's fare to their home. The amount necessary for the purpose was contributed by Judge Bartine, whose considerate action in this matter shows he has a bigger heart than some Justices of the Peace.

The Charter and the Altar to be Draped.

At a regular meeting of Unity Lodge, No. 102 K. of P., held at their Castle Hall on the evening of July 16, 1890, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has seemed pleasing in the eyes of the Supreme Chancellor of the Universe to remove from among us our esteemed and dearly beloved Brother, Eugene V. Lorton, by calling him to that Supreme Lodge on high, therefore be it

Resolved, That while this Lodge bows in humble resignation to the will of the All-Wise Ruler, we deeply mourn the loss of our deceased Brother, and are deeply sensible of the fact, that in his death we lose one whose example it will be well for us all to emulate, and whose memory should ever be kept green in our hearts.

Resolved, That the sympathy of this Lodge be, and is, hereby extended to the family and relatives of our deceased Brother.

Resolved, That as a token of respect to the memory of our deceased Brother, the Charter and Altar of this Lodge be draped in mourning for the space of 30 days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minute book of this Lodge, and that a copy of the same be sent to the family of our deceased Brother, and published in each of the daily papers.

Marksmen Shoot at Pigeons.

An interesting shooting match was held at Campbell's Club House Wednesday afternoon, when the contest over the silver trophy first won by Councilman Seymour G. Smith wrs continued. Four men shot at twenty birds each. T. H. Brantingham killed nineteen, A. R. Soper sixteen, R. B. Manning fifteen, and E. C. Teeple eleven. Mr. Brantingham therefore holds the prize till some more skillful marksman wrests it from him.

After the regular match Mr. Teeple, who had been praising his own prowess, was challenged by Edward Campbell and was defeated. Other matches will occur later.

MR. GRATTON SWELLS UP AGAIN.

He Tells How His Dog Drank Water, Stood in the Sun Until Steam Was Up and Then Bust.

When the local news-market is dull Wm. Gratton of Plainfield, is always prompt to volunteer contributions to the daily paper. The heat never diminishes the ardor of Mr. Gratton's imagination, nor does the cold congeal it. His inventive capacity knows no Summer, no Winter; it is ever on the alert.

The well-informed people of Plainfield still recall Mr. Gratton's story of the heated term of 1889, when he was chased down the Watchung Mountain-side by a large hoople-snake, which rolled faster and faster towards him and sank its fangs into the hoe-handle with which he struck at its speeding form. The hoe-handle, elastic-memoried people recollect, swelled up and was converted into a telegraph pole, with serpent's teeth-prints showing like spur-holes from end to end.

This swelled-up tale was the last of Mr. Gratton's pleasant little novels that season. The Winter gave a brisk news-market throughout, and Mr. Gratton took a long-needed rest. At the first sign of dullness in the Spring, however, he was ready with a story of how he captured two cinnamon bears in a squirrel-trap in the borough forest-lands. The literary people received this historical sketch with joy, and looked forward to a flourishing Gratton short-story season in the heated term. Nor does Mr. Gratton seem disposed to disappoint the appreciative public. This very day he has produced another of his famous works. The only thing the matter with the new tale is similarity. It is another swelled-up affair. Still, it is not discreditable to the author.

"'Twas yesterday"—says Mr. Gratton—"You know how hot it was, yourself. My little dog drank six quarts of water in six consecutive gulps. Then he stood in the sun. The intense, paralyzing heat of the solar rays caused a wonderful transmogrification. The dog became, as it were, a sheet-iron boiler. The water consumed by the dog was rapidly generated into steam. Suddenly the noise of a tremendous explosion rent the air. The dog was torn into millions of pieces—two millions—I counted them. The force of the shock hurled from its upright position to a prostrate one, a horse in an adjoining field. The horse was maimed for life. There it goes now; see how it limps!"

Mr. Gratton says that he is determined to be known as the greatest imaginative poet of the day—or his name shall be Ananias.

WHO'S THIS PLAINFIELD PRUDE?

He Writes to a New York Paper About His Shocking Experience With a Naughty Magazine.

To the Editor of The Commercial:

SIR:—The merciless and just criticism with which, in your yesterday's journal, you cut into the "paper covered novels" and showed them up to your readers, to be the miserable trash they are in reality, reminded me strongly of a similar publication, though issued under the name of a "monthly magazine," with a copy of which I made short work on last Saturday.

On that day I was just ready to leave for the country, and my supply of reading matter consisted of Lippincott's July number. I had never bought a copy before and knew nothing about it, yet I had heard it mentioned, and seeing it was published in Philadelphia, where a certain amount of respectability is said to exist, I had invested my money, intending to read it myself and then place it in the hands of my wife and daughters.

However, that magazine was never read by my family, because, after perusing a dozen pages of miserable, trashy stuff, appearing over the name of Oscar Wilde, I concluded it was unfit for any home circle where religion, morality, virtue and humanity are looked upon as being equal in value to life itself. What would rugged old Carlyle, or Lessing, or Emerson, or Addison, or Shakespeare himself have said of such disgusting, slimy nastiness and loathsome rottenness, passing for the leading literature of this century? Even to ever-grinning, cynical lovers of the "piquante Geschichte," such stuff is offensive and repugnant, and there is not one who would not regret to have paid even one cent for being the possessor of it.

I took that magazine, tore it up carefully into small shreds, and as my train sped along toward home scattered them along the road in about the same careful manner as, figuratively speaking, the author ought to be scattered over a large part of some uninhabited island in mid-ocean.

FAMILY MAN.

Plainfield, N. J., July 16.

Don't Make the Street Your Waste-basket.

A horse owned by the Adams Express company is under treatment for injuries inflicted by a nail on which it stepped in the street. This is the fourth of this company's horses recently injured in this manner. Though a nail be perfectly straight, one horse stepping on it bends it, and it easily penetrates another horse's foot. To throw things into the street is a bad practice, and often results seriously.

Words cannot express the gratitude which people feel for the benefit done them by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Long-standing cases of rheumatism yield to this remedy, when all others fail to give relief. This medicine thoroughly expels the poison from the blood.

NOT TO BE BAFFLED.

How Mr. Thompson Happened to Call His Office Boy Exosmosis.

James is an apple-faced office boy. He was looking intently at a big dusty bottle which had stood for a long time on one corner of his employer's desk. He had often before wondered what was in the bottle, but this time curiosity seemed have become so strong that he could no longer resist. No one else was in the room. He stole up to the bottle and with an effort pulled out the cork. "Whew! if it isn't something good!"

Quickly he looked toward the door and listened. No sound. Then he raised the bottle to his lips, took a lingering drink, and put it down again. "I'll bet my old hat that's currant wine. My! ain't it good, though?"

James replaced the bottle, looked at it a moment, then went away and brought back a cup of water, which he poured carefully into the bottle until it was full again. Then he went home to supper.

The next day James heard Mr. Thompson calling him. He appeared at his employer's desk trembling with fear, and looking toward the floor.

"James, I am going to be away for two hours. Tell any one that comes in that I will be back by twelve o'clock," and Mr. Thompson picked up some papers and went out.

The heart of James rose rapidly. His eyes rose at the same time until they rested on the dusty bottle.

"Now, Tad Roy and Billy Peters and Fred Appel are good fellows, and they might like a little of that stuff, too." The three office boys from across the hall were quickly brought in, and in five minutes the bottle was empty. "I'll have to fill it up with water again," James decided, and he did it. Then he sprinkled some dust over the top of the bottle.

When Mr. Thompson came back he had a friend with him. "Sit down, old fellow," he said when he got in. "I was telling Mrs. Thompson only yesterday that I didn't know what had become of you. Why, I haven't seen you before, Tom, since the night we had the jamboree when we left college in '77. See here; there's a bottle of old currant wine up there that was given to me four or five years ago, and we'll use it to celebrate your visit with. Two glasses, James. You can almost see the sparkle through the dusty bottle. Now see the light shine on the juice as it comes out of the prison. Why, it—it looks thin and colorless, doesn't it!"

"Rather—rather watery, I should say."

"It doesn't seem to have any odor, and—and it has no more taste than water either! Now, that's a mystery. Fought to be able to explain it, too, for I used to dabble in chemistry. The cork is slightly porous you see, and the alcohol, being volatile, has passed out into the air by the aid of exosmosis, carrying the body of the wine with it."

Mr. Thompson's friend thought it might look reasonable, and the two went out together. James slipped out, too, and going across the hall whispered to Tad: "The boss doesn't suspect us a bit! He's just told a man that somebody what he called Moses took it."

The dusty bottle still stands on Mr. Thompson's desk. He frequently explains to visitors the strange passage of the wine through the neck of the bottle. In confirmation, he uniformly offers a taste of what is left, which cannot be distinguished from water.—New York Tribune.

VALUABLE FRANCHISES.

Some Reasons Why They Should Be Placed Under Municipal Control.

Instead of the city holding the passive part of consent, upon it should be thrown exactly the opposite duty of actively planning the route that is to be operated and of protecting the public interest by specifying the considerations. When the public authorities of a city can specify all the conditions upon which public franchises can be operated, as they now specify some, we may hope for better accommodations. The so-called bobtail car has yielded in many places under precisely this pressure. Under existing methods no public franchise is sought until it promises to be profitable. Not improbably it is then sought to serve subsidiary private ends rather than the public convenience. If the initiative lay with the city it might make the strong carry the weak. Profitable routes could be sold in connection with less promising ones to the great advancement of public convenience in the large sense. In many cases, if the city were to seek bidders after due public notice, for specific work to be done in a specified way, under conditions which lifted the right to do the work entirely out of the range of favoritism, it can scarcely be doubted that capital would compete for the privileges so offered for sale much more cheaply than at present. It may be urged that public work done by contract is not always honestly done. Unhappily this is true, but the interest of a contractor in his work ceases the instant he is paid. The interest of a successful bidder for a public franchise lasts as long as he holds the franchise. Again, it may be urged that the city may favor individuals or localities, or may be unwise in its action, or in the routes it lays out. This also is true. Human nature never reaches perfection anywhere. The contention is that the element of corruption as it affects city franchises may be eliminated by throwing upon the city the duty of devising, instead of the duty of consenting. Under the protection given to individuals as property-owners by the Constitution of New York State it is believed that a safe and workable law to accomplish this result can be readily devised.—President Seth Low of Columbia College, in Scribner.

Hard Lines.

Chappie—Fitted what.

Cholly—Why, his mouth, of course.—Munsey's Weekly.

LIFE-LINE ROCKETS.

The Most Useful Life-Saving Apparatus Ever Invented.

"There have been a vast number of inventions of life-saving apparatus to be used in times of shipwreck," said Captain Fairchild, of the steamboat board, to a New York Star reporter.

"Many of them," he continued, "have proved practicable and useful. When a vessel strikes a sandy bar off a main shore during a heavy gale prompt and immediate measures must be taken with a view toward saving life and property. Sky-rockets are sent up, and the attention of the life-saving agents on the shore is attracted. Invariably a high surf is to be encountered on a dangerous coast, and to launch a life-boat is almost next to an impossibility. The practicable method known of saving the lives thus imperiled aboard a wreck is to make a connection between the land and the wreck by means of a hawser. A 'breeches sling' is rigged on the hawser, and the shipwrecked persons are brought ashore singly. The great trouble, however, is in geting the line from the shore to the wreck. It is well known how difficult it is to get a line to the vessel from the shore in the teeth of a gale, but the very difficulties in the way of such a task would be helps toward getting a line to shore from the wreck. With this object in view, some genius has invented a perfect line-carrying rocket, which is designed to carry a line from vessel to shore in case of wreck. The invention consists of a rocket carrying a tube containing a coiled line, which is paid out of the tube as the rocket and tube pass through the air on their flight from the vessel to the shore. In most cases stranding occurs on a lee shore in gales of wind. A projectile with a shot line attached to it, fired from the shore toward a vessel, is loaded with the weight of a line, and in the second place impeded by the force of the wind, hence the range is greatly lessened. A vessel presents but a small mark, and if the wind be quartering or gusty it is difficult to aim a shot so as to cause the line to fall on the vessel. On the other hand, a shot fired from the vessel toward the shore under such circumstances flies with the wind, and of course will carry a line a much greater distance; besides, no accuracy of aim is required. The initial difficulty of establishing communication with the shore might thus be overcome, and a line be got from the vessel to the life-saving crews, who could then attach the hauling lines and speedily make the necessary connections for the use of the sling, the boatswain's chair or the life-car. Guns or mortars, such as are used by the life-saving stations, could not be used on a wreck. They require a horizontal foundation to rest on, whereas a wreck is often on beam ends. With a gale of wind and waves washing the deck it would be well-nigh impossible to arrange a line so that it could be used.

"When the United States warships were wrecked at Samoa there were plenty of guns on the naval vessels, but the only projectile found practicable and used was a common sky-rocket shot from the flagship into the rigging of the Vandalia a few yards away. Repeated attempts were made to get lines ashore in that dreadful emergency, but they all failed because the vessels had no suitable line-carrying apparatus."

HER SCHEME FAILED.

A Young Russian Woman Who Wanted to Be a Monk.

There is no dearth of monasteries in Russia for men and for women; indeed, the country seems rather to suffer from a plethora of these cenobitic institutions. Female ascetics do not, however, invariably prefer to renounce the world and its pomps and embrace the rigors of monastic life in the company of their own sex. The wisest and most famous recluses known to history were of the male sex, and this consideration may have weighed with an interesting young girl of Onego, who felt called by Heaven to abandon the world and such of its vanities as were likely to fall to her lot some six or seven months ago. Instead of applying to the Superioress of a female monastry this candidate for ascetic honors struck out the female termination, "a," from her name—Alexandra—as written in her passport, and, having donned a becoming suit of male attire, presented herself to the Igoomen—or Abbot—of the monastery of Kosheozersk, over the threshold of which female footsteps had never passed. The holy monks spoke to the postulant, whose looks they liked, and whom they made no difficulty about admitting.

As a novice the young woman discharged the manifold duties of her station with exemplary industry and scrupulousness. The community, as a whole, was satisfied, while some individually members of it were unspeakably edified and delighted with their new inmate. Unfortunately a few days ago, just as the time fixed for taking the vows was drawing near, one of those untoward accidents that are so liable to occur under such abnormal conditions revealed the sex of the demure novice and obliged the monks to eject her from the cloistered prescincts. Neither the authorities nor the monks intend to prosecute the would-be hermit, the police contenting themselves by compeling her sign a declaration to the effect that, having lamentably failed in her attempt to imitate Mary, she will in future be satisfied with the lot of Martha.—St. Petersburg Letter.

A Long Search for Aid.

Tramp—Madam, can you help a poor man with a wife and eleven children at home?"

Woman—Are you very needy?

Tramp—Needy is no word for it, ma'am; I couldn't see the children suffer, so I left them to ask assistance of the charitable.

Woman—Did you leave home to-day.

Tramp—No, ma'am; it will be seven years to-morrow. Can't you help a man who wants to surprise his little ones?—Judge.

A DAY AT WEST POINT.

The First Classman of 1890 Describes the Routine.

The Boys Have to Turn Out at 5:45 in the Morning and Work with Short Intermissions Until 10:30—"Scratch Days" and "Snap Days."

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

Scores of boys in every State have their eyes turned toward West Point. There is a glamour about the academy attractive to all bright youths. Every boy at some time or other has the military fever. It is shown in building snow-forts and snow-balling contests at school. Thousands of boys get this fever by reading the exploits of Alexander, Hannibal, Cæsar, Gustavus Adolphus, Frederick the Great, Napoleon and other great commanders. In studying the careers of Scott, Zachary Taylor, Grant, Lee, Sherman, Sheridan and other great American soldiers their minds are turned toward West Point. Their blood is at fever heat once a year when the examinations are held. All are anxious to become cadets, but few know how difficult it is to secure an appointment.

Each member of the House of Representatives has one every four years, and oftener if the cadet from his district fails to pass the yearly examinations. The President keeps ten cadets at the academy all the time. This gives him from two to five appointments each year. Less than half the cadets who enter the academy really graduate. The others fall by the way-side, either physically or intellectually. A boy must have rare mental and physical stamina to take the course at West Point. Few realize how much brain and brawn is required to get a diploma.

The stern realities of military life are before him as soon as he enters the barracks. He will have no luxuries and no tender attentions. His room is uncarpeted and he shares it with a comrade. It contains two wooden chairs, a wooden wash-stand, a common wooden table, a plain clothes-press, two iron bedsteads, and two tin water-buckets. He gets no ice-water and is compelled to drink from a gourd with a wooden handle. No pictures nor adornments are allowed upon the walls. An iron bedstead and a hard mattress without springs serve as his couch. Only the bare necessaries of life are furnished him. But Rip Van Winkle never slept sounder than a West Point cadet. Frederick the Great seldom worked harder, and this will appear from a day's work of a cadet in the senior class.

Take what is known among the cadets as a "scratch day." The cadet rises at reveille. He washes, dresses and goes to his company parade ground, where he must appear at 5:45 a. m. He is hardly in line before he hears the roll-call. It lasts only a minute. He answers to his name, is dismissed and returns to his room. Immediately afterwards he makes up his bed, sweeps the bare floor and dusts the mantel-piece, clothes-press, table, chairs and wash-stand. At six o'clock he hears the sick call. If ill he goes to the hospital, where the cadet surgeon attends to his wants. If well, after cleaning his room he improves the ten minutes remaining before breakfast in study. If a subdivision inspector, he inspects the seven rooms in his bailiwick at police call at five minutes after six. It is his duty to note all visible violations of police regulations and record them in his police certificate. He fills it out on his return to his room. He must then place the certificate in the box allotted to his company in the cadet guard-house.

CADET'S QUARTERS.

At 6:10 he again hears the beat of the drum. It is the first call for breakfast. Between this and the last call at 6:15 he completes his toilet. The corps forms in front of the barracks and marches to Grant Hall for breakfast after the last call. Thirty minutes are allowed for the meal. Upon the return of the cadets to the barracks he is released from quarters. This release lasts until eight o'clock. If he has any business with the cadet commissary now is the time to transact it. A cadet in the senior class rarely avails himself of the release. He repairs at once to his room and cons his Spanish. The lesson comprises about four pages of grammar, two of reading and three of verb-conjugation. At 8:15 he drops Spanish and takes up his engineering lesson. The task given him usually comprises about twenty pages in the "Art of War," or some kindred subject.

At 9:30 the cadet marches with the other nine men in his section to the engineer class-room. The recitation lasts until 10:55. He then has five minutes intermission. Within this time he returns to the barracks, exchanges his books on engineering for his Spanish, and marches to the Spanish section-room. Here he remains until noon. The next hour is spent in the preparation of his lesson in law.

At one o'clock sharp the corps forms at the tap of the drum in front of the barracks and marches to the hall for dinner. Each table accommodates ten persons. As the cadets march in, they arrange themselves behind their chairs and await orders. "Company A, be seated," shouts the orderly sergeant of that company. Each cadet hangs his hat upon a hook in the back of his chair and takes his seat at the table. The other companies are seated in like manner. There are three courses. The best of soup is served, and plenty of it. Then come roast meats, and they are roasted to a turn. After that dessert is placed upon the table. Sometimes it is pudding and at others it is strawberries, pine-apples or other delicacies in their seasons.

The cadet at the head of the table serves the soup, the meat and the dessert. All are treated as gentlemen, and each treats the other as a gentleman. Each cadet is Mr. So-and-So, whether addressed by his comrade or by his professor.

Dinner is over at twenty minutes of two. For the next twenty minutes the cadets are again released from quarters. The recitations, however, are resumed at two o'clock. The cadet usually uses these twenty minutes in preparing for them. The lesson in law comprises about twenty pages of constitutional jurisprudence, and its recitation takes the time between two and three o'clock. From three o'clock to 4:10 the cadet studies his ordnance lesson for the ensuing day.

At 4:10 the rattle of the drum again falls upon his ears. It is the call for drill. He hastily puts on what he calls his "dog of war"—in other words, his sword, sash, hat and gloves. At 4:15 he is in line awaiting the order to march. The drill lasts till 5:30 and is very thorough and trying. Then he has fifteen minutes respite. In this time he must change his uniform and prepare for dress parade. The dress parade lasts thirty-five minutes on an average. At its close the cadet is double-quicked from the ground.

It takes five minutes to remove his "dog," get into his fatigue suit and repair to the company parade ground, preparatory to marching to supper. This meal lasts for half an hour. After it is over the cadet has another half hour release from quarters. It may be used for recreation, but if wise—and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the cadet is wise—he repairs at once to his quarters and begins work on the lessons for the next day. He has now three hours and a quarter before "taps." Two hours of this he puts in on his engineering. The remaining hour he gives to ordnance and gunnery.

At taps he leaves his table, lights a dark lantern and inspects the quarters of the cadets in lower classes in his subdivision. It is his business to see that they are in bed and not violating any of the rules of the academy. After this inspection he tramps to the guard-house and reports the result to the officer in charge. Upon coming back to his room he rolls down the mattress upon his iron bedstead and uses the time left before 10:30 in continuing his studies. This time is granted as a compensation for acting as subdivision inspector.

Such is what is known as a "scratch day" among the cadets. It begins at 5:45 a. m. and lasts till 10:30 p. m. Another day is dubbed "snap day." Snap and scratch days alternate. The only difference between them is that on snap day there is no Spanish recitation and a recitation in ordnance takes the place of the one in law. A cavalry drill occupies the time between eleven and 12:15, and the time between 12:15 and one p. m. is reserved for bathing.

Cadet Edgar Jadwyn, of Honesdale, Pa., took the highest honors in the graduating class this year. Four years ago this class entered the academy with one hundred and twenty-four members. It came out with only fifty-four. In battle this would be called rough slaughter. It is but the average at West Point. This brief description of a day's work in the academy is from Jadwyn's own lips. It would be interesting to know how many of the thousands of boys now longing for a cadetship at West Point think they could stand this trying ordeal for four years.

At the Asylum.

"This man appears to be sane enough," said the doctor. "There's nothing weak about his head."

THE SPANISH DANCE.

How Valdes Describes It in His Newly-Translated Novel.

Our learned host in a few moments appeared with castanets which he handed to the Sisters. Then they took off their "coronets" and hoods. For the first time I saw Sister San Sulpicio's hair; it was dark and shiny with almost a bluish light, slightly waving, not very long, because at the time that she took her vows the scissors made terrific havoc in them. After we had made still another exploration around the parlor and hermetically sealed all the doors, Suarez began to thrum the guitar. A moment of keen expectation followed; the two girls who were going to perform the dance for us stood facing each other smiling, Sister Maria de la Luz with her head bent and blushing to her ears; her cousin with her arms akimbo a trifle pale, her lips feverish, the slight squinting of her beautiful velvety eyes being a little intensified. My heart leaped within me out of pure excitement.

The Malaganien raised his voice a little and sang a seguidilla.

Instantly the four castanets clacked noisily, the dancers lifted their arms and approached each other, then instantly retreated again, raising first one foot and then the other in time and with the greatest grace and agility. My enamored eyes feasted on the adorable curves of the graceful Sister San Sulpicio, not concealed by the coarse serge.

Followed a series of movements and steps, all adjusted to the sound of the guitar and the castanets, which never for a moment ceased to sound with a joyous and noisy clapping; the bodies of the two cousins rose and fell, bending to one side and then to the other with opposite motions of heads and arms.

The arms indeed had the most to do, sometimes extended with the breast advanced in a challenging attitude, then again picking up from the floor something invisible which must have been intended to represent flowers, then again bent above the head, making around it, as it were, a lovely frame.

My eyes followed only Sister San Sulpicio, not only because of the affection which I felt for her, but also because she was in reality the better dancer; her cousin, either from fear or modesty, or because Nature had not endowed her with much animation, confined herself to marking the movements and keeping time. She, on the other hand, accented them powerfully, enjoying herself in attitudes in which the elegance and flexibility of her body was each instant shown in a bewitching way. Her beautiful head bent to one side, her eyes half closed, her lips parted by a half blissful smile, in which her whole being was submerged, she seemed to be an Oriental bayadere, displaying with mystical rapture, amid the solitude and mystery of the temple, the fascinating brilliancy of her eyes, and the supreme gracefulness of her form, gilded like the lotus leaves in autumn. At that moment I could swear that she saw us not, entirely absorbed as she was in the delight of following out, one by one, the thousand exquisite combinations to which her lovely figure lent itself. The passion of the dance was the passion of her own body, was the ecstatic worship of her own gracefulness. When any particular figure came to an end she seemed to come out of her ecstasy, and would look at us smiling with wandering, humid eyes.

When it was finished Sister Maria de la Luz ran to a chair and sat down in mortification; her cousin remained standing, her breast heaving, her hair in disorder, and still smiling, with the same mischievous expression. The Malagannian, in a fit of enthusiasm, laid the guitar at her feet, expressing his homage in his lisping dialect.—Don Armando Palacio Valdes, in Sister Saint Sulpice

The Warmest Region on Earth.

There are many very warm spots on the torrid zone, but Bohrin, by the Gulf of Persia, seems to be, as far as temperature goes, absolutely without a rival. For forty consecutive days in July and August last year, which was by no means an exceptional season, the thermometer was known not to fall lower than 100 degrees Fahrenheit, night or day, and often ran up as high as 128 degrees in the afternoon. Nature, as if to make the spot as intolerable to human beings as possible, has banished all water from the rocks of the locality, at least none has ever been procured by digging to depths of nearly 500 feet, and the numerous pits or dry wells in the neighborhood show how thoroughly the upper stratum has been tapped. In spite of these apparently insuperable obstacles, however, mankind has contrived to flourish and multiply in this region to an amazing extent, and the necessary fresh drinking water which the land has refused to yield is obtained from the bottom of the Gulf of Persia, where, at a distance of more than a mile from the shore, innumerable copious springs burst forth.—Scotsman.

A Bright Boy.

Charlie S—— is a very bright boy, and never at a loss for an excuse. He is also something of a naturalist. Walking along with a young lady one day, he heard a tree-toad suddenly begin its shrill chirp. "It will rain within twenty-four hours," he announced, oracularly. "That is a sure sign; never known to fail." His prediction was received in good faith; but after twenty-four hours of remarkably pleasant weather he was taken to task about his prediction. "Oh, well," he replied instantly, in an injured tone, "the tree-toad lied. I am not responsible for his morals."

Another time, having been requested to perform some little service, he came to receive his reward. His father offered him his choice between a silver dime and an old-fashioned copper cent. "I have always been taught to take the smallest piece," he remarked, gravely, pocketing the dime.—Harper's Bazar.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—The oldest medical work, an Egyptian papyrus dating from 1,500 years or more before Christ, and containing prescriptions then old, has been translated by George Ebers, the German novelist.

—Senor Don Jose Zorilla, who was crowned Poet Laureate of Spain a year ago, recently died, at the age of seventy-three. In Spain, as well as abroad, Senor Lorilla is generally regarded as the foremost Spanish poet of the century.

—Michael Davitt said to Herbert Gladstone after hearing the recent great speech made by the Grand Old Man on the Irish question: 'There was always a lingering feeling of bitterness against your father left rankling in my breast, but last night's speech has cleared away the last trace of it."

—There is an old lady living in Polk County, Fla., who is quite a genius. She can write poetry and set it to music, and has written two books. She hunts phosphate, plants trees, clears land, works in an orange grove, can knit dresses, make neat shoes, plait hats of palmetto and make flowers out of shucks.

—The reports of the "Challenger" exploring expedition, which has been issued at irregular intervals during the last nine years, now form forty-seven quarto volumes, containing 27,650 pages of letter press, 2,662 lithographic plates, 413 maps and diagrams and a great number of wood cuts.

—There is no country like France for starting journals. During 1889 no less than 950 new newspapers were brought out, of which not one remains in life. On the other hand, the Petit Journal now claims a circulation of 1,095,000 copies. During the same period there were printed in France over 15,000 new books, including 5,000 new musical pieces.

—Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes was in a Boston book-store one day when a woman came in to purchase a book. One of the volumes shown her was "The Last Leaf," a poem which "The Autocrat" prizes as one of his dearest. "Who is this by?" asked the customer. "Dr. Holmes." "The pictures are very nice. Did he draw them?" "O, no; he wrote the poetry." "The poetry! Is that all?"

—A proposition to aid young authors in France by having an annual state competition for the best works, to be submitted to a jury, and to have these best works published at the expense of the state, is exciting much criticism in France. About one-half of the popular authors are in favor of it, and a great many express themselves decidedly against it. The young authors themselves do not appear to care for such state intervention.

—Mr. Joseph Whitaker, F. S. A., of London, whose famous "Almanack" has become indispensable, possesses a singularly fine library, comprising upward of 20,000 volumes, many of them of rare antiquity and interest. Books have been the ruling passion of Mr. Whitaker's life, and in the spacious building which he has attached to his fine old-fashioned house at Enfield as a depository for his literary treasures, the greater portion of his life is spent.

HUMOROUS.

—Customer—"Why is it that you waiters always expect a fee?" Waiter—"I don't know, unless it is because we feed you."—Jury.

—She—"If capital punishment must be, I certainly favor electricity." He—"Oh! that is to say, you prefer currents to raisins."—Racket.

—Professor—"What is the difference between knowledge and conceit?" Student—"Knowledge is what we ourselves know; conceit is what the other fellows think they know."—N. Y. Press.

—Father—"Clara, what game was that you were playing when I looked in the parlor last night?" Clara—"Hide and seek." Father—"What was the kissing for?" Clara—"O, that was the duty on the hides."—Boston Herald.

—Mrs. Watts—"You have a new kitchen girl at last, have you?" Mrs. Potts—"Yes; and she has such an appropriate name." Mrs. Watts—"What is it?" Mrs. Potts—"Pans-y."—Terre Haute Express.

—"The Servants." Lady Patroness (Registry Office of Charitable Society)—"And why are you leaving your present place?" Small Applicant—"Please, 'm, the lady said she can do with a less experienced servant!"

—First Printer—"What are you saving your money for, Bill?" Second Printer—"I'm a going to get my wife a new hat." "What! you ain't reformin', are you, Bill?" "No, but I'm bound to give my wife a display head for once in her life."—Burlington Free Press.

—First Reveler—"I guess it is time for us to steer for home." Second Reveler—"I know it is, but I don't like to risk it. The idea of seeing my wife's face duplicated and triplicated is enough to sap the nerve out of a Bengal tiger. Let us stay right here where we are."—Texas Siftings.

—Daughter—"Mamma, I think our furniture is too stiff and old-fashioned. We want some of those fine large easy chairs that are too big for one and not big enough for two." Mamma—"My darling daughter; then Mr. Gibbs has proposed and you have accepted him. I hope you will be very happy, darling.'—America.

—"Why don't you go to work?" she asked of the tramp. "I am working lady." "At what? You show no signs of it." "No matter for that, mum. I'm a-working as a traveling adver. for a soap firm. I'm the 'Before Using' card and my partner around the corner represents the 'After Using' end of the combination. Thank you, mum."—Washington Supper Table.

—Proprietor of Summer Hotel (to Guest)—"I hope, Mr. Smith, that you like my house better than the place you stopped at last year?" Smith—"Um, well—the cooking isn't as good; the attendance isn't as good—but there's one thing that's quite as good here as there." Proprietor—"What's that?" Smith—"The ice-water."—Light.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

—There are 455 Lutheran ministers resident in the State of Minnesota.

—A Protestant Episcopal Church costing $400,000 is to be built at Philadelphia as a memorial of the late George W. Smith.

—A new chair has been established in Dickinson College—that of Bible study. Its professor will be Dr. Rogers, a graduate of John Hopkins.

—The Freshmen of the Northwestern University this year sent their cast-off books away in a balloon, instead of burning them as is the custom.

—The public schools are the bulwark of our liberties; and whosoever is an enemy of the public schools is an enemy of the Republic.—Western Rural.

—Wing Lee and his cousin, Joe Lee, Flint (Mich.) laundrymen, were converted to Christianity recently, and they feel so good that they placed a $60 memorial window in the Baptist Church there.

—Boston, since 1830, has increased in population about 400 per cent. During that time Congregationalism has increased 250 per cent., the Baptists 475 per cent. and the Episcopalians 1,000 per cent.

—At some of the ceremonies of commencement week at Bryn Mawr College the students wore academic costumes, the blondes choosing a white gown and mortar board and the brunettes yellow. The college colors are white and yellow.

—At the late commencement exercises of the graduating class of forty-four students from the Chicago Theological Seminary (Congregational), of the seven orations delivered one was in Danish, one in Swedish and one in German.

—Bishop Hurst, of the Methodist church, intends making a trip to Europe for the purpose of visiting the principal universities of Great Britain and the continent, and the securing of plans and ideas for the proposed Methodist University at Washington.

—The United Presbyterian church has conformed its statistical inquiry this year to the schedule of the Census Office. It reports 865 congregations, 103,921 church-members, 815 churches with seating capacity of 263,303, and valued at $5,036,764.

—A clergyman in Somerville, Mass., has come to understand the misfortune of prosperity. His church recently received a fine homestead by will and demanded that he should occupy it. On his part he explained that on his salary he couldn't live up to the level of such an establishment, and the upshot of it is that he has resigned and is looking for a poorer church where he can afford to live.—Hartford Courant.

—The minister is not to ignore social questions; neither is he called upon to solve them. He is simply called upon to elucidate clearly and apply fearlessly these great moral principles which underlie the brotherhood of the race, and which, applied, will solve all problems and bring at last the organization of society and industry into conformity with the principles of righteousness, justice and brotherly love.—Christian Union.

—An interesting contest has taken place in a north London collegiate school for girls between two factions which have been actively divided on the question of corset-wearing. Arguments and discussions simply added fuel to the flame, and it was finally decided to settle the discussion by an athletic contest, consisting of a high leap, a tug-of-war and a foot-race. There were sixteen competitors, eight of whom were laced into whalebone girdles, and eight wore simple blouses. The non-corset faction were easily victors, their champion distancing all rivals with a leap of twelve feet.

BELLIGERENT CRETANS.

Grim, Armed to the Teeth and Always Ready to Fight.

The people of Canea, as of all Crete, are not pleasant to look upon. Never have I seen so many lowering brows and savage expressions. They never smile. Now and then one laughs in a sardonic style, as hideous to the ear as the snarl of an angry wild beast. But of mirth there is none. The light-heartedness and merriment which characterize most southern peoples, even under oppression, are here unknown. Every one seems perpetually in a bad humor and in a belligerent mood. No matter whether they are talking of the weather, or selling cabbages or silk, or complaining of Turkish despotism, they are always the same, grim, frowning, truculent. As a rule they are finely formed and powerful, straight and broad-shouldered, and no matter what they are doing or where they are, their normal condition is to be armed to the teeth with knives and pistols, while the walls of their homes and shops are thickly hung with swords, spears and rifles, so that the stranger among them feels as though he were in an arsenal, where every lethal weapon needed only a look to set it in deadly action.

It is easy to see why breaches of the peace are so frequent among these people and why any outbreak is certain to have ghastly results. When they quarrel they quarrel in dead earnest. Every blow is meant to kill. They seem devoid of any of the ordinary compunctions of humanity when once the easy curb is slipped from their passions. And considering how largely the nominal Christians outnumber the Turks it is evident that should they once unite to throw off the Ottoman yoke they could do so in a day. But they do not unite. They are as ready to quarrel with each other as with the Turks, and are so continually divided into jarring factions as to make Turkish mastery of them an easy matter to maintain.—Canea Cor. N. Y. Tribune.

WRECKED BY FIRE

The Main Office of the Western Union Gutted.

A FRANTIC RUSH FOR LIFE

Exciting Scenes Around the Big Building in New York.

The Loss Estimated at Over One Million Dollars—The Origin of the Fire Unknown—The Crossing of Electric Wires the Supposed Cause—The Associated Press a Heavy Loser.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The fire in the big Western Union Telegraph building in this city completely gutted the fine structure.

The building is eight stories high, with a cupola, and contains the offices of Jay Gould, the Pacific Railroads and and the New York Associated Press, together with the operating rooms of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

There were several narrow escapes from accident, but no one was seriously hurt.

According to all accounts there were twenty people in the operating room at the time, including fifteen women and five or six men.

They all worked nobly to put out the fire, and it was necessary to force them out of the building to save their lives.

A Thrilling Scene.

During the excitement it flashed the minds of the frightened persons who had escaped that there were seven others in the restaurant floor who had not been warned of their danger. All exit had by this time been cut off but the imprisoned people succeeded in reaching the roof through the trap door. When the great crowds of people on the streets saw the men and women rush out on the roof, a cry of horror went up, for it seemed impossible that they could escape the fire burning between them and the street.

A long ladder was rushed upon the roof of No. 8 Dey street, and placed against the rear of the building. It did not reach within fifty feet of the roof of the big telegraph building. Undaunted, however, two firemen scaled the ladder and threw a rope to the roof. It was caught and tied by one of the imperiled people. The two firemen pulled themselves up hand over hand until they reached the roof, and amid cheers from a thousand throats below them, let the seven down to a place of safety.

It was accomplished just in time, for the flames burst up through the cornice and soon enveloped the roof.

The Wires Were Crossed.

It was a beautiful and at the same time a terrifying sight to see the fire shoot out from the windows around the entire building fully fifty feet and blown back like great fiery tongues to lick the roof of the building.

No one seems to know how the fire originated, but it is surmised that two of the company's electric light wires became crossed and set the flooring on fire.

Had the fire broken out an hour later the loss of life might have been enormous. Fully 2,000 hands are employed on these floors.

How It Affects Business.

The amount of damage done to business interests throughout the United States by the fire can hardly be estimated. The effects will be felt all over the country, and the loss will foot up many millions of dollars. On the mercantile exchanges down town the effect was immediate; business was partly paralyzed, and far more completely at a standstill than during the great blizzard of 1888. The ill effects were probably felt the least in the Stock Exchange. Brokers hurried hither and thither, and to all outward appearances business seemed to be carried on on a very large scale, with the customary noise and hurry.

Estimating the Loss.

The loss is a very difficult matter to estimate, and the Western Union officials are unable to give any figures that will approach it accurately.

The switch board, which was the largest in the world, is a total loss, and cost when new $2,500. The loss on the instruments and other fixtures is immense, and in round numbers the the total loss will reach $100,000.

The Western Union Company is temporarily located at the corner of Broadway and Canal street. A large force of men is now at work stringing wires to that point.

The loss to the Associated Press cannot be estimated as yet. The fire consumed all their papers and books of record.

An Aged Farmer's Awful Dead.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 19.—An aged farmer, named George Duffield, living near Harlinginen, shot and dangerously wounded his grandson, Oscar Bodine, and then cut his own throat with a razor, dying almost immediately. The tragedy grew out of a petty quarrel between the men. Bodine will probably recover.

The Sunol-Hamlin Trot.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 19.—C. J. Hamlin, owner of the trotter Belle Hamlin, says he will consent to match his mare against the filly Sunol for $5,000 a side on a track which would be mutually acceptable. This statement meets the recent challenge of Orin A. Hickok to race for $10,000 a side.

Warned Against Cholera.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—Horace J. Sprague, United States Consul at Gibraltar, sends a communication to the Board of Health here that the British steamship Sylvia left there for Philadelphia without a clean bill of health. She will be detained at quarantine pending an examination.

MRS. HARRISON'S ESCAPE.

A Runaway Horse Barely Missed Striking the President's Carriage.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 19.—A horse driven by a boy ran away on Washington street just as the President's carriage, containing Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee and baby McKee was passing.

The runaway barely missed striking the Harrison vehicle causing great excitement on the crowded thoroughfare. The frenzied animal finally struck an awning post with great force, and was thrown to the ground where it lay bleeding.

Mrs. McKee swooned and a number of spectators hurried to her assistance, but she rallied in a few minutes and the White House coachman drove hurriedly to the Harrison cottage. The ladies have received numerous congratulations upon their escape from injury.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 19.—A terrible accident occurred on the Main street crossing of the Erie road here, whereby one man lost his life and another was so seriously injured that his life is despaired of.

The milk train was about due when Henry Clay and James Stott, seated in a one-horse vehicle, approached the Main street crossing. They endeavored to stop, in order that the train might pass, but the horse took fright and started to run up the track directly in front of the approaching train. One wheel of the wagon had been run on the inside of the outer rail, and the occupants found it impossible to turn out. Ere they could leap from the wagon the engine was upon them.

Clay was thrown with his neck on the rail, and a second later his headless body was thrown to one side of the track. Stott was quite seriously injured. Both men lived here.

Decided Against the Priest.

TRENTON, N. J., July 10.—Vice Chancellor Bird decided in favor of Mrs. Mary Pironi in her suit to have her conveyance of certain valuable property at Fort Lee to Father Patrick Corrigan of Hoboken for a nominal sum set aside. Mrs. Pironi claimed that she wished a separation from her husband on account of his cruelty, and the priest favored the idea, and said he would procure the separation if she would convey the property to him. He failed to procure the separation, and she sued to recover the property.

The Lake Pepin Disaster.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 19.—The investigation of the Sea Wing disaster on Lake Pepin is being conducted by Inspectors Yeager and Klapp with closed doors. No information relative to the evidence is given out, and the probable result of the inquiry is not indicated. A rumor has leaked out that some of the evidence tells strongly against Capt. Wethern.

"Liverpool Jack" Has a Chance.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The General Term of the Supreme Court has reversed the conviction of "Liverpool Jack," or John Fitzgerald, who was found guilty of kidnapping David Kennedy and sending him into practical slavery in Yucatan. The court holds that the evidence was not sufficient in law, though there is no moral doubt of Fitzpatrick's infamy.

The President's Stay Protracted.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 19.—The length of the President's stay has been somewhat protracted and he will not return to Washington until next Tuesday. A private car will be attached to the regular 9 o'clock express which arrives in Philadelphia two hours later enabling him to reach Washington between three and four o'clock in the afternoon.

Cardinal Gibbons Returns Home.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 19.—Cardinal Gibbons has returned from his trip to Cape May. He made an inspection of the cathedral noting the improvements and progress made during his absence. He is giving all the profits of the sale of his book "Our Christian Heritage" towards the building of this magnificent edifice.

A Wealthy Young Hebrew's Escapade.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 19.—A great sensation has been caused in Hebrew social circles over the fact becoming public of the elopement of Phillip Saul, the son of a wealthy clothier, and Tessie McCabe, a manicure, aged 23. They met by chance at Saratoga, and left there after a hasty secret marriage. They sailed for Europe.

MRS. MORTON ROBBED.

The Vice-President's Cottage at Saratoga Entered by Sneak Thieves.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 19.—A bold daylight robbery was committed here. About noon sneak thieves entered the Bliss Cottage on North Broadway, and got away with $10,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry. The cottage is occupied by Vice-President Morton and his law partner, Mr. Bliss, with their wives.

The robbery was first discovered by Mrs. Morton and the police were promptly notified. It is impossible to ascertain whether the jewelry was the property of Mrs. Morton or Mrs. Bliss, as the parties interested decline to make any statement. The police refuse any information except that the robbery was committed and that a reward of $1,000 is offered for the recovery of the jewels.

The American Riflemen's Movements.

BERLIN, July 19.—The American riflemen paid a visit to the Niederwald and placed a wreath of laurels on the Germania monument. President Weber delivered an address. Afterwards the Americans drove to Rudesheim and partook of a Kellerfest.

POLICE FOR ESCORT

Non-Union Cigarmakers Afraid to Leave Their Shops.

TROUBLE EXPECTED TO-NIGHT.

The Strikers at Binghamton Becoming Restless and Make Threats.

Bright Prospects for an Amicable Adjustment of the Cloakmakers' Strike. Paddlers Go Out at Pittsburg—The Strike at the New Jersey Steel and Iron Works Still On.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 19.—About 350 striking cigarmakers assembled in front of Hull, Grummond & Co.'s factory last night, where a number of non-union men were at work. The police force kept order, but the non-union men were imprisoned in the factory half an hour, and finally left under the escort of the police and their employers.

The crowd followed close upon their heels and followed several of the men to their homes. Abut the same thing occurred at Reynolds & Rogers' factory, where a woman named Mrs. Folte was notified that if she went to work she would be shot.

Trouble is anticipated to-night, but the police will probably be able to handle any mob. The strike thus far has been a very peaceful one and this is the first demonstration of bad feeling.

THE CLOAKMAKERS' HITCH.

Prospects for an Amicable Settlement Seem Brighter.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The cloakmakers' strike seems to be nearing an end. The only question on which there is a hitch is the recognition of the Manufacturers' Association.

The operators have come to an agreement on everything except a clause which states that final adjustment of disputes be settled by a "joint board of manufacturers and the Consolidated Board." The operators will deal only with their employers. The operators seem less stubborn than heretofore, and the prospects for an amicable settlement seem brighter than at any time since the lockout began.

Chairman Dale was arrested on complaint of a union cutter named Franks, who charged that Dale said he would "fix him." Dale was paroled to next Wednesday for examination.

The Waiters' Strike.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 19.—The strike of the waiters is absorbing public attention. Six more restaurants have closed their doors but the four that had to close yesterday have reopened with girl waiters furnished by the Woman's Training school. It is understood that at least one St. Louis paper will antagonize this departure on account of the temptations with which such positions surround the girls. The girls are told that the pay will be $18 per month. The company will furnish caps and aprons and laundry them. They must wear a uniform dress, which will be furnished by the company and its cost deducted from the first month's salary.

The Trenton Iron Mills Strike.

TRENTON, N. J., July 19.—The strike at the New Jersey Steel & Iron Works and the Trenton Iron Works, which together employ over 2,000 men, is still on, with no prospect of termination than when first commenced on Tuesday. Cooper & Hewitt, of New York, manage both mills. Those striking at the Trenton Iron Works are roughers and heaters in what is known as the eight and ten inch mills. Several hundred men are out at the New Jersey Works, but at the Trenton Works less than one hundred are on strike, although it is thought that number will run up to over four hundred after this week.

Five hundred Puddlers Go Out.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 19.—Five hundred men are out at the American Iron works. The puddling department in the large mills is the only portion of the plant that is affected. The men claimed that the quality of the iron furnished them is such that an extra amount of work is required to boil it.

Wrecked by Cigarettes.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 19.—Bernard Priest, a Newburg boy, 14 years old, has become a physical and almost a mental wreck by the excessive smoking of cigarettes. His nervous system is shattered and his hearing affected. He has discharges from the ears of the color and odor of nicotine. Young Priest will not tell where he obtains his cigarettes. He is under the care of a physician.

A Case of Asiatic Cholera.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 19.—A special from Atchison says that Mrs. W. R. Bishop, wife of a well known citizen, died of Asiatic cholera. It was a sporadic case, and it is not believed that that there is any danger of more cases appearing.

Fire in a Children's Home.

NEWARK, N. J., July 19.—The north wing of the Foster Home for Children was burned during the morning. Most of the children were out at play. Those remaining in the building were gotten out safely, and all, about 100 in number, are being cared for by neighbors. Loss, $5,000.

One Gambler Shoots Another.

ALTOONA, Pa., July 19.—Willis Bentley shot and fatally wounded Charles Chambers here last night. The shooting was the outcome of a quarrel between the men who were both professional gamblers.

Experimenting With Electricity.

PITTSBURG, July 19.—A representative of the Westinghouse Electric Company has been in Tower, Minn., at the iron mines for the last week experimenting with electricity and iron ore in the interest of his company. He declares that he has discovered a process by which he can center the rays of an arc light upon a piece of iron ore and thereby soften it to such a degree as to be able to work it with a greatly reduced amount of labor. It has not yet become known with what success his labors have been met.

For a Great Match Race.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Preliminary arrangements have been agreed upon for a grand match race at Monmouth Park between Tenny, Salvator and Kingston. The only hitch seems to be the distance to be run. Mr. Higgins wants it to be a mile and an eighth, while the other two owners prefer a mile. It is believed each owner will stake $5,000 and that the Association will add $15,000.

Mrs. Parnell Seriously Ill.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., July 19.—Mrs. Parnell, mother of the Irish statesman, is suffering from cholera morbus, and is confined to her bed. Owing to her age and general poor condition of health her illness is considered serious.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

Two More Contested Election Cases Decided.

AMENDING THE ELECTION BILL.

The Republican Members of the Finance Committee to Suggest Changes.

The Census Office Now Engaged on the Actual Count of the Country—Naval Affairs—Senators Affected by the Heat. A Pension for Gen. Fremont's Widow—A Large Gold Shipment to Europe.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Elections Committee of the House decided two of the four remaining contested election cases on its docket by a party vote in favor of the contestants, both Republicans.

The cases are those of Goodrich vs. Bullock from the Second district of Florida and of McGinniss vs. Alderson from the Third district of West Virginia. There were contestants in three out of the four Congressional districts in West Virginia and the Elections Committee has decided in favor of the Republican contestants in each case.

The remaining cases to be disposed of by the committee are those of Clayton, Rep., against Breckinridge, Dem., from Arkansas, and of Eaton, Rep., against Phelan, Dem., from Tennessee. These cases are awaiting disposition by the House.

THE ELECTION BILL.

The Senate Committee Will Propose a Number of Amendments.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Republican members of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections held a conference for the consideration of the Federal Election bill which passed the House recently. The bill was taken up by sections and but little progress was made.

It is likely that quite a number of amendments will be proposed when the bill is reported to the Senate. These amendments will be submitted to the next caucus of Republican Senators which will likely be held next week.

Senators Feel the Heat.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The present hot weather is beginning to tell upon the old men in the Senate. Several of them, particularly Senators Edmunds and Morrill, are seriously affected by the heat, and there are a number of others who have not sufficient strength to endure it much longer. Even if their spirits are willing the flesh is weak, and as a matter of safety they will be compelled to leave Washington for a cooler climate. The effect of the heat upon the proposed new rule of the Senate and the Elections bill is already being felt and will be noticed to a greater degree soon.

Counting the Country.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—The census office reports that the returns from the country are being rapidly received. The large cities will be first taken up, however, and after they have been counted the country districts will be taken up. The actual count so far is thirty millions. A second count is in progress to verify the returns, and it has reached fifteen millions. The daily count from this time will, it is thought, average about two millions daily. A night force will be employed to verify the count until it is completed.

Commissioner Lyman's Statement.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Civil Service Commissioner Lyman presented to the House Committee, which recently investigated charges against the Civil Service Commission, a written statement in answer to the criticisms passed upon him by the report of the committee. He asserts that the report did him a grievous wrong and challenges the most searching scrutiny into his official conduct.

Naval Affairs.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Senate bills to promote the efficiency of the enlisted force of the navy, and to allow Commander Dennis W. Mullan, U. S. N., to accept a medal from the Chilian Government were considered by the House Naval Committee, and favorable reports were ordered to be made on them.

Gold Shipped to Europe.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The director of the mint is informed that $700,000 in gold bars were drawn from the assay office at New York to-day for shipment to Europe.

A Pension for Gen. Fremont's Widow.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The House Committee on Invalid Pensions authorized a favorable report on the House bill granting a pension of $3,000 per year to the widow of Gen. Fremont.

EUGENE SCHUYLER DEAD.

The Noted Diplomat and Scholar Passes Away at Cairo.

CAIRO, July 19.—The American Consul-General here, Mr. Eugene Schuyler, is dead.

Severe Storm in London.

LONDON, July 19.—A terrible storm storm struck this city during the forenoon. Lightning struck and dislodged one of the ornamental figures on Westminster Hall. The figure fell to the pavement below and barely missed the head of Hon. Sir Wm. Grantham, Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench. Had it struck him he would certainly have been killed.

Stanley Improving.

LONDON, July 19.—Mr. Henry M. Stanley is improving in health. He takes a short walk every day.

$13,000,000 CAPITAL.

The Incorporation of the Great Stock Yard Company Officially Announced.

BOSTON, July 19.—Official announcement is made to-day of the incorporation under the laws of New Jersey of the Chicago Junction Railway and Union Stock Yards Co., with the following directors; Chauncey M. Depew, New York; Hon. John Quincy Adams, Boston; ex-United States Minister Edward J. Phelps, Burlington, Vt.; William J. Sewell, Camden, N. J.; John Hoey, Hollywood, N. J.; ex-Minister Frederick H. Winston, Chicago; Right Hon. Hugh C. E. Childers, M. P., of London, late Chancellor of the Exchequer; Francis Baron Blake, of London; Bernard T. Bosanquett, London; Adolph von Andre, London.

The trustee for the bondholders and registrar of transfers is the Central Trust Company, of New York. The capital stock is $13,000,000, divided into 65,000 shares of $100 each, six per cent. cumulative preferred stock. This stock will be fully paid in cash and will be non-assessable, and the stockholders will have no personal liability whatever. The stock will be registered at the Central Trust Company, New York.

Applications will be made to list the bonds and stock on the New York, Chicago and Boston exchanges, and quotations will be duly applied for at the London Stock Exchange.

The Chicago management remains unchanged, with Nathaniel Thayer, of Boston, as president, and John B. Sherman as vice-president and general manager. Subscriptions will open in Boston, New York, Chicago, London and Amsterdam on Monday.

THE CAPTAIN'S BLUNDER.

The Sinking of the Yacht Catherine Due to Carelessness.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., July 19.—An investigation of the sinking of the yacht Catherine shows that Captain Senecal was entirely to blame for the accident, since he did not obey properly the signals which were given.

H. A. Thompson, who was an eye witness, says: "Hearing the bells rung to reverse the engine I stepped to the gangway to see where we were. A steam yacht crushed and splintered was slowly sinking. I ran up on the main deck and helped lower the boats, and then assisted in throwing over life preservers. In a few moments six persons were lifted out of the life boats and prompt assistance was rendered them. The boats then went searching for the remainder and the search light, by the thoughtfulness of Purser Volger, was turned on the scene to assist the crew in the boats."

Robert H. Gere, a newspaper reporter, and a passenger on the St. Lawrence, saved the lives of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Berry, as they were being drawn under the steamer. Mr. Gere, seeing Mr. and Mrs. Barry hanging to the rail, rushed through the office door and breaking a window grasped them and pulled them on the steamer St. Lawrence.

HIS END DRAWING NEAR.

Murderer Kemmler to be the First Victim of New York's New Law.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 19.—Warden Durston will have to kill the first murderer by electricity, and the electrocution of Kemmler will take place some day during the week beginning August 4.

The dreadful electrical machinery, including the chair, are now in the death chamber. Deputy Warden Doyle says that all the machinery has been taken down and carefully packed away in boxes. This course is pursued to evade curious visitors, who were continually pestering the Warden to see the apparatus. Kemmler takes his bath daily in the chamber, and this is another reason why the machinery was removed. When Warden Durston returns the final preparations will be begun. Kemmler is in good health and spirits and appears as he has heretofore, unconcerned about his impending doom.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The North Atlantic Squadron has arrived at Bar Harbor, Me.

The United States ship Constellation has arrived at Newport, R. I.

The annual parade of the Newport Coaching Club will take place on August 30th.

The Quincy Mining Company of Boston has declared a dividend of $5 per share.

Governor Boies, of Iowa, commuted the sentence of Fred Manchsrath from imprisonment in the penitentiary for four years to three months. Munchsrath was convicted of conspiring to murder Rev. George Haddock, at Sioux City.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—For Eastern New York: Fair; northwesterly winds; stationary temperature.

For New Jersey: Fair weather, northerly winds; stationary temperature.

IT IS DEVOTED, LOCALLY, TO THE INTERESTS OF THE CITY OF PLAINFIELD, ITS SUBURBS AND ITS NEIGHBORING TOWNS; AND, POLITICALLY, TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF "THE GREATEST GOOD TO THE GREATEST NUMBER."

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED ON ALL MATTERS OF PUBLIC CONCERN, BUT PUBLISHED ONLY WHEN ACCOMPANIED BY THE NAME OF THE WRITER, IN CONFIDENCE, AS ENDORSING THE TRUTH AND HONEST INTENT OF THE COMMUNICATION.

ADVERTISING RATES MADE KNOWN ON APPLICATION AT THIS OFFICE. NOTES OF CHURCH ENTERTAINMENTS, FAIRS, SOCIABLES, LECTURES, CARDS OF THANKS, LODGE RESOLUTIONS, ETC., INSERTED FREE OR NOT, AS CHARITY OR JUSTICE MAY DEMAND.

W. L. AND A. L. FORCE, - PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

F. A. DEMAREST. - - MANAGING EDITOR.

BY THE WAY.

—There will be a full-dress hop at Hotel Netherwood, this evening.

—The Reform Club will go to Rockaway Beach on their fifth annual excursion, Thursday, August 7.

—The First Presbyterian, Park Avenue Baptist and Congregational churches, have joined together for a grand excursion to Ocean Grove on Friday, Aug. 1.

—The Total Abstinence and Emerald Beneficial Associations will go on a combined excursion to Grand View Park, Long Island Sound, Wednesday, Aug. 27.

—The air in the vicinity of Third and Richmond streets was highly perfumed last evening from the fragrance of three night-blooming cereus, on the porch of Policeman Stephen R. Hope.

—The Young Grasshoppers defeated the Unknowns in a game of base ball yesterday afternoon, by the score of 19 to 16 G. Firstbrook and C. Meyer were the battery for the Unknowns, and A. Muir and F. Shattle for the Young Grasshoppers.

—Michael Gallagher, of Bound Brook, who is employed in the Pond Tool Works, had some words with a fellow workman yesterday, and at noon outside the building struck the latter, it is said, without warning in the face and broke his nose.

—It took two stages and a hack to convey the members of Alpha Lodge No. 4, Good Templars, and their friends, on a picnic tour to Boynton Beach, this morning. The morning was so cool and pleasant that the members anticipated a fine time.

—A description was sent to the Plainfield police, yesterday, of a three-year-old, light-haired, blue-eyed boy, who was reported as having been kidnapped from a party visiting Boynton Beach for the day. No trace of the lost one has been discovered in this vicinity.

—The residents of Arlington avenue will ask the Council, Monday evening, for more light on their street from Ninth to Arlington place. Pedestrians and vehicles through that thoroughfare after dark are liable to be wrecked in the spots washed out by the freshet of last year that have never been repaired.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. H. A. McGee and family are at the Tremont House, Sea Girt, N. J.

Wm. Bloodgood and family of Netherwood Heights, are at Point Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Marsh, of Putnam avenue, are at the Neptune House, Belmar.

Chas. B. VanWinkle, of Jackson & Codlington's office, returned to Plainfield last evening, from Illinois.

Mrs. Wm. Angleman of North Plainfield, has been visiting Mrs. G. M. Clickner, of Bound Brook.

Clarence VanDeventer caught a pickerel at Lake Hopatcong, yesterday, that was 28 inches long and weighed 5½ pounds.

The latest to register at Asbury Park from Plainfield, are: C. B. Lemuel and wife, at the Bristol; J. S. Powlison, at the Leadley, and S. S. Darling, at the Madison.

Abraham C. Hooley with his family, is occupying the home of his brother, Edward S. Hooley on West Seventh street, during the absence of the latter's family for the season.

Dr. Albert A Utter of East Sixth street, who with his wife is visiting at Westerly, R. I., is lying very ill there at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Maxson. The patient's condition is serious.

West field's Head's Swelling.

The Union County Standard says that today's game "will be Westfield's thirteenth game for the season. Of the twelved played but four have been lost. It is the intention of the directors to strengthen every weak point in the team as quickly as possible, and, during August to play two games a week so as to get the team right up in good shape by Sept. 1. Correspondence has already been opened with the Plainfield Crescents and it is hoped they will not refuse to meet Westfield in September. On Labor Day (two games) the Westfields will entertain the Unions of New Brunswick."

"There are millions in it" said a druggist when asked about Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25c.

ONE WAY OF KEEPING HER PURE.

A Father Proposes to Expose His Daughter in Court, and Drive Her to Prison, As a Means of Saving.

An irate father dragged his daughter to the police station Thursday evening and charged her with gross immorality. The girl was only fifteen years old, and her face seemed expressive of innocence, but the man said she frequented bad places and that he had just dragged her from a disorderly house. Since she was determined to be bad, he said, he was bound to have her exposed through the Courts.

The girl said that she was not wicked. Her father had been beating her and she had been forced to flee for refuge to a house where she knew her brother was. She never thought that the place had a bad character, and her only motive for the visit was to find safety.

Because the girl was not taken in custody the father became greatly angered, and said that this morning he'd have her on the road to prison. He hasn't yet appeared in Court.

A Bilious Contemporary Denies too Much.

The article in yesterday's Plainfield Press is so untruthful in every particular that it is beneath the notice of a 2-cent journal to answer. If Plainfield people will come to Somerville, we will prove this assertion to their satisfaction.—Somerville Democrat.

Here are some of the things "untruthful in every particular," that THE PRESS said: The contest is between the West End and three clubs who are its inferiors in every way.

There were present Plainfielders who will go a long ways to see Harkins' wonderful pitching, and to enjoy the fine playing of Conkling on first, short stop Bergen, second baseman Carbonell and the phenomenal Williams.

All were much pleased with the strong and brilliant game of the Somervilles.

They remembered the genial and generous treatment they received at the hands of Manager Mack. He showed himself a gentleman in every way.

Neither the Manager of the West Ends nor the people of Somerville, are to blame for the bad manners of others.

Hackmen in Trouble Again.

Three Plainfield hackmen appeared before City Judge W. R. Codington, this morning to answer to charges preferred by Sergeant Patrick Lynch.

Thomas Farley was accused of having left his horse to solicit custom, which is a direct violation of the city ordinances. The complainant said that Farley went to another man's hack and took away a customer.

Wm. Callahan and Peter Peterson were charged with having kept their horses nearer the curb at the station than the ordinances permit.

All three pleaded not guilty, and trial was set for Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

Barbers Want Sunday for Rest.

Plainfield barbers say that the amount of business they do Sundays does not repay them for keeping open their shops on that day, and anyway they want Sunday for rest, the same as other people. They are therefore preparing a petition, which they will present to the Common Council Monday evening, as already told in THE PRESS, asking that an ordinance be passed compelling all barbers to keep their places closed from midnight Saturday to six o'clock Monday morning. They claim, is the only effectual way of enforcing an agreement among their guild.

Prospects of Better Service Monday.

Manager Schermerhorn, local manager for the Western Union Telegraph company, yesterday had to refuse all dispatches on account of the fire in the Western Union Building in New York, which crippled all wires. Today the operators accept dispatches again, but every message is subject to great delay on account of having to be transferred by messenger service from Jersey City to branch offices in New York. The company expects to be able to give much better service by Monday, when its wires will be in some measure straightened out.

A Tender Wheel Halts an Express.

A wheel on the tender of the Flemington express which takes the Howard Club car from Plainfield at 7:58 each morning, broke in twain soon after the train left Flemington, yesterday, and caused considerable delay. A second tender was procured, and such Plainfield commuters as hadn't taken the eight o'clock train stopped grumbling and secured their accustomed seats.

The Rev. C. B. Mitchell One of the Speakers.

The annual camp meeting services at Mount Tabor will begin on August 20. On the first day the services will be under the direction of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Among the speakers will be Dr. Berry, of Chicago; Dr. Doherty, of the Sunday School Union, and the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, of Plainfield.

From Ocean to Ocean.

Over thirty-two years ago, Mr. Alfred Speer, of Passaic, imported from the banks of the Douro, in Portugal, a few of the Port Grape vines, and commenced careful experiments for the purpose of producing a first class American Port, both fermented and unfermented. He has been eminently successful, and now Speer's wine and unfermented juice is known from ocean to ocean, and endorsed by the best medical talent in the World as the best now produced for the use of invalids. For sale by druggists.

A WARNING TO SOMERSET STREET.

A New Brunswicker Sets an Example That Some Plainfielders May Be Called Upon to Follow.

(From the New York World.)

The monotony of life in New Brunswick was relieved at noon yesterday by the sight of John Powers, an irate saloonkeeper, marching H. B. Tindell, editor of the Fredonian, through the streets in front of the muzzle of a revolver. Powers met Tindell at George and Bayard streets, and told him he must apologize to Power's mother, Mrs. Margaret Powers, for an article he had published Wednesday, reflecting upon her character and that of her saloon at No. 257 Neilson street as a place of evil resort. Powers made Tindell step in front of him and march along until Church street was reached when Tindell tried to break away, but was quickly brought back and marched on down Church, Albany and Neilson streets to No. 257, where he was marshalled before Mrs. Powers. She says he made a most humble and ample apology, saying he was very sorry that he had published the offensive article.

John Powers says: "Tindell published a miserable, lying article about our place here Wednesday evening, and Thursday he promised to take it back, but instead of doing so he merely said that I had denied the charges he made, taking back nothing himself. This, of course, made me very angry, and I went out today on purpose to meet him and was determined that he should come and apologize to my mother, or I would make it worse for him. I made him come, and I made him apologize humbly. That was what I intended to do, nothing more or less. This man's talk has driven me nearly crazy. Here I have lived and grown up right in this house, and I have struggled hard to be an honest man, and no one can say that I am anything else or that I ever did wrong to any person. I am no drunkard or loafer, but I have worked hard for everything I have got. My mother and I have both worked hard to keep this place decent and orderly and to keep a roof over our heads, and we have never allowed any disorder about our house. Then to have this man begin to blackguard my mother was more than I could stand. It just about set me wild. What has my mother or myself done to him or to any one that he should publish such things about us? If everyone else is afraid to tackle him, I'm not, and I am determined that his blackguarding shall stop so far as I and mine are concerned."

Great Games Coming.

The games scheduled by the managers of the Crescent League's team to be played in this city to the first of September, are great ones. Look at the list:

July 26—Trenton's team that defeated the Crescents, June 28, by a score of 7 to 6.

August 2—The Ridgewoods—formerly the "Brooklyn L's"—with Livingston, formerly of the Crescents to pitch for them.

August 9—Gorhams, the champion colored nine of New York.

August 16—Stars of Newark, who defeated the Crescents in an eleven inning game, April 12, by a score of 4 to 3.

August 23—Metropolitans, the former champions of the United States.

August 30—The celebrated Cuban Giants (colored).

During August, if money can induce them to come to Plainfield, a game will be played by the Crescents against the New York League team.

There Has Been no Brief Submitted.

A rehash of the action of the Police Board in the Carey case, with the testimony taken, and Counselor Bergen's reply—all of which was published months ago in THE PRESS—has just been set before the public again as Carey's Attorney's "brief" to the Supreme Court. This is another of the falsehoods used by that side in its efforts to make its case appear honest and substantial. Carey's Attorney has submitted no brief at all, and seems to have given up the case as a bad job long ago.

Funeral of R. T. Lincoln.

Rufus Tyler Lincoln, only son of Dr. Rufus P., and Caroline T. Lincoln, died at Winnipeg, Manitoba, July 15. Funeral services over the remains were held at the residence of Mason W. Tyler, this city, this afternoon at four o'clock.

The deceased, whose age was about sixteen years, was a nephew of Col. Tyler. A brother of the Colonel officiated at the services. The music was by a special choir, consisting of Mrs. J. K. Myers, Miss Alice Holmes, E. E. Runyon and Arthur Freeman.

Evona Plays Tennis With Bound Brook.

The new grounds of the Bound Brook Tennis Club were opened this afternoon with flag raising exercises and tournament practice games. Contests were arranged among the Bound Brook clubs, the Evona Tennis club and the tennis section of the West End Athletic Club of Somerville. Messrs Greensmith and Morton represented Evona.

A Reminder for Joe.

A hotel man, named Miller, of Plainfield, has sold his property, and will put $10,000 in Lew Dockstader's new minstrel company. We wish Miller success, but, at the same time, would remind him of the monotony of tripping over railroad ties.—Bordentown Register.

For some time past I've been a rheumatic. I recently tried Salvation Oil which gave me almost instant relief. I sincerely recommend it as it has entirely cured me. JAMES GORDON, Balto., Md.

GENERAL VAN BUREN'S FUNERAL.

The Gallant Officer of Mexican and Civil Wars Laid Away to Final Rest.

A large number of people who during the lifetime of the late Brigadier-General Daniel T. VanBuren, had been personal or military friends, gathered in Grace Protestant Episcopal church this morning to witness the last rites over the remains of the departed.

It had been Mrs. VanBuren's request that the military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, which had given expression to profound sorrow at the news of the General's death, would not attend in a body but in a less formal and more friendly way. The insignia and badge of mourning of the members of the Legion was conspicuous among the mourners, but all who wore it had known the General in former days, and were present with feelings of profound sorrow at the loss of so brave a soldier and so good a citizen.

The committal service of the Episcopal church was read by the Rev. E. M. Rodman. The casket was covered with beautiful floral emblems. One was a cross of ivy leaves and roses, laid on two magnificent branches of osage palm. Another was a cross of purple immortelles and a crown of roses, lilies and smilax. A third was a sickle of roses and a sheaf of wheat.

The pall-bearers at the funeral were the vestrymen of Grace church, at their own request. These were E. L. Finch, E. B. Clark, O. T. Waring, W. E. Lowe, C. P. Bull, W. R. Cock and E. N. Erickson.

—Station agent J. A. Haines has acquired and mastered a brand-new bicycle.

Fairest and Wisest.

"The rose is fairest when 'tis budding new.
And hope is brightest when it dawns from fear;"
And she is wisest who will stop to view
The bargains that in Collier's stock appear.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

A PROBABLE BUTCHERY.

The Chopped Pieces of a Woman's Body Found in a Trunk.

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—A box containing the chopped pieces of part of a woman's body was found in the baggage room of the Union Depot early in the morning. The trunk has been in a pile of unclaimed baggage for five months, and was without address.

Part of the body was wrapped in a St. Louis paper dated February 16. The remains found consisted of a hand, foot, the trunk, leg and arm bones, to which pieces of flesh were clinging, and a part of the back bone.

The condition of the body, which was worthless to a medical student, points to a probable butchery. The head was missing and the presence of maggots showed that the body had not been chemically treated for the purpose of dissection. The identity of the man who left the box is unknown, but the police are working on the case.

A Young Woman Missing.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 19.—Miss Jennie McDonald of Duquesne yesterday left two notes, one for her aunt with whom she was living, and the other for her lover, saying she was going to commit suicide. Last night her hat and cloak were found on the banks of the Monongahela River and she has been missing since.

Shot Her Husband.

CHICAGO, July 19. — Capt. William Brown, saloon keeper at 251 Van Buren street, quarreled with his wife last evening and put her out of his saloon. She was partly intoxicated, and securing a revolver, returned and shot her husband twice, once in the leg and again in the head, inflicting wounds that may result in Capt. Brown's death. Mrs. Brown was arrested.

An Old Insurance Company Retires.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The Firemens' Insurance Co., of No. 153 Broadway, has discontinued business. It was an old and conservative company, having been in business since 1825. The stockholders will receive a dividend of about 150 per cent., when the assets are divided. The company retires because its business is no longer profitable.

Successful Living.

Not happiness, but service, is a worthy object of human endeavor. Not what will give us delight, but what will advantage others, ought to be the aim of our strivings. It is a great mistake, even though it be a very common one, to suppose that he who does best in this life is happiest here. "It is not true," says the historian Froude, "that goodness is synonymous with happiness. The most perfect being who ever trod the soil of this planet was called the Man of Sorrows. If happiness means absence of care and inexperience of painful emotion, the best securities for it are a hard heart and a good digestion." Living for happiness is living for ourselves, and living for ourselves is sure to be a failure. Living for loving service is living for others; and living for others is a success—happiness or no happiness.—S. S. Times.

CRUSHED

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our idea was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

EARLY GERMAN PATRIOTS.

A Plainfielder's Tribute to the Men Who Helped Us to Become a Nation.

Andrew D. Mellick, Jr., of 175 Broadway, this city, has an excellent article in the current number of the Republic Magazine on "The German Element in the American Revolution." In the course of it, he says: "At the outset of the Revolution the adult German element of the country was of two generations, but by far the majority had been born in the old country. Each were equally imbued with aspirations for liberty of thought, action and conscience, and were resolute and determined not to undergo in their new country the sufferings that had been visited upon them or their fathers beyond the seas. Hence it was from the very beginning the patriot cause had no firmer supporters, either in the communities or on the tented field, than the Germans. It was the same with the peasant or the son of a peasant who had tilled the fields of Bavaria, Saxony or the Upper or the Lower Palatinate, as it was with the graduates of the Universities of Heidelberg, Bonn, Jena or of Halle. All being moved by a common impulse, they were earnest in their resistance to oppression, and ready to, and did, uphold their convictions with gun and sword as well as with tongue and pen. We whose ancestral trees root in Rhenish soil may reflect with just pride upon the spirit that animated our ancestors at this trying time, and I am very sure that all citizens of this great Republic will join us in paying the homage of a grateful remembrance to the valuable services bestowed on our country during its struggle with Britain by these simple folk who, or whose fathers before them, had come from the far distant Rhine."

Speaking of the German heroes of the war, Mr. Mellick instances and eulogizes Steuben, DeKalb, Muhlenberg and Herkimer. Of Steuben he says: "He not only became a patriot among patriots but an American among Americans. He made America his home. Under the shade of a grove of trees on a hillside of Central New York, in a township that bears his name, he lies buried. For nearly one hundred years only a simple slab marked the spot where rests the weary and warworn frame—not of a soldier of fortune, but of a hero of the Revolution. It was in 1873 that the gratitude of the people found expression in the Steuben Monument Association, largely composed of members of the various German societies of the State of New York. But the memory of the German General is worthy of more than the one shaft now standing near the village of Remsen. Among the dominant needs of our country is a greater number of fitting monuments and statues erected in honor of its founders and protectors, by which the present and future generations can read the story of the Nation's conception, birth and growth. Is it not among the possibilities that the German citizens of New York city will take upon themselves the rearing, in the Central Park, or one of the public squares in the city of New York, a statue to Steuben, whereby all citizens of, and visitors to, the great metropolis, may know that the Empire State, that has taken to her bosom his mortal remains, reveres and honors his immortal memory, and thus perpetuates in enduring bronze the record of his valuable services to the country?"

Muhlenberg, who was a Lutheran parson in New Germantown, New Jersey, and who became a general, comes in for this bit of fanciful speculation: "In the the Spring of 1777 the eyes of the Germans of the New Jersey hill country looked with delight on the familiar figure of Mühlenberg, now a brigadier general, who had joined Washington's army at Morristown as the commandant of a Virginia brigade. He was greatly beloved in that region and warmly welcomed, but the people found it difficult to grow accustomed to his Continental blue and buff and military trappings. So much glitter and sheen seemed a strange metamorphosis from the modest canonicals of a German pastor. How the old parishoners of the general most have marvelled at his strangely martial appearance! As his erect form, amid his soldier comrades, passed along the familiar highways of Morris, Somerset and Hunterdon, what comparisons must have been made with former days; with those days when he rode this same country on errands of mercy and love astride a modest cob, wearing instead of epaulettes of bullion the livery of a Lutheran dominie, and when in place of the swinging sword and warlike holster were peaceful saddlebags stuffed with Bibles, prayer books and sermons." Even the Hessians, who fought against us are accorded a word of apology. Mr. Mellick says concerning the Hessians who left the British army and settled in this country that they "were doubtless an humble and a simple fold, but they must have possessed virtues and attainments, for they have transmitted to their posterity capacities for leading worthy and honorable lives. They gave to our army in late years a Heintzleman and a Custer, and among the five thousand Germans who deserted during the war and so tied in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, and other States, frequent instances can be shown of their descendants ranking among the leading people of their respective neighborhoods."

The Metropolis Interested.

The New York Herald to-morrow will contain an illustrated story about how Plainfield's solid citizens ride to New York in style. Order it of your newsdealer.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Brief notices will be inserted under this head free of expense, but must be delivered at this office not later than eleven o'clock on Saturday morning to insure publication.

Rehearsing Here.

The Gormans, who are at present rehearsing daily at Music Hall their next season's programme, made a pronounced hit in Plainfield last season. The Gormans are not only performers of note, but rank high as producers of minstrel novelties for the coming season—which they inaugurate here in Plainfield at Music Hall on Thursday, July 24. They have engaged a very large company and expended a great deal of money for a new and handsome wardrobe. The programme will be composed of entirely new and novel acts; all new music and magnificent dancing and sensational specialties. A fine brass band and orchestra will form an important part of the company.

Thought the Borough Was Canada.

Joseph Kletz, a Pennsylvania wanderer claiming to be on the way to Corning, N. Y., but unable to state how he got so far out of his way as New Jersey, was taken before City Judge Codington last evening, on the charge of drunkenness. He said he had never been intoxicated before coming to Plainfield, where he fell in with the first bad company of his life, and went astray. The Judge told him that if he found Plainfield so bad a place he'd better leave town at once. He promised to go far away, and went over to North Plainfield.

Let This Law be Enforced.

Among the new laws passed last Winter is one relating to smoking by boys, which should be rigidly enforced. It provides that on and after the first of September next no child actually or apparently under sixteen years of age shall smoke or in any way use cigars, cigarettes or tobacco in any form whatever, in any public street, place or resort; and that any violation of this act shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $10, nor less than $2 for each offense.

You Were Once Beautiful, Madam,

But your glass tells you that you are so no longer. Why is this? It is because you are suffering. You may "paint an inch thick," as Hamlet says, but you cannot conceal the ravages of disease. No wonder you are low-spirited. But why suffer any longer? Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will restore the bloom to your cheek, the sparkle to your eyes, the old-time lightness to your step. It will make a happy woman of you again. It cures all ailments peculiar to your sex. The only medicine sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case or money refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper.

BAKING BY ELECTRICITY.

How the Grade of Different Brands of Flour Is Ascertained.

The Minneapolis Journal says: "The millers sell flour under different brands, and, doubtless, many housewives have wondered how the grade of each brand continued uniform, generally making bread of the same quality. A visit to the 'dough-room' of the big Pillsbury flour mills would reveal the secret. Piled all around the room are little pasteboard boxes, each filled with wheat or flour, and each bearing a label. The 'dough man' takes the half-pound of wheat in one of the boxes, puts it in a small hand-mill and grinds it. The bran and starch are quickly washed out, leaving the gluten, which is worked into a sort of paste. This is baked in a small oven, and the height to which it rises determines the value for bread-making of the consignment of wheat of which the handful ground was a sample.

"When the attention of Electrician Hughes, who has charge of the electrical plant of the mill, was attracted to this baking oven, he observed that it took a long time to heat it to the baking point by means of the oil-lamps under it, and he at once formed the idea of baking the gluten by electricity, with the result that he has just applied a most interesting little device, which in its way is quite a wonder.

"The millers had always had trouble to secure an oven that would do this work satisfactorily, and the best one they could buy came from England. It is about fourteen inches in height, with a cement bottom two inches in thickness, and a door twelve inches high. It took one hour and forty minutes to heat this oven to the 500 degrees Fahr. necessary for baking the gluten, and then when the large door was opened to put in the gluten, about 100 degrees of temperature would be lost, and it required fifteen minutes to bake the dough.

"In the Hughes oven the small piece of gluten is placed in a cylindrical brass case, about an inch in diameter, which in turn is placed in the oven, also cylindrical in form, and at a temperature of 500 degrees the gluten is baked in four minutes, the entire operation of heating the oven and baking requiring less than twelve minutes. The test of the gluten is in the height to which it will rise. In the little cylindrical tube is placed a plunger bearing a weight of eleven and a half ounces, pressed down closely on the gluten, which, in rising, carries the weight upward. The higher it lifts it in the tube, the stronger are the bread-making qualities of the wheat from which the gluten was taken, and the milling of the proper proportions of the different grades of wheat, as determined by the gluten tests, produces the required standard of flour. It is in this way that the brands are kept even. Mr. Hughes simply connects his oven with the regular electric current in the mills, and acquires the desired result without tiresome and expensive delay. It can be heated to 680 degrees."

MADE RICH BY OIL.

A Congregation's Struggles Ended and a New Doxology Born.

The Forest Grove Presbyterian congregation is in luck, and all its members promise to become rich through a strike in oil made on a few acres of ground surrounding the rickety old chapel called a church, says a Pittsburgh dispatch to the San Francisco Chronicle. The site is located about eleven miles from Pittsburgh, and is right in the center of the new Grove oil fields.

For years Deacon Beacom has been pastor of the congregation, and it took the combined receipts from a few acres of farming land, the district school and the offerings of the small congregation to keep the good man alive; but by good fortune this is all changed.

Three good oil producers have been struck during the past week, with an average output of about 1,000 barrels a day. This gives the church people a daily income of $125 from royalties, in addition to a cash bonus.

Two new wells are being sunk, which will increase the church income to $7,500 a month. One of the new wells has been dubbed "Old Hundred," because of the following revised version of the familiar hymn which one of the drillers has tacked upon the derrick.

Praise God, from whom all blessings flow,
Praise him for putting oil below,
Praise him, ye drillers, give hearty thanks,
Praise him for the overflowing tanks.

A Famous Woman Surgeon.

Mme. Ribart, the exgrisette, who was the first European to practice medicine in the Turkish harems, was as skillful as most of her contemporaries. The woman's career is more romantic than most fiction. Her lover in Paris was a medical student; she devoured his text books with more avidity than he did her novels. She passed a brilliant examination at twenty-six, and went to Cairo to practice; her patients were soon number by the hundreds, but the excesses into which she plunged resulted in her incarceration in a lunatic asylum. She then sought a new career in Cochin China, and at once won the admiration of the French inhabitants. So speedily did her skill as a surgeon make her famous that she in a short time became physician to the court, and was to have operated on the Queen mother of Annam for a cataract. The day before she was to have relieved the old Queen, who had been blind for years, the wonderfully beautiful and skillful Dr. Ribart died—probably from early excesses. She drank hard in her youth and had run the gamut of Parisian and Oriental indulgence.

Murat on the Water-Melon.

Murat Halstead concludes a brief dissertation on the Georgia water-melon in the following words: "The Georgians say, and it is discouraging, that the very best melons grown in the State are so fragile they can not be transported, and that those who would enjoy the top flowers of this wonderful product of the sun and sand must go where the exquisite spheres glisten among the dewy leaves of the generous vines whose marvelous distillment of sweetness is the dainty distinction of a favored land."

A WONDERFUL RACE.

That Is What a Detroit Man Calls the Japanese.

Interesting Things Seen in the Land of the Mikado—"Japan for the Japanese" the Popular Sentiment—A Decidedly Receptive People.

Mr. Frederick Stearns, of Detroit, has returned after a year's residence in Japan and has some interesting things to tell of that wonderful people. To a Free Press reporter Mr. Stearns said, among other things, speaking of their agricultural methods:

"Their methods are unlike ours in every respect. We can teach them nothing in the line of agriculture; on the contrary, we have many things to learn from them. Our plows, harrows, reapers, mowers, etc., while not unknown to them, have not been adopted, as they consider their own ideas superior, which they undoubtedly are."

"Are the streets in their cities laid out in similarity with ours?"

"Yes, in much the same style, and each is named after a favorite god or deified great man. The houses of the majority of the people are but one story in height and are constructed of bamboo poles fastened together, surmounted by a thatched roof. There are no walls, the Japanese paper, which serves the double purpose of providing shelter and light, being substituted. Glass windows and shingled roofs may be seen on some few houses. All views from the house open upon the garden, the street being entirely closed up. The Japanese will have his garden if it is but half the size of an ordinary billiard table. The love of the beautiful in nature and art is inherent with the whole race—absolutely a part of their existence. On all sides of the house are built porches, it being the especial delight of the Japanese to live in the open air as much as possible. Rich foliage and flowers may be seen in these gardens. The chrysanthemum is the imperial flower, but the cherry blossom is the most popular with the people.

"Japan is populated with an aggregate of 38,000,000 souls, a martial race that has never yet been invaded. The people are resolute, full of courage, and are very patriotic. Since the revolution of 1868 they have had a constitutional government. The Mikado is the nominal ruler, his powers being limited by a body of men divided into two branches, which corresponds to our Senate and House of Representatives. Their form of government is even more liberal than that of Great Britain.

"There are fewer social distinctions there than in other countries, the people living upon terms of equality. The men have adopted the regulation English dress, wherein I think they made a mistake, because their own peculiar costume is much prettier, lighter and more comfortable, allowing greater freedom to the movements of the body. I noticed that, although they wear the European costume in the daytime, they discard it and don their own attire in the evening. The women have refused to adopt the dress of the English and American ladies and cling to the garments they have been accustomed to wear, although the court ladies wear the French costumes."

"Are the people possessed of abundant educational facilities?"

"They are, indeed—the men, I mean, for the women are not allowed the advantages of acquirement of knowledge. They are beautiful and virtuous and make excellent mothers, but are looked upon as inferiors. I said to the Japanese: 'Your greatest ambition is to reach a point where you can be considered the equals of the Europeans, but you can never attain that end until you alter your treatment of your women, educate them, refine them and consider them as good as yourselves.'

"The Japanese are very receptive and imitative. They have adopted many of our own commercial ideas, and carry on mining, manufactures and build their own steamships and railroad cars. The locomotives and rails are imported. Every important point in the country can now be reached by railroad. The Japanese are very jealous of foreigners and will allow no outsider to obtain a foothold in their country for the purpose of engaging in business—and they are right. America for the Americans and Japan for the Japanese is my sentiment."

UNDER PETTICOAT RULE

A Sioux Chief Who Bows Meekly to His White Wife's Will.

It is twenty-five years since Bruginer, the Sioux chief, cut away from his aboriginal moorings and married his present wife, an accomplished woman and the descendant of St. Louis pioneers. Now he is ending his eventful life in a modern home. His is noted among the best equipped and most productive of Missouri farms. Mrs. Bruginer is very much younger than he, and, whatever his kingly prerogatives among the Sioux may have been, she is certainly now the ruler. Like most frontiersmen, Bruginer is famously extravagant. Three or four fortunes had slipped out of his hands in a misty way, when Mrs. Bruginer took the reins, and to her economic skill and management is due his financial regeneration. They are rich again, and it is almost pathetic to hear this old man talking about going to Paris and around the world some day. In spite of his years and hardships the spirit of adventure is as strong in him as ever. He is wonderfully preserved in health and strength. His voice is still as sonorous as a grizzly's. His unflinching gray eyes, deep set beneath shaggy, frowning brows, are the undimmed mirrors of what was once a resistless, unyielding will. "Ze Sioux!" he exclaimed at the outset of a recent conversation, "I am ze King." And, seemingly not quite satisfied that this sufficiently emphasized his supreme relation, he added: "By gar, I am ze Emp'r-r-or!" At the leave-taking he was asked by the visitor if there was any probability of soon meeting him again in the city. He glanced deferentially at Mrs. Bruginer. "I don't let him go there any more," said she. "No," he supplemented, apologetically, "she go."

STRANGE SUPERSTITION.

History of a Man's Effort to Borrow Twenty-Five Dollars.

As Every Man Who Had Refused to Loan the Money Had Also Met with Sudden Death, Parson Woodrigg Concluded to Let Him Have It.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

Rev. John W. Woodrigg, pastor of a large church, and one of the gentlest of men, was walking meditatively in his garden, when a man came up to the fence, and said:

"I am a stranger to you, Mr. Woodrigg, but you are no stranger to me. Many and many a time when the wick on the candle of hope had grown long and the blaze threatened to go out, your sermons have buoyed me up."

"You move me deeply by saying so," the reverend gentleman answered, casting a look of close inquiry upon the man, whom he found to be solemn of countenance and exceedingly plain of dress. "Do you live near here?"

"No," the visitor answered, "my habitation, humble, and scarcely worth a glance of the traveler that passes the door, is situated many miles from here, but your sermons come to me on the great thought-carrying waves of the press. Are you too deeply engaged in contemplation to spare me a few moments in your library?"

"Oh, by no means," the minister responded. "Walk into the house, please."

They went into the library, and the visitor, after seating himself, looked earnestly at the preacher and said: "I did not know that I was in your immediate neighborhood until your house was pointed out to me, and then my desire to see and talk with you, overcoming my judgment, perhaps, urged me to stop."

"I am really glad that you did stop," the minister replied, moving in an embarrassed manner; for, although accustomed to the compliments of the sisters and brothers of the church, the praise of this solemn man made him feel uneasy.

"I thank you profoundly," said the visitor, bowing. "For many days I have thought that I should like to talk to you on a subject that has become very serious to me, and you can scarcely imagine the thrill I felt when your house was pointed out."

"I am ready, my dear sir, to talk to you on any subject," the minister answered. "It is with regard to religion, of course."

"Well, hardly. The truth is—I am almost ashamed to acknowledge it—I fear that I have become superstitious. I have fought, have really struggled against it, but still I can not drive away a horrible belief that seems hourly to fasten itself stronger and stronger upon me. Before I proceed farther, let me tell you my name. I am

A SOLEMN MAN.

Calvin N. Boyers. I am exceedingly poor, but all my friends know me to be honest. Sometimes I have money, and then sometimes I find myself in extreme need. My superstition began in this way: About four months ago I went to a man named Anderson and asked him to lend me twenty-five dollars. He refused. What happened? The next day he dropped dead."

"There is nothing remarkable in that," the preacher remarked.

"Oh, no; but wait. The very next day I went to a man named Cal Simmons, and asked him to accommodate me with twenty-five dollars. He declared that he did not have the amount. He was a very strong man, but the next day he dropped dead."

"Humph!" grunted the minister.

"Then I began to grow superstitious," the visitor continued, "and although I needed money, I waited for several weeks before asking any one else. Finally need drove me to it and I went to B. S. Featherston, our county judge, and asked him for twenty-five. He said that he could let me have it, and I know that his intentions were good, but upon looking in his safe he found that he had not the amount. I thanked him, of course, but the very next day, just as he had admitted old Steven Doyle's will to probate, he fell off the bench, dead."

"You don't say so," exclaimed the minister.

"Yes, sir. It is a fact. When I went home I heard of it and shut myself up and for more than two days did not eat a bite. Finally I came out, and remembering a moneyed man, a friend of mine that lived not far away, I went to him, and telling him of my experience with the other men and reminding him of what had befallen them, I asked him to lend me twenty-five dollars. He not only refused but actually laughed at me. The next morning while he was out in the pasture, looking at his fine horses, he was stricken with apoplexy and died almost instantly."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the minister, "you startle me."

"Ah, you are beginning to see that I have cause to be superstitious."

"Oh, no," said the preacher, thoughtfully, "oh, no, for we are in this enlightened day warned against superstition. Coincidents are sometimes perplexing, but we should never permit them to drive us into the dark corners of superstition."

"I know that, Mr. Woodrigg, and I have fought against it, but still I can not help yielding to a strength so immeasurably greater than my own. Let me give you another instance. About two weeks after the last man died I went to a preacher, a dear friend of mind, and begged for spiritual comfort."

"You should have done that long before," Rev. Mr. Woodrigg broke in.

"I know that," the visitor assented; "but somehow I did not have the strength to acknowledge my weakness. Well, I talked with him long and earnestly, and after awhile he convinced me that I was foolish. My spirits rose and I laughed for the first time in many weeks. But suddenly the thought flashed across my mind that I had to raise twenty-five dollars or my land would be sold for taxes. I explained the distress I was in and asked him to let me have the money. 'I should do so with pleasure,' said he, 'but the truth is I am in absolute and immediate need of every cent I have.' I went away, knowing that he had spoken the truth, but—" The visitor took out a red handkerchief and wiped his eyes. "How I did love that man!" he contin ued after a painful silence. "He was more than a brother to me; he was indeed a father."

"YOU DON'T SAY SO!"

"But did any thing happen to him?" the minister eagerly asked.

The visitor arose and, standing with his back to the preacher, looked far away over the landscape. He wiped his eyes again and in a voice husky with emotion, answered: "He fell dead the next day. Oh! my dear Mr. Woodrigg," he exclaimed, suddenly wheeling about and stretching forth his arms, "you now see why I am held down by the blackened chains of superstition. You can now appreciate why I am no longer a real man."

"My dear brother," said the minister, "your case is indeed deserving of commiseration, but still I say be not led into the foul waters of superstition. You must pray."

"I will do so," the visitor exclaimed. "I will pray deep within my soul. Well, I must go now. I must hasten home; but alas!" he sorrowfully added, "I expect to find strangers in my house. The tax-gatherer I fear has supplanted me. If I had only twenty-five dollars I should, now that you have so comforted me, again be happy."

Rev. Mr. Woodrigg began to wince. "Just to think," the visitor continued, "that so small an amount can make a man forget all his former troubles. Say, my friend, can you not accommodate me for a few days?"

The preacher began to cough. "Why, I declare, I—I—"

"Oh, do not inconvenience yourself, sir," said the visitor.

Mr. Woodrigg began to walk up and down the room. "Your words have given me such strength," the visitor went on, "that I am sure I can never wholly repay you.

"I think I can let you have the money," the preacher broke in. "I have only thirty dollars to my name, and had intended getting some books that I have wanted for a long time, but I can not think of you going home and finding your house sold away from you. Wait a moment and I will bring the money."

The good man left the room, and the visitor, humming a melancholy tune, stretched out his legs and clasped his hands back of his head. When the preacher returned and gave him the money, he became a veritable fountain of thanks, throwing up the silvery spray of gratitude.

That afternoon a neighbor called on Mr. Woodrigg. "I had rather a queer caller this morning," said he. "A fellow came to the house and after talking for some time began to tell me of people that had dropped dead because they had refused to lend him money. Then he wanted me to lend him twenty-five dollars, and I pledge you my word that it took all my strength to resist him, almost believing at one time that I should surely die suddenly if I did not yield to him. In fact, I don't know but that I should have given him the money had not some one interrupted our conversation. Upon seeing the new comer, my impressive visitor took his leave, and, when he had gone, the new comer asked: 'Do you know that fellow?' 'No,' I rejoined, 'who is he?' 'One of the shrewdest confidence men in the country,' he replied."

The minister, holding his hands behind him, walked up and down the room. After awhile he said: "You did well not to let him taint you with his professed superstition. We should cultivate strength and root out the germs of weakness." ORIE P. READ

CATCHING CONVICTS.

How They Are Run Down by Hounds in Alabama.

The Proverbial Convict-Catching Bloodhound Is Nothing More Nor Less Than a Small Fox-Hound Trained with Considerable Care.

Bloodhounds are inseparably associated with slavery in the South. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and other stories and dramas of that character would lose half their interest without the horror-inspiring bloodhounds. Since the war the bloodhounds in the South have been trained to chase escaped convicts. Every few days newspapers all over the country publish telegrams from some Southern city giving an account of the escape of a convict and his capture by the aid of bloodhounds.

Those convict-catching bloodhounds are a myth. There are no such dogs in this section of the country. The dogs used in trailing escaped prisoners are small fox hounds, a very insignificant and harmless animal.

At Pratt Mines, five miles from this city, there are twelve hundred convicts, leased by the State to the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, writes a Birmingham (Ala.) correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The company is responsible for the safe-keeping of the convicts, and is required to pay the State a good round sum for every long-term man who escapes.

To capture those who escape the company keeps a large pack of hounds. These dogs are small red fox hounds. A few of them are spotted, but the majority are a solid, dull red color. They are small, slender-limbed animals, capable of fair speed and endurance, and they can without difficulty follow a trail five to eight hours old.

The dogs at Pratt Mines have for years been in charge of R. H. Crosswell. They are kept in a large stockade a short distance from the prison, and never taken outside the inclosure except when wanted to trail escaped convicts. In appearance these hounds are as lazy and cowardly as any "yaller dog" in existence, but when once they strike the trail of a convict they become all life and animation. From puppyhood these dogs have been taught to follow nothing but the trail of men. They are never allowed to hunt game of any kind, and would pass over the trail of fox or deer without notice.

To get the dogs on the right trail a coat or hat belonging to the escaped convict is obtained if possible and held to the nose of each dog, while Trainer Crosswell by signs makes them understand that is the scent they are expected to follow. They are then taken to the point where the convict made his escape from the mine or prison, or to the place where he was last seen. The moment they scent the trail they recognize it and give a sharp yelp. Their lashes are then slipped off, they are told to go and the race begins. Guards on horses follow close behind Trainer Crosswell, who rides a fleet horse and keeps right with the dogs. As soon as the trail is struck the baying of the hounds begins and the music they make would stir the blood in any old hunter's veins. The dogs follow closely at first, but as the trail grows warmer they increase their pace. The fleeing convict may run through a crowded street, double on his track, enter houses and mingle with crowds of people, but he can not dodge the yelping pack of red dogs on his trail. There is only one chance to escape them, and that is uncertain if they are close behind. By taking to water the dogs can be thrown off the trail. If the convict can reach a small creek and wade through the water in the middle of the stream several miles he may be able to escape the keen-scented pursuers. They can not follow him in the water. If the dogs are close behind this plan will fail, because the guards separate the dogs and follow both banks of the creek, often a distance of several miles, in the hope of striking the trail again.

Trainer Crosswell is proud of his dogs. Once fairly started on a trail they never lose it unless thrown off the scent by a hard rain or the convict taking to water. They have trailed men through the principal streets of this city where thousands had passed over the trail and finally run the fugitive down. They never make a mistake. If they are started on the right trail they follow it to the end. When several convicts escape together and separate in the woods when pursued the dogs are divided and the separate trails all followed.

The harrowing stories told in novels of men being torn to pieces by bloodhounds have no foundation. When the dogs overtake an escaped prisoner they make no effort to attack him, but simply circle around while their deep-mouth-baying tells the guards the game has been run down. As soon as the guards come up and secure the prisoner the hounds immediately relapse into that state of lazy indifference which characterized them before the opening of the long chase.

On several occasions these dogs have done good service in trailing down murderers and burglars. Trainer Crosswell says he can take any ordinary fox-hound when young and teach it to trail men. It is entirely a matter of education and not of breed.

How to Keep Ice.

There are three or four things that will help to keep the precious nugget of ice from melting away if the housekeeper will only remember them. One is that to keep ice warm is the way to keep it cold. A piece of ice in a pitcher, with a pail over the pitcher and a rug over the pail, will keep all night. A piece of ice in a refrigerator covered with a snug white blanket will cheat the greedy ice-man every day, and snap saucy fingers at the milk that does not dare to get sour or the beefsteak that dares not fail. These things are admirable in their way and should be in every hatband, but the greatest trick of all is newspapers. With plenty of newspapers above, below and on every side the way a piece of ice will keep is a joke.

A GOOD BEAR STORY.

Mrs. Brain, Her Cubs, a Bull-Dog and Some Cattle Engage in a Fight.

A few days ago Charles and Robert Kiple, thrifty Monroe County farmers, brought up a lot of cattle on the Pocono plateau, writes a Scranton (Pa.) correspondent, and started to drive them to their farm in the neighborhood of Taunkletown.

A brindled bull-dog accompanied them. Three miles south of Homer's mills the cattle came to a halt and partly turned around, and the men had all they could do to keep them from stampeding. After they had got the cattle headed right again they saw what had caused the scare. A few rods away an old she bear was sitting in the center of the road and on each side of her there was a cub, and all three were looking at the frightened cattle. The young men could not get the drove to budge from where they were, so they sent the dog ahead to drive the bear family out of the road. The dog bounded forward, and when the bears saw him coming they got down on all fours and stared at him, making no move to get out of the way. Instead of pitching at the old bear, the bull-dog grabbed one of the cubs and began to drag it toward the log fence, but he hadn't gone far when the squealing little brute brought the mother, who attacked the dog and made him let go. That waked the bull-dog up, and he whirled and got a hold on the old bear's flank. The cubs vanished like partridges, while their mother was raging and trying to shake the dog off; and for a moment the old bear and the dog had it hot and heavy from one side of the road to the other. Finally the bull-dog set his teeth in the bear's nose, and the noise and the efforts she made to fling him away excited the curiosity of the cattle to such a pitch that they set up a bellowing and went cantering toward the belligerents with heads and tails in the air. The young men hurried after the drove, intending to keep it on the move until it had passed the bear; but the ring-leaders halted as soon as they had reached the fighters. Just then the old bear shook the dog loose from her bleeding nose and threw him over the fence. She then started for the opposite side of the road, but the ring-leaders headed her off, and a moment later the whole herd was bellowing furiously and endeavoring to get a chance at the bear. Then the dog returned and the cattle separated, when the canine again tackled the bear and got a broken back from one of her paws. Before the cattle had time to close up their ranks Charles Kiple dashed ahead of them and fired five revolver bullets into the bear's head. Then the young man whipped the drove into a run, and left the dead dog and the dead mother bear lying by the roadside.—Chicago News.

HOW SHE ESCAPED.

It's an Ill Wind that Doesn't Blow Good to Somebody.

"Early in the '60s I was a railroad telegraph operator down in Georgia," said he to a Philadelphia Inquirer reporter, "and I had a mighty narrow escape from being lynched one day. It was in the afternoon. A gang of darkies came along to where my station was, about three miles from any human habitation. They had in their grasp a beautiful young white girl, and they tied her fast to one rail of the track, right before my eyes. They then stood there, and pointing revolvers at my head said if I interfered in any way they would murder me. Five minutes before the Atlantic express was due they departed, leaving the girl on the track to be cut in two by the train. I was in terrible suspense. I knew I would be called a coward and a cur if I allowed that girl to be killed, but I was afraid to signal the train to stop, because I knew the darkies would kill me if I did. But I was going to save my position anyhow. Just as the train passed my signal station I ran down the track and with a pair of pliers cut the wire connecting the signal to the station. By doing this I thought I could tell the railroad officials that the vandals had cut the wire so that I could not signal the train. See the fine point? Well, while I was cutting the wire the wind came up suddenly and blew a perfect tornado. Big oak trees were blown over so that their tops touched the ground, and I had to hang on to the track so that I wouldn't be blown away. Well, when I went up the track I saw those darkies running away, and I supposed that the girl had been cut in two. I was prepared to look upon a horrible sight, but, to my great joy and utter astonishment, she was still alive. I cut the rope with my pliers and released her. I carried her tenderly up to the signal station, bound up the gashes made in her limbs by the rope, and—"

"And what?" asked somebody.

"And I asked her to be my wife."

"What did she say?"

"She thanked me for my bravery, and softly murmured: 'Yes.'"

"But how was it the train didn't kill her?"

"I never found out until two years afterward. Then I met the engineer of that very train. He explained to me that just as the train was about to strike the girl that heavy gust of wind came along. It was so powerful that it lifted one side of the train over, making it run on one rail for about five hundred feet before it fell back on the other rail. It so happened that the girl was tied to the rail from which the wheels raised, and that's how she escaped."

A Remarkable Escape.

At Parkersburg, W. Va., a contractor took part in a frolic that ended in a fight, all hands being drunk, and a man undertook to assault him with a hatchet. He rushed to a third-story window, and, suspending himself by his hands from the sill, would have dropped to the street and no doubt been crushed to death but for the fact that his feet were caught on the top of the sash in the second story and the sash gave way just as he let go his hold on the sill. He sank with the window and his feet slipped inward, carrying him into the room below and allowing him to escape unhurt.

WHITE HOUSE CHERUBS.

A Few Amusing Stories of the President's Grandchildren.

Baby McKee Has a Will of His Own and Is Fond of Running Things to Suit Himself—Little Mary's Sweet Temper—Cousin Marthena.

The domestic life at the White House grows more and more interesting as the little people are from day to day developing, says the Washington Herald. Little Benjamin begins already to show a masculine individuality. A year ago he did as he was told; but original will, if not original sin, was strikingly exhibited the other day by him. Benjamin got up all right, and was as good-natured as can be. During the morning a delegation appeared and Benjamin was taken down to help receive them. He passed around the room voluntarily and shook hands with every one, and was simply delightfully cordial and childishly charming. But it fatigued the little man, no doubt, for he afterward was irritable with those he loved best, just as older and wiser people are. By evening, however, he brightened up, and in the cool of the day, while the President and all the household were sitting on the front piazza enjoying the evening breezes, little Benjamin with the rest, the Attorney-General joined the group. After greetings from the older ones the President bade his namesake shake hands with Mr. Miller. Then little Benjamin put his hands behind him and looked from his head to his feet the personification of rebellion.

"Will you shake hands with Mr. Miller?" said the President, coaxingly.

"No, I won't," said Baby McKee.

"Then you must go into the house. I can not have a little boy out here who is not polite."

Benjamin went into the parlor, followed by his mortified mamma, and there he set up a howl that, like Tennyson's bugle, "set the wild echoes flying." Mamma coaxed, nurse coaxed, and still this little man kicked and screamed until he had vented his anger and indignation. Finally—for he kept peeping out and it looked so very nice outside, and his grandpa never relented an inch nor gave him a look—he could not hold out any longer, and suddenly became quiet, walked out, and shook hands with Mr. Miller, and then walked off to play with little Mary, as calm and serene as though he had not been making a "scene" and mortifying every body.

Not long since, one fine morning, Mrs. McKee bade the nurse take the children out on the grounds and let them run about and play in the grass. All went well for awhile. Benjamin and his sister could not make mud pies, but they did heap up little piles of leaves and enjoy rolling about. Of course their little white dresses soon had the freshness taken out of them, and the White House children looked just like any child might under similar circumstances. Presently a group of tourists passed by on their way to the War Department. Among them were some ladies, one of whom espied the children. Addressing the nurse, she said: "Whose children are those?"

"Mrs. McKee's, madam."

"Humph! you don't tell me! Well, I don't see that they look any better than other folks' children! Seems to me if I lived here I'd keep my children dressed up."

The nurse apologized for their commonplace appearance, and, gathering up the babies, went in to pour out her indignation, but she was met with shouts of laughter from Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee, who see the funny side of a situation as quickly as any body.

Little Mary McKee is beginning to rival Benjamin in the family affection, for she is fast learning from her brother all he knows, and developing on her own account besides. She is very docile, and will do a lot of pretty or "cute" things to please her friends. But her originality is so feminine it is worth mentioning. She likes to see herself arrayed in her pretty clothes, and she has a favorite hat (or bonnet) which is so becoming, and which she likes so well that when it is once on she never wants to take it off. She would like to wear it to ride, to walk, to her meals, and to her bed if mamma and nurse would let her! She had a little rivalry with Cousin Marthena Harrison when she was visiting at the White House. One day nurse took the little maids with her to a store. To get what she wanted she had to ascend to the second floor with the babies on the elevator. They caught sight of themselves in the side mirrors. "Who is that?" said nurse to Marthena, pointing to her image in the glass. Ignoring herself, she said: "Oh, that's Baby McKee." Almost every fine afternoon the nurse and children can be seen riding out to the Soldiers' Home or the shaded suburbs of the city.

A Pet Goose's Larcenies.

A family in Dover, N. J., who had long been missing valuables was amazed a day or two ago to find them in the secret nest of a pet goose. Among the articles which the bird had appropriated were two gold thimbles, a tortoise-shell comb, scarf-pins, spools of sewing silk, silver lace and a Waterbury watch. The goose had a trick of knocking at the door in quest of edible dainties, and on being admitted and petted would seek a sunny corner of the room and doze. When left alone it began its purloining operations. It was hiding the stolen time-piece with its other treasures when discovered.

Sambo Surprises a Missionary.

A native convert to Christianity in equatorial Africa recently asked a missionary the following question: "Which is more contrary to Christ's commandments, to go about naked according to the custom of our ancestors, or to go in debt for garments which make us hot and unhappy?" The answer of the missionary is not given, but probably it was in the line of a wise compromise—if compromises are ever wise.

IN CONGRESS TO-DAY

The Senate Ready to Dispose of the Tariff Bill.

MANY LONG SPEECHES EXPECTED

Little Progress Has Been Made on the Federal Election Bill.

A Vote Expected in the House This Afternoon on the Original Package Bill—The President's Close Friends Say He Will Be a Candidate for Re-election—Death of Congressman Walker.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The Senate will take up the Tariff bill finally this week, probably to-morrow. Before doing so it will dispose of the Indian Appropriation bill, which is the last of the appropriation bills but one. It is thought that this bill can be put through the Senate in a day.

The reading of the Tariff bill, if insisted upon, will consume the greater part of a day. The general debate will be chiefly from the Democratic side of the Senate Chamber—that is, the Democrats have prepared long speeches to be made on the bill, while the Republicans propose as far as possible to confine their remarks to the amendments.

During the week the Finance Committee will take under consideration several proposed amendments to the bill and will likely report upon them.

The Republicans may call another caucus to consider the proposition to change the rules so as to permit the Federal Election bill to be taken up. The Republican members of the Committee on Privileges and Elections have had the bill under consideration during the past week, but have made little progress with it.

WORK IN THE HOUSE.

A Vote on the Original Package Bill Expected This Afternoon.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The managers of the Original Package bill are anxious to get a vote on it in the House this afternoon, and should they succeed in carrying out their plan the National Bankruptcy bill will be taken up and discussed until Wednesday, when a vote will be taken, according to the order of the Committee on Rules.

The Appropriations Committee intends to dispose of the conference report on the District of Columbia Appropriation bill at the first opportunity, and it will endeavor to call up the report Thursday. It is believed that the bill will be strongly antagonized, and this may prevent the Elections Committee bringing up either the case of Langston against Venable, from the Fourth Virginia District, or the case of Miller against Elliott, from the Seventh South Carolina District. The case of Chalmers against Morgan from Mississippi is also ready for action, but as the Elections Committee has unanimously reported in favor of the sitting member, Mr. Morgan, it can be disposed of in a few hours.

WILL BE A CANDIDATE.

Close Friends of the President Say He is in the Race for '92.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—In an interview, United States Marshal Ransdell expressed the opinion that President Harrison is a candidate for re-election, and if tendered a nomination will accept.

The story published some time ago to the effect that the President intended to retire to private life at the conclusion of the present term was, Marshal Ransdell says, unauthorized.

Others who enjoy the President's confidence quietly observe that it is not necessary for Mr. Harrison to openly announce himself a candidate for renomination. A successful administration and prosperity in the country are the two most potent influences, they urge, to determine whether or not the President shall be re-elected.

The Commissioners Terms Accepted.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—A dispatch from Kingfisher, I. T., says an agreement has been arrived at between the Cheyenne and the Araphoe Indians and the Cherokee Commissioners. The Indians accepted the terms proposed by the Commissioners to wit: They are to have their lands in severalty—160 acres to each man, woman and child, and receive $1,500,000—$55,000 cash and $500,000 to draw 5 per cent. interest.

California's Grain Harvest.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Sergeant Barwick of Sacramento, Cal., has sent the following weekly telegram to the Chief Signal Officer here: "Grain harvest about over; yield and acreage much below the average, but quality is good. Abundant fruit crop except peaches reported from nearly all portions of the fruit belt."

Crushed to Death.

GLOUCESTER, N. J., July 21.—John Bowles, aged 58 years, of Mullica Hill, N. J., came into possession of $1,000 two weeks ago, since which time he has been seeing life at a rather lively pace. While under the influence of liquor he fell under the wheels of a beer wagon here and was crushed to death.

A Catholic Sister Insane.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Ellen Swanton, 31 years old, a sister connected with the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Manhattanville, was brought in a coach to Bellevue Hospital suffering from insanity.

Planing Mills and Lumber Yard Burned.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., July 21.—The large planing mills, factory, lumber yard and sheds owned by D. W. Sherman at Glens Falls, were destroyed by fire at 1:30 a. m. Loss $30,000; no insurance.

A CONVICT'S TERMS.

He Will Tell Who Murdered Maggie Hourigan if Pardoned.

DANNEMORA, N. Y., July 21.—Merritt Schuyler, a colored youth confined in the prison here on a conviction for forgery, claims to possess evidence that will tend to secure the arrest of the person who murdered Maggie Hourigan near Greenwich, Washington County, something over a year ago. Schuyler lived in Greenwich at the time of the murder.

He was visited by District Attorney Hull and told him a portion of his story, but said he would not give him the whole of it unless assured that he would receive a pardon from the Governor.

Schuyler says that on the night of Maggie's death he saw Dr. Scott pick her up in his carriage and drive away with her. Mr. Hull is said to be favorably impressed with Schuyler's story and will swear him at the next session of the grand jury. Dr. Scott's name has been frequently used in connection with the Hourigan mystery, but he has always denied all knowledge of the affair. Miss Hourigan's dead body was found with the head lying in a shallow creek, near Middle Falls, a short distance from Greenwich. Two autopsies were held, the doctors at the first pronouncing it a case of suicide, while those at the second declared that the girl had been murdered beyond a doubt. Rewards to the amount of $2,500 have been offered for the conviction of the murderer.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

The Reunion Committee Request Information from Visiting Posts.

BOSTON, Mass., July 21.—The Reunion Committee of the National Grand Army Encampment earnestly desires the names of such organizations as have, through local members or otherwise than by application to the committee, secured accommodations for their people. Titles of organizations, together with the names of presiding officers and secretary should be handed in prior to August 1.

It is also desirable that military and naval organizations desiring to hold reunions during encampment week should at once notify the committee of that fact if they have not already done so. Notification should be addressed to J. Payson Bradley, chairman Reunion Committee, No. 2 "A" Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

Kept the Boy in Chains.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 21.—In Mayor Wyman's office in Alleghany, James Archie Wayne, 10 years old, was turned over to the Newsboys' Home. The boy came to Chief Murphy's office complaining that for two weeks he had been chained to the floor in the attic of his parents' home. Mrs. Wayne, who had been summoned to the mayor's office, said she had chained the boy because he was incorrigibly bad. Mayor Wyman fined her $10 for cruelty. She voluntarily relinquished all interest in the boy.

Poisoned by Canned Meat.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 21. — A special from Eau Claire, Wis., says that a poor family, named Kingberg, in Shawtown, consisting of father and mother and seven children, had canned meat for their Sunday dinner. About two hours later they were seized with violent illness. The physician attending them thinks that four or five of the children may die.

Death Caused by Asphyxiation.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., July 21.—The dead body of a stranger was found at Fetter's Hotel in this city. He had arrived at the hotel at midnight and registered as Moses Silverthorn. From papers discovered on his person he is believed to have been a resident of either Lansdowne or Hamden, N. J. Death was caused by asphyxiation. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of suicide.

A Warrant for La Blanche.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—A warrant is out for the arrest of La Blanche, the Marine, for complicity in the recent fraud, by which the backer of Furlong, the foot racer, was swindled. It is thought that La Blanche is in Chicago, and that he won't come back, as his saloon license expires in a few days and there is no outlook at present for sluggers here.

Four Boys Reported Drowned.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 21.—Four boys named respectively James L. Sutcliffe, James Butterworth, Michael Mitchell and John Mitchell, are reported to have been drowned by the capsizing of a sail boat in South Watuppa Pond. The police have, however, been unable to establish the truth of the report.

Father and Son Killed.

HAMBURG, N. Y., July 21.—Adam Eifert, living near here, and his son, while returning from Buffalo, were killed at the Abbot road crossing by a passenger train. It is supposed that they fell asleep and the horse walked into the fast moving train. The bodies were taken to Buffalo.

Congressman Walker Dead.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Congressman James P. Walker, member of Congress from the Fourteenth Congressional District of Missouri, died at his home at Dexter, Mo., of congestion of the brain. He was 30 years old.

Dr. Edward Malley Killed.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Information has been received here that Dr. Edward G. Malley, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., while riding a horse at Aspen, Col., was thrown and instantly killed. Dr. Malley was one of two brothers who were charged with the murder, at Savin Rock, near New Haven, Conn., of handsome Jennie Cramer, some years ago. It was, however, found impossible to convict the Malleys.

ONE CLUB DROPS OUT

A New Circuit for the Atlantic Association.

END OF THE JERSEY CITY TEAM

A Meeting to be Held To-Night to Fill the Vacancy.

Harrisburg Will Probably Enter the Association—The Law and Order League Make an Effort to Stop the Rochester-Columbus Game—Standing of the Clubs and Schedule of To-Day's Games.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 21.—At a late hour last night a meeting of the Atlantic Association was called by President Braden, to be held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York city, this evening, for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused by the retirement of the Jersey City team, and changing the playing schedule to suit the proposed new circuit.

Manager Farrington, of the Harrisburg Club, will be present, and it is believed that the association will concede to him the only thing the Harrisburg Club demands before entering the association. If this is done Lebanon will also leave the Inter-State League and purchase the Worcester team.

A representative of the Lebanon Club will be present at the meeting, and if Harrisburg becomes a member of the Atlantic Association, Lebanon also will be admitted. It is expected that Washington will play the first game here to-morrow.

TROUBLE AT A BALL GAME.

The Law and Order League Try to Stop the Rochesters from Playing.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 21.—There was a scene of great excitement on the Windsor Beach baseball grounds yesterday afternoon. At the close of the third inning of the Rochester-Columbus game Justice Coy, of Irondequoit, with several constables and members of the Law and Order League, marched on the diamond and ordered that the game be stopped.

As the players came in the spectators poured out on the diamond from the stands and surrounded the Irondequoit people, shouting derisively at them and calling on the players to continue the game.

The club officials tried in vain to restore order, but were unable to do so until they had persuaded the Irondequoiters to leave the diamond. As the latter had no warrants the players resumed the game, after the managers had promised Justice Coy to have their men before him.

At the close of the game the club officials persuaded the Irondequoit men to secure the arrest of the players immediately. This was done, and they were taken before Justice Baird, who was on hand for just such an emergency. General Brinker vouched for the appearance of the players when wanted, and they were released. This action was taken in order to forestall the Law and Order League. The Columbus players will be examined this afternoon and the Rochester players to-morrow.

No Clew to the Bliss Robbers.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 21.—No clew has been discovered to the robbers who stole the jewelry from the Bliss cottage. In addition to the list of missing articles published, there were taken two heart pins, a violet pin, with small diamond in the center, and a sweet pea pin, with a diamond in the center.

AT CAPE MAY POINT.

The President will Leave for Washington To-Morrow Morning.

CAPE MAY POINT, N. J., July 21.—After breakfast yesterday the President, in company with Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Russell Harrison and Mrs. Dimmick walked over to the Beadle Memorial Church where they were to attend divine services. At the church door they were joined by Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Mr. Thomas Dolan.

After church they returned to the cottage, walking the short distance along the beach. In the afternoon the President with Mrs. Dimmick went out for a short walk. Later on Mr. Geo. W. Boyd, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, called with his wife. Mr. Boyd is an old friend of the Harrison family, having been quite intimate with them when they lived at Indianapolis.

The President will leave here to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock. His son, Russell Harrison, will leave for New York the same afternoon.

SHE HID HER MONEY.

Mrs. Bogert's Heirs Found Rolls of Bills in Tobacco Bags.

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 21.—The heirs of Mrs. Martha Ann Bogert, who died a month ago, have been surprised by the discovery of a lot of money belonging to her.

During the latter years of her life Mrs. Bogert was supposed to be in needy circumstances, and financial assistance was frequently given by her sisters. Now they have found rolls of bills, said to amount to $7,000, in an old-fashioned valise and several small tobacco bags. Several days ago the old satchel disappeared, and as John Bogert, the woman's husband, is also missing, it is believed that he has taken the money and gone West to join his brother.

No will has been found. It is said that Mrs. Bogert was so miserly that she would split large lucifer matches so that each could be used several times.

Poisoned by Eating Ham.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—Five persons, suffering from violent irritant poison from ham, are lying at the point of death at No. 438 Canton street. They are David Stroud and wife, Lizzie Woods, Mrs. J. Sharpless, aged 81, and James Garfield Conklin, aged 8 years. The latter is in the greatest danger and there is little chance for his recovery. The meal partaken of consisted of ham, cheese, crackers and bananas. The poison is said to have been in the meat, and its presence there is attributed to chemical action following putrefaction.

Ugly Charges Made Against a Mayor.

CAPE May, N. J., July 21.—J. Henry Edmunds, mayor of Cape May, is the defendant in a suit in which some ugly charges are made. The stockholders in the Ocean Villa Land Company say the Mayor has defrauded them out of nearly $20,000. The mayor is quite a character. Some years ago he kept a small butcher shop, but now he owns the only paper published here and has attained considerable notoriety through his efforts to run the town after his own peculiar notions.

Wyoming's First Election.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 21.—Governor Warren has issued a proclamation calling the first Wyoming election for Sept. 11. The Democratic and Republican State Conventions are called for Aug. 11 in this city. The formal celebration over Wyoming's admission will be held here Wednesday next. Governor Thayer, of Nebraska, at one time Governor of Wyoming, will be orator of the day.

Boiler Factory Burned.

PATERSON, N. J. July 21.—About 4 a. m. fire was discovered in the engine room of J. C. Todd's machine and boiler factory. Before the fire department could get the flames under control the boiler room together with its contents and the greater portion of the building were destroyed. Loss about $150,000; insurance $75,000.

Two Bodies and One Head.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 21.—William Robinson, of this city, has a curiously formed chicken in his possession. It has two bodies, each with two legs and two wings. The chicken was dissected and found to have had but one heart. One head answered for two perfectly formed bodies.

Meeting of Railway Conductors.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 21.—There was a largely attended meeting of the Order of Railway Conductors held here. Delegates from Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and representing the principal railroads of those States, were present. William J. Maxwell, of Philadelphia, presided.

A Dishonest Bank Teller Arrested.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 21.—Robert S. Saunders, a teller of the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Woodstock, N. B., has been arrested charged with having abstracted from the funds of the bank a parcel containing $4,000. Saunders, who is but 21 years old, is believed to have had accomplices in the crime.

The Colonization a Failure.

RUTLAND, Vt., July 21.—The colonization of Swedish immigrants upon the deserted farms of Vermont is not proving a success. Discontent prevails, and some of them are removing to the lumber regions of the State upon the Canadian and Maine border.

A Corpse Under the Floor.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 21.—The body of a man, believed to be a Turkish pedler, was found under the floor of an old shanty in the town of Vestal, near here. There were wounds on his head, indicating that he had been murdered.

THE FIRST BATTLE

War Begun Between Guatemala and San Salvador.

THE FORMER BADLY DEFEATED.

Heavy Loss Sustained and Their Artillery Captured by the San Salvadorans.

A Bishop Denounces an Irish Society—Released by Turkish Brigands—Ex-Queen Natalie's Petition Rejected—Assembling for the International Peace Congress—A Tragedy in Germany.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 21.—It is reported that a battle has occurred between the forces of Guatemala and San Salvador, the former being defeated and sustaining heavy loss, and their artillery being captured by the San Salvadorians.

According to official advices received by the new confidential agent of the provisional Government of San Salvador, Senor Geronimo Pou, who arrived here last night from San Salvador, the Guatemalan forces, under command of General Villavicencio, invaded Salvadoran territory near Ecoro, and were repulsed.

Senor Pou says that General Villavicencio was born in San Salvador, but his services have been purchased by Guatemala for $20,000. The Salvadoran army is armed with Remington rifles, machine guns and mountain batteries, and is generally well equipped with plenty of money.

The Salvadoran forces are inferior in numbers to those of Guatemala, but Senor Pou says that he has received advices that disaffection has occurred in the army of Guatemala, and two battalions have refused to proceed to the frontier, which, he thinks, will have the effect of equalizing matters. General Ezeta is commanding the movements of the Salvadoran forces.

There had arrived at San Salvador, before Senor Pou set out, envoys from Costa Rica and Nicaragua for the purpose of treating the probable difficulties between Salvador and Guatemala. Senor Pou says that in the present war between the two countries, Nicaragua and Costa Rica will become the allies of San Salvador from the fact that should San Salvador be worsted it would be annexed to Guatemala, and both the countries above named would be at the mercy of the conqueror.

Senor Pou has received a telegram from General Ezeta, stating that an alliance had been formed between Guatemala and Honduras, and that they had declared war against San Salvador. General Ezeta wires that he has invaded Guatemala and is marching toward the Guatemalan capital, opening everywhere a victorious road to it.

BERLIN SHOCKED.

A Pretty Woman Brutally Murdered with Pistol and Knife.

BERLIN, July 21.—A tragedy that is surrounded with mystery was perpetrated in the Thiergarten Park, near Goldfish Lake, early in the morning.

The body of Marie Wender, the pretty wife of a postoffice official, was discovered with a bullet wound in the left breast and her throat cut. There is no clew to the murderer.

The husband of the woman was away from home much of the time.

It is suspected that the couple did not live happily together and Mrs. Wender had a paramour.

The husband has not been seen since the crime was discovered.

RELEASED BY BRIGANDS.

Prominent Railroad Men Held for a Ransom Set Free by Their Captors.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 21.—Herr Jerson, the chief engineer, and Herr Mejor, the local superintendent of the Ismidt & Angora Railroad, who were recently captured near Ismidt by brigands and held for a ransom of $17,500, have been released.

Their capture was made the subject of an identical note addressed by the Ambassadors of Germany and Austria to the Porte. The note declared that such outrages were of too frequent occurrence in Turkish territory, and insisted that more efficacious measures be taken by the Ottoman Government to protect foreigners engaged in developing Turkish resources.

The International Peace Congress.

LONDON, July 21.—It is expected that about 200 members of various Parliaments will attend the International Peace Conference to be held at the Hotel Metropole to-morrow and Wednesday. The largest Continental contingent will come from France, about thirty Gallic deputies having announced their intention of being present. There will also be many representatives from Italy and Spain. The German contingent will perhaps not be so large, but the Belgian, Swiss, Danish, Swedish and Norwegian representatives will be numerous.

Thirteen Hard Fought Rounds.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 21.—Frank Clark, of Canada, and Richard Dunn, of Chicago, fought thirteen desperate rounds at Hyde Park. Clark won. The stakes were $250.

A British Ambassador's Secret Mission.

LONDON, July 21.—Sir W. A. White, British Ambassador to Turkey, has just paid a sudden and brief visit to London. He held a conference with Lord Salisbury and immediately prepared to start for Constantinople.

Outlaw Cotterell Surrenders.

MONTGOMERY Ala., July 21.—Cotterell, the desperado and fugitive Mayor of Cedar Keys, Fla., surrendered to United States Marshal Walker at this place. He was released on $2,500 bail.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 21.—One of the most horrible crimes on record is reported from Colleton County. The crime was committed on Mary's Island, an unfrequented spot in the county mentioned.

Paddy Grant lived there with his wife, Phoebe, and another woman supposed to be on intimate terms with Grant, frequently visited his wife. Grant informed the relations of his wife that she had been severely hurt by the explosion of a kerosene lamp and was in a bad condition. The relatives found her burned from her knees up in front only, terribly charred and speechless. She died when an attempt was made to remove her. No traces of oil could be found on the floor or no traces of burning below the knees of the woman.

These and contradictory statements caused the arrest of Grant, but he escaped from his guards. Having been run to earth again he requested permission to return to his room for a short while. Almost immediately the report of a gun was heard and it was found that he had placed the muzzle of his musket against his stomach and exploded it, blowing a hole clear through himself. It is thought kerosene was poured over his wife by himself and the other woman and that she was then set on fire.

A STRANGE STORY.

A Man Takes a Drink in Jersey City and is Carried Off to Pittsburg.

SUMMIT, N. J., July 21.—Thomas Banks of this place, who was reported missing from home a few weeks ago, has returned with a strange story. He says that a few weeks ago he was on his way home from the house of some friends in Jersey City when a man accosted him and asked him to take a drink.

They went into a saloon and drank, and Banks knew nothing more until he found himself traveling in a freight car. The car stopped soon after he awoke in a strange city, which he learned, to his astonishment, was Pittsburg, Pa.

He felt for his watch, but it was gone, and so was $150 in money, which he had on leaving Summit. He was obliged to tramp all the way back. The case will be investigated.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Fireman Roadhouse Charged With Killing Engineer Vandevander.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 21.—A special from Van Wirt, Ohio, reports the arrest of Fireman Sam Roadhouse on suspicion of having murdered Engineer Vandevander, while both men were running an engine on the Cincinnati, Jackson & Watkins Railroad.

Roadhouse himself was taken from the cab probably fatally wounded.

The theory of the detectives is that the two men, who had been quarreling for several days, engaged in a fight, with the result heretofore published. Roadhouse, however, insists that he is innocent, and that he and Vandevander were assaulted by an unknown man.

An ex-convict named Blair, who had been sent to the penitentiary on Vandevander's testimony, and who had sworn to kill the latter, is being searched for. A man answering Blair's description was on the train at the time of the tragedy.

Shot Himself Through the Heart

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 21.—Andrew J. Kirschner, a well known attorney, living in Allegheny, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. Mr. Kirschner was recovering from an attack of typhoid fever, and this, together with grief over a younger brother's death from the same disease two months ago, it is thought, caused him to become temporarily insane. He leaves a wife and two children.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Secretary Windom has suspended the daily purchase of bonds.

Lydia Becker, the leader of the women's suffrage movement in England, is dead.

Edward C. Smith, a burglar who escaped from custody in Boston, Mass., has been captured in Portland, Me.

J. F. Campbell and Nicholas Vigueron have been arrested at Boston on suspicion of murdering Henry McBride, whose body was found Friday afternoon in a boat off East Boston with the skull crushed.

The Vatican has forwarded instructions to the various Papal Nuncios to formally contradict the recent reports which represented the Pope as having, during the course of a drive a few days since, left Papal territory.

The warden of the Joliet, Ill., penitentiary says that Dan Coughlin is the only one of the Cronin murderers upon whom confinement seems to rest heavily. He is fretting himself to death. He is but a shadow of his former self, and if a new trial is not granted him before long there will be a funeral or a confession.

Chairman Edward Murphy of the New York State Democratic Committee has issued a call for a meeting of the Committee at Saratoga early in August. The date has not been set. It is probable that a nomination will be made by the Committee for Judge of the Court of Appeals.

It seems to be the general desire of the World's Fair local directors of Chicago, as well as of the National Commission, that A. T. Goshorn should be selected as Director-General of the World's Fair, and it is believed that his selection will be officially brought about within a few weeks. It is thought the Mayor of Chicago will veto the offensive lake front ordinance of councils.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—For Eastern New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Fair northwesterly winds; stationary temperature.

BY THE WAY.

—The Directors of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association will hold their regular monthly meeting in the office of Jackson & Codington, this evening, at 8 o'clock.

—The butchers of this city, as published elsewhere, will hereafter close their places of business at seven o'clock in the evening excepting Saturdays and the day before a holiday.

—Ed. Hoover, the smokestack artist whose ambition is to paint a ring around the moon, returned to Plainfield Saturday and imbibed so freely and painted the neighborhood of Peace street so red a hue that City Judge Codington this morning fined him $10.

—The regular Wednesday evening prayer meeting of the Trinity Reformed church, will be held to-night as a union service with the Y. P. S. C. E., of the church. The change is made because of the excursion occurring on Wednesday, (prayer meeting night). Everybody welcome.

—The picnic of the members and friends of Alpha Lodge, No. 4, Independent Order of Good Templars, at Boynton Beach, Saturday, was a merry occasion. Boating, bathing and merry-go-round pleasures were freely indulged in, and the day was one long unbroken stretch of enjoyment.

—George Thatcher is a warm friend of the Gormans whom he has known for many years and considers them in the front rank as producers. The Gormans themselves are intense admirers of the genial George and are never tired talking of the time they made a trip to California in the same company. They predict grand success financially and artistically for George Thatcher's Minstrels. The Gormans are now rehearsing three times daily at the Music Hall where they will commence their fourth regular season on Thursday with the largest and strongest company they have ever had. Seats now on sale.

—This is to remind the readers of THE PRESS that the next excursion from Plainfield to Ocean Grove will be that of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday School on Wednesday of this week, July 23. The committee will do all in their power to make it an enjoyable affair. A baggage car will be at the disposal of those who take their lunch, and Charley Remsen will be on hand to take charge of everything left in the car, and will see that rightful owners get them on the arrival of the train at the Grove. The train will leave Plainfield at 8 A. M. Returning, will not leave until 7 P. M., thus giving a full day at the seashore.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The condition of the mother of Mr. W. A. Coddington is today greatly improved.

Wm. H. Brower and wife leave on Thursday for South Columbia, Herkimer county, N. Y., for the Summer.

The Misses Anna and Reta Addison of Brooklyn, N. Y., are spending a week with Mrs. Lutkins of 147 Somerset street, North Plainfield.

Mrs Matilda Duryea and daughters, who have been at The Netherwood since June, have gone to the Larkin House, Watch Hill, R. I.

Miss Lottie Connett of Peace street, is home again, after a very pleasant visit with her cousins, the Misses Mattie and Nellie Breen of Elizabeth.

John M. Clark of Park avenue, during the absence of his family, is visiting his brother, Attorney James O. Clark, at the old homestead in Westfield.

Mrs. Fred. Green and family, Mrs. J. F. Homan, Miss Homan, and Miss Flo Heyninger, have gone to Asbury Park for a week, and have taken their bicycles with them.

Miss Lydia Pangborn, Mrs. Wm. L. Krewson, Miss Lizzie Dowling and James A. Sutton, have returned from a week's outing at Mt. Prospect, near Bedminster, Somerset county.

President Kimball of the Children's Home, acknowledges the receipt, this morning, through Mrs McGinnis of Linden avenue, of $23.25 the profits of a children's fair recently held by Dena Shann, Nelly McGinnis and six friends.

The Rev. Augustus F. Todd of Dunellen, a retired minister of the Reformed church, was present at the morning service in the Trinity Reformed church, yesterday. By invitation of the pastor, the Rev Mr Sckenck, he made the prayer preceding the sermon.

SPOILED HIS RIVAL'S BEAUTY.

The Sad Tale of a Distorted Nose and Vanished Dreams of Bliss.

Not every gallant swain walking Plainfield's streets today with discolored proboscis is concerned in this tale of true love and life, but one young man, at present hid from the gaze of man and woman in the solitude of his darkened, grief-strewn room, where he nurses a highly-inflamed nose and a deeply-injured heart, is directly implicated in the story.

He was one of Plainfield's most popular boys—a member of the clubs, a successful busin ss man, once welcomed in good society. Of the many fair creatures who liked him there was one sweet damsel whom he loved to distraction and who seemed devoted to him. Last Friday night he parted from her with fond expressions of tender passion. Saturday morning he worked in his office doubly hard, so that he might have the afternoon to himself, and take her out carriage driving. At noon Saturday he met a dark-haired youth who had always seemed to be an ardent friend, but who was in secret a jealous rival. The light of love shone from the eyes of the accepted suitor, and he good-naturedly accepted the offer of the other to show him a new trick in facial contortion. In an instant the young amateur villain had grasped the hero's nose firmly between his strong fingers, close against the bones under the eyes. By a sudden severe pull he forced all the blood in the nose to the fleshy point. The red life-current spurted forth upon the white shirt-front of the crafty trickster.

"Alas, what an accident!" he said; "see my ruined laundry." The injured party looked in the glass and moaned. As the villain hastened away he gave vent to the regulation chuckle, then hied himself to the lady-love who had in heart if not in reality plighted her troth to the possessor of the damaged nose. To her he recounted a black-hearted bit of fiction, relating how the absent one had been living a double life, and telling how the fact had just been exposed through facts learned from a brawl in which he had been implicated.

Saturday afternoon the mutilated lover spent in nursing his nose. Sunday evening the member was still puffed up and purple, but the ardent youth could not refrain from calling on his inamorata. He was a sight; she shrieked when she saw him, and fled from his presence, having, as she believed, had living proof of the reality of the villain's tale.

Therefore an engagement which might soon have been announced may possibly never be. The man with the ruined beauty hides from the presence of even his own family. Presently he will recover and vow bitterly that he doesn't care. Before the week is over the successful villain, if his plans do not miscarry, will be swinging in the hammock of the fair, capricious one, eating caramels with the girl whose first love was so easily killed.

DRANK DEADLY POISON.

An Esteemed Citizen Almost Kills Himself by Accident.

Dr. H. G. Stephenson, the octogenarian veterinarian, is recovering from the effects of a dose of poison which nearly cost him his life. Being troubled with a slight temporary illness, he poured out, in his own dispensing room, what he thought was a dose of beneficial medicine. He had no sooner swallowed the mixture, however, than he found he had taken a fatal dose of deadly aconite, extract of the poisonous wolf's-bane. The dread discovery did not cause him to lose his presence of mind, and he coolly administered with his own hands an antidote, and promptly sought a physician, who continued the treatment. His own nerve and good care of others prevented an unpleasant illness from terminating in an agonizing death.

Some Base Ball Grumbles.

The men who patronize the seats in front of the ladies' grand stand on the Crescent League grounds do a great deal of smoking during the game, and not all of them smoke good cigars. Almost invariably the smoke is blown by the breeze back into the ladies' faces, and the matter has become an affair of considerable offense—so much so that several of the offending parties have remained away from recent games.

The treatment of the Allerton players Saturday by a few visiting spectators was the subject of much criticism by kind-hearted Plainfielders. The inferior playing of the Allertons, and the consequent lessening of excitement, was of course apparent to all, but some so far forgot good breeding as to hurl shafts of ridicule at the visiting nine, and though the Allertons accepted circumstances with the utmost gentlemanly good nature, some feared that they might get the impression, from the actions of the few, that Plainfielders didn't know how to behave themselves.

Trotting by Gentleman's Horses.

On the track of the Driving Park Association, Saturday afternoon, the following exciting heats were contested:

First race—John Hayes' "Andy," Peter Osborne's "Blanche Warwick," and Chas. Brower's "Sweepstakes." Andy won both heats in 2:45 and 2:47. Sweepstakes second.

Second race—Mr. Fosher's bay horse "Fosher," John Osborne's "Colonel," and Nate Robbins' "Doctor." Fosher won both heats. Time 2:52 and 2:52½. Colonel second.

Charles Brower drove "Lady Thistle" a mile in 2:42½ and repeated in 2:42.

BEAT IN THE BEGINNING.

The "Allertons" Bring Out a Strong Team but Are Frightened to Death at the Start.

Wade, captain of the Metropolitans; Hoey, also of the Mets; Murray and Lever, who played on the Acmes when they defeated the Crescents in April; Carr, pitcher of the "Stars" and "Monroes," and other strong players formed the Allerton team that came to Plainfield, Saturday. Wade, who brings the Metropolitans here on August 23, said he came out to find what Plainfield's team was made of. He left full of information and anxiety.

The people again complained because the Crescents won. Why they should blame the home team for that, is not apparent. The Crescent League's managers have brought the strongest teams in the business to Plainfield, and will continue to do so. If the Crescents can't be beat, everybody should be proud instead of complaining.

The Allertons, Saturday, were frightened out of the game before it commenced. Wade was so nervous at short, that he made some very bad throws to first, still tha did not lose the game. Everybody hit the ball except Gillis and Walker, and the hits were bunched. The batting of the Allertons, however, was scattered. Though they made only three less hits than the Crescents, they died on the bases. They had to earn every one of their three runs. In the sixth inning four beautiful hits by the Allertons were so finely fielded that they only netted two runs; and in the ninth they could only get one run off of two singles and a two-bagger. The Crescents played a perfect game. Although Captain Wiegand is charged with dropping two balls that were nicely thrown to him, it made no difference in the result. The score was:

A FIRE DEPARTMENT FARCE.

How They Turn Out Over the Brook When Property and Life is in Danger.

The need of artificial warmth in the middle of July, was the unusual cause of much excitement about Sunday school time, over the brook, yesterday afternoon. A fire was kindled in the grate at the home of Mr. Richards, on Willow avenue, but as swallows had recently filled the unused chimney with their nests, the open draft was choked and smoke filled the attic. Somebody passing saw smoke pouring from the upper part of the house, and sent forth an alarm. Ass't Foreman Schlereth and an assortment of ex-firemen and citizens, including Councilmen Emmons and Buckle, made an effort to drag the Borough Department's apparatus to the spot. They could not make much headway with the steamer, however, until Wm. Smith, who built the very chimney that was smoking, loaned his pony to help pull.

While on the way to the fire a shower came down, and all hands on the hose carriage rope left it standing in the middle of the road while they sought shelter under A. VanDeventer's porch. After the rain held up they started for the fire again but their services were not required.

The engine-house stalls are still used as cells for drunks and disorderlies, and the fire horses, consequently, are always stabled somewhere out of reach just when they are wanted. The Department over the brook is somewhat unfitted to cope with a real fire, but it seems as if nothing would awaken the Borough Council to the fact than just such an expensive lesson.

Our Neighbors at the Sea Side.

The Hotel registers at Asbury Park, last week, contained the names of following Plainfielders: Ocean Hotel—Miss May Sperry; Belvedere—Mrs. D. N. Groendyke, Mrs. D. M. VanVliet, Mrs. F. G Foster, R. W. Erickson, J. B. Erickson; Metropolitan—L. M. French, Edna L. and Frank W. French, Maude French, Mrs. C. C. Cokefair, George R. Cornwell, wife and child, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, F. A. Cokefair, Jas W. Jackson; Coleman—Mrs. C. Scott and child. Sunset Hall—Chas. E Rocap, wife and children, Mrs. Margaret Ransom, J. C. Manning, wife and child; LePierre—J. C. Allen, W. L. Allen, W. Campbell.

Reputable dealers throughout the length, breadth and depth of our glorious land fortunately keep the genuine Hires' Root Beer in stock. Did you ever try it? It is easy to make, and ever so delicious, and it is such a safe drink.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

A Train Strikes the Team Mr. Cole Was Driving, But Only a Horse is Killed.

As train No. 11 on the Central Railroad of N. J., due here at 11:39, was nearing County Line crossing at White House, this morning, a team of horses driven by George Cole, became unmanageable and started to run away.

Mr. Cole and his son, who were in the wagon, did their best to stop the frightened horses but could not do so and the team and train met at the crossing. The engineer blew his whistle and did all in his power to stop the train, but could not before it struck the team. One horse was killed but the other was unhurt. Neither Mr. Cole nor his son sustained any injury.

'Twill be Their Annual Excursion, and Much Enjoyment is Promised.

Have you heard of the great event of the season which is to take place on Wednesday of this week? It is the annual excursion of the Scotch Plains Baptist Sunday School.

They are looking forward to a very enjoyable time as they always have on such occasions. In this particular, Boynton Beach is to be the objective point, and they are going in four-horse stages and have arranged for plenty of them so that there will be no crowding, and all who go will have comfort. Everybody seems anxious for the day to come so that they may join the happy throng, and to judge from present appearances it will be one of the largest and best excursions of the kind that has ever left the place. If you want to have a good time you should go.

Secure your tickets at once as there are none to be sold after to-night, and no one is to be admitted in a stage without a ticket.

Councilman Spangenberg Orders Them Away.

A gang of about twenty tramps encamped near Netherwood, have been committing a number of petty depredations in the vicinity, which some have blamed upon the indigent Italian Counts who are employed by Col. Moore on his water works. Councilman Spangenberg invaded the tramp camp, yesterday morning, and discovered traces of neighborhood thefts. He ordered the tramps to leave at once or they would be arrested.

The timid ladies of Netherwood are assured that Col. Moore's noblemen are perfectly harmless, and so tame they will eat out of his hand—if they get a chance.

The Parlor Match Again.

A resident of West Seventh street was lighting a match for his cigar after breakfast, yesterday morning, when the burning head snapped off, flew into an open drawer and in an instant everything was ablaze. With much difficulty the fire was smothered.

Treasurer Huston Will Resign.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—United States Treasurer Huston has decided to resign. When he accepted his present position, he says, it was with the understanding that he should have control of certain patronage in the Treasury Department, and he says that this arrangement has not been carried out.

Death of Editor Morrow.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Col. Thos. G. Morrow, for a number of years editor and proprietor of the Sunday Gazette, died at his residence in this city yesterday of inflammation of the bowels. Colonel Morrow was born in Sydney, Ohio, 47 years ago.

Why Dr. Parker Seceded.

LONDON, July 21.—Rev. Dr. Parker, of the City Temple, announced that he had withdrawn from membership in the Peace Society on account of the refusal of the recent congress of the society to open its sessions with prayer. The congress over which the Hon. David Dudley Field, of New York, presided closed after a five days' meeting.

Honoring the Americans.

NEUSTADT, Bavaria, July 21.—An immense crowd witnessed the procession in honor of the New York Independent Schuetzen corps. The procession was headed by the mounted riflemen and band of the Neustadt Rifles. The Americans were loudly applauded.

Denounced the A. O. H.

DUBLIN, July 21.—In a discourse at the Armagh Cathedral Rev. Dr. Maconece denounced the secret society known as the Ancient Order of Hibernians, which was founded in America. He said the society was seeking to obtain members in Ireland, and he warned all Catholics to avoid it.

Rejected Ex-Queen Natalie's Petition.

BELGRADE, July 21.—The Servian Synod has rejected the petition of ex-Queen Natalia for a rehearing as to the legality of her divorce from ex-King Milan.

Waiting to Hear from Sunol's Owner.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The owner of the trotter Belle Hamlin says if a proposition was made to him by responsible parties to trot Belle Hamblin against Sunol for $5,000 a side, the track to be mutually agred upon, he would accept it and put up half the amount as a forfeit.

A Missing Electrician.

NEW YORK, July 21.—William P. Adams, 38 years of age, an electrician, residing at 48 Madison street, has been missing since Friday last and it is feared he is wandering about in a demented condition. He is a native of Buffalo.

Sudden Death of Banker Brown.

MANCHESTER, Vt., July 21.—James M. Brown of New York, who was spending the summer at the Aquinot House, died anddenly of heart disease. He was the senior member of the firm of Brown & Co., bankers.

Killed by a Locomotive.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—A man named J. Kingsley, supposed to be a resident of Greenville, Conn., was instantly killed by being struck by a locomotive.

—The regular meeting of Alpha Lodge, No. 4, Independent Order of Good Templars, will be held this evening in the lodge rooms, corner of Park and North avenues. A full attendance of members is desired.

A Prize of $100,000

Is a good thing to get, and the man who wins it by superior skill, or by an unexpected turn of Fortune's wheel, is to be congratulated. But he who escapes from the clutches of that dread monster, Consumption, and wins back health and happiness, is far more fortunate. The chances of winning $100,000 are small, but every consumptive may be absolutely sure of recovery, if he takes Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in time. For all scrofulous diseases (consumption is one of them), it is an unfailing remedy. It is guaranteed to cure in all cases of diseases for which it is recommended, or money refunded.

THE EMANCIPATION OF THE HORSE.

Plans to Give Beasts of Burden a Day of Rest.

Plainfield humanitarians, believing that the horse, man's best dumb friend, is subject daily to great abuse, have determined on a course of action having as its purpose the gradual and complete emancipation of the worthy four-legged creature.

The matter of check-reins has already received some attention at the hands of officers of the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and by persevering methods it is hoped that the evils of high checking may be greatly lessened. Just now, however, particular attention is to be devoted to the matter of Sunday driving. Plainfield's good drivers, and the good drivers of the surrounding county, tempt many people, every pleasant Sunday, to a several hours' spin over the hard and level roads behind their own steeds or those of the livery stables. Many of these Sunday-driven horses, it is claimed, are in use every day of the week, and do hard work the year around with seldom, or never, a day of rest. Those interested in having such practice abolished hold that the present State laws are sufficient to compel observance of the Scriptural injunction concerning Sabbath rest for man and beast, and they purpose instituting proceedings against some of the guilty ones, and establishing the strength or frailty of the code. If the existing laws are insufficient, or by reason of disuse have become a dead-letter, they will make strenuous efforts to secure the revival of the force of the old laws or the passage of a new law, under which conviction for Sunday driving may easily be procured.

There are in Plainfield some consistent Christians who own horses but who always walk Sundays and never drive. This often occasions personal discomfort, but as a consequence the horses are able to give splendid service every week day.

The Sunday observance prosecutions will, it is said, be conducted at private expense by parties outside of the local society. Zealous officers of the society have endeavored to do good, but have been so handicapped and crippled by opposing forces within their own organization that disruption is feared.

Concerning the horse and his troubles, it is a fact interesting to note that a worthy Plainfield woman is devoting her time to selling the wonderful book "Black Beauty," the "Uncle Tom's Cabin of the horse," among cultured people interested in horses, and will purchase with the profits of her sales copies for free distribution among local coachmen and hackmen.

A HIGHLY INTERESTING ADDRESS.

The Rev. Mr. Livermore Draws a Lesson in Temperance From a Railroad Accident.

In Reform Hall last evening President Harper occupied his accustomed seat. The Rev. Mr. Livermore, after reading the first Psalm, offered a touching prayer, and Mr. King, with George Rogers as accompanist, led the music.

The speaker of the evening was the Rev. L. E. Livermore of New Market, and for clearness of delivery, aptness of illustration and power of argument, it was one of the ablest addresses ever heard in Reform Hall or elsewhere. In commencing his remarks, Mr. Livermore minutely and graphicly described a recent accident on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, of which he was an eye witness, and by which several cars, the tender and locomotive were thrown from the track, and then the labor and persevering efforts required to place them back again, and from that incident he portrayed the danger of liquor drinking, through which so many human wrecks occur, and, as in railroad experience a very small deviation often causes serious disaster and ruin, so, yielding to the most trivial temptation may throw any person from the safe track of sobriety. The speaker also highly commended the work carried on in Reform Hall for the reclamation and protection of humanity. His discourse commanded profound attention.

An Endorsement From a Brother Crank.

The Elizabeth Journal is fitted, in addition to all other modern improvements, with a dominie who writes bigoted "leaders" and biased editorial opinions. They are like "Canal street stews"—cheap and thin. Here's one of them:

"A Plainfield man has taken a most decided stand against one of the most popular of American mag zines, on the ground that its contents were "trashy stuff appearing over the name of Oscar Wilde." He tore the magazine up and threw it away, refusing to allow such stuff to be read by his wife and daughters. "Who was this Plainfield prude?" asks the Plainfield PRESS, but he is evidently a man who knows whereof he writes, for he says of the mazazine:

I concluded it was unfit for any home circle where religion, morality, virtue and humanity are looked upon as being equal in value to life itself. What would rugged old Carlyle, or Lossing, or Emerson, or Addison or Shakespeare himself have said of such disgusting, slimy nastiness and loathsome rottenness, passing for the leading literature of the century? Even to ever-grinning, cynical lovers of the "piquante Geschichte," such stuff is offensive and repugnant, and there is not one who would not regret to have paid even one cent for being the possessor of it.

"The man is right; the stuff that passes current for popular American literature today is the rottenest stuff that ever went by the name. It is after the festering style of Amelie Rives Chanler, and is unfit for young readers and a worthless waste of time to those who have read authors who have written literature."

A GRAND RECORD OF A GOOD WORK.

Some Statistics Relative to Young Men's Christian Associations of the World.

The Y. M. C. A. Year Book, which has just been issued, contains some solid facts about the work being done for young men in America as well as foreign countries. There are 4,107 associations in the World, located as follows: United States, 1,259; Canada, 82; Bermuda, 1; Argentine Republic, 1; British Guiana, 1; Chili, 2; West Indies, 5; England and Wales, 278; Ireland, 56; Scotland, 249; France, 61; Germany, 836; Holland, 457; Denmark, 93; Switzerland, 383; Norway, 73; Sweden, 85; Italy, 41; Spain, 8, Belgium, 27; Austria, 5; Hungary, 3; Russia, 9; Bulgaria, 1; European Turkey, 1; India, 15; Ceylon, 10; China, 6; Japan, 10; Asiatic Turkey, 11; Persia, 3; Madagascar, 2; Africa, 11; Australia, 11; Tasmania, 2; New Zealand, 4; Hawaii, 4.

Reports received from 1,385 American associations and branches as follows: 815 city and town associations, 257 college departments, 82 railroad branches, 10 German branches, 29 colored associations, 14 Indian associations, and 178 boys branches show that the present membership is 212,676, of which 104,435 are active, over one-half not being connected with Protestant Evangelical churches; 31,974 are working on the different committees; 205 buildings are owned by the associations, valued at $8,352,910; and 135 associations report building funds pledged or paid in, amounting to $1,862,352; fifty of these buildings have been secured during the past year. $636,120 has also been paid in or pledged in addition to above for libraries, endowment and special funds.

The libraries contain 422,912 volumes, valued at $426,796, and the furniture is worth $799,559. The expense of carrying on the work was $1,495,340.

There are 977 men employed, giving all their time to this work, with 116 temporary vacancies.

Part of these associations report an average daily attendance at rooms of 45,863; 348 have gymnasiums; 220 have other departments of physical culture; 130 have literary societies, with an average attendance of 3,094; 242 have educational departments, teaching from one to fifteen branches, with 16,193 different students.

There were also reported 4,243 lectures and entertainments, and 2,771 sociables; 9,302 situations were secured for young men, and 1,574 daily and weekly meetings, including song services, gospel meetings, prayer meetings, Bible and training classes, are sustained, with a total average attendance of 30,831 young men.

Farm Labor Lacking But Apple Jack Plenty.

Jersey apple trees give promise of a fair crop, though not so large as that of two years ago. The young fruit is holding well to the trees, and, unless some unusual blight ensues, cider and apple jack will be cheap. Old farmers in this vicinity, however, are complaining that there is too much hay. Such a crop of timothy as is now being gathered has never been seen by the oldest inhabitant. It is tall and luxuriant, and will put the price lower than it has been in fifteen or twenty years. Oats, rye, and wheat are thriving through the same causes, and now is the harvest. The clatter of the mower and of the self-binding reaper is heard on all sides in every county, and in many places the threshers have been taken out and set at work.

It has been splendid harvest weather for several weeks, but the farmers are laboring under disadvantage in not being able to secure farm laborers.

Wheat, which is dead ripe, is still standing, and risking ruin. Hay is suffering for lack of hands to mow and house it, and farmers who need help cannot get it at any price that they can afford to pay. A few days of rain at this critical issue would destroy thousands of dollars' worth of ripe hay and grain which stand begging for the mower.

The Knights Go in for Local Option.

The Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias, concluded its sixteenth biennial session, at Milwaukee, Friday. Assemblyman Ulrich, George H. Polhemus, John C. VanDyke, Joseph Shepherd, Edward J. Flannery and other well-known Knights of this city were present upon the occasion.

Before adjournment the long-talked-of liquor question was settled. A long and bitter debate was entered into between the Prohibiton representatives and the Local Option men. The latter finally won, the Supreme Lodge deciding that the various Grand Lodges were to judge whether saloon-keepers should be admitted to membership in the lodges subordinate to them.

Summer Visitors.

The following are the arrivals at Hotel Netherwood for the past week:

G. W. Plum, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jareckie, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Adams, and Master Frank Adams, Sidney H. Solomon, Mrs. J. B. Regan, Miss K. Gildee, Percival Kuhne, Mr. and Mrs. Cordier, Mr. and Mrs. Raser, Mr. and Mrs. R. Small, New York city; Geo. H. Merrett, London, Canada; W. V. R. Smith, F. H. Cowperthwait, Miss Mary Cowperthwait, Brooklyn; James Shackleton, East Orange, N. J.

He said: "My love I am sorry to disappoint you about the picnic, but my trotter has a lame foot" That's nothing! We've got plenty of Salvation Oil.

The Detroit Free Press Fiend has been punning on Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. His is only gratitude, for all thinking men know its merits.—(Exch.)

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

The Grand Commander of Knights Templar in Illinois has announced the division of the State into Templar districts for camping purposes during August next. While there has not been much enthusiasm developed on the subject, as was at first expected, the indications are that there will be a respectable turnout of Sir Knights and their families.

The printed proceedings of the June session of the Grand Lodge of New York has been issued by Grand Secretary Ehlers, with commendable promptness. The volume contains excellent steel engravings of Grand Master Vrooman, and the late past Grand Master Edmund L. Judson. The report on foreign correspondence is written by Jesse B. Anthony, and is a voluminous and carefully prepared document, singularly free from the "crankiness" too frequently met with in such reports.

The Grand Lodge of England sets an example of Masonic charity for the world. It disburses upward of $50,000 a year for the maintenance of institutions where the orphan children of Masons are sheltered and educated till they are sixteen years of age, and when the time comes for them to leave the institution they are provided with proper homes and employment. Homes for aged and destitute Masons are also maintained, where nearly 400 inmates are tenderly cared for annually.

In the minutes of one of the oldest lodges in this country, under date of June 20, 1754, is found a curious entry. It appears that one of the brethren got married, but refused to comply with the usual custom by paying for a bottle of wine. The action of the lodge on this henious offense is thus recorded: "The members are agreed that he should not at any time hereafter have any vote in any matter or cause or any thing whatever, for it is thought that said Bro. C—— having behaved exceedingly ill and absolutely broke through the laws in refusing to pay one bottle of wine for entering the holy state of matrimony."

Knights of Pythias.

In spite of mismanagement and petty squabbling among the members of the local committees, and a seeming inclination to shift tresponsibilities by the chief commanding officers of the uniform rank, the Milwaukee encampment has proved a great success. The camp presented a very pretty sight. Thousands of white canvas dwellings covering many acres, dotted here and there with red tents marking the headquarters of the several brigades, the tall flag-poles from which graceful and unique banners fluttered in the breeze, the avenues of green sward stretching away for miles between the tent rows, with thousands of men in gay uniforms marshaled in line at regular intervals, as far as the eye could see, presented a scene that will long be remembered. Some parts of the city were decorated with bunting and the colors of the order, but on the whole they were meager compared with what has been done in other cities on similar occasions.

The procession was a fine display both of men and music, and the line of march was commendably short. The struggle for prizes was exciting and interesting, and the men acquitted themselves remarkably well. The drill ground was about the very worst spot that could have been selected. The surface was rough, stony in some places and marshy in others, and provided rather a test of endurance for an ordinary pedestrian than a parade ground for prize drilling. But the men seemed to get on their sea legs and did very well.

The Elks.

The strength and influence of the order was demonstrated very thoroughly at Cleveland at the recent reunion. Prominent men from all parts of the country were there, adorned with antlers, and showing all the herding qualities of the noble American animal. The delicate sombre tints of the Forest City were badly smeared with red paint for several days. The reunion, the parade, the hand-shaking and the hilarity of the occasion will be remembered for many years to come. It was in every sense of the word a "social session." The report of the acting Grand Secretary, John W. White, showed that 46 new lodges were instituted during the year and that the order had increased from 6,000 in 1886 to 25,000 in 1890.

Odd-Fellows.

The work of gathering together the members of the order and the Patriarchs Militant in Chicago next August still goes on. The prizes offered and the circulars issued to lodges and cantons through the country have stirred up considerable enthusiasm outside of Illinois. The order in Chicago has not as yet taken any active steps toward arranging for the brilliant display intended, and seems to take but a languid interest in the event. It is claimed, however, that the display will equal if not surpass the Knights Templar parade in Chicago in 1880. This seems doubtful, for the Patriarchs Militant, which is the military branch of the order, is not a strong body and has only been in existence a few years. They are, however, a well-drilled body of men, with showy uniforms and equipments, and ten thousand of them in line will make a very creditable appearance. McDOUGALL.

FOUND HIS ENEMY.

Thirty Years of Waiting for Vengeance Knocked Into a Cocked Hat.

We were sitting on the veranda of a hotel at Niagara Falls, writes a New York Sun contributor, when I noticed the man on my right looking sharply at the man on my left, and presently he got up in an excited way and walked about. After a bit he halted before the other man and asked:

"Isn't your name Graham?"

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"Didn't you used to teach school at Elmira?"

"Yes, sir."

"In 1863?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you remember a boy named Godkin?"

"Very distinctly, sir."

"Do you remember that he put a package of fire-crackers under his desk and touched them off?"

"As if it happened only yesterday."

"And you basted him for it?"

"I did. I licked him until he could hardly stand, and I've always been glad of it."

"You have, eh?" said the other, breathing fast and hard. "Do you know that that boy swore a terrible oath?"

"I presume he did, as he was a thorough young villain."

"He swore an oath that he would grow up and hunt for you and pound you within an inch of your life."

"But I haven't heard from him yet."

"You hear from him now! He stands before you! I am that boy!"

"Well?"

"Prepare to be licked! My time has come at last!"

He made a dive for the old pedagogue, but the latter evaded him, made a half-turn and hit him on the jaw, and Godkin went over a chair in a heap. Then the whilom schoolmaster piled onto him and licked him until he cried "Enough," and it didn't take him over three minutes to do it. Then he retired to get on another collar and replace some buttons, and I helped Godkin up and observed:

"You didn't wait quite long enough, I guess."

"Say! That's where I made a miscue!" he replied. "I see now that I ought to have held off until he had got to be about 150 years old. The old devil is all of 60 now, but he licked me right off the reel, and I'll never have the sand to stand up to him again. Here's thirty years of waiting for vengeance knocked into a cocked hat in three minutes!"

CAPTAIN JACK'S STORY.

The First Confederate Flag Flung to the Breeze on the Mississippi.

The first Confederate flag ever flung to the breeze on the Mississippi was raised by Captain J. F. Jack. To an interviewer at Saratoga he gave an interesting account of the incident and of his eventful life, as follows:

"I was born in 1830 in Ohio. In 1847 I drifted down to New Orleans, and there, without friends or money, began the battle of life. Shortly afterward I joined a circus, and traveled with it on the road. Then we went up and down the Mississippi river on a floating palace, touching at towns along the shore and giving entertainments. This palace was 200 feet long, 50 feet wide, and would seat 2,000 people. I ran this boat for our company until 1859, when I took charge of the Banio, a smaller craft. On this boat I had a number of French Zouaves, who gave musket drills. As soon as Fort Sumter was fired upon I ran the craft up to Vicksburg and sold out every thing, even to the muskets, which were purchased by the Confederates. Then I came North and remained a few days in New York, but as my feelings and interests were all with the Southern people, I returned to New Orleans, purchased a passenger boat called the Charm, and proceeded up the river. Arriving at Vicksburg I met the Prince, a small steamer in command of Captain Reeves, coming down. It was while we were moored at Vicksburg that I hoisted the Confederate flag. You see at that time every one was making a decided stand for one side or the other, and one day Captain Reeves came aboard the Charm. He had a Confederate flag in his hand, and he said to me: 'Captain Jack, these are the colors we are sailing under now.' I said: 'All right,' and taking the flag I nailed it on a long pole, and lashed the pole to the mainmast. But, understand me, if it were to be done once again, I would not do it. In fact, no colors would go to the top of my mainmast except the Stars and Stripes. After that I continued to run steamboats in Southern waters until 1875, when my health failed, and since that time, with grip in one hand and pocketbook in the other, I have explored the world, and especially the United States, which is to my mind the greatest country on top of God's earth."

A Gown Weighing Three Ounces.

About the year 1700 a fair young bride in the village now known as New Haven wore a dainty costume of white. The gown was cut low in the neck and was sleeveless. The dress was of light and filmy texture, and weighed but about three ounces. It has been handed down from generation to generation, until at last it has come into possession of a Danbury lady. The dress is remarkably well preserved and is extremely valuable, both from its age and the beauty of embroideries with which it is covered. The design of the trimming is prettily worked in the coarse linen thread so common in those days.

A Singular Swiss Custom.

Until within a few years a singular custom has obtained in Switzerland. When husband and wife expressed a desire for a divorce they were required to enter a room and live therein together for a fortnight, during which time they were neither to see nor to converse with anybody else; their food was passed to them through a narrow opening in the wall, and all communication with the outside world was cut off. If, at the end of a fortnight of this confinement together, the couple still clamored for divorce, it was granted without further ado.

A DEADLY HAT-RACK.

How It Caused Trouble In Jackson's Boarding House.

ONE day last week while sitting in my room thinking idle thinks and sipping ice-water, I was startled by an unusual noise in the house next to mine, which is occupied by a man named Jackson, who uses it as a boarding-house. By holding my ear to the wall (which I confess was not the proper thing to do under ordinary circumstances, but the disturbance became so violent that I was warranted in so doing), I could hear dull thuds, interspersed with such remarks as "Take that! Ugh! Leggo my hair! Take your finger out of my eye!" etc. Directly a servant rushed out and returned with a policeman, who took off two men who looked as though they had been struck by a street car.

As I knew Jackson intimately, and as I have a large amount of curiosity secreted in my composition, I went over to see him and find out all about the row. The servant at the door who took my card up to him informed me that Mr. Jackson was in bed, and it was doubtful whether he would see me.

I was finally told to come up, and, hanging my hat and coat on a hat-rack in the hall, followed the servant up stairs, where I found Jackson propped up in bed, his head bandaged up, his arm in a sling, and both eyes in deep mourning.

AS I RUSHED IN TO SEPARATE THEM.

"How did it happen?" I asked, in astonishment.

"Oh, what tough luck," he moaned. "You know what a large number of boarders I had. Well, they're all gone now. Look at that right eye, please, and tell me whether you think I will ever be able to use it as an organ of sight again?"

"It looks pretty bad, but I guess it will come around all right in time. What caused the fuss?"

"A measly little hat-rack."

"A hat-rack!"

"Yes. About a month ago my wife—poor a little arnica on that bandage for me, will you?—about a month ago my wife bought a hat-rack and put it in the hall. O, why did she do it! why did she do it!" he moaned piteously.

I was about to remark that she probably did it to make the hall look more hatracktive, but a wee, small voice within me whispered not to—that the man was miserable enough already.

"At first it was a good, serviceable hat-rack, but after a week or two the pegs acquired a downward slant. If a person walked through the hall four or five hats would slide off, and if he tried to put them back three or four overcoats would glide rapidly in the direction of the floor. The rack seemed human, it was so malicious. The pegs seemed to be greased."

"But it didn't black your eyes, and lay you up, did it?" I asked impatiently.

"Oh, have a little patience, will you? Just take another look at that right eye, and see if you think it has improved. Well, when the boarders came in to dinner they would put their hats and coats on that hat-rack. The racket you heard was caused by that infernal—Jerusalem, how that arm hurts! How long does it take to heal a broken arm?"

JACKSON WAS IN BED.

"O, I don't know. Go on with the story."

"After dinner two of the boarders—Guggenheimer and Flynn—went to get their coats and hats. Now, there is bad blood between those chumps, all on account of both of them being sweet on my daughter Maria."

"At last I will hear the story," I murmured.

"Well, when Guggenheimer reached out for his hat, that fiendish hat-rack slid four others to the floor. He replaced them all but Flynn's, and simultaneously the lower row of pegs shed all the coats that were hanging there.

"'Pick that hat oop, dom quick,' said Flynn, pointing to his hat on the floor.

"'Who peeks it up?' said Guggenheimer; 'you'd petter call the servant to peek it up.' Guggenheimer was about to walk away, when Flynn hit him a twister in the jaw. In less time than it takes to tell it, fourteen upper cuts and twenty-two body blows were delivered, and, as I rushed in to separate them, every blow landed on me."

"Good gracious!"

"As the hall was dark, and it was just my luck to have them mistake me for each other, and, as I had tripped over the fallen overcoats, they were making short work of me, when the servant entered with a policeman."

"Too bad."

"Just shift that splint a little, and don't sit on the end of the bed. My ankle is out of joint; Flynn stepped on it when I was down. As soon as I get my arm out of a sling, I am going to chop that measly, dod-gasted hat-rack into splinters, and, if I ever get any more boarders, I am going to have a hook similar to the ones used in butcher stalls, with the boarder's name above. I am thinking seriously of having a gas-jet over each hook, which will be kept burning constantly. Going?"

"Yes."

"Before you go, just hand me the bottle of medicine. Thanks."

When I reached the hall I found my hat and coat on the floor, where they had been deposited by that infernal hat-rack.—Lewis M. Sweet, in Texas Siftings.

Down to Hard Pan.

Mrs. Statesman—Are you going out this evening?

Mr. Statesman—Yes. I have promised to attend the St. Patrick Club reception and deliver an oration on "The Irish in America. What Would the Country Do Without Them?" Is there any thing you want down-town, my dear?

Mrs. Statesman — Yes; I wish you would stop at the employment office and ask them to send me a good American, English, French, German, Swedish, Danish, Norwegian, Polish, Russian, Italian or colored girl for general housework.—Puck.

Much Needed.

Edith—Jack says he is not the proper sort of a man to marry sister Nell.

Jack (Edith's lover)—No he's a perfect dead beat.

Papa—What do you mean by that?

Jack—Well, he came to college without a cent and has literally sponged his way through.

Papa—Smart enough to do it for four years, eh?

Jack—Yes, the scoundrel!

Papa—Well, he can have her then. We want one smart man in the family.—Munsey's Weekly.

Not Without Honor, Save in Its Own Country.

Dakota Farmer (visiting in the East) —Yes, sirree; I live right on the banks of the noble Missouri—the grandest and most magnificent stream on earth!

Same Dakota Farm (at home)—Darn it, the river has destroyed my best patch of wheat. This yere Missouri is the dirtiest, meanest and snaggiest stream on earth!—The Jury.

A GOOD RECOMMENDATION.

"Are these complexion powders warranted fast colors?"

"Well, madam, I can not say that they will wash like the natural complexion, but they won't rub off on a coat sleeve."—Life.

Equal to the Occasion.

Friend (a recent American-English milady)—And so you are going to be married, I hear. Do tell me who is the happy man. I hope he is one of "us."

The Fiancee—Oh, no, indeed; I shall be plain American Mrs. You see, this rage for every thing English might pass away, and then what in the world could I do with my husband?—Munsey's Weekly.

The Professional Good Man.

Ted—I dined at Prim's last night, and the old man took ten minutes to thank the Lord for what he had provided.

Ned—What of that?

Ted—Why, when I was going in the house earlier in the evening I heard the old man bullying his wife because she asked him for two dollars to buy the things for dinner.—Drake's Magazine.

Preposiana.

Teacher—What is the gender of star?

Boy—Masculine.

Teacher—What is the gender of meteor?

Boy—Feminine.

Teacher—But why do you make them of different genders?

Boy—Because one is a sun and the other's a darter.

Show Hadn't Commenced.

Jonathan—You go in, Zeph; and if the play is a good un, come out and let us know.

Zeph (coming out) — No good, no good; nothing but a lot of bald-headed fellers playing fiddles before a big pictur'.—Light.

Ironical Significance.

De Sute—Where did you get your clothes, Harry?

Harry—Saltator's. But why do you ask? He only does a cash business.—Puck.

He Named the Lay.

Stranger (seeking information)—Well, bub, do you know the lay of the land?

Bub (aged ten)—Yes, sir; the "Star-spangled Banner," sir.—Judge.

THE CONVICT'S SON.

How a Young Australian Surprised His English Friends.

A Story Which Shows That a Man May Be a Convicted Felon and Yet Be Innocent of Any Crime—Every Man's Honor in His Own Hands.

The young men were practicing archery on Mr. Howson's lawn and Bud Markham had astonished every one with his skill as a marksman, says a writer in the New York Morning Journal. "Why, you shoot like an Indian," said Jim Crawford.

"I am worse than that," said the other, calmly. "I was born in Australia, the son of a convict." Frank Howson and the other young men drew away. The young host flushed angrily.

"What do you mean?" he asked. "You know very well that if you're the son of a convict we can't associate with you, and so I'll tell the coachman to have the carriage ready for the five o'clock train."

His young host's plain speaking did not seem to give the other any uneasiness, for he answered, with a short laugh:

"All right—as you please. But you may change your mind about my not being good enough to associate with after you've heard my story."

Frank looked uncertain at this moment, and then sat down and looked uneasily at the other, who began:

"My father was arrested twenty-eight years ago on the charge of killing his uncle and tried for the murder. The testimony, which was entirely circumstantial, was not sufficient to hang him, but was so damaging that, in spite of his most solemn protestations of innocence, he was transported for life to the penal settlements of Australia.

"He was taken there, and for ten years worked like a slave, with a chain and ball dragging at his heels.

"At the end of that time another convict died in the same prison, where he had been sent for highway robbery, four years after father was transported. On his death-bed he confessed that he murdered my father's uncle, and gave minute details of the crime, and even told the place where he had hidden the knife which he had used in the crime, and also where he had hidden the murdered man's watch and pocket-book.

"Of course my father was released and every thing done for him by the Government of New South Wales to show how deeply every one regretted that an innocent man should have suffered for so long.

"In a year he married the daughter of a merchant who had visited the prison very often and been a ministering angel to him and to the other convicts.

"After living a short time in Melbourne his dislike of the city as being the place where he had suffered so much unjustly drove him to move away, and with my mother he went far up into the interior, in the brush, miles away from any human beings, except the natives, and there built a log hut and lived for twelve years.

"I was born soon after our new home was finished, and in less than two years after my brother came. We grew up together, with no companionship but each other and the few natives who lived in the mountains near us. From them we learned how to throw the boomerang and draw the bow, until, young as we were, we excelled even them in their use. We could bring down the kangaroo with the bow at one hundred yards, even if it was running at full speed, and smash a bottle set behind a tree one hundred feet away with the boomerang.

"When I was thirteen and my brother eleven father discovered gold on his farm, which by that time had grown to thousands of acres, and in two months the country was flooded with miners and he was worth $500,000.

"My mother prevailed upon him to move back to Melbourne, where he is now the Governor of New South Wales and one of the richest men in Australia."

"I beg your pardon, my dear fellow," exclaimed Frank, eagerly extending his hand, while the others crowded around him with equally profuse apologies.

But, to their astonishment and chagrin, he did not seem to notice any of the proffered hands, but, with a quiet smile, turned to Frank.

"Now that you know how I came to handle a bow so well—as also how a man can be a convicted felon and yet be innocent of any crime—it would make your stock of information still more complete if you could learn that even if a father is guilty of crime it does not make his son any the less honorable or fit to associate with the world. Every man's honor is in his own hands, and is not affected in the slightest by what others may do—it is by a man's own deeds that he will be judged by his Maker! And now, my dear Frank, I will go to your house and pack my valise, and if you will have the carriage ready for the five o'clock train I will relieve you of my presence."

And, in spite of his friend's protestations, the boy that afternoon shook from his feet the dust of the Howson estate.

Derivation of Cravat.

Cravat is a corruption of crabat or croat. It was introduced into France by some French officers on their return from Germany in 1636, says the Dry Goods Chronicle. The Croats, who guarded the Turkish frontier of Austria, and acted as scouts on the flanks of the army, wore linen round their necks, tied in front, and the officers wore muslin or silk. When France organized a regiment on the model of the Croats these linen neckcloths were imitated, and the regiment was called "The Royal Cravat."

How Much Is He Worth?

Of all current questions, this is the one most frequently asked. It is, in fact, the great question of the day. Nobody to speak of inquries: "Is he honest?" "Is he patriotic?" Every body puts the query: "What is he worth?" Money is not merely the commercial standard of value, but too often the criterion of social position and the touchstone of character.

THE PRISON "TRUSTY."

He Occupies a Peculiar Position in the Affairs of Penitentiaries.

It may seem like a paradox to speak of a man who is serving out a term in State's prison for a crime as a "trusty," or one who is trusted to do certain things outside of the usual prison labor, and on no other bond than the convict's honor, says the Chicago Tribune.

There are men of intelligence wearing the ungainly stripes who look forward to a time when they can begin life anew and reinstate themselves in the good opinion of their fellow-men. These are the convicts who are put in places of trust. A reasonable amount of intelligence and an aptness for the work are the requisites, both always based on good behavior. A man is selected for book-keeper or cashier in the warden's office. It is not always that a competent man can be found in the cells or the work-shops. Sometimes one is found who occupied a place of trust before he committed his offense. If he is willing and well-behaved he is given the place of accountant, and it is a blessing to him to get it. What incentive has he to make a wrong entry or to attempt any concealment of funds, or do any thing wrong whatsoever? The slightest inclination on his part to do so means a return to hard work in the shops and loss of time to his credit for good behavior.

This is true of every trusty.

"How many have taken advantage of the trust?" was asked.

"None in many years," was the reply. The hostler of the prison was sent there for a life term for murder when he was almost a lad, ten years ago. He takes care of the horses, drives the carriage to town and does whatever chores he is told to do, and is sometimes gone for several hours and has always returned in season. There is not a discredit mark against him. He is polite and correct. What has he to gain by violating the trust reposed in him? It would be the complete extinguishment of the last spark of hope which flickers about a possible pardon, for under the Bartillon system of identification in vogue at Joliet his capture would be but a question of time.

A CLEVER BLACKMAILER.

How She Secured a Large Check from a Publishing House.

For some years I was the reader of manuscripts for a noted New York publisher, says a writer in the Christian at Work. I read the manuscripts first, and if approved, passed them on to the one in command above me. If he approved of it, it was generally given to one of the members of the firm for final decision. One day I came upon a manuscript that was most vividly written.

It was a story of crime, and I knew at once that it would be a great success as a book. The price, however, that was marked on it was almost prohibitively high; still, I considered it my duty to at least give those above me the chance of acceptance or rejection. So I handed the story to the man above me, whom I shall call Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown read the story, and was as much interested in it as I was. He gave it to the member of the firm, whom, for convenience, I may call Mr. Smith. When Mr. Smith started reading the story his door was open, but in a very short time the door was closed and locked, and nobody entered that room until the MS. was finished.

When it was done Mr. Smith came out to Mr. Brown, and it seemed to Brown that his face was ghastly pale. He said: "Write a check to this woman for her MS." Then, without a word, he went himself down-stairs with the MS. in his hands, and threw the copy into the furnace. He had paid an exorbitant price, although the story was by a well-known author, and he deliberately threw away all chance of returns. It turned out afterward, as I found out, that this story was really the life of a friend of Mr. Smith's, and the motives of the crime which had always been a mystery before, seemed so probable that the MS. almost read like a confession. It looked to me afterward that, knowing the circumstances of the case, the MS. had been sent into our particular publishing house for a particular purpose, and that the price put on the MS. was simply so much blackmail, because, although the story was never published, we never had an inquiry as to why it had not been published.

HEIGHT OF WAVES.

New Light on a Subject That Has Been Disputed for a Long Time.

We must confess that although we try to adjust our minds to the assertions and demands of science, yet there do come times when we feel that we know better; and it is with great inward rejoicing that we find the following announcement in the Sailor's Magazine, which declares our former scepticism, or heresy, orthodox after all:

"The height of sea waves has long been the subject of controversy. Eminent hydrographers have insisted that storm waves were usually not more than ten feet high, and rarely over twenty when the conditions of the sea were most favorable for wave development. Many a traveler, reclining on a cabin transom, has looked up through the skylight to see the waves rearing their frothy crests, and wondering how even a twenty-footer could show so high above the great ship's deck. Many a sailor doused by an up-driving wave while lying out on a topgallant yard has, doubtless, shaken his head incredulously when told that the highest waves were not above twenty feet, the rest being 'heel' of ship and dip of yard. Now, however, comes expert testimony to prove that storm waves are often forty feet, and sometimes from sixty to seventy feet in height. In the recent British scientific expedition some instructive data were gathered by a sensitive aneroid barometer capable of recording its extreme rise and fall by an automatic register. With a sea not subjected to an atmosphere of unusual violence, it indicated an elevation of forty feet from the wave's base to crest.' Admiral Fitzroy, after a long series of careful measurements from the main top of his ship, came to a similar conclusion."

A SNAKE'S DINNER.

How a Bull-Snake Caught a Half-Grown Jack-Rabbit.

Preparations for the Repast — Peculiarities of the Lower Jaw of Serpents — Lubrication Extraordinary — The Last of the Toothsome Prey.

The Western Bull-Snake (Pityophis cellona) is found from the Missouri river to the Rocky Mountains, frequently of a length of six feet, but is perfectly harmless and of immense benefit to the the farmers of the great plains, living on gophers, ground-squirrels and rabbits—those pests of the agriculturists in that region.

Last fall, while driving in my buggy from my home in Ellsworth, Central Kansas, to visit a friend on Thompson creek, I saw on the high prairie one of these snakes, a large specimen of its kind, catch and devour a half-grown jack-rabbit, writes a contributor to Santa Claus.

The snake dashed at the rabbit like lightning out from the grass where he was hidden, just as I drove by, the rabbit unconsciously feeding. I stopped my horse immediately and watched the strange proceeding; there was a blow, a little scream, and instantly the unfortunate rabbit was fast in the muscular coils of the snake! These movements were effected too rapidly for my eye to follow them.

At one instant the snake was perfectly motionless; in the next he was a mass of convolutions around the involved rabbit. He had seized his victim by the neck, just under the ear, and exerted his greatest crushing force around the throat of the rabbit, to apparently choke it as quickly as possible, and at the same time the coils were tightly wound around the lower part of its body to prevent any movement there. The rabbit made no sound after it was seized. I have noticed they never do, even when caught by hounds—only a little scream at first, and that is all.

The rabbit lay in the embrace of the snake, with his hind legs stretched out beyond the convoluted body of its captor, still breathing with great difficulty, as I could see by the labored motion of its flanks; suddenly it made one convulsive struggle with its exposed feet; but the snake, observing this, quietly put another coil of its long body around them, gave two or three desperate squeezes, and in a few moments the crushed animal was perfectly quiet—dead!

The snake then gradually uncoiled himself, apparently watching or listening for some motion on the part of his prey for a few seconds; but finding the rabbit did not stir, opened his mouth, let go his hold of the neck, and placed his head opposite that of the rabbit.

The snake then got the nose of the rabbit into his mouth, coiled himself again around his body and appeared to draw it out through his folds; he then began to dilate his jaws, and the stretching and secretion with which he lubricated his prey were astonishing and excessive!

It is well known that the lower jaw of snakes is peculiarly constructed, so as to enable them to swallow masses of food entirely disproportioned to their normal bulk; the jaw is absolutely dislocated for the time being. With the animal completely lubricated, swallowing becomes a relatively easy matter, but looks difficult and painful.

Holding the rabbit in his coils, which take the place of hands or feet, the mouth was drawn little by little over it, or, in other words, the snake got outside of it, as that is the only word expressive of the strange way of his eating, until it was all ingulfed by his now ponderous jaws!

He then lay perfectly quiet for a few moments, his jaw still dislocated; presently he stretched his neck, and then, by another effort of the muscles, the rabbit was pushed farther down; this pushing force was continued for three or four minutes, then the jaws assumed their normal appearance, the snake moved off into the grass and I drove on.

BEAUTY OF OUR GIRLS.

They Beat the World in Symmetry and Variety of Attractions.

The beauty of American girls is a much-talked of question. It is said they have no distinct points, but it seems to me that one who has traveled must easily have settled upon the salient points which go to make up the beauty of an American girl, says a writer in the Illustrated American. A general delicacy of outline as well as coloring are demanded. A woman with very large eyes and no other charms is never rated as a beauty here. When a woman is said to be beautiful in America it means that she has a face molded in delicate lines, features that are thoroughly harmonious, a figure which is neither pronouncedly athletic nor too plump, and small hands and feet. In England if a woman is six feet two, and broad across the shoulders, she is invariably spoken of in the society papers as beautiful, though her feet may outclass the ironclad and her knuckles stretch wildly abroad.

In Italy and Spain a pair of big, expressive eyes are enough, but in America a thoroughly-balanced series of attractions must be shown to win the title. American girls form a lofty, gay, intrepid and dashing army whose audacity should be feminine. They have all the athletic look of the English woman, without the ill-fitting gloves and ponderous boots. The assumption of semi-masculine attire robs them of their greatest charm. Womanliness is the most attractive quality of woman.

To Remove Grass Stains.

Grass stain is particularly obstinate to remove. It will sometimes disappear by dipping the spot in molasses and letting it lie a few moments. Rinse the molasses out in clear water, and the stain will disappear with it. A more effectual method, however, is to dip the spot in a solution of tin chloride and immediately wash it out in abundance of clear water. Many stains which are too firmly set to yield to the treatment with boiling water will come out by dipping the spot in warm chlorine water.

GUARDING A TOWN

The Inhabitants Terrorized by a Party of Invaders.

A BATTLE WITH THE CITIZENS

Several Persons Wounded and Two of the Lawbreakers Captured.

The Balance of the Band Escape by Riding Over the State Line—The People Prepare for a Second Visit—The Mayor Orders the Military to be Ready at a Moment's Notice.

LYNCHBURG, Va., July 22.—Pocahontas has another excitement. The town was thrown into a fever last evening when a party of men from McDowell County, W. Va., rode into the place and began firing their guns promiscuously in the streets.

The town sergeant summoned a posse and attempted to arrest them when the invaders opened fire on them, wounding several of the sergeant's force.

After quite a battle the officers succeeded in arresting two of the mob and lodged them in jail. The rest of them escaped by riding over the State line.

Later in the evening the rumor was current that an attempt would be made to rescue the prisoners, and much excitement prevailed. The reports became so positive that the Mayor ordered out the military to be ready at a moment's notice. Up to an early hour in the morning no such attempt had been made, but the people are uneasy and every approach to the town is guarded.

CONFESSED THE MURDER.

Fireman Roodhouse says He Killed Engineer Vanderventer.

LIMA, O., July 22.—Fireman Roodhouse has confessed at Van Wert to the murder of Engineer Vanderventer.

He said that he and Vanderventer quarreled and that when the train was nearing Van Wert the engineer rushed at him with a curse, saying that he would fix him. With that he dealt him a blow in the face, knocking him down and cutting his head. When Roodhouse recovered he picked up a hammer and rained several blows on Vanderventer's head, knocking him insensible.

Roodhouse controlled the engine until just as they were running into the switch when Vanderventer came to and attacked him again. Roodhouse then struck him, killing him.

Roodhouse is in jail, and it is feared he will be lynched by the dead engineer's friends.

CALIFORNIA'S GOOD LUCK.

Her Tin Mines Promise to Surpass in Value the Recent Gold Mines.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—From present indications California will have in the near future a new industry, rivaling in importance even the taking of gold from the bowels of the earth. The new industry is the mining at great profit of tin ore near San Jancinto, San Bernardine county.

Twenty-seven years ago tin deposits were found in this neighborhood, but the value of the discoveries did not seem to be appreciated. Negotiations have just been concluded whereby the San Jancinto tin mines will pass into the hands of an English syndicate with large experience in the treatment of these ores and these men, who own tin mines near Swansea, Wales, pronounce the California ores nearly three times as rich as the Welch ores they have been operating with fair profit.

Within the radius of a few miles there are over 50 veins bearing ore. Experts say the ore has all the characteristics of a permanent deposit.

High Degree Masons Off on an Excursion.

NEW YORK, July 22.—One hundred representatives of the Masonic Brotherhood, of high degree, from Mecca Temple, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of the Mystic Shrine, with their friends, left by the West Shore Railroad at 1 p. m. on a pilgrimage to Yellowstone Park and California. They are to be the special guests of the Nobles of Islam Temple, San Francisco, and will be absent for a full month. They will travel over the entire route in a handsome vestibule train. A baggage car will be attached, specially arranged with receptacles for trunks which will be accessible at all times.

On a Kidnapping Expedition.

NEW ORLEANS, July 22.—It is said that a number of detectives have gone to Honduras recently, presumably with the intention of kidnapping Major Burke and returning him to Louisiana, in the hope of securing the reward offered by the State. It is reported that ex-Treasurer Burke is aware of their mission and seems to be very much worried and nervous.

Money for the Enumerators.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Superintendent Porter has begun sending out checks in payment of the services of census enumerators. Checks are being sent direct to the enumerators, and are made payable at the Sub-Treasury in New York. About 500 checks will be sent out daily until the whole number, something over 50,000, are paid.

A Strike Adjusted.

LYNN, Mass., July 22.—The strike of the colorers at Weber's factory has been adjusted. Mr. Weber renewed his offer of 37½ cents per dosen for calf and 40 cents for Dongola calf. The men accepted the terms and returned to work.

$1,500,000 English Money.

BOSTON, July 22.—The International Trust Company has received the first installment of $1,500,000 English capital to be paid for one of Boston's industrial enterprises.

EXCITING CONTEST.

Gaudaur and McKay Win the Professional Double Scull Race.

DULUTH, Minn., July 22.—The great professional double scull race proved as grand a contest as was ever witnessed here. When the shot was fired, all the crews dipped their oars in the water as if they were one man. In an instant the powerful stroke of Gaudaur and McKay told and they forged ahead of Teemer and Hosmer, now a quarter, now a half, and now a full length. From the start the struggle was most exciting.

The crews followed one another quite closely in their order from the shore. Gaudaur and McKay were pulling 42 strokes to the minute, Teemer and Hosmer 36, Hanlan and Wise 35 and Hamm and Ten Eyck 37. The turn was first made by Gaudaur and McKay. A second later Hosmer and Teemer followed, then Hamm and Ten Eyck, and finally Hanlan and Wise.

On the homestretch Hanlan's boat got into Teemer's water. Half way to the finish the press boat was passed, when Gaudaur and McKay led Hosmer and Teemer by three lengths. The latter kept three-fourths of a length ahead of Hamm and Ten Eyck, who kept the same distance ahead of the Toronto crew. Gaudaur's crew shot across the line amid the screeching of whistles about four lengths ahead. Hanlan would have done better had he not lost both of his oars for a second a few hundred yards from the finish.

The time was: Gaudaur and McKay, 12:28; Teemer and Hosmer, 12:32; Hamm and Ten Eyck, 12:33 1-2; and Hanlan and Wise, 12:34. Hamm and Ten Eyck, according to Teemer and Hosmer, turned the latter crew's buoy, and Teemer has entered a protest.

FORCED TO RESIGN.

A City Councilman Charged With an Attempts at Felonious Assault.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 22.—Michel J. Sparkey, Democratic member of the City Council, from the Tenth war is publicly charged with two attempts at felonious assault on a respectable young lady of this city. Mr. Sparkey's bottler of beer and soft drinks unattempted the crime when delivering bottled beer at her father's residence.

Her family demanded that he leave the city or suffer the full extent of the law. It was finally agreed to allow him to remain in the city provided he resign his seat in the Council. A member of the family holds his resignation to present to Council. The affair has created a sensation.

The Greek Church Trouble.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 22.—Rev. Father Obuszkewicz has arrived at Shenandoah direct from Galicia in order to act as mediator in the Greek Church controversy at that place. He has been ordered by the Archbishop to take charge of the church there, and unless Rev. Father Andruchowicz returns to Galicia immediately he will be excommunicated. The trouble arose between the two priests after Rev. Father Wolanki had placed Rev. Father Andruchowicz in charge of the Shenandoah church. The latter refused to give up possession when requested to do so. Rev. Father Andruchowicz has consented to resign and will return to Galicia.

A Female Thief Captured.

BOSTON, July 22.—The police here on notice from Buffalo, N. Y., arrested a woman giving the name of Mary Wilson, who is wanted in Buffalo for robbing the house of J. G. Miller. Three trunks filled with miscellaneous valuables worth $3,000 arrived here from Rochester, N. Y., yesterday. Miss Wilson sent an expressman for them this morning but the police had told them not to give them up. Miss Wilson then came in person and was arrested. When accused of stealing the contents of the trunks she broke down and confessed. She will be returned to Buffalo.

Waller is Not a Candidate.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 22.—Ex-Gov. Thomas N. Waller, of New London, late Consul General to London, England, in an interview positively denied the statement that he is a candidate for the nomination of Governor on the Democratic ticket. "I wish this to be taken as final and conclusive," said he. "I do not care to add to or alter the record I have already made." Ex-Gov. Waller favors the nomination of Luzon B. Morris, of New Haven, by the Democrats for Governor, and of ex-Congressman Carlos French, of Seymour, for Senator.

Large Catch of Codfish.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 22.—The schooner Marguerite, of Beverly, from the Grand Banks, brought 310,000 pounds of codfish. This is the largest catch made this season and one of the largest ever made in one trip from this port. It is alleged that Captain Petersen, of the schooner Pathfinder, has sold the schooner's fare for $500 and decamped with the money.

Novel Means of Suicide.

FITCHBURG, Mass., July 22.—It has just come to light that Barnes Foster, aged 64, who lived on the lonely West Townsend road, killed himself in a novel manner. He was unable to obtain a rope, so putting his head through one armhole of his vest he placed the other over an old-fashioned bed-post and died of strangulation.

Banker Aronson Held.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Bernard Aronson, the banker, who is charged with having defrauded many poor people who had placed funds with him wherewith to purchase tickets whereon their relatives and friends in Europe might come to this country, was held in $3,000 bail by Justice Duffy.

Caught the Pickpocket.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 22.—W. E. Perry, of Cold Spring, had his pocket picked of $2,000. He caught Edwin Kelly of New York in the act, and after a short chase captured his man. Kelly was committed to await the action of the grand jury.

POORLY PROTECTED

The Senate Committee Discovers Facts of Interest.

OUR RELATIONS WITH CANADA.

Gen. Miles Says We Are Not Prepared for an Attack from England.

The Bankruptcy Bill to be Taken Up Thursday—Hot Contest for the United States Districts Attorneyship of New Jersey—An Inquiry in the House About the Union Pacific Land Grants.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Mr. Hoar, Chairman of the Senate Committee upon Relations of Commerce and Business with Canada, presented to the Senate the testimony which has been taken by that Committee. This testimony was not accompanied by a report. It is understood that the Committee will make a report of its conclusions at a later period, after additional testimony shall have been taken at Detroit, Buffalo and some other points.

The first witness examined was Gen. Nelson A. Miles, in command on the Pacific coast. Commenting upon the defenceless condition of the United States upon our Northwestern border, he said:

"I will state what is well known in regard to Canada. I believe that the railway system of British Columbia could be occupied by American troops in ten days; in other words, that the principal part of British Columbia could be occupied by American troops—not, however, through Victoria. That is on the island of Vancouver, occupied by British forces.

"I think it is fair to say, what every intelligent man must know, that during that ten days the British fleet could destroy every town and city upon Puget Sound, destroy our railroad system there, and occupy our outlets for that northwestern country. They could also send ships up the Columbia river and destroy the city of Portland and that railway system. There is not a gun or an earthwork on Puget Sound, nor a single artillery soldier. There are a few obsolete guns at the mouth of the Columbia, at Fort Canby; but that is not now occupied by troops. That is the condition of affairs north of the harbor of San Francisco.

"South of the harbor of San Francisco there is not a gun in position, a round of ammunition, nor a single artillery soldier to defend the harbors and cities of San Mego, Santa Barbara and San Pedro, the terminus of one of the railroads, and from those points a small force could destroy the railway system in Southern California."

WILL FIGHT FOR TIN.

The South Dakota Senators Will be Heard from During the Tariff Debate.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—One of the hottest fights that will arise in the Senate during the debate on the Tariff bill will be made by Senators Pettigrew and Moody, of South Dakota, in favor of protection for the development of the tin interests of that State. There has never been any serious effort made until now to develop the tin mines of this country. In the Black Hills of South Dakota are some rich tin mines which have not been thoroughly examined.

While lead, silver, especially copper, and nearly all other ores indigenous of the United States have been given specific attention in the Tariff laws, tin has received only general attention. The South Dakota Senators say they have enough tin within an area of 60 miles square to more than supply the United States, and that it can be fully developed within two years if there is proper encouragement given by Congress. They say they will not ask as much encouragement as is given either copper or lead, and they declare that tin is a much more essential product than either of the other products named.

THE BANKRUPTCY BILL.

Judge Buchanan Says It Will Be Taken Up Thursday and Passed.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The National bankruptcy bill will be taken up in the house on Thursday and will be in charge of Judge Buchanan of the Judiciary Committee. Judge Torrey, of Missouri, the author of the bill, is here and will lend his assistance against the fight that will be made upon the measure.

Judge Buchanan says that the opposition will come almost exclusively from those Western States which have state bankruptcy laws and which give large exemptions to debtors, and which, besides, have loose laws for the collections of debts.

The bill will be discussed under a special order, and the House will go into the Committee of the Whole upon the bill. Judge Buchanan says that it will undoubtedly pass, and substantially as it comes from the committee.

Instructions to a Collector.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Assistant Secretary Tichnor has instructed the Collector of Customs at Boston that he (the collector) has no authority to deny consular invoices from provincial ports on shipments amounting to more than $50, and on shipments from other foreign ports amounting to more than $100. He says the Department is unable to find any authority for such discrimination.

Another Candidate in the Field.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The contest for the United States District Attorneyship for New Jersey has been further complicated by Congressman Buchanan bringing John F. Hagarman, of Princeton, forward as a candidate. He is making an earnest and vigorous fight for him. The contest is beginning to attract considerable attention in New Jersey.
